Locals.

—Sale of livery stock this afternoon at Laing's Hotel.

—Boats may be hired by the hour at Tier's lake on Front street.

—Elizabeth rejoices in a base ball nine by the name of "Buck beats."

—Gamble Engine Company will take their apparatus out for a wash this evening.

—James Ray, arrested for drunkenness, was fined $1 by Judge Good. It was his first offense.

—A golden wedding was recently celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. John Brokaw, of East Third street.

—There will be a shooting match on the morning of the Fourth in the north-eastern part of the city.

—Mr. Hugh O'Donnell, of West Third street, has sailed for the old country to bring over his parents.

—The Fourth will be celebrated at the County Jail at Elizabeth this year by fifty of the county's residents.

—The Gamble Engine Company's new flag will be unfurled on the morning of the Fourth. The flag cost $40.

—Chief Carney, of the Fire Department, has made arrangements for the discovery and prompt extinguishing of all fires incident to the Fourth.

—Mr. N. W. Pisco, of Elizabeth, has been re-appointed County Superintendent of schools for Union County, by the State Board of Education.

—A charitable entertainment, before mentioned in these columns, will be given at Van Deventer Hall to-morrow evening. Admission fifty cents.

—The netting in Smith's saloon on Front and Somerset streets accidentally caught fire the other evening, and slightly smoked the ceiling. No great damage was done.

—Woodcock shooting opens to-day, and the sport lasts one month. Men, dogs, guns and game bags might be seen winding their ways to the favorite haunts of the bird early this morning.

—The Railway Reform Club will go to Woodbridge, Wednesday evening, July 9th, for the purpose of organizing a temperance club. The meeting will be held in the Methodist church.

—Plainfield's young people regret very much, this season the same as last, the closing of the Feltville grounds to picnic parties. Feltville was formerly a favorite resort for small parties.

—Florida Grove, a resort for pleasure parties from this city, will celebrate the Fourth with athletic games of all sorts and canoe and sack races. There will be dancing afternoon and evening, and a display of fireworks.

—The Young People's Association of the Park Avenue Church will give a Lawn Party on the Park House grounds on Thursday of next week. The Lawn Party given by the Association last season was a most decided success.

—A new crane-neck hose carriage is to be shipped to-morrow to this city for trial by Gamble Engine Co., No. 1, from the works of Mr. J. F. Preston, the maker of the new Truck. A new hose carriage is very much needed by this company.

—A large casting, forming part of the stone crusher to be placed in the Notch on Somerset street, attracted considerable attention on Park avenue yesterday. The wagon on which it was being carted came near breaking down.

—Invitations have been extended to the Reform Clubs of New Brunswick, Elizabeth, Metuchen and this city to send delegations to attend the exercises of the opening of the Railway Reform Club's new headquarters in the Union Hall building in that city.

—It is said that one of the Trenton High School graduates the other night found among his bouquets a check for $5,000. It was the gift of his father. Plainfield undoubtedly has the best High School in the State, but it will have to yield the palm for bouquets to Trenton.

—That a swimming bath with reasonable charges would pay in Plainfield, if rightly established, seems to be without doubt. Numerous young men of this city have been frequently heard wishing in vain for some such institution these warm nights. Here is a good opening for the right party.

—Two colored men were wrestling on Park avenue yesterday; and one of them was thrown, breaking a bottle containing whiskey which happened to be in his pocket. The owner of the whiskey took it good naturedly, while the other fellow, who had probably imbibed several times during the day, looked at the waste ruefully.

—Last Friday, Judge Good sentenced Margaret Bunworth to the County Jail, for 30 days, for keeping a disorderly house. She was taken to Elizabeth by special officer Flanagan. She attributed all her misfortunes to Policeman Kelly, and, to a question to that effect by Judge Good. Policeman Kelly is still at large, and does duty guarding the property of people of this city as fine specimen.

—The Trenton Fire Wardens have adopted the following:

To hereafter promptly arrest all persons who persist in pushing forward at fires after being warned by the wardens to retire. None but firemen are to be allowed about a burning building, except through authority from the wardens, who are responsible for the safe keeping of all property after their arrival at a fire.

It is suggested by some that this might will be followed in Plainfield.

Insane.

For about a week past Mr. John Walter, who keeps a bakery on Park avenue, has been complaining of feeling unwell, and at times became rather flighty. Sunday morning, at about three o'clock, he became so violent that his wife found it necessary to call in the assistance of Policemen Grant and Matter, who remained with him until between six and seven o'clock Sunday morning. Dr. Thomas H. Tomlinson, having meanwhile arrived and prescribed for him. Chief Dodd called and with several others remained at the residence Sunday and a part of yesterday to restrain the afflicted man from doing violence to himself or others. During Sunday night Mr. Walker became very violent, but was closely guarded by watchers, while the Chief was at home taking rest.

By advice of the physician, Walker was removed yesterday afternoon to the Morris Plains Asylum for the Insane, accompanied by Mr. Alexander Warnock and Andrew Love, Jr., friends of the family.

What Elizabeth Thinks of the Crescents.

The report of Saturday's game between the Elizabeth Athletics and the Plainfield Crescents, the Elizabeth Daily Journal says:

In bestowing the laurels it is hard to discriminate. Not a man on either side, who had anything to do, failed to do it well. The Plainfield men deserve the highest praise for their beautiful exhibition, and they are a team of which their townsmen may well be proud. They deserve hearty support from their friends, and it seems to us that there is not enough practical interest in the game and in such a nine in our sister city to give the boys the grand ground. More games will be played between these evenly matched nines, and no team which can visit Elizabeth will meet more welcome, and no team is sure of putting the home nine on the strongest defense to escape defeat. All honor to the Plainfield boys. May they beat every club but ours. Davidson's pitching was as marvellously effective as ever, and Scheefler was but a short way behind him.

Social of the Young People's Union.

The Young People's Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church held their June social in the lecture room of the church last evening. Miss Esther Gavett gave two of her delightful piano solos, and Miss Carrie Jackson several recitations. A vocal duet by Mr. T. B. Brown and Mr. Elmer Runyon was highly appreciated, and deservedly received an encore. Mr. Brown also favored the Union with a solo. Refreshments and social intercourse made the evening pass pleasantly.

The Union propose to keep in active organization throughout the summer, and give their regular monthly socials during the warm weather.

A Chinese Lantern Parade.

The Plainfield Bicycle Club propose to have a chinese lantern parade on Thursday evening, July 3. A cordial invitation is extended to resident and visiting wheelman to join us upon this occasion. Those participating, are expected to appear in bicycle dress and provide themselves with at least two chinese lanterns, one to be suspended from each handle bar. Assemble corner of Seventh street and Broadway at 8 o'clock.

D. M. Rexfox, Captain.
R. Pound, Secretary.

New Officers of Unity Lodge.

At a regular convention of Unity Lodge, held last evening, the following officers were elected for the term commencing July 7, 1884:

C. C., Jos. M. Hawkins; V. C., John F. Evans; P., Fred. Soars; M. at A., Wm. R. Mosher; Trustee, 18 months, L. B. Woolston. D. D. G. C., Jas. H. Morrison is expected to be present and install the officers elect on the evening of July 6. Visiting brethern will be cordially welcome.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Walter Angleman, a resident for the past year of Jersey City, and prior to that time, for about fourteen years a resident of this city, died very suddenly yesterday noon at her residence in Jersey City. The deceased was well known in the city, and her unexpected death will bring sorrow to many hearts. The funeral services will occur tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock, at the residence of her father-in-law, Mr. John Angleman, Sixth and New streets.

Before the Justices.

In the case of Bogart vs. Cahill, an action of trespass, before Justice Nash yesterday, judgment was given for the plaintiff for $10 and costs. The parties appeared for themselves.

Before Justice Nodyne yesterday in the case of L. M. Jones vs. Jones and Clark, an action of debt, on motion of counsel for defendant, judgment was ordered in favor of plaintiff for $50 and costs.

Fireworks at the Union Club.

Arrangements have been made for a display of fireworks upon the Union Club House lawn on Broadway, on the evening of July 4th, to be followed by music and refreshments. Members and their families are invited. In case of a storm on the evening designated, the entertainment will take place on the first favorable evening following.

Personals.

Mr. Harry Day, son of a former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is in town.

The engagement of Mr. W. L. Reyit and Miss K. F. Newell, of this city, is announced.

The marriage of Miss Anna, daughter of Mr. T. J. Gillies, to Mr. Edward Ryder will be celebrated this evening at the Crescent Avenue Church.

The Selectmen have offered $300 for the arrest of the persons who set fire to the Methodist Church at Milford last Thursday night.

The new Catholic church at Sea Isle City will not be completed in time for dedication on July 4th, as has been announced, but later on in the month.

The West Jersey and Atlantic Railroad Company have declared a semi-annual dividend of two per cent. The company declared a dividend of four per cent. last year.

City Counsel, Guild of Newark, has commenced suit against the bondsmen of ex-Treasurer Stout to recover a balance alleged to be due by Stout to the city of $10,000.

General John B. Henderson, of Missouri, Chairman of the late Republican National Convention, is a native of Cedarville, in South Jersey. His father was a Cobbler.

Joseph Carroll, aged forty-five, a convict in the Snake Hill Penetentiary, was found dead in his cell Thursday morning. Carroll was serving a three months' term for vagrancy.

The First Brigade, New Jersey Volunteers, held their annual reunion at New Brunswick yesterday. About 200 of the survivors who fought with gallant Phil Kearney were in attendance.

Senator Frelinghuysen, who owns a fine country residence on the banks of the Raritan, above Somerville, recently liberated 80,000 shad fry in the waters of that stream opposite his grounds.

A large three masted schooner sank during Friday night about eight miles out at sea, off Peck's Beach. Nothing has been learned of her name, destination, or the cause of her disaster. Divers will be set to work on the submerged wreck.

Henry O'Neil, a well known and wealthy contractor, who lived in Jersey avenue, Jersey City, while conversing with his family on Saturday night, fell from his chair and died in a few moments. Death resulted from the bursting of a blood vessel.

John Dorsey and Henry Hay, Camden boys, were arrested on Saturday night for placing torpedoes on the track of the Street Railway Company on Market street, and which exploded with great force when run over by the cars. They will be given a hearing to-day.

James A. Bradley, of Asbury Park, who was arrested on Friday on a charge of libeling Dr. Reed, a druggist, was given a hearing by Justice Dr. Reed says his damages at $20,000. The examination was adjourned for two weeks, and Mr. Bradley held in $100 bail.

A general order has been issued by Commodore Vallette, of the Quaker City Yacht Club, for a general cruise. It directs yachts of the fleet to rendezvous and third squad to rendezvous off the club house at the foot of Market street, Camden, on Tuesday, July 8, at six p. m., preparatory to a three days' cruise, in aquadron.

Francis Travis, colored, hailing from Bethlehem, Pa., caused excitement in the Eighth Ward, Camden, Sunday afternoon. He raised a row among some colored people in Danville and attracted the notice of Constable Caster, who attempted to arrest him, but was knocked down. Others then jumped upon the Constable, but with the aid of his blackjack he beat them off and landed his prisoner in Justice Davis' office. There Travis again knocked the Constable down, but Policemen Shermer and Matlack arriving, he was marched to the City Jail in default of $1,000 bail.

To Our Friends.

The Reform Club of Plainfield having realized generous cash contributions sufficient to pay for and secure title to the property formerly known as the Second Baptist Church, corner of Second street and Central avenue, this city, and funds being likewise available, chiefly through the noble exertions of the Christian Temperance Ladies, to furnish and equip the purchased building whose property altered and repaired for the practical use of the Club, respectfully thought urgently appeal to the liberality and kindly feelings of the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity for additional means to fully complete such needed alterations and repairs.

The good work already accomplished by the Reform Club, under the approving smile of Divine Providence and the still greater work awaiting future efforts, certainly commend it to the favorable consideration and support of every friend of humanity.

The pecuniary demands made upon the public for various laudable objects, causes hesitancy on the part of the Club to solicit further aid, but valuing as its members do the all important Temperance reformation they are striving to permanently establish, emboldens them to this ask and induces them to believe, that early and substantial encouragement will follow the asking.

Donations to the aforesaid purpose in the extent of individual ability and inclination, will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the officers of the Club, or either member of its Executive or Subscription Committees, the names of whom are herewith subscribed.

A NEW WATER SUPPLY.

Plainfield is interested in anything relating to improved water facilities.

In Newark, some time ago, the practicability of getting a water supply through driven wells was tried with apparently satisfactory results, but the proprietor of an alleged patent on the system demanded royalties, and probably for this reason the experiments were not pushed to a definite conclusion. There, however, the wells were shallow, and the water was practically merely that drained through the upper strata from the adjacent river.

On general principles, there would seem to be no good reason why a supply of water for public use in most parts of New Jersey could not be obtained by these artesian or driven wells. It is pretty well known that in most localities in the State subterranean veins of water do exist, and the water from such veins must necessarily be vastly purer and more wholesome than that subject to the thousand and one contaminations which surface water must receive. The difficulty will probably be found to be getting from them a veins sufficient supply for the larger cities, but even this, it would seem, might be overcome by boring enough wells deep enough.

Now the Red Bank Water Commissioners are experimenting in a line that should be of great interest everywhere in the State where there is any difficulty in securing a sufficient supply of good water. Empowered by the Legislature at its recent session to construct water works, they have begun a search for water underneath instead of above the surface of the earth. They have had bored a hole in the ground, and at the depth of ninety-five feet found a vein of good water, with a force sufficient to raise it to within a few feet of the surface without artificial lifting. To all appearances the supply is as inexhaustible as it is convenient, although this cannot be certainly determined until a number of companion wells are bored and large pumping engines set to work upon them. There is no reasonable doubt, however, that the commissioners have found a supply great enough for the demand they have to meet, and that the constant purity of which will be insured without any but the most ordinary precautions on the part of those in charge of the distribution of the water.

SPREADING IN EUROPE.

The Cholera Increasing in Violence at Toulon.

Inhabitants Fleeing from the City of Marseilles in Order to Escape the Contagion—Precautionary Measures.

PARIS, July 1.—The official report of the ravages of cholera at Toulon telegraphed here is more distressing than any heretofore received, as it shows that the scourge, instead of decreasing in violence, has increased. The report says that there were nine deaths there from the disease yesterday, and that fifteen fresh cases were reported. One of the victims died during the past twenty-four hours.

The reports from Marseilles are also of a gloomy nature, and show that the disease has increased in that city. There were 20 deaths and several additional cases being reported there during the last twenty-four hours. The panic among the residents still continues, and everybody who has the means wherewith to leave the city is doing so, some of the poorer classes even leaving on foot and tramping their way to the surrounding country in order to escape the contagion.

Not Brought to France by Travelers.

MARSEILLES, July 1.—There were five deaths from cholera here sunday. Capt. Bellot, of the navy, was driven to despair when his wife was stricken with the cholera and committed suicide. M. Rochard, chief of the naval health department, declares that the cholera was not brought to France by any person returning with troops from the east. The rumors that the commander of the Servino had committed suicide prove to be unfounded. The Peninsular and Oriental steamship company will discontinue the running of vessels connect with London and Bombay for the present, owing to the outbreak of cholera.

Official Medical Returns Doubted.

LONDON, July 1.—Special reports in regard to the cholera in Europe, putting the number of deaths than the official returns report, and the truthfulness of the latter is by many transport returning with troops from the east. The rumors that the commander of the Servino had committed suicide prove to be unfounded. The Peninsular and Oriental steamship company will discontinue the running of vessels connect with London and Bombay for the present, owing to the outbreak of cholera.

Precautionary Measures.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Surgeon-General Hamilton of the United States hospital service, in view of the spread of cholera in France, has recommended that an appropriation be made by congress for the appointment of United States inspectors in foreign ports. Secretary Folger has approved the recommendation and referred the matter to congress.

Asiatic Cholera Beyond Doubt.

VIENNA, July 1.—The Evening Post says the news from Toulon and Marseilles in regard to the cholera leaves not a doubt that the disease is Asiatic cholera. It states that Austria and Hungary have been ordered to maintain a strict inspection of all arrivals from the south of France and Algeria. The Post also says arrangements are being made for the medical inspection of railway travelers and for the fumigation of their baggage.

Vessels to be Detained.

ODESSA, July 1.—In consequence of the appearance of cholera in India vessels arriving here direct from China or India will be detained twenty four hours for observation, if provided with a clean bill of health, or fourteen days if with a foul bill. Vessels arriving from Egypt will be subjected to a medical examination.

Cholera in Italy.

LONDON, July 1.—Cholera has broken out in the town of Saluzzo, Piedmont, Italy. Two well-defined cases have already been reported.

Gladstone Disappointed.

LONDON, July 1.—In the house of commons Sir. Gladstone announced that the vote of censure of the government's Egyptian policy be given precedence over all other business.

HEAVY FAILURES.

One of the oldest Dry Goods Houses in Montreal goes to the Wall.

MONTREAL, July 1.—The firm of H. & H. Merrill, one of the oldest and best known dry goods houses in the city, being unable to meet the last payment of a composition arranged about fifteen months ago, have made an assignment.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Jacob Beach & Sons, manufacturers of shoddy and rags and dealers in wool and wool waste, at No. 95 Reade street, with mills at Passaic, N. J., and Windsorville, Ct., have made an assignment. Their liabilities are estimated at about $250,000.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 1.—Willis Sewall, wholesale oil dealer, confessed judgment of $40,000 in favor of Portland creditors. Thirty thousand of this is due to the First National bank. It is believed that $25,000 is due to New York parties. The assets are not believed to be sufficient to pay the Portland creditors.

CHICAGO, July 1.—The establishment of Fairbanks, Palmer & Co., subscription book publishers, was closed by the sheriff. Their liabilities are some $40,000, with assets nominally the same. The failure is due to that of G. W. Borland on Saturday, whose paper she firm held to the amount of $40,000. Fairbanks is a member of the legislature.

HE WANTS $25,000.

James Gordon Bennett Sued for Breach of Contract.

LONDON, July 1.—Capt. Hamilton Clark, formerly of Boston, has brought a suit in the court of queen's bench against Mr. James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of The New York Herald, for $25,000 damages for breach of contract. Capt. Clark alleges that Mr. Bennett in 1868 engaged him to assist in forming a cable company to lay a new sub-Atlantic cable and defeat the present monopoly. Capt. Clark was to receive a salary of $15,000 per year, and did receive some payments on account, but Mr. Bennett soon formed an alliance with Mr. John W. Mackay, out of which the Commercial Cable company grew, and Capt. Clark was left, as he alleges, without employment and without compensation for the preparatory work he had already done. The court referred the matter to a board of arbitration.

Work of a Vicious Pony.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., July 1.—At Huntsville, Lewis Murphy, marshal of the town, and his wife were riding in a buggy behind a vicious Texan pony, which became unmanageable and ran away, throwing out Mr. Murphy, who is a cripple wearing a cork leg. His back was broken and his head was badly bruised. Mrs. Murphy was thrown on her head and instantly killed, her neck being broken.

She and her husband were laid side by side in a yard, and his screams as he implored his neighbors to kill him were heartrending. He said he dreamed the night before that he was thrown out of his buggy and his eyes gouged out, and he felt accountable for his wife's death, as he had coaxed her to ride with him. He is unconscious and will die. Mrs. Murphy was thirty years of age and leaves three children.

A Doctor's Grave Mistake.

JAMAICA, N. Y., July 1.—Andrew Way, of No. 45 Johnson avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested near Woodhaven, L. I., Saturday morning, and locked up at Jamaica. A half hour after being locked up Dr. Nadel was sent for, who gave him a quarter of a grain of morphine, and said the man was suffering from delirium tremens. An hour later the man was a corpse. Subsequently he learned that the man was not a drinking man. The coroner ordered a post mortem, and the result of the autopsy was that death was caused by sunstroke. It is said that the man's life could have been saved had he been properly cared for. He was thrust into an ordinary cell, almost damp enough to cause death to a healthy man.

A Persistent Treasurer.

BOSTON, July 1.—The supreme officers of the Knights of Honor, an organization having a membership of about 150,000 persons throughout the country, are engaging in a contest with the late supreme treasurer, who refuses to surrender the funds in his possession to his successor, on the ground that the order exists under a Kentucky charter, and that a person not a resident of that state cannot be legally elected supreme treasurer. He therefore retains $150,000 of the order's funds, and will continue to do so until the case has been passed upon by the supreme court of Kentucky.

Mr. English and His Son.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—William H. English was examined by the house committee in reference to the English-Peelle contested election case. Mr. English stated that he had spoken to a number of members of the committee considering the case, and to other representatives, but he believed his son had been fairly elected, and did not think there was anything improper in his action. During the examination young Mr. English said he saw Senators Harrison and Voorhees on the floor of the house working in Mr. Peelle's interest.

She Wept Bitterly.

NEW YORK, July 1.—In a handsome silk costume Mrs. Carrie R. Morse, alias Minnie West, was arraigned for sentence in general sessions. She was convicted recently of obtaining $600 of Mrs. Henry Wilson, of Newark, on the pretense that she would procure a lucrative position for Miss Hattie M. Herder, of Passaic. Judge Gildersleeve sentenced Mrs. Morse to two years in the penitentiary. She wept bitterly as she was taken from court.

The Plumbers' Strike.

The strike of the journeymen plumbers is apparently succeeding. Harkness Boyd, a leading boss, has refused to join the union, and to a reporter said: "I think the journeymen are right." As Clarendon hall ten bosses were reported as having left the lockout and fifteen new journeymen had joined the union. The journeymen were doing a good independent business, and said that the bosses would yield before Saturday.

McKay Wins by Three Lengths.

BOSTON, July 1.—The three-mile single scull race between McKay and Mellevery for $500, on the Charles river course, was rowed between 6:30 and 7 o'clock in the evening, and was witnessed by 5,000 people. McKay was the favorite. About $5,000 was upon the contest. McKay won by three lengths in 21 minutes, 35½ seconds.

Obituary.

HARRISTON MILLS, Minn., July 1.—John T. Harrington died on Friday, aged 101 years. Mr. Harrigan was born near Albany, in 1792. He married a cousin of President Van Buren, and during his younger days engaged somewhat in politics. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. His youngest son is sixty-five years of age.

Another American Countess.

PARIS, July 1.—Count Sobieski, who was wed here to Miss Stone, of Philadelphia, Colonel Jacobini, the pontifical secretary of state, officiated.

EDSALL'S EXTRA!

We take pleasure in making the announcement to the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity, that we have just received a full line of one of the BEST and MOST reliable brands of

BLACK SILKS

Imported. It is of the well-known manufacture that was formerly imported by A. T. Stewart & Co., and sold in their retail department for many years, and has stood the most trying test and proved its unquestionable excellence to thousands who have worn it and can testify of its real worth and beauty.

It is still retailed by the successors of the old Stewart house, and by a special arrangement with the Importing Department we are enabled to offer it at precisely the same figures as their retail department, viz:

Black Silk

No. 2006 at $1.50
No. 2007 at 1.75
No. 2008 at 2.00
No. 2009 at 2.25

Edsall's.

They are by far the handsomest goods we have ever handled, and possess the most intrinsic value, and the fact that we can sell goods which have had such an experience as these at exactly the same prices as one of the largest and most popular houses in New York ought to be a sufficient inducement for Ladies to give Home trade the preference.

Black
GROS GRAIN
Silk
EDSALL'S

Besides the above mentioned silks we have lower prices as follows:

Locals.

—The livery stock sold yesterday went very cheap.

—A large number of woodcock were killed yesterday. One gunner came home with seven birds.

—Charity entertainment this evening at Van Deventer Hall. It will be well worth attending. Some of the finest talent in the city will participate.

—We are requested to say that the engagement of Miss E. F. Newell announced in yesterday's NEWS does not concern Miss Kittie Newell of Fifth street.

—Compton, Dixon, Ramsoutti and Tier are making extensive preparations to supply the Fourth of July demand for ice cream. It would, however, be advisable to order early.

—Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company have decided to appoint a committee next week to purchase horses and equipments, for which $625 have been subscribed by citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

—There was a little row at one of the engine houses last evening. It arose from the janitor of the building being a little too officious, and perishing in riding in the fire-box where no one but the engineers are allowed. He was promptly shown that the rules had to be obeyed.

—After Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1 front returned from the wash last night, Mr. J. A. Moore, the Foreman, in a few appropriate remarks on behalf of the company, presented the driver and his assistant with a purse, for their faithful services, after which they partook of refreshments.

—Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1 took their apparatus out for a wash last evening. The engine was found to be in good working order. A stream of water was thrown over the steeple of the Park Avenue Baptist Church. The engine threw on a level 192 feet of water through 250 feet of hose.

—The John Dunn Hickory Guards who parade the streets of this city with a drum corps, have undoubtedly the sympathy of the inhabitants up to a reasonable hour, but the majority of the population devoutly wish they would stop their meanderings somewhat earlier than has been their custom.

—A horse belonging to Mr. W. Wallace Corlell, left standing unhitched in front of a slaughter house on Somerset street, near the mountain, yesterday afternoon, started on a trot for his stable, in Front street. A crowd followed and their yelling scared the horse into a lively run; resulting in somewhat peeling off skin of the animal before he was recaptured.

—Nude bathers are giving much annoyance to passers by bathing at Stines bridge, North Plainfield, and at the Evens bridge. Constables are to be put on the watch and the offenders dealt with according to law, so residents in those places say; but they should not be hard on the boys, and the boys, on the other hand, ought to exercise a little care and discretion in the matter.

—Yesterday we published portraits of a number of aspirants for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, among them the portrait of Mr. Roswell P. Flower. It was insisted that it was the picture of the celebrated artist of this city, Mr. S dney Flower, who thereupon made efforts to obtain an extra copy of THE NEWS, which he succeeded in doing about ten o'clock last evening, much to his delight. Both the Flowers are related.

—James Casbon, who was committed by Justice Austin for three months, was discharged last week because the commitment was defective in committing him to the work house instead of t the County Jail. The Justice in drawing the commitment followed the form given in Honeyman's Forms, which is erroneous. The law of 1877, page 101, provides that where there is no work house a disorderly person may be committed to the county jail. This law not being inserted in the revision case undoubtedly led to the mistake.

Marriage Bells.

The Crescent Avenue Church was comfortably filled last evening on the occasion of the marriage of Edward Ryder to Anna, daughter of T. J. Gillies, of Madison avenue. Those present included some of the best known of Plainfield's people. The predominance of handsome dresses, and young faces was noticeable.

The wedding party entered the church at 8:15 and proceeded up the side aisle led by two ushers, following whom came two young girls bearing flowers. The groom and the best man came next, and the bride leaning on the arm of her father followed. Two more young girls bearing flowers, and two ushers closed the procession. The bride was dressed in white, and carried a bouquet of rich flowers in her hand. The marriage service, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Ketcham, was short and simple. The best man was Mr. Arthur Bognon, and the ushers were Mr. David Lemon, Mr. Fred VanEmburgh, Mr. Warren Randolph and Mr. Robert Lawrence, of Newark. A reception at the residences of the bride's father on Madison avenue followed the service.

Policeman Kelly Suspended.

Yesterday afternoon at half-past five Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, served on Policeman Kelly a copy of the charges preferred against him by Chief Dodd. Kelly immediately surrendered his police equipments to the proper officers, and pending the trial of the charges against him will remain off duty. It is probable that a special meeting of the Council will be held on Saturday evening for the purpose of trying the charges.

The G. A. R. Difficulty.

It appears that the difficulty between Winfield Scott Post and the Loyal Ladies' League, G. A. R., is about this size:

The Loyal Ladies' League, has for its object, to aid and further the interest of the G. A. R., being an auxiliary thereto. Membership is restricted to the wives, daughters, sisters and widows of soldiers of the late war.

To effect an organization application must be made to the State Department President of the Loyal Ladies' League, by a regularly organized Post of the G. A. R. of the department, asking for a charter.

In the present instance, Winfield Scott Post complied with the regulations, and a charter was thereupon granted to Garfield Loyal Ladies' League as an auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, the officers being duly installed on the second day of last January.

It appears that dissension immediately thereafter arose as to the duties of the different officers elected, which soon caused the resignation of several of the leading officers of the League. Eventually further dissensions arose, which led members of the Post to conclude that the interests of Winfield Scott Post would be promoted by severing all connections with the League, which they did by resolution.

The commander of Winfield Scott Post, was opposed to the action of the Post, and appealed to the Department Commander to have its action annulled. But the Department Commander replied that he could no jurisdiction, and further stated that he had written to the Department President of the Loyal Ladies' League, and that she had informed him in reply that she had no jurisdiction.

Matters were in abeyance until a notice was inserted among the notices in the NEWS by request of the President of the Ladies' League, in which appeared the statement "Auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post."

Members of the Post requested us to omit the notice as printed, which in the absence of any satisfactory reason we refused, stating however, that we would omit it on a duly authorized request from the organization, meaning the Loyal Ladies' League.

One of the members of the Post understood us to mean an authorized request from the Post and left one at this office, during the absence of the editor, addressed "To the Publisher of The News," the usual form of a communication intended for publication.

It was inserted, by mistake, and upon the facts as then understood commented upon, in which we appear to have done injustice to Winfield Scott Post quite unintentionally.

It appears that the Post only objected to the words "Auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post," because the Post, upon advice, considered that they, as an incorporated organization, would be responsible for the acts of the Garfield Loyal Ladies' League.

Winfield Scott Post is considered one of the best in the State of New Jersey.

It was first organized Dec. 12, 1882, and now has seventy-seven members, and is financially otherwise in a flourishing condition. Dr. Wm. Mattison, of North Plainfield, was the first commander, and a leading spirit in effecting the organization. The second commander is Edward J. Olsen, who is in the New York post office. His wife was the President of the Garfield League referred to, and an active worker in the organization.

The dissension is regretted on all sides, but there appeared no other way out of the difficulty, i.e the absence of more definite regulations. The State Encampment has made no regulations for posts having those auxiliaries, leaving each post to regulate such matters itself. It is thought, however, that if the State Encampment should make regulations it might conduce to promote such co-operation as would tend to benefit both organizations generally.

Banquet to Jerusalem Lodge.

Jerusalem Lodge, F. & A. M., held their last meeting prior to the Summer recess in the lodge rooms last evening. At the close of the session carriages were in waiting to take them to the Park House, where a sumptuous banquet had been prepared for them by order of Mr. Lorrad. About sixty persons, including officers, visiting brethren and members, sat down to the feast.

Speeches were made by W. M. Crandall, of Ridgewood Lodge, Brooklyn; W. M. Chorney, of Atlas Lodge, New York; P. M. Maxson, W. M. Coriell, of Jerusalem Lodge, John H. French, A. B. Boydell, Dean Rodman, W. Chandler, John Ulrich, Col. Scott and others. All present had a most enjoyable time.

Reception to Mr. Barker.

On Monday evening a reception was given Mr. Barker, Secretary of the United Temperance Alliance of Great Britian, by Mr. A. M. Powell, Secretary of the National Temperance Union, at his residence. Mr. Barker who has been in the work twenty years, came to this country for the benefit of his health and is now about returning.

A large number were present. Mr. Barker, although somewhat of an invalid, made a fine address describing the rise, growth and modus operandi of the work in his country. Mayor Maxson in reply made a fine speech, the Englishman frequently indulging in the parliamentary "Hear! hear!" Addresses were also made by Drs. Yerkes and Lewis.

A Horse Mishap.

James Connely, of Park avenue, drove to Stoney Hill yesterday in his fine side-bar buggy and by name "Diamond." Stopping on the road to talk to a farmer, he loosened the bridle and allowed the mare to eat grass by the road-side. The mare became scared at something, commenced running and kicking furiously, turned the buggy over four times, struck a tree, threw herself and became fast in the general wreck. The mare was brought to this city, but was very much bruised and scratched up. The buggy was completely demorsalled, and was left piled up in a corner.

An iron bridge is to be erected over the Delaware River at Trenton to take the place of the wooden structure destroyed by fire a few days ago.

A Miraculous Escape.

Yesterday afternoon a young two year old son of Mr. David C. Smalley, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, fell from a window about seventeen feet from the ground without sustaining any injury. The child fell on his side, and but from a scratch or so on his face one would not know anything had happened to him. Drs. Fritts and Long were immediately summoned to ascertain if the child was at all injured, and promptly gave it as their opinion that he had completely escaped. The child was bright and lively this morning, and was running around as usual.

Personal.

Mrs. W. Wallace Corlell, who has been on a visit to relatives at her parents' home in Trenton, returned home last evening.

Mr. R. Codington, of the firm of Jackson and Codington, starts this week for a short vacation at Pleasant Valley in the Blue Mountains.

State Matters.

The Cumberland mail series, Bridgeton have shut down for five weeks.

Ex-Judge Garretson has completed his examination of Collector McMahon's books of Hoboken finds the deficiency to be $31,300.

Jacob Snyder, Sr., living at 209 Mount Vernon street, Camden, Mo day fell from a tree in his yard, which he was trimming, and received injuries which it is feared will prove fatal.

The Hudson County Grand Jury for the April term was discharged Monday after handing up several indictments, among which was one against John McMahon, Hoboken's defaulting collector.

George Gregory, who shot Richard Coleman on Sunday because Coleman tried to save Mrs. Gregory from a beating, was arraigned Monday and held in $5,000 bail for trial bearing on July 19. Coleman's condition is improving.

At a final hearing of Frank B. Warner, an insurance agent of Asbury Park, before United States Commissioner Randall, of Camden, on the charge of retaining a letter which was dropped into his Post Office box by mistake, he was held in $500 bail for trial.

The committee appointed by the Middlesex County Board of Chosen Freeholders to settle the county against Levi D. Jarrard's bondsmen yesterday accepted $10,000 from the bondsmen. Jarrard is a defaulter to the amount of $20,000 and is now in the State Prison at Trenton.

The charge against Lawyer J. J. Crandall, of Camden, for an assault upon Deputy United S ates Marshall Reuter, of Philadelphia, while resisting arrest, was dismissed Monday by United States Commissioner Longstreth, on the ground that Reuter had no authority to make an arrest in New Jersey.

P. J. Morrissey was instantly killed at the Brick Church station of the Delaware Lackawana and Western Railroad yesterday. He was employed as coupler and their instructor in the Church of Our Lady of the Valley.

The body of a man in an advanced state of decomposition was washed up on the beach at Manasquakin and buried by Coroner Courtney. He was apparently forty years of age, five feet eight inches in height, had auburn hair and was dressed in sailor's garb. He is supposed to have been one of the sailors lost on the wrecked bark Eunira in January last.

When Constable Vanderslice, of Camden, visited the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Booth, of Benson street, near the City Hall, to arrest her on the charge of threatening the life of Mrs. Sarah Ann Kirkbride, Mrs. Kirby, she was made the victim of a neat trick. The woman obtain permission to go to her room and change her dress, and while the constable was waiting for her she made her escape from the second story window.

LEIPSIC'S POLICE FORCE.

The "Civic Military" of the German Empire—Their Authority.

[Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.]

What sort of a man is the average German policeman? Well, he is not very handsome nor picturesque. He is not noted for his beauty anywhere. He is straight in figure, muscular in build, and is evidently selected on account of his physical powers and athletic qualities. What he is not he should be required to have these attributes is not very clear. Because no man ever thinks of resisting a policeman in Germany, even the few demagogs may not being fighters. So that the simple sight of the police uniform and the request to "come along" from its wearer, is ample ordinarily for the wrestling and fighting power which every American policeman must have if he expects to make any arrests. It is amusing to see a German policeman taking a prisoner through the streets to the lock-up. The officer never thinks of handcuffing his man, nor of even grasping him by the collar or arm and rudely pushing or shoving him along to the station-house. Such an expenditure of strength and energy on the officer's part would be useless. For the man, he knows, has hope before him when he falls into the clutches of the faithful guardian of the peace, and would no more think of taking to his heels and escape than he would of flying to the moon. So the two walk along on the sidewalk buried in thought, and apparently takes no sort of notice of his prisoner, who trots along generally in the middle of the road, perfectly resigned to his fate.

The police uniform, too, here in Germany, is a striking one. Like everything else here, is parading a good deal of the military character. The head covering is a heavy leathern helmet trimmed with brass around the edge, ornamented in the middle with a large brass sun and rays, and bearing on its summit a brass knob—the abbreviated spike which graces the top of the military helmet. The clothing of the officers is dark-blue cloth, the coat being cut like the legendary clerical coat, high neck, with a standing collar ornamented with gold or silver lace, according to rank. A brass button is usually closely to the body from the chin to the hips, and are displayed on the large turned-up cuffs and on the rather long skirts, so that the police officer is quite brilliant when the sun shines on him. Such a thing as the customary policeman's star, ornamented with the official number, and ornamenting his manly left breast is unknown here in Germany. The uniform is considered badge of office enough; and to distinguish the officers from one another, each one wears on the small shoulder-straps of his coat his number in silver figures. The locust club, that terror of refractory American policemen, is also unknown to police here in Germany. In its stead each officer is armed with a short sword hung under the skirts of his coat at his left side, the handle projecting through a slit at the side so that its polished brass grip may be readily seized in case of emergency, and its shining tip just peeping out below the lower edge of the coat skirt. Add to these semi-military trappings the white cotton gloves which every German policeman wears, and you have a picture of the police authority—to coin a term—of the German empire.

President Polk's Widow.

[Nashville Banner.]

Right in the heart of Nashville stands a large, old-fashioned homestead of dull red brick, its roof supported by four massive pillars, supported by great fans' pillars, and its general aspect conveying an impression of severe staidness, in pleasing contrast with the disturbed, would-be fashionable profusion in the same neighborhood. A long, level stretches in front of the house, and a plain, but green monotony of unbroken sward. A plain and unpretentious tomb of white marble, which carries its own best epitaph in the simple inscription, James K. Polk.

A ring at the bell brought to the door a good-natured colored boy, who took our cards to the venerable and venerated widow of President Polk.

These, of course, has stolen the vivid colors and carved outlines of youth, but he has not robbed her of the upright figure and dignified carriage, and the soft brightness in her eyes and smiling of her mouth were lasting an added charm in her faultless manners.

From the library of the dead president, she came upon the tomb that marks his resting place, and in that same library remains he bed, gloves and cane, just where he laid them when he came home for the last time. The book he was reading, the pen he used, the table, and the papers of the day beside it.

In sonsing, and kind of it, Mrs. Polk has yet never recovered from the almost prostrating shock of death, though with graceful hospitality and tact she has received on the first day of each year the Tennessee legislature, which adjourns in a body to call upon her—and which, I am told, is the highest compliment ever paid by state authorities to a lady—and the civil, judicial and ecclesiastical bodies make it a point to pay their respects to her.

Who Will Be the Nominees of the Democratic National Convention?

The Illinois Democratic Convention.

Tactics of the Cincinnati Delegates—The Latest Story—St. John and Pittman.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—A dispatch to The Philadelphia Telegraph says that according to Mr. Mosher the discussion in the Democratic caucus here are narrowing down candidates as with respect to social problems. The real trouble, he says, is that thousands of Democratic voters in New York city are inclined to vote for Blaine on the ground that as president he will adopt a foreign policy which will be hostile to monarchy and will benefit labor. Better, they say, than peace and starvation. They think a foreign war would make work plenty and wages high. On this the cry the Irish Catholic and the labor element will be counted on generally, who together make up a large part of Tammany's rank and file, showed signs of revolt soon after Blaine's nomination. The subject has been much talked of in the council of the labor societies, and the popularity of Blaine has increased tremendously. It is found this out and tried to stem the tide, but found his efforts of little avail. Personally he did not object strenuously to Cleveland, but discovered that the governor's course had rendered him intensely unpopular among those elements, and he was forced to take at least a neutral position to save his political life. Mr. Butler, who does not rank in as the Labor candidate to use his authority to suppress the rebellion, and after consultation with Powderly and Turner said in New York, it was agreed that Cleveland was not eligible. Butler, it is said, is working hard and in good faith to keep the party harmonious while he is here, and many men who will draw Independent Republican support in numbers to effect somewhat the inevitable revolt among the dynamiters and hoodlums of Blaine. The Democrats do not seem much alarmed over these developments, as they say it will drive the conservative and business element over to the support of their candidate.

The Illinois Democratic Convention.

CHICAGO, July 2.—A United Press dispatch says: Advices from Peoria, where the Democracy of Illinois meets to-day, indicate that the convention will be full of fight. Gen. J. C. Black having withdrawn from the contest for governor, the field is apparently left open for Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago. Congressman W. R. Morrison made a surprising change of front by abandoning his struggle for the indorsement of Illinois as a presidential candidate. He advocated an uninstructed delegation to Chicago. Morrison says, however, he will insist upon a tariff-for-revenue platform.

Harrison will be found full of the tariff reduction, and he left for Peoria last night in order to compromise this issue with Morrison. Judge Anderson

DIED AT A BABY FARM.

Investigation to Be Made in the Case of Josephine Ward.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Deputy Coroner Messemer made an investigation into the death of Josephine Ward, aged three months, who died on Monday night without medical attendance at the nursery, No. 602 164th street, between Washington and Railroad avenues. Dr. Messemer visited the institution and made some searching inquiries as to its management. The nursery, Dr. Messemer found, was a two-story and attic frame dwelling, of which an old colored woman named Josephine Ward was the superintendent. There were five children of various ages in the house, and two women, one of whom, a white woman, had given birth to an illegitimate child. Mrs. Ward informed the deputy coroner that her institution was partly a charitable one, and that she cared for white and colored children alike, although she depended on what she received for their board to conduct the institution.

The dead child, when seen by Dr. Messemer, was nothing but a mass of skin and bone, and had evidently died from lack of nutrition, although Mrs. Ward claimed that she had carefully fed it on cow's milk. An autopsy will be made on the body to-day, and the management of the home, although there was nothing shown yesterday to indicate carelessness or negligence, will be carefully investigated further by Coroner Merkle at the inquest.

HE DARED HER TO SHOOT.

Acting on the Suggestion She Killed the Man Who Insulted Her.

BRADFORD, July 2.—Three men entered the barroom of a disreputable house on Globe street in a part of this city known as Pig Island. The house is kept by Frank Meadows, who has a daughter 20 years old, and of whom he is very proud. She has always been kept from association with the people visiting the saloon. As it happened, however, she was in the barroom when the men entered. One of them, Jacob Head, aged 35, years, began to use insulting language to her.

Miss Meadows at first broke into tears, overcome with shame and anger, but, recovering her self-possession, she ordered the men to leave the place. Head repeated his insulting proposals, and closed by saying that if the girl felt herself insulted she could revenge herself by shooting him. Quick as thought the girl sprang behind the bar, seized a revolver which was in a drawer, and, pointing it at Head, pulled the trigger. The bullet struck the man in the left side, penetrating his lungs. He threw up his hands, staggered out on the sidewalk, and fell dead. The girl was arrested, although public sympathy is entirely with her. Head formerly lived in Middletown, N. Y.

Sequel to a Funeral.

READING, Pa., July 2.—When the mourners returned from the funeral of Mrs. Eisenhiwer, they found her house on Fourth Tenth street in possession of Michael Reilly, who had removed the furniture and nailed up the door and windows. Reilly, a month ago, occupied the same house, and was evicted and his furniture thrown out for non payment of rent. He claims to own the house and so do the other parties. A dozen of the mourners attacked Reilly, administered a severe drubbing and took forcible possession. A number of the combatants were arrested.

Capsizing of a Rowing Party.

FREEPORT, L. I., July 2.—Four young ladies who were out rowing with two young men in a small fish boat, on Monday, in Freeport bay, had a narrow escape from drowning. The last of one of the young men was blown off, and in attempting to change the course of the boat to recover his hat he upset the boat, throwing all out in the channel where the water is about twenty feet deep. The young ladies held on to the boat until nearly exhausted, when Thomas Carpenter arrived from his house on the beach, and, after getting them into his boat, brought them them to the village.

Aiming at a Negro and Shooting His Brother.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 2.—William and Bird Sears, brothers, living in the neighborhood of Galloway, on the Memphis railroad, went to the station on business. While there they had a misunderstanding with a negro, who followed them to their home. Williams, becoming exasperated, rushed into the house and procured a gun, which he leveled at the negro. At that instant Bird jumped between them to prevent the shooting, and received the whole charge of buckshot in his breast. He was killed instantly.

Seized With Hydrophobia.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 2.—A young man named John Donaldson, while walking along Ohio street, Allegheny City, was suddenly attacked with all the symptoms of hydrophobia. He was removed to the Central Station, where it took five men to hold him all night. He howled and barked like a dog, frothed at the mouth and exhibited decided aversion of water. The physicians have no hope of his recovery. Two years ago, in Portland, Ohio, Donaldson was bitten by a dog supposed to be mad, but as the wound healed rapidly no alarm was felt about it.

Iron Furnaces to be Lighted.

COLUMBIA, Pa., July 2.—Shawnee furnace No. 2, owned by the Chestnut Hill Iron Ore company, was lighted last evening. The pumps and elevators were tried on Saturday and everything found to be in first-class working condition. These furnaces give employment to about 300 men, and their being idle caused stagnation in business. Nos. 1 and 3 are expected to be lighted about the middle of July.

It was Lucky for Mitchell.

NEW YORK, July 2.—It is understood that J Mitchell had made the lamentable exhibition of himself that John L. Sullivan made at Madison Square garden, he would have received one of his pensions. The latter amounted to $6,698. After deducting the expenses, $2,250, there was left to divide between Sullivan and Mitchell $4,318. Of this sum each received one-half.

Severe Storm in Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The storm here last night was very severe and the rain fell in sheets. One woman was drowned. The roof of an iron building fell in, carrying down the walls. The descending timber caught the watchman, and he was, perhaps, fatally injured. Another man in the building was seriously injured.

Death of Allan Pinkerton.

CHICAGO, July 2.—Allan Pinkerton, the founder of the widely-known detective organization, breathed his last at his residence in this city at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His death has been anticipated for many days. He was born at Glasgow, Scotland, in August, 1819.

Watching the Milk and Butter.

ALBANY, July 2.—Dairy Commissioner Brown has left for New York. He will meet the milk inspectors and other appointees under the new law regarding oleomargarine and pure milk, and take measures to put the law in force. His office in New York will be at No. 304 Franklin street.

To Our Friends.

The Reform Club of Plainfield having realized generous cash contributions sufficient to pay for and secure title to the property formerly known as the Second Baptist Church, corner of Second street and Central avenue, this city, and funds being likewise available, chiefly through the noble exertions of the Christian Temperance Ladies, to furnish and equip the purchased building when properly altered and repaired for the practical use of the Club, respectfully though urgently appeal to the liberality and kindly feelings of the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity for additional means to fully complete such needed alterations and repairs.

The good work already accomplished by the Reform Club, under the approving smile of Divine Providence and the still greater work awaiting future efforts, certainly commend it to the favorable consideration and support of every friend of humanity.

The pecuniary demands made upon the public for various laudable objects, causes hesitancy on the part of the Club to solicit further aid, but raising as its members do the all important Temperance reformation they are striving to permanently establish, emboldens them to thus ask and induces them to believe, that early and substantial encouragement will follow the asking.

Donations to the aforesaid purpose to the extent of individual ability and inclination, will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the officers of the Club, or either member of its Executive or Subscription Committees, the names of whom are hereunto subscribed.

EDSALL'S

EXTRA!

We take pleasure in making the announcement to the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity, that we have just received a full line of one of the BEST and MOST reliable brands of

BLACK SILKS

Imported. It is of the well-known manufacture that was formerly imported by A. T. Stewart & Co. and sold in their retail department for many years, and has stood the most trying test and proved its unquestionable excellence to thousands who have worn it and can testify of its real worth and beauty.

It is still retailed by the successors of the old Stewart house, and by a special arrangement with the Importing Department we are enabled to offer it at precisely the same figures as their retail department, viz:

Black Silk

HESPERIDES.

[Samuel V. Cole in The Critic.]

Sink, lovely Day, and fold thy wings of gold
Around the islands of the western seas,
The far-off, beautiful Hesperides;
For there the waves, by temperate winds controlled,
Sing to the shores forever. Sink and fold
Thy wings above their golden-fruited trees
And quiet gardens, and the sinless seas
Of them, that grow no longer weak or old.
They that dwell there have borne Life's little pain;
They were as we are, but shall weep no more.
Fly, lovely Day, and drop below the main
Where waits for me a welcome at the door;
I follow when the Bootes sets again;
Soon shall I hear his keel grate on the shore.

[San Francisco Post.]

Santa Barbara probably possesses the smallest team of mules in the country. They are hitched to a street car, which is often taken for a cable dummy in consequence. The other day the passengers were surprised by the car fetching up with a sudden bump while on the down grade. After peering carefully over the dashboard for a few moments the driver said: "Well, I'm darned if them pesky critters haven't got under the car again."

A Cowboy's Pastime.

[Galveston Letter.]

A favorite pastime of the cowboys is to saddle a half-broken mustang, and after inserting a half dollar in each stirrup, some expert rider will mount and back himself to keep the coins their fee five or ten minutes, the horse being incited meanwhile to do his worst in the way of rearing, bucking and jumping.

Coffee the Only One.

[Exchange.]

In a paper read before the Society of Public Analysts in England by Dr. Wallace said that of all the stimulants used by the people of England, including alcoholic beverages, tobacco, coffee and cocoa, coffee was the only one the consumption of which has decreased in recent years.

Turtle as Big as an Ox.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

A loungeless table, measuring seven feet seven inches long by four feet across the back, was exhibited in Monterey bay last week. It weighed about 1,000 pounds.

"The writer of a good short story," says The Critic and Good Literature, "is a public benefactor."

THE WEDDING-CAKE.

Customs of the People of Different Nations.

Various Legends and Traditions Concerning the Bride-Cake—Some Popular Notions, Ceremonies and Superstitions.

[London Queen.]

According to one popular explanation, we have in the bride-cake a survival of the old Roman form of marriage by Confarreatio, or eating altogether. It appears that at a marriage ceremony of this kind offerings of a cake and sheep was made to the gods. The skin of the sheep was spread over two chairs, upon which the bride and bridegroom sat down with their heads uncovered. Then the marriage was completed in the presence of the Pontifex Maximus and ten witnesses, after which another sacrifice was offered. A cake was made of far and mola salsa by vestal virgins, and was carried before the bride by a boy who was selected for the office because both his parents were alive. A similar custom is found among most of the hill tribes of India. The true derivation of the bride-cake, therefore, is probably to be sought, not so much in the old Roman marriage rite of Confarreatio, as in its symbolical nature, corn in one form or another—either in whole grains or made into a cake or biscuit—having been from a very remote period in the world's history regarded as the emblem of plenty and prosperity. Among the Siberians, before the dinner was over the bride and all the guests rise from the table and she threw over the roof of the bridegroom's house a cake called kolark, which was made of coarse dough. The higher she threw it the happier it was supposed would the marriage be, and, as the house was low and the cake hard, the bride seldom failed to ensure a lucky omen.

According to an Esthonian wedding custom, a cen of iner is poured over the bridegroom's horse and a handful of rye is scattered over the heads of the bridal couple for good luck's sake. In Sweden the bride has her pocket filled with bread, it being a popular belief that every piece she gives to the poor on her way to church will avert some misfortune. In eastern countries rice, which is the staple food, is substituted, and holds a prominent place in the nuptial ceremony. Thus on the Malabar coast of India the priest sprinkles the bride and bridegroom with rice, and among the Brahans the bridegroom throws a handful of rice on the bride's head. In Java the bride and bridegroom partake of rice out of the same dish to insure good luck. Hence we may trace the practice in our own country of scattering rice on the bridal couple. In Italy the mother of a newly married man, on his arrival home with his wife, throws some rice behind the back of the bride.

Without enumerating further illustrations, it is evident that the idea of, corn in some form as an emblem of prosperity has been most extensively interwoven with the marriage ceremonies of most nations, to which therefore, may probably be ascribed the reverence attached to our bride-cake. Again, that this is so seems further clear from many of the old marriage customs still kept up in different parts of the country, and in which the bride-cake, the symbol of good luck, holds the prominent place. Thus in Yorkshire and in the northern counties, the bride-cake is cut into small squares pieces and then thrown for luck over the heads of the bridal couple, after which it is passed through a ring. Occasionally, also, the bride's arrival at her father's door a plate filled with cake is thrown from an upper window on the crowd below. An augury is then drawn from the fate which attends the plate, for, should it be unbroken, the sign is ominous; but otherwise—and the more pieces it breaks into the better—good luck will follow the marriage. The same practice prevails in Scotland, where, on returning home from the kirk, one of the oldest of the inhabitants throws a plateful of shortbread over the bride's head. A scramble for the broken fragments then ensues, it being deemed very lucky to get a piece. Sometimes, by the way of variation, a currant loaf is broken over the head of the bride, but it is considered very unlucky if the bun, by mistake, should be broken over the head of any person other than the bride.

Referring to other bride-cake customs, it appears that in Westmoreland at the conclusion of the marriage ceremony the company returned in ravaiods to the bride's father's house, where they had dinner. On their arrival home every one was presented with a slice of bride-cake—locally known as wineberry (currant-cake)—which the bride cut up and the bridegroom handed round to the guests. Macaulay, in his "History of Claybrook," describes another custom: "A pole was erected in front of the house, three or four feet high, with the cake stuck upon the top of it. On the instant the bride set out from her old residence a company of young men started off on horseback, and he who was fortunate enough to reach the pole first and knock the cake down with his stick had the honor of receiving it from the hands of the damsel on the point of a wooden sword, and with this trophy he returned to meet the bride and her attendants."

As might be expected, the bride-cake did not fail to become an equally important source of attraction in love divinations. To dream of the bride-cake, however, with prophetic virtues, it was considered essential to pass it through a wedding-ring; and, according to Brand, once was not sufficient, many performed the ceremonial rite as many as nine times. Numerous illustrations of this superstition occur in the literature of bygone times. Again, we are further told by Mr. Napier, of Merton, author of the "Folk-lore of Scotland, that immediately after the marriage ceremony the bride-cake, a large and elaborately prepared article, is cut up and distributed. The young girl puts a piece under their pillows in order to obtain prophetic dreams. In some cases this is done by a friend writing the name of three young men on a piece of paper, and the cake, wrapped in it, is put under the pillow for three nights in succession before it is opened. The fortunate owner of the cake here dreamed of one of the three young men wherein written it is regarded as a proof that he is to be her future husband."

In some parts of the south of England, a practice has existed from time out of mind of putting a ring among the ingredients of the bride-cake, and whoever finds the ring in his slice is considered to be sure of happiness for the coming year. At Barnby we find a variation of this custom, it being the practice to put a wedding ring and a sixpence into a flat currant cake. When the company are about to retire in the close of the day's festivities the cake is broken and distributed among the single ladies. No small excitement is now occasioned, it being a popular notion that she who gets the ring in her portion of cake will shortly be married, whereas the one who obtains the sixpence will die an old maid. It is unnecessary to add further illustrations of the bride-cake divinations, as those we have quoted are a fair sample of the whole class. They are not confined, moreover, to our own country, but are found, in one shape or another, on the continent, where the bride-cake figures prominently in many of the marriage customs.

HOW TO SAVE THE TEETH.

A Lesson Which May Be Learned from the Brute Creation.

["H. E. D." in Scientific American.]

In the discharge of their duties the physician and dentist are daily asked by their patients, "What shall I do to prevent my teeth from decaying?" The answer must be, "Correct your diet." That is, eat such food and only such as contains all its natural elements. If we eat the products of grain, we must eat them with all their elements as furnished by nature. If we eat meat, we must eat bones, or our system will suffer from a violation of nature's material laws.

Excepting civilized men, all flesh eating animals eat in much of the bone of the animals they devour, and in connection with their teeth sufficiently fine to swallow, and all have good dental organs. Place before a tribe of Indians everything the earth produces in the shape of food and they will eat only animal food as long as that lasts; but put them upon a reservation and feed them as civilized people feed themselves, and they soon suffer from decay of the teeth. Take from any carnivorous animal his supply of bone which nature furnishes with the teeth, and the decay of the teeth is sure to follow.

Even our domestic, herbivorous animals thrive better when bone is added to their bill of fare. The cow which every year gives birth to young has an excessive drain upon her supply of bone material, and craves bones to such an extent that she will try to masticate even very large ones, as every farmer's boy can testify. Veterinary surgeons have long known that certain diseases of their dumb patients can only be successfully treated by feeding to them bone meal. A cow, too, are afterwards in great haste, gave birth to successive litters of rickety pups, since which she has been fed with food containing bone meal, and has given birth to perfectly healthy ones by the same sire.

Any person engaged in raising poultry know that their birds must have lime supplied to them, or they will forsake only soft-shelled eggs. Bone is now acknowledged to be the best fertilizer for New England farms. Visit one of those farms in the month of June, and you can count the hills where the corn grew three years before by the spots of grass which shut the earth at regular intervals. The farmer will tell you, "Bone did that."

Arguments in favor of eating bone to prevent decay of the teeth, as well as to cure a long catalogue of bone and other diseases, might be continued indefinitely, but as "a word to the wise is sufficient," it seems only necessary to add that a long continued experiment has been made upon a family with results which fully justify these claims. The bones were selected from perfectly healthy animals, bone being used that bore any blemish of abnormal growth, carefully cured, without being allowed to pass through any perceptible chemical change, finely granulated, and incorporated with Graham flour, bread, etc., in the proportion of from one to two or three spoonfuls to each pint of soup, gravy, or flour.

Telegraphing With Teeth and Eyelids

[St. Louis Republican.]

J. T. Norris, of Springfield, Ohio, the detective, does a trick that probably no other man in the country can imitate. He takes a silver coin, usually a dollar, and places it on his tongue between his teeth. With his tongue he strikes it against his teeth with the sound of a telegraphic instrument, the opening and closing of a circuit being exactly imitated. Norris used to be an operator, and by means of the coin can telegraph words so distinctly that any telegrapher can tell what the message is. In this manner he telegraphs fifty words a minute. A Republican reporter wrote out a message on a Western Union blank, and handed it to the detective in the telegraph office in charge at the Southern took down the words as fast as Norris produced them with the coin. The message was rapidly sounded and written down, and all three copies coincided exactly. Mr. Norris can stand up before a telephone, and in this novel manner telegraph a message which any telegrapher can read with great facility. But the most wonderful thing is to see him telegraph with his eyelids. The dots and dashes of the telegraphic code are made by means of the rapid opening and shutting of the eyelids. In this manner he can converse with an expert without uttering a sound.

Morganatic Marriages.

[London Truth.]

It seems to be supposed here that a morganatic marriage is a sort of a Hagar arrangement. This is a mistake. In Germany society is divided into castes. If a man of one caste marries a woman of an inferior one, the marriage, which is perfectly valid, is termed morganatic. This means that his wife and his wife's children do not rise to the caste of the man. So again, if the wife is of a superior caste to the husband, the marriage is morganatic. For instance, the marriage of the duke of Hamilton with a princess of Baden was morganatic; and the marriage of Prince Louis of Battenberg with Queen Victoria's granddaughter, which had either party been German, have been a morganatic one. Both Prince Teck and Prince Louis of Battenberg are the heirs of morganatic marriages.

An Alternative That Must Be Faced.

[Norristown Herald.]

Forty-five years ago you could get only 7 cents a dozen, and chickens were as costly feathers as do the best of to-day, when their fruit sells for 25 cents a dozen. Either the hens of forty-five years ago laved above their noses or those of our day are too proud.

A Keen Reminder.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

"There isn't a button on this shirt," dismally observed the young husband, shaking the garment before his wife's eyes.

"You never say when it needs," have been remedied if I had had time."

"Why, you've got nothing to do. Whatdo you mean by saying if you had had time?"

"Because I do say that if there had been an occasion for me to iron over a last spring bonnet for this spring's wear I would have had time to look after your clothes."

Locals.

—To-morrow being a legal holiday, no paper will be issued from this office.

—There is to be a free clam chowder at the Club House, Fair Grounds, to-morrow.

—The Sunday School connected with the Holy Cross Church has closed for the summer.

—Thomas Burns was arrested for a violation of the back ordinance. City Judge Good fined him $5.

—The First National Bank seems to be flourishing. It pays 4 per cent. semi-annual dividends right along.

—Isaac Taynor, of Chatham street, North Plainfield, scalded his left arm severely yesterday. He is not able to use it.

—Policemen are not presumed to be paragons of virtue, but they are at least expected to be men of good moral character.

—There was a little row on East Fourth street last evening, in which three different families had a little to say. No arrests were made.

—The EVENING NEWS, of Plainfield, grows more newsy and spicy every week. We think it is destined for a long stay.—Westfield Local.

—The Royal Buckwheats, of New Market, are to play a game of baseball with the Blockheads, of the allen, to-morrow afternoon at New Market.

—A new Blaine and Logan banner is to be raised to-morrow morning about nine o'clock and stretched across Front street, between Berry's building and Shaw's.

—Engine Co., No. 3, had a "wash" last evening on Fifth street and Park avenue, and Engine Co., No. 1, on Grove street. Both engines proved to be in thorough order.

—Mr. James W. Caufield, of Newark, N. J., who is what is known as "a front bricklayer," and who was engaged from Newark to erect the front of the Stillman Music Hall, completed his task to-day and returned to Newark. The work presents a very creditable appearance.

—Persons leaving the city for the season, and summer travellers can have the EVENING NEWS mailed to them postpaid for fifty cents a month, the address being changed as often as desired. The NEWS is mailed every day in time to catch all points on the Long Branch Railroad the same afternoon.

—A correspondent says that "during the rain Wednesday night last, Mr. D. Hand's henery was struck and shattered to kindling by lightning, killing six fowls and 2,301,011 bees. But the strangest part of the disaster was the building, which was a very low one in the midst of higher ones, thus proving that lightning does not always strike the highest object as generally supposed."

—In a report of the closing exercises of the North Plainfield public schools, published in the Somerville Messenger, July 2, occurs the following: "I wish to say a word commendatory of the excellent rendering of the "Last Hymn," by Miss Lily Force (daughter of A. L. Force of the Constitutionalist), showing much dramatic and elocutionary talent; also the original compositions of the graduates, notably that of William Wilson and the recitations of Jed Smalley, Marian Norton, Alice Carroll, S. Sawyer, Tillie Hudson and Sophie Brower."

Personal.

Abram See and wife have gone to Long Branch.

Mr. A. B. Dunlap goes to Pasque Island this week.

The Rev. Mr. Edgar has left the city for Beach Haven.

Dr. Burlingham is slightly improving from his recent serious illness.

Mr. Henry Lindsley will spend the next two months at Asbury Park.

Mr. C. M. Rutter and family have gone to North Asbury Park, for a week or two.

Mr. W. Rockhill Potts and family will pass the Summer at their cottage at Monmouth Beach.

Mr. H. R. Miller, manager of the Telephone Exchange, is visiting relatives in Boston.

Principal Boss, of the North Plainfield Public School, and wife are going to Smyrna, New York.

Mr. W. P. Humbert and family will spend the season at one of the fashionable Bergen Point hotels.

Rev. Dr. S. D. Burchard, of New York spent to-day at Mr. Langhorne's residence on Park avenue.

Mr. F. J. Miller, senior teacher of the High School, will spend the vacation at the home of his father in Ohio.

Mrs. Charles H. Ward left the city Tuesday morning for Slatington, Penn., where she will spend the Summer months.

Mr. Seeley Edsall, the popular Plainfield dry goods merchant, is stopping for a few weeks with his wife and family at the Mountain View House.

Lawn Party.

The Young People's Association of the Park Avenue Church have arranged for a brilliant lawn party affair, on the Park House grounds next Thursday afternoon and evening. Those who attended the one given last Summer pronounce it one of the finest, and this one is promised to excel that. Over 400 lanterns and colored fires will illuminate the grounds until the moon rises, and there is also to be provided Compton's ice cream and other attractions.

Charitable Entertainment.

The warm weather of yesterday interfered greatly, as regards the size of the audience, with the charitable entertainment announced for the evening at Van Deventer Hall. A very slim audience greeted the rising of the curtain at half-past eight.

EXECUTANTS.

Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Soprano,
Miss Madeline Harberger, Soprano,
Miss Maud A. Bowers, Elocutionist,

Mr. Evans.

The encore fiend was in attendance with all his friends, not seeming to think that the performers were probably fatigued by the warm weather and the performance of the parts already assigned them. The program was increased about fifty per cent. The various parts were well taken, and reflected credit not only upon the executants, but also upon the discriminating judgment of the ladies who had charge of the enterprise.

Mountain View Farm.

To the Editor of THE NEWS:

Mountain View Farm is three and a half miles from Plainfield, situated directly in the mountains, and is too well known to your readers to require an elaborate description. Plainfield is considered a delightfully healthy city, and to say that this is a delightfully healthy country will not begin to express all. The scenery is charming, the air is pure, cool and decidedly healthy, and the farm at which your correspondent is spending a few weeks, under the excellent management of miss Inez and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Perry, leaves nothing to be desired, and yields abundant crops.

The house this season is doing a very large business, and on the way of keeping summer boarders, who are finding their way to this great resort from Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and other places. All seem well pleased, and some who have come here on account of throat and lung trouble have expressed themselves as having been greatly benefited, although having here but a short time.

Everything contributes to one's happiness here, the abundance of good things on the table tempt the dullest appetite, even the cows vie with each other as to which shall give the nicest milk, and the chickens keep up a constant cackling, and a boy's rifle as to which shall lay the most delicious eggs, and, as we only get thirty-five a day, you can judge we don't suffer much for want of them. Then the fresh farm and garden "truck" in abundance all add to the wants of inner man, and woman too, for we are blessed with these fair "critters" in the usual numbers, possessing the same general attractions that always characterize them, including more than the average amount, I think, of intelligence and beauty. Your correspondent feels that the responsibility of writing the last few lines is very great and desires to close. Yours, etc., E. S.

Early Records of Union County.

City Surveyor Meyer, of Elizabeth, is at present editing the "Archives of Union County," for the preservation of old town books, unrecorded documents, maps and other matters relating to the early history of this county and the genealogy of its settlers. It is to consist of three volumes; the Elizabethtown Book," 1730 to 1788, with extracts reaching back to 1666; "The Town Book of the Elizabeth Town Purchase" with names of proprietors, etc., 1738 to 1738, and "The Book of the Ear Marks," 1714 to 1808.

The first volume will be issued this year and be delivered about September; the others will be printed from time to time—annually if possible—if the public interest is sufficient. A limited number of copies will be issued. The book will be illustrated by over a hundred autographs, several hundred fac simile copies of the ear marks, and with many maps.

Meeting of Gazelle Engine Company.

At the meeting of Gazelle Engine Co., held last evening in their parlors, Mr. Alex. Titsworth presented the new flag and portrait of the late president of the company with a few appropriate remarks. Messrs. J. S. Cutter and A. H. Martin also made a few remarks on behalf of the company.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Chas. Daly for the fine picture of a broken column of flowers which was presented by her to the company for their attention to the late Mr. Chas. Daly while sick, and to the citizens who contributed to the new flag, and also to Mr. E. Scheidecker for a very beautiful mat with the inscription "Gazelle" woven upon it.

Dogs Killing Rabbits.

To the Editor of THE EVENING NEWS:

Since last Sunday night the owners of pet rabbits in certain parts of the city have been suffering from the depredations of a dog, or dogs, which defies doors and gates. Over twenty-five rabbits trained as nearly 450, have been killed and strewn about the yards and yards of the owners. Cannot this thing be stopped. If the owners of dogs residing in the vicinity of Madison avenue, Fifth and Sixth streets would keep their dogs either locked or chained up nights the trouble might be averted.

ONE WHO HAS SUFFERED.

How the Fourth will be Celebrated.

The small boy will probably begin it between three and four o'clock in the morning, perhaps earlier. He will be joined later on by his elder, after considerable grumbling at having his slumbers disturbed by the aforesaid youngster.

The "one horn" cannon of revolutionary fame, which was captured from the Westfields a year ago, will be shot off at three o'clock by the members of Engine Co., No. 3.

When things are in full swing the Grove Meeting, announced for ten o'clock, will be held under the auspices of the various temperance organizations of the city. An address and speeches will form part of the exercises.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad will give an excursion to Manch Chunk and Glen Onoko. The train is advertised to leave this city at 9:10 a. m., and the fare for the round trip is $1.75.

Engine Co., No. 2, will give an exhibition of the working of their horses and the new drop harness, in the morning at nine o'clock.

The Bound Brook celebration will begin with a grand parade at ten o'clock, and will continue during the afternoon and evening. The Rev. Dr. Lewis, of this city, will deliver the oration of the day at one o'clock. A number of the members of the Plainfield Reform Club will join with the Bound Brook Club in this celebration.

During the afternoon a stage will leave the Farmers' Hotel, on Somerset street, for Mount Bethel, where a celebration will be held during the afternoon and evening. The fare will be fifty cents.

A base ball match has been arranged for four o'clock in the afternoon, between the Crescents and the Hudsons, the champion amateur nine of New York at the Richmond street grounds. Reserved seats will be provided for those who wish to attend.

The members of St. Joseph's Church, North Plainfield, will give a picnic during the afternoon and evening, at Woodside Grove, on Somerset street. Stages for the grove will leave from the corner of Front and Somerset streets.

In the evening there will be a fine display of fireworks at the Hotel Netherwood, beginning at 8:15. Music will also be furnished.

The Union Club will as usual entertain the families of members at the club house on Broadway, with a display of fireworks, following which there will be music and refreshments.

New Jersey's Poor Children.

Lawrence T. Fell, the inspector of the Child Labor Bureau in New Jersey, is sending out pamphlets of the new State law, giving a brief statement of the laws which he will undertake to enforce this year. He began his work in 1883, but, being unaided, he was not able to accomplish much. Now there are two sub-inspectors, and Mr. Fell says they are hard at work in various parts. When they have divided the State into districts and gathered statistics, they will begin a personal inspection of factories.

The Child Labor law forbids the employment in factories of boys under 12 and girls under 14, of children of either sex between 12 and 15 without certain prescribed attendance at day or night school, of children under 14 for more than ten hours a day, and of minors who cannot obtain from a physician a certificate of physical fitness. The bureau is also empowered by an act passed last Winter to enforce all laws relating to the sanitary condition of factories, the Compulsory Education act, and other laws concerning children, including the act forbidding the sale of cigarettes and tobacco in any form to minors.

Fire Arrangements for To-Morrow.

To-night at seven o'clock a watchman will go on duty in the tower, and will continue on watch until six o'clock on the morning of the fifth. At the same time the horses will be placed in readiness at the various engine houses, and two engineers for each engine will go on duty. All will remain on duty until six o'clock on the morning of the fifth. The city has been divided into three fire districts, and one engine is assigned to duty for each district. The district south of Madison avenue and this side of the brook is assigned to No. 2, the district north of the same to No. 1, and the district of North Plainfield to No. 3. The engines will not go in from out of their districts unless called for. The truck will go to all fires. The arrangements are as complete as possible, and the usual dangers from fire on the Fourth is reduced to a minimum.

Fun for the Dog.

It has been known for some time that a family of rats made its headquarters under the floor of C. Potter, Jr.'s, store house, Tuesday afternoon took up the floor preparatory to moving the building, when a lively and exciting scene followed. A large bull dog, belonging on the premises thought it belonged to him to "hold the fort" against this family of rats, and, with some help from the men, he killed fifty of the rodents. An attache of the works says he thinks a delegation of colestials, with their soup kettle is expected. "And that there are more to follow."

SURVEYING A LOCATION.

One of the most beautiful and attractive spots about Plainfield is, undoubtedly, in the immediate location of the Crescent Avenue Church. "What a lovely location for a church!" is the remark of every stranger who passes by, and as "a thing of beauty, is a joy forever"—we who have long viewed its prominence and beauty, still walk around about it, looking admiringly at its velvet lawns in which surround the sacred edifice. Surely, the minds of those who selected that plot of ground for their church, must have been deeply inoculated with the sentiment of beauty and the eternal fitness of things, and, peering into the future, have seen the artistically lighted park rise from the old browsing ground of tangled weeds and dust covered paths; and viewed the commodious residences grouped in a substantial phalanx about its stately spire. With all its cold stateliness of form and isolated position, keeping a stern watchfulness over every surrounding road, way with its week day calm, and waking drowsy souls with Sabbath sounds—it is the trysting place for lovers, where, sitting under the shadow of its porch, love's vows are exchanged, and hopes are expressed that the buried doors behind them, may be opened ere long and their vows consummated at the altar within. At no time does this beautiful church and its surroundings, appear more attractive than on Sunday evenings, when the burning Day-god has disappeared below the neighboring hills and the shadows of night deepen around the graceful trees which drop their branches lovingly, to the same earth which is given them their nourishment and strength; they may be heard the loitering foot-fall of an idle dreamer, strolling around the picturesque quadrangle of level green, which spreads out like a carpet of velvet; the lights glimmer out one by one from street and dwellings, the moon rises and dabbles the ground beneath the trees, touches the tall, graceful church spire with silver, and slants their high rays in dark lines upon the illumined paths below; a heavenly peace descends upon us, and we thank God for casting our lot in such pleasant places.

Last Sunday evening this sacred edifice was thrown open to the public for a service of song and temperance sermon, under the auspices of the Reform Club; the night was delightfully cool and the church soon became crowded to its very doors; the organ (the less said about that instrument the better) tones vibrated on the still air without, and soon began the penetrating strains of the cornet, followed by a burst of song from the choir of male voices, so inspiring and soulful as to draw us from our homes, to stand beneath the open windows of the church and enjoy the thrilling sounds so solemn and sweet and rendered in such perfect time and measure. There was only lacking the strains of the impaired mental power. Physically he appeared to disadvantage; his hands trembled, one of his feet, while he was sitting, kept up a pit-a-pat on the floor, and his face was that of a man whose nervous system had rebelled against control. When on his feet he appeared more at home than when sitting. He walked with a steady step to the carriage, into which he climbed unaided, and with commendable alacrity for a man of his age. The improvement in the health of the journalist whose house the ex-governor was leaving was that the question of whom Mr. Tilden favors at Chicago was no longer open to discussion."

Randall and Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A special to The Philadelphia Telegraph says: The Cleveland talk is more confident. Tammany's opposition is admitted, but the governor's friends say this will be met at Chicago by a pairing him. The dynamite and labor difficulties, it is held, will also redound to the help of a conservative Democrat. Cleveland's supporters claim that the latest developments in New York show that he will have the majority of the state delegation, in spite of all reports to the contrary. Gen. Slocum says it does not appear that Cleveland is gaining in Brooklyn, and doubts if the governor can get a vote from the Long Island delegation, but even the Tammanyites here do not go so far as that. The Randall men are also losing very hopeful. Their claim is that Randall sent out Cleveland in Tilden's choice, and that Cleveland is the choice of Gen. Sheridan. They also say that Randall would be acceptable to Tammany, and instance as evidence the fact that Kelly's organ, The Star, has a cut and a laudatory notice of Randall. The ex-speaker's supporters are also claiming the votes of Ohio. A canvass of the Ohio congressmen discloses a preference for Randall over any Ohio candidate.

Mr. Jones' Political Views.

New York, July 3.—George Jones, of The New York Times, in an interview with a reporter of The Commercial Advertiser, stated that he expected to sail for Europe, it he almost two months, and that during the absence his paper would be conducted as at present. "Should Mr. Cleveland obtain the Democratic nomination," said Mr. Jones, "my paper would support him, as I would him or any other candidate who is my first belief that he will be elected. Continuing, Mr. Jones said that he was personally on good terms with Mr. Tilden, and knew that he (Tilden) would not accept the nomination if it was tendered unanimously. Mr. Jones admitted that Mr. Tilden's natural powers are as vigorous as at any time, but that his physical incapable of entering such a campaign as the coming fall would be. Mr. Jones believed Cleveland was much stronger than his opponents would admit, and while he would not say no doubt that he could carry New York and Massachusetts. He did not think the veto of the 5-cent fare bill, which he urged his party to support, was likely to affect his success, would injure him in the least, and that, notwithstanding the fact that he would have to secure the votes of the labor men, his support for each ride would be a consideration, he would certainly poll the full Democratic vote. Concluding Mr. Jones referred to the article published in the New York Sun. He said that Mr. Dana would of course like to obtain the nomination, and for that reason was opposed to Cleveland, who he (Jones) believed was the strongest candidate that could be found.

Clamoring for Tilden.

BALTIMORE, July 3.—A special dispatch from Washington to The American says: The expose of the ridiculous scheme of certain Democrats to force Tilden on the head benefit of the party, and to let some other man take the presidential chair, even if the Democratic electors are elected in November, has stirred up the Tilden men to the most strenuous exertions, and Tilden talk for Tilden's own sake has been very plenty here to-day. Some very prominently needs only to be mentioned to awaken enthusiasm in the Democratic breast and to cause everybody to turn away from other candidates and to take up with Tilden at once. A few men who are faithful to Bayard, and very few who cling to McDonald, and possibly a handful who continue to clamor for Governor Hoadly, of Ohio, are the only men mentioned; but they are the exception. So long as there is a feeling that Tilden may possibly be forced to accept the nomination, all other candidates are handicapped. There is a growing belief here that the element dis satisfied with all of the names thus far mentioned—Bayard, Cleveland, McDonald and Payne—may unite upon placing Tilden's name before the convention. Should that be done, the chances seem to be that he will be unanimously nominated, and should such a reply can be received from him. This Cleveland people, however, are still claiming the ability to control the New York delegation, but they have yet to do that, and can be nominated, unless Tilden's name is sprung as indicated above. Those familiar with the situation in New York, however, have serious doubts whether the Cleveland strength is sufficient to control the delegation and give its support solidly for him

Hopeful of Butler's Nomination.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 3.—The Weavers' Mutual Benefit association at its regular meeting last night passed resolutions by a unanimous vote as follows: That we are instructed to vote as a unit and use their utmost endeavors in favor of an emphatic declaration by that body in favor of a tariff for revenue only.

Another resolution endorses the course of the Hon. William R. Morrison in congress on the tariff question.

The following state ticket was placed in nomination: For governor, Carter Harrison, of Chicago; lieutenant-governor, Henry Seifert, of St. Clair; secretary of state, Michael J. Dougherty, of Knox; treasurer, Alfred Orendorff, of Sangamon.

Tilden Declares for Cleveland.

ALBANY, July 3.—A special dispatch from New York to The Albany Evening Journal says: "Samuel J. Tilden and Andrew H. Green, on Sunday afternoon, called on a prominent New York journalist, whose summer home is near Greystone. They drove in Mr. Tilden's carriage and spent many hours at the journalist's house. Although it was Sunday the subject of politics was touched on. Mr. Tilden discussing the presidential situation without reserve. He said he had never mind the strain of the canvass; he thought he could endure this all right. What he dreaded was a second defeat. If next year after he should be elected, the idea that possibly this demand on his declining years should not be made on him after the campaign not appearing to have any place in his mind.

"He stated freely that he personally preferred that Gov. Cleveland should receive the nomination at Chicago. He said he had made known this preference in a direction where it would do the most good, having sent word to his friends and to influential Democrats to that effect. He discussed Senator Bayard and other candidates. Bayard, he said, would not do for northern voters. His war record would be exceedingly damaging.

"Mr. Tilden talked deliberately, in his usual low voice, but his grasp of the subject under discussion and the ideas of a man of impaired mental power. Physically he appeared to disadvantage; his hands trembled, one of his feet, while he was sitting, kept up a pit-a-pat on the floor, and his face was that of a man whose nervous system had rebelled against control. When on his feet he appeared more at home than when sitting. He walked with a steady step to the carriage, into which he climbed unaided, and with commendable alacrity for a man of his age. ILLINOIS DEMOCRATS.

Carter Harrison Nominated for Governor by the Convention.

Mr. George Jones' Political Views. Clamoring for Tilden—Randall and Cleveland—Hopeful of Gen. Butler's Nomination.

PEORIA, July 3.—The Democratic state convention, which was called to order at 12:30 P. M., was opened with prayer by Rev. C. Bruce, of Peoria. When Chauncey Oberly, in his speech, asked the question, "Shall we, in spite of the declaration of Mr. Tilden, nominate him for president?" the cry "United States!" the convention rose and cheered vociferously. Henry Clay Connelly, of Rock Island, was chosen temporary chairman, but as he was unable to make himself heard in distant parts of the hall he resigned, and Mr. Oberly resumed the chairmanship. Gen. McClernand presented a resolution to the effect that the delegates of this convention that the old ticket—Samuel J. Tilden and Thomas A. Hendricks—should be nominated for presidential and vice-president of the United States by the national Democratic convention. The chair decided that the resolution was not in order at the time.

Judge Bradwell was then made permanent chairman. The convention then named the forty district delegates, one of whom is Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago. The alternates are W. H. Harrison, John M. Palmer, J. C. Black and Lambert Tree. The alternates at large are Thomas Hoyne, Gen. McDonald, Norman McNeely and G. Dr. Heuning. A canvass of the delegates shows a nearly unanimous sentiment for Tilden if it can be shown he would accept. After that a majority are for Cleveland, and under the unit rule he would probably get the vote of Illinois. Some of the delegates favor McDonald and some Bayard.

The following is the tariff plank adopted:

We denounce the high protective tariff maintained for more than twenty years by the Republican party substantially as it now exists and which is levied upon nearly 4,000 articles, as a masterpiece of injustice, inequality and false pretenses. It has impoverished many to enrich a few, and should be reformed. It prohibits imports that might purchase the products of American labor. It has degraded American commerce from the control of the foreign rank upon the high seas. It has cut down the sales of American manufacturers at home and abroad and depleted the returns of the American agricultural industry, followed by half our people. It costs the people five times more than it produces to the treasury, obstructs the processes of production, and wastes the fruits of labor; it promotes fraud, fosters smuggling, enriches dishonest officials, and bankrupts honest merchants. We demand that all custom house taxation shall be only for revenue, and, this demanding, the delegates from this state to the Democratic national convention to be held in Chicago this month are hereby instructed to vote as a unit and use their utmost endeavors in favor of an emphatic declaration by that body in favor of a tariff for revenue only.

Another resolution endorses the course of the Hon. William R. Morrison in congress on the tariff question.

The following state ticket was placed in nomination: For governor, Carter Harrison, of Chicago; lieutenant-governor, Henry Seifert, of St. Clair; secretary of state, Michael J. Dougherty, of Knox; treasurer, Alfred Orendorff, of Sangamon.

THE PORTER BILL.

The President Decides that it is Unconstitutional.

Passed by the House Over the Veto To be Acted Upon by the Senate To-day—Attorney General Brewster's Opinion.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The president returned to the house, without his approval, the bill to restore Fitz John Porter to the army. The text of the veto message is as follows:

To the House of Representatives: After careful consideration of the evidence in the case of "the late of Fitz John Porter," I herewith return it with my objections to the house of congress in which it originated. Its pending object is the restoration of Fitz John Porter to the army with the rank he would have attained by promotion had he not been dismissed therefrom by the sentence of a court martial, approved by the president January 21, 1863, and had he remained in the service from that time until the present date, if it can be fairly construed as requiring the president to make the restoration and by and with the advice and consent of the senate, the appointment which it authorizes is in manifest violation of the constitution, and for that reason alone the legislation it must be regarded as a mere enactment of advice and counsel to the president. But in other things, the force of positive law, and can serve no useful purpose on the statute books. There are other and more serious objections to the bill than the sanction of my approval. The judgment of the court martial by which Fitz John Porter was convicted was pronounced by the concurrence of nine general officers, of distinguished character and ability. Its investigation of the charges of which it found him guilty occupied a period of thirty-four sessions and its findings and sentence were in due course approved by the commander-in-chief, the president of the United States. Its legal competency, its jurisdiction of the accused and of the subject of the charges, its mode of procedure, its regularity of all its proceedings, are matters which have never been questioned. Its action is, therefore, is final and conclusive in its character. Since the date of the finding, congress has recently declared that a court martial, such as that was to the organization, practice by law and conduct of the case, is substantially identical in this class of cases. The judgments, when approved, were declared by the law as then interpreted by the same considerations which give conclusive force to the judgments of other tribunals, including as well the lowest as the highest. It follows as an exciting that when a lawfully constituted court martial duly finds and sentences for the offenses and crimes, and the same have been duly approved, neither the president nor the congress has any power to set them aside. The existence of such power is equally unwarranted by the fact that subsequently implied in the provisions of the bill which is before me, that when the exacting evidence are read in the light of the recital of the preamble, it will be seen that it seeks in effect the practical annulment of the findings of the court martial and of the sentence. A conclusion at variance with these findings has been reached, after investigation by a board consisting of three officers of the army. This board was not invested in point of law with any such authority, and was powerless to compel the attendance of witnesses or the production of paper and which could be lawfully enforced. The officers who composed it were, indeed, senior to the officers of the court martial by whom Fitz John Porter was tried, and were, at the date of their action, not subject to the orders of the officers who composed the court martial. But they were not, and could not be, superior in legal authority to the court martial, which was a court of the highest competency, and whose proceedings, findings and sentence were in due course approved by the commander-in-chief of the army, and by the president of the United States. Its legal competency, its jurisdiction of the accused and of the subject of the charges, its mode of procedure, its regularity of all its proceedings, are matters which have never been questioned. THE CHOLERA IN EUROPE.

Deaths at Toulon and Marseilles. Stopping Refugees.

PARIS, July 3.—The governor of Saigon telegraphs that there is no epidemic there. There were five deaths from cholera at Toulon. There were two deaths from the same disease at Marseilles. The reports of cholera at Lyons are denied. It is stated that the sanitary condition of the city is excellent.

Reports received from Toulon, Marseilles and other cholera-infected places indicate that the spread of the disease has been checked, though whether permanently or not cannot now be determined. Among the cases reported at Toulon is that of the Italian consul in that city.

BUCHAREST, July 3.—The German press is exultant that France, in her emergency, has been compelled to sink her hatred and come to Germany for assistance in the shape of Dr. Koch, upon whom she relies to save her from pestilence.

DESTRUCTIVE STORMS.

Ravages in Pennsylvania.—What Followed a Waterspout.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A gentleman who arrived here over the Northern Central railroad reports great devastation from the recent storms between this city and York, Pa. In the latter the damage occasioned by the storm of last Thursday is very great, and has occasioned great suffering. Nearly every bridge in the town has been washed away. The shops and houses along the river front were cleaned of their contents, and the whole population is engaged in repairing damages. The worst point is reported near Bentzinger's Station, on the Baltimore and Potomac railroad. The volume of water which followed was so powerful as to wash out the railroad track for nearly a mile. The destruction of crops along the line of the storm is great. Wheat fields which were almost ready for the reaper, and promised an abundant yield, are reduced to acres of sand-covered straw. The corn and other crops present a like appearance of ruin. The repairs to the railroad tracks are being pushed rapidly, and trains are now running regularly.

Blaine on Confederation.

WATERVILLE, Me., July 3.—At the commencement dinner at Colby university Mr. Blaine, who was present, was given a most enthusiastic greeting. Being called upon for a speech, he said: "I am deeply indebted to you for the welcome you have given me. Thirty years ago I first came to this college to commencement. I have since been present from time to time. I have watched closely the crowds assembled here and have noted the hearty and healthy growth of Colby, not surpassed by any college in New England. I miss from this gathering your friend and my friend, Abner Coburn."

He said he had not heretofore been in favor of confederation, but the evidences of the past few days had more than half convinced him of its wisdom.

United States Marshals' Pay.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A long debate ensued in the senate on the committee proposition to strike out from the sundry civil bill the sections relating to the payment of United States marshals by salaries instead of fees. The sections were stricken out. The action in regard to the printing of documents was ruled out on the point that it was new legislation. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars was appropriated to enable the various departments of the government to participate in the expositions at Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans. An amendment was inserted appropriating $10,000 to enable the president to participate with other countries in arranging a standard of relation between gold and silver. The bill was passed.

End of the Plumbers' War.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Last night the plumbers assembled at Clarendon hall. They agreed to a settlement with the bess plumbers and will go to work to-day. The basis of the settlement places the journeymen and bosses in very much the same position as before the lockout. The journeymen agree to arrive promptly at 8 o'clock Saturday evening for their pay, and to avoid as much as possible any of the causes which led to the present lockout. The agreement concedes the right of the employers to hire and discharge whoever they please. Should any dispute arise as to the justice of discharging or leaving, it is to be subject to appeal to the board of arbitration of the two associations.

The President Killed.

WILLIAMSBURG, July 3.—As a train on the Cincinnati and Eastern road was running over a trestle two miles east of Winchester, the president of the road, W. R. McGill, fell from the door of the baggage car. He was buried fifty feet to the bottom of the ravine and instantly killed.

Loss, $26,000.

WESTFIELD, N. Y., July 3.—Fire broke out in the business quarter of the town and made such rapid headway that help was telegraphed for to Erie and Dunkirk. Westfield house and six stores were destroyed. Loss, $26,000.

To Our Friends.

The Reform Club of Plainfield having realized generous cash contributions sufficient to pay for and secure title to the property formerly known as the Second Baptist Church, corner of Second street and Central avenue, this city, and funds being likewise available, chiefly through the noble exertions of the Christian Temperance Ladies, to furnish and equip the purchased building in a properly adored and repaired for the practical use of the Club, we cordially solicit the urgently appeal to the liberality and kindly attention of the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity for additional means to fully complete such needed alterations and repairs.

The good work already accomplished by the Reform Club and the approving smile of Divine Providence and the still greater work awaiting future efforts, certainly commend it to favorable notice and aid and support of every friend of humanity.

The pecuniary demands made upon the public for various laudable objects, causes hesitancy on the part of the Club to solicit further aid, but valuing as its members do the all important Temperance reformation they are striving to permanently establish, emboldens them to these and and induces them to believe, that early and substantial encouragement will follow the asking.

Donations to the aforesaid purpose to the extent of their pecuniary ability and inclination, will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the officers of the Club, or either members of the Executive or Finance Committee, the names of whom are hereunto subscribed.

EDSALL'S
EXTRA!
We take pleasure in making the announcement to the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity, that we have just received a full line of one of the BEST and MOST reliable brands of
BLACK SILKS
Imported. It is of the well-known manufacture that was formerly imported by A. T. Stewart & Co., and sold in their retail department for many years, and has stood the most trying test and proved its unquestionable excellence to thousands who have worn it and can testify of its real worth and beauty.
It is still retailed by the successors of the old Stewart house, and by a special arrangement with the Importing Department we are enabled to offer it at precisely the same figures as their retail department, viz:
Black Silk

THE CHOLERA IN EUROPE.

Deaths at Toulon and Marseilles. Stopping Refugees

PARIS, July 3.—The governor of Saigon telegraphs that there is no epidemic there. There were five deaths from cholera at Toulon. There were two deaths from the same disease at Marseilles. The reports of cholera at Lyons are denied. It is stated that the sanitary condition of the city is excellent.

Reports received from Toulon, Marseilles and other cholera-infected places indicate that the spread of the disease has been checked, though whether permanently or not cannot now be determined. Among the cases reported at Toulon is that of the Italian consul to that city.

BUCHAREST, July 3.—The port of Mangalia, on the Black sea, is closed to vessels arriving from French Mediterranean ports. At Kustendi and Sulina such vessels will be subject to eight days' quarantine.

ROME, July 3.—Guards at Vintemiglia, on the Italian frontier, are stopping refugees from Marseilles from passing into Italy.

BERLIN, July 3.—The German press is agitated that France, in her emergency, has been compelled to sink her hatred and come to Germany for assistance in the shape of Dr. Koch, upon whose she relies to save her from pestilence.

DESTRUCTIVE STORMS.

Ravages in Pennsylvania—What Followed a Waterspout.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A gentleman who arrived here over the Northern Central railroad reports great devastation from the recent storms between this city and York, Pa. In the latter town the damage occasioned by the storm of last Thursday is very great, and has occasioned great suffering. Nearly every bridge in the town has been washed away. The shops and houses along the river front were cleaned of their contents, and the whole population is engaged in repairing damages. A waterspout burst near Benning's Station, on the Baltimore and Potomac railroad. The volume of water which followed was so powerful as to wash out the railroad track for nearly a mile. The destruction of crops along the line of the storm is great. Wheat fields which were almost ready for the reaper, and promised an abundant yield, are reduced to acres of mud-covered straw. The corn and other crops present a like appearance of ruin. The repairs to the railroad tracks are being pushed rapidly, and trains are now running regularly.

Blaine on Confederation.

WATERVILLE, Me., July 3.—At the commencement dinner at Colby university Mr. Blaine, who was present, was given a most enthusiastic greeting. Being called upon for a speech, he said: "I am deeply indebted to you for the welcome you have given me. Thirty years ago I first came to this college to commencement. I have since been present from time to time. I have watched closely the crowds assembled here and have noted the hearty and healthy growth of Colby, not surpassed by any college in New England. I miss from this gathering your friend and my friend, Abner Coburn."

He said he had not heretofore been in favor of confederation, but the evidences of the past few days had more than half convinced him of its wisdom.

United States Marshals' Pay.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A long debate ensued in the senate on the committee proposition to strike out from the sundry civil bill the sections relating to the payment of United States marshals by salaries instead of fees. The sections were stricken out. The section in regard to the printing of documents was ruled out on the point that it was new legislation. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars were appropriated to enable the various departments of the government to participate in the expositions at Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans. An amendment was inserted appropriating $10,000 to enable the president to participate with other countries in arranging a standard of relation between gold and silver. The bill was passed.

End of the Plumbers' War.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Last night the plumbers assembled at Clarendon hall. They agreed to a settlement with the boss plumbers and will go to work to-day. The basis of the settlement places the journeymen and bosses in very much the same position as before the lockout. The journeymen agree to arrive promptly at 4 o'clock Saturday evening for their pay, and to avoid as much as possible any of the causes which led to the present lockout. The agreement concedes the right of the employers to hire and discharge whoever they please. Should any dispute arise as to the justice of discharging or leaving, it is to be subject to appeal to the board of arbitration of the two associations.

The President Killed.

WILLIAMSBURG, July 3.—As a train on the Cincinnati and Eastern road was running over a trestle two miles east of Winchester, the president of the road, W. R. Metcalf, fell from the door of the baggage car. He was buried fifty feet to the bottom of the ravine and instantly killed.

Loss, $36,000.

WESTFIELD, N. Y., July 3.—Fire broke out in the business quarter of the town and made such rapid headway that help was telegraphed for to Erie and Dunkirk. The Westfield house and six stores were destroyed. Loss, $36,000.

CONDENSED NEWS.

Gen. Diaz was elected president of Mexico, on Monday, with but trifling opposition. The state electors will cast their ballot on Sunday, the 12th.

At Willoughby the degree of LL.D. was conferred on United States Senator Ingalls, and that of D.D. on G. H. Denison, of Williamstown.

Block Island has been enjoying a remarkable rin of swordfish, seventy-five of which have been received at Newport, averaging 100 pounds each in weight.

Richard Vanderbeek, Amsterdam, was married yesterday to a lady of Fonda, surrendering $12,000 left to him by his first wife on condition that he should not marry again.

The Seventy-fourth regiment of Buffalo and the National Guard company of Erie, Pa., assisted yesterday in the Dominion Day celebration at Hamilton, Ont.

Another claimant turns up for the fortune of New York's interesting grinder, John Rose; in the person of Stephen Russell, of Alleghany, who claims to be a brother, and who says the ginger's proper name was Vincent.

Two boys, named Dempsey and Wood, aged about 7 years, of Letonia, Ohio, were struck by lightning on Tuesday and instantly killed. The tree under which they were playing was also split to bits.

The suit of Frederick Prentice, of Toledo, to recover a $5,000,000 tract of land on which part of Duluth stands, has been settled against him. Also the United States circuit court at St. Paul, and will now be taken to the supreme court.

William Edinger, a German merchant, for twenty years a resident of East Saginaw, Mich., disappeared suddenly on Sunday night. He is supposed to have had $1,500 to $1,500 in his possession. His family are almost total pay.

To Our Friends.

The Reform Club of Plainfield having realized generous cash contributions sufficient to pay for and secure title to the proper ty formerly known as the Second Baptist Church, corner of Second street and Central avenue, this city, and finding likewise available, chiefly through the noble exertions of the Christian Temperance Ladies, to furnish and equip the purchased building when properly altered and repaired for the practical use of the Club, re-pectfully though urgently appeal to the liberality and kindly feelings of the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity for additional means to fully complete such needed alterations and repairs.

The good work already accomplished by the Reform Club under the approving smile of Divine Providence and the still greater work awaiting future efforts, certainly commend it to the favorable consideration and support of every friend of humanity.

The pecuniary demands made upon the public for various laudable objects, causes delicacy on the part of the Club to solicit further aid, but relying as the members do the all important Temperance re-formation they are striving to permanently establish, embolden them to then ask and induces them to believe, that early and substantial encouragement will follow the solicitation.

Donations to the aforesaid purpose to the extent of individual ability and inclination, will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the officers of the Club or either member of the Executive or Subscription Committees, to whom the same are hereunto subscribed.

Mosquitoes Under the Microscope.

[London Sportsman.]

We have long held the opinion that the mosquito is an unmitigated scoundrel, who could give our own lively flea six stones and a beating over a long course, but we are now convinced. A gentleman has examined Mr. Mosquito under a microscope, and his description is to say the least, startling. It appears that in the "bill" of the little beast alone there are no fewer than five distinct surgical instruments. These are described as a lancet, two saws, a suction pump and a small Corliss steam engine. It appears that when a "skeeter" settles down to his work upon a nice tender portion of the human frame the lance is first pushed into the flesh, the two saws, placed back to back, begin to work up and down to enlarge the hole, then the pump is inserted and the victim's blood is siphoned up to the reservoirs carried behind, and finally, to complete the comity of the performance, the wretch drops a quantity of poison into the wound to keep it irritated. Then the diminutive fiend takes a fly around just to digest your gore, and makes tracks for a fresh victim, or if the first one has been of unusually good quality he returns to the same happy hunting ground. The mosquito's nervous energy, combined with his portable operating plant, make him at once a terror and a pest. Our English skinflayers are doves in comparison with them.

A Type Setter's Need.

[From the Philadelphia Call.]

Minks—I don't see why it is that if man originally had tails they didn't stay on.

Flinks—According to Darwin the tails dropped off when there was no further use for them.

Minks—No further use for them? Good gracious! Did Darwin think that?

Flinks—Certainly.

Minks—Well, I guess he never saw a bald-headed printer setting type in fly time.

Light Wanted on the Subject.

[Puck.]

When you have struck a match to light a lamp, and have got the chimney off all right, why is it that you turn the thingamajig not less than a dozen times each way before you can get the wick to come up, and that it never does come up far enough to light until the match has burned right down to your thumb-nail, and then you never know whether you have lighted it with the match or your thumb-nail?

Henrico Explains "What Stopped Sear Ahkwert Ible Chesse?"

[Yonkers Gazette.]

"How now Henrico! What means that ragged scar athwart thy cheek?"

"The nothing girl, except that yesterev'n I got me o'er the tryeting wall, and did with you accursed clothes line interwingle."

"Ah, shrewd and cunning cavalier! Thou dost avert the truth—this tale of thine is but a stuff to down me circumspection."

"Is—brew thee, maid, but thou'rt a clever one! I'll not deceive thee! This scar befell me in a brawl with that same recreant, Vingarded!"

"Vingarded!"

"Ay'es, Fingargo!"

"Is—that doth peanuts soldier? the organ-ift, and bawls his tunes from parts abdominal?"

"The same, Andromeda."

"He taint thee with the rude pollution of his touch! He braud mine own Henrico with his plebian pinion! Oh thus the gods had ordained."

"Abate thee! Turn off the faucet of thy grief till I have told thee of our feast, for sweet indeed the tale will fit thy mood."

"Give it me, then, Henrico! I gasp for the part where thou dost toll me of the gore wherein thou wallowed this costermonger."

"Give o'er, then, while I do cease fr thee! But yesterev'n, ere I had quaffed the last sweet draught of sunlight, I did encounter this Vingarded, in woody pass o'er heard him say that I the main service performed on my own Andromeda had fatted in the sanctus!"

"He fat! O, ven'moos tongue! O, sink of hell's distortion! Where, then, was that avenging—"

"Gag thee, thou prattler! An' thou craveest gore, keep thine ears alert and 'twill be thine to battle on. Attend me now! When thus he did accuse thee and thy larynx, as quick as 'twere the echo of his speech he gat the leg, an' e'en as quick his knuckles did I find familiar grown with this my face. 'Twas then, Andromeda, that like a doughty knight Sir Juan Sullivan, he that of Boston culture is the fruit, I massed me portions muscular, and so did I acquaint me with his frontispiece."

"The gods be praised for this sweet bolus, Henrico! and how lasted the leave when thou did'st cease thy collocution?"

"As 'twere a far-gone tomato had usurped his lineaments, and o'er their parts strange sediments bestrewn. Had thou unwittingly locked thereat, thou would'st have thought thee 'twere the very place whereon some modern railway cassaby had just befall."

A Hint to Theatre Goers.

["Manhattan" in Chicago Journal.]

You are probably able to recall Agnes Booth as an actress of truly great ability, and as truly with an ugly face. She was a girlish heroine in this piece. A friend, whom I knew to be a full appreciator of good acting, sat gazed at a pretty girl near by, instead of turning his eyes to the stage.

"Come, come," I expostulated; "don't let a bewitching face distract your attention from Mrs. Booth. She never did better work in her life than she is doing now."

"That's the reason why I'm not looking at her," was the reply. "She is speaking in a manner that charms me, I assure you; and by keeping my eyes on a girl in the audience who realizes to my vision the character that the actress is perfectly vocalizes, I get—don't you see?—the greatest possible amount of pleasure out of the play."

The next time I go to one of the comic opera or burlesque shows of beauty, where the language goes a great way toward nullifying the enjoyment afforded by the spectacle, I shall accept my friend's experience to the different circumstances by filling my ears with cotton.

Wearing His Working Clothes.

[Philadelphia Call.]

Wise father—My son, I want you to learn a trade.

Son—A trade! What trade?

"Anything. Become a machinist, a carpenter, a blacksmith, a bricklayer—anything, but learn a trade."

"Why, you have not lost your money, have you pa?"

"No, my money is secure, and you will never lack for wealth. But I want you to learn a trade, work at it every day, and be sure to go to and from your labor in your working clothes."

"Money on me! But what for?"

"It will keep some fool of a woman, all airs, selfishness and vanity, from marrying you."

Wanted a Little More.

A Wall street broker says in The New Telegram: "Ten years ago I saw a man who had $11,000,000 and seven children. One day I asked him why he did not retire. His answer was: 'I have $11,000,000. I want $22,000,000, because I have seven children. My wish is to give each a million and keep $6,000,000 for myself.' That man died in a tenement house, and his children are working for $1 a day."

"Pyramid" Fire-Escape.

[Exchange.]

The latest device to save lives at fires has been put into practice in St. Louis, where the German Turners have organized a corps of athletes, who will undertake to form a living pyramid, left in a burning building of any height, and hand down the children and women safely.

Locals.

—The grove meeting will be held as usual to-morrow afternoon.

—Frazlen's Alley at its eastern end is being filled up with gravel to the proper level.

—Ladies of North Plainfield combined to treat the inmates of the Children's Home to some of Dixon's ice cream yesterday.

—The New Market Seventh Day Baptist Church held a strawberry festival Fourth of July, which proved a success financially and otherwise.

—The Hotel Netherwood is now full, having over two hundred guests. Orchestral music will be furnished for the enjoyment of the guests and their friends this evening.

—The first performance of the dog "Bob" will take place at two o'clock Monday afternoon at Laing's Hall, the second at four o'clock and the third at eight in the evening.

—Mr. G. Frazee insists that his Blaine and Logan banner is not a thing of the past. He has restored it to its former position, and means to maintain there, he says, wind or no wind.

—The meeting of the Council this evening to examine the charges against Policeman Kelly will be of a private nature. None but those directly interested and the reporters will be allowed to attend.

—Yesterday morning Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, presented their driver, Mr. George Rickert, with a handsome new uniform, consisting of cap, coat, vest and pants. Mr. J. A. Moore, the foreman of the company, made the presentation speech.

—The Trinity Reformed and First Presbyterian churches will worship together during this month and the next. The Rev. Mr. Raymond will have charge the first month, and the morning services will be held in the Trinity Church and the evening services in the First Presbyterian. The Rev. Dr. Kershaw will take charge during August, and the morning services will be held in the First Presbyterian Church and the evening services in the Trinity. The vacation of each of the pastors for a month will thus be provided for.

The Fire Engine Trials Yesterday.

Yesterday morning a trial was made, separately, of several of the engine companies, and in the afternoon of the whole department.

At the morning trial Engine Co., No. 2, at a given signal left their house, on Front street, and located on the well at the corner of Somerset and Front streets, getting water in two and a half minutes after leaving the house. Engine Co., No. 1, left their house on Second street, and succeeded in getting water from the well at the corner of Fifth street and Park avenue in four minutes and three seconds.

At the afternoon trial a general alarm was sounded, the understanding being that the entire department should go to the Park House. The place was reached in the following order: Hose No. 1, 3 min., 20 sec.; Alert Hose and Engine No. 1, 3 min., 20 sec., Hook and Ladder, 3 min., 45 sec.; Engine No. 2, and Hose, 4 min.; Engine No. 3, and Hose, 4 min., 20 sec. The differences in distance and in the weights of the engines made any fair distinction impossible. They all did well.

The effect of the afternoon turnout was to give the city officials and citizens generally an exhibition of the efficiency of the department. To this end the exhibition was very satisfactory. Mayor Maxson, Councilman Marsh, and others witnessed, from the steps of the Park House, the arrival of the various companies. As it was not generally understood that this was simply an exhibition, the report soon followed the bogus alarm, to the effect that there was a fire in the Park House. This helped to swell the large multitude who thronged the streets, all going in the same direction. Everybody seemed well pleased.

The Round Brook Celebration.

Some fifty or more Plainfielders, including the Cornet Band and the Reform Club Choristers, attended the celebration at Round Brook yesterday. The oration of the day was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Lewis, of the Seventh Day Baptist Church of this city. Some of the Plainfield people did not like the charging of twenty-five cents admission to the Hall where the exercises occurred, even though it did include a plate of cream. Round Brook was, however, thoroughly wakened up, and turned out strong, notwithstanding the twenty-five cent business.

Personal.

Miss Williams, of New York City, is visiting the daughter of Judge Wadsworth.

Mr. Frederick Coode, of Brooklyn, formerly of this city, is spending a few days with friends here.

Mr. Truesman Moffatt, Jr., of Philadelphia, is spending a few days with his mother, in this city. His father is chief engineer in the Baldwin Locomotive Works.

Miss Earlena Slack of Lambertville, is visiting Mrs. C. H. Schermerhorn of Fifth street. Miss Slack has many friends in Plainfield, among whom she is very popular.

Vote of Thanks.

The officers and members of Engine Co., No. 2, wish to extend a vote of thanks to Mr. J. F. Carpenter, for the loan of his horse yesterday.

By order of the Committee.

A YOUNG MAN DROWNED.

His Companions Unable to Save Him.—Details of the Accident.

On Thursday evening about eight o'clock, John Norris and John Thompson, employees of the Potter Press Works, started to take a bath at Stains' bridge, a well-known spot about a mile out of town on Stony Brook. The water here in places reaches a depth of ten feet and more. Norris has not been in bathing in some years, and was not accounted to accounts able to swim. Thompson had been at the place before, and was a swimmer.

Thompson went in the water first, and warned his companion against coming in until he should find him a shallow spot. There were several small boys in bathing at the time, and Thompson hearing some splashing near him thought they were engaged in some frolic. He soon discovered, however, that it was his companion. He immediately went to his assistance, in response to what he supposed was his companion's last utterance "Come Quick!" The drowning man seized Thompson by the arm, and together they went down the first time. Thompson freed himself and tried to get a proper hold when they came to the surface, but he was unable to do so, this time being clutched by the leg and the pair went down the second time. Thompson again freed himself. As the drowning man was going down the third time, Thompson seized him by the hair, but the hair was too short, and the man went down the third time. Thompson then had the boys who were there to get a rail from a fence near by, and with this he endeavored to get the body out, but the water was too deep.

Thompson then came to town, but not being well acquainted with the steps to be taken in such a case, was some time in seeing the proper authorities. At last Mayor Maxson directed him to Justice Godown, of North Plainfield, who in company with a number of others immediately went to the spot. After much diving the body was found and brought to shore by Henry Voehl, the young North Plainfield baker. The body had been in the water about an hour. Coroner Wagner, of Somerville, was notified, and the body was first taken to the man's boarding place, and then removed to A. M. Runyon & Son's morgue on Park avenue. The coroner on viewing the remains decided that death was caused by accidental drowning, and that an inquest was not necessary.

Mr. Norris was an Englishman, about twenty-seven years of age, and had been in this country but about a year and a half. He belonged to the Amalgamation Society of Engineers, who will have charge of his funeral. It will take place to-morrow afternoon, and the body will be buried in the Seventh-Day Baptist cemetery.

The Chinese Lantern Parade.

A very pretty and interesting sight was the starting point of the skaters on their chinese lantern parade on Thursday evening, from the corner of Seventh street and Broadway. In the manoeuvering preparatory to the start, several riders came to grief through the waywardness of their rigging, and in strong language, hit the dust, demolishing the fairy castles of light which were fastened in various positions on their wheels. There were a double dozen who wheeled off around the Crescent at the sound of the bugle, including one tricycle, one "star" and several with lights dimmed. The number of lanterns to a machine varied according to the taste of the rider, some having two, some four, and some more.

Careless Use of Firearms.

Yesterday afternoon about six o'clock when Mr. Zimmerman, of North Plainfield, was coming home from the trotting ground on Park Avenue, and was about two blocks from the Martine bridge, he was saluted by the music of a rifle ball passing uncomfortably near him. On examination it was found that the ball had passed through the under lip and shoulder of one of his horses. The persons supposed to have fired the shot were on the bridge. They have not been identified. The shooting was probably entirely accidental, but such carelessness should be severely dealt with.

Blaine and Logan Banner Raised.

Yesterday morning at nine o'clock a fine Blaine and Logan banner was flung to the breeze, at the corner of Front street and Park avenue. The cornet band was on hand, and played "Marching through Georgia," "Hail to the Chief," and other popular campaign songs. A number of persons were present, but no speeches were made, although one humorous old gentleman, not wishing the Democrats to be forgotten, called for three cheers for Andrew Jackson. The money to purchase the banner was quietly raised by a few gentlemen.

Base Ball.

It may somewhat soothe the ruffled feelings of those who waited at the ball grounds in vain yesterday afternoon for the appearance of the Hudsons, of New York, who were to play with the Crescents, to know, that the former club waited at the station in New York for three trains for the weather to clear, as it was raining there at the time. The Crescents this afternoon play the Elizabeth Athletics again, on the latter club's grounds. The Athletics yesterday played the Lees, and were defeated by a score of 2 to 3.

Fire Laddies at Base Ball.

The following telegram was received at 3:40 p. m. yesterday:

Fanwood, July 4, 2:30 p. m.

Editor Plainfield Evening News:

A game of base ball was played to-day—Fanwood Engine Company against Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company. Score 28 to 17 in favor of the Excelsiors.

Alarmed a Fire.

Last evening about half-past six o'clock a spark from the chimney set fire to the roof of a house on Cottage Place, occupied by Mr. James Martin. No alarm was sounded, as the fire was put out by a pail of water before any damage was done.

Yesterday's Celebrations.

The celebration of the Fourth, as regards Plainfield, began the night previous when the business streets were thronged with a happy-go-lucky crowd, eager for anything and not caring much of what nature the "anything" was. Front street was in parts finely illuminated by chinese lanterns. Firecrackers were set off in bunches in the streets, somewhat to the terror of drivers of skittish horses. The various stands for the sale of fireworks attracted custom by occasionally giving a free display.

The grove meeting, under the auspices of the various temperance organizations of the city, although advertised for ten o'clock a. m., did not begin until some time later. The grove was somewhat more than half filled at the commencement of the exercises. Mr. James R. Perrine presided. The Memorial Day chorus of young girls, under direction of Mr. Edward Titsworth and Mrs. Olsen, were present, and enlivened the occasion with a number of songs. The opening prayer was made by Felix Lincoln, of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance. City Clerk O. B. Leonard read the Declaration of Independence, and Judge Nathan Harper delivered the oration of the day. A recitation of "The American Flag" was given by C. Jones. Speeches were also made by Mayor Maxson, John H. French, President of the Reform Club, and Thomas Richards of Brooklyn.

The Park House management had arranged for an evening entertainment for the benefit of the guests, but as the majority of them left the city for the day, the affair was postponed to some future date.

At the Hotel Netherwood a display of fireworks was given from 8:15 to 8:45, following which there was an entertainment in the parlor. The parlor affair was entirely a home entertainment, and reflected credit upon the promoters of the enterprise. The entertainment consisted of singing, and a series of stereopticon views. Dancing followed. A number of Plainfielders were present.

About six or seven hundred people gathered on the Union Club house grounds on Broadway last evening, to witness one of the finest displays of fire-works given in this vicinity in years. A few minor pieces failed to go off on account of the dampness of the air, but the exhibition, which lasted an hour or more, passed off very satisfactorily, as a whole. The small boy was on hand here, as elsewhere, and entertained the audience during the intervals. Following the display, which was said to have cost $675, refreshments were served in the club house. Dancing whiled away the remaining hours of the evening.

The Fourth at Rahway.

About sixteen members of the Reform Club, of this city, together with three ladies of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union visited Rahway yesterday afternoon and evening to attend the dedication of the new hall of the Reform Club of that place. The new quarters are fitted up with a reception room, reading room and business room. Speeches were made by President French, of the Plainfield Club, President Clark, of the Elizabeth Club, and Frank Dodge, of the Plainfield Club. A fine collation was furnished the visitors, by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. In the evening the Reform Club and their visitors paraded four hundred strong. An exhibition of fireworks was also given, which owing to a mishap occurred all at once.

During the day the beer men supplied free beer. The ladies of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in turn, furnished iced lemonade and sandwiches free. It was stated that over one thousand persons partook of the lemonade and sandwiches.

A Narrow Escape.

Thursday evening about 5:30 o'clock Mr. Hagaman, of North Plainfield, was out driving in a surrey wagon, in Grove street, when the horse took fright at the noise from Engine Co., No. 2, which was at work on the bridge, and attempted to run away. Mr. Hagaman pulled hard on the reins to check the animal when the bit broke, letting the bridle slip back on the horse's neck whereby all control of him was lost. The horse started on a break neck pace down the hill to the stable, when Mr. Frank Cook jumped forward and caught the animal by the nose, stopping his breathing, and saving Mr. Hagaman from what everybody considered would have been a serious accident.

Quiet Kindness.

Last Monday afternoon a picnic was given by Mrs. Mary Jane Fields, to the Society of Friends, to the children of the First Day school of the Friends' Meeting House on Peace street, in the lawn adjoining her residence, at which there were over 100 children in attendance, who were afforded much pleasure through Mrs. Fields' kind attention, and were supplied with ice cream, and other delicacies, Mrs. Field bearing all the expense. The matter, Quaker-like, has been kept very quiet, but some of her friends feel that such loving-kindness should not pass unnoticed.

"A Happy Thought."

At a suggestion of two of the members of the W. C. T. U., cake and lemonade, with a pleasant welcome were extended to the members of the Reform Club and their friends at the Holly Tree Inn yesterday.

If the generous donators had seen the happy smile and enjoyment of the many recipients, they would feel doubly repaid. Thanks are given to those who so readily give time and contributions.

Golden Jubilee.

The Rev. Father Rogers, of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, New Brunswick, who is about seventy-six years of age and still hale and hearty and dearly beloved by his parish, one of the oldest in New Jersey, intends to celebrate his fiftieth anniversary in the priesthood, about the end of next September. Father Rogers is the pioneer priest in this section of the country, his circuit originally embracing New Brunswick, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Raritan, Perth Amboy, South Amboy, Metuchen and Woodbridge. We understand that Right Rev. M. J. O'Farrell, Bishop of Trenton, prior to his departure to Rome in April, on the customary visit after consecration, desired it to be distinctly understood that he would return in time to celebrate this event, considered one of the most interesting in Catholics in this section of New Jersey. The clerical friends of Dr. Rogers are making preparations to make the event one of more than ordinary eclat.

Postponed.

The picnic for the benefit of St. Joseph's Church, which was to have occurred at Wooden's Grove yesterday, was postponed on account of the weather, to Thursday, July 10th.

NOXIOUS MANUFACTURES.

Their Disastrous Effect—Nature Purifying Power Overtaxed.

[Chambers' Journal.]

A multitude of influences injurious to health spring into active existence with the development of commerce and the growth of luxury. Most of these are evident enough. All the chemists, indeed, are busily guilty. The earth, air, fire, and water are allied against civilized humanity, and modern science is constantly bringing to light their responsible parts in this connection. We have long lived in the comfortable belief that Mother Earth was the great purifier. Now, it seems, we must accept the truth. Years after the germs of infection have been consigned to the ground they have been disinterred, and found to be not a whit diminished in virulence. Archæologists should, we are told, beware of handling newly-found relics, lest, perchance, they should contract some archaic disease. Even mummies, it appears, in spite of their venerable respectability, are objects of legitimate suspicion! Fire, too, has a dreary catalogue of sins to answer for. It not only robs us of the oxygen, of which those of us who live in towns have so scanty a supply, but it gives us in exchange unconsumed carbon in quantities which, in the air with which it is charged alone it furnishes us with food for reflection—and digestion—and probably will continue to do so for some time to come.

Again, water is the most insidious enemy of all. The most indispensable of the elements—it is credited with doing the greatest harm. In league with unwholesome matter, it has developed such an affinity for noxious matter that it appears that nothing short of boiling can possibly enable us to drink it with safety.

The air, too, is anything but true to the trust committed to her charge. We have long confidingly believed in her good will. Our stomachs, at all events, acknowledge their gratitude when they receive the air with which they fill them. But, instead of carrying these away into space, she receives them only to bestow them upon us again.

The outlook is indeed gloomy, and unless we make some progress in sanitary science, it is not a little difficult to see how we are to continue to support the burden of civilized existence. * * * We have certainly much yet to learn in sanitary science. The old theories are now by one being exploded, and it will no longer do for us to poison the air we breathe, under the pleasing impression that its purifying properties are inexhaustible. Civilization has taught such strides that she has succeeded in overturning the equilibrium of nature. The equilibrium must be restored.

How Clothespins are Made.

[New York Sun.]

"To look at that clothespin," said the dealer, "you'd scarcely believe that the manufacturer could make and sell twelve of 'em for a cent, and get rich at more than 50 per cent. at that, would you?"

"Well," continued the dealer, "they whittle 'em out at the rate of eighty a minute. A bench of machines, each one about as big as ten feet long, will whittle up into 12,000 clothespins. That log won't cost more than $3. The clothespins they cut out of it will be worth $60.40. It will take them about two hours and a half to run that log into clothespins, which is whittling out a $60 an hour. At ten hours a day they get about $600 with four logs and have on hand 40,000 clothespins, worth $3855.60. Now the lumber for those pins has only cost $8 or so. If that was all the expenses, a man with a capital big enough to help map his fingers at the Standard Oil company or Grant & Ward profits. But then those logs must be sawed up by four different kinds of machines. One saws the log into the lengths of sixteen inches; another saws these into boards three-quarters of an inch thick; another cuts the boards into strips three-quarters of an inch square. The strips are caught on a wheel that hurries them to a gang of saws which chop them into clothespin lengths. Then they are carried on a long swift-moving belt to a machine that seizes them, sets them in a lathe that gives them their shape in the twinkling of an eye, and throws them to an assistant, who feeds them to a saw that moves backward and forward as if it were madder than a snake. This saw chews out the slot that the wash-woman shows down over the line to hold the pins, and the clothespin is ready, all but kiln drying and polishing.

"The latter is done in a revolving iron cylinder, the same as is used in coffee-roasting. All these processes cost money, and when the manufacturer comes to put up his goods for sale he finds that he has a profit on the 40,000 pins, his day's work, is only about $120. We pay the manufacturer a cent a dozen, or a trifle more than $8 a thousand. We are compelled to these close figures, to sell them for 4 cents a dozen, or $32 a thousand."

Chicago Herald: A Washington lawyer has unearthed an old law still in force in the District of Columbia, which provides that any man who blasphemes the name of the Almighty God by using profane language shall be branded on the tongue with a hot iron. The law was passed about 1803. It has never been repealed. "If it were enforced," said the lawyer, "the branding iron would be kept in constant use."

GATHERING AT CHICAGO

Waiting the Arrival of the New York City Delegation.

Speculation as to State Preferences. To Organize While En Route. Gen. Roberts's Little Speech at Albany.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Delegates and politicians are not arriving in as large numbers as was expected. There are now in the city about 600 delegates and about 250 wirepullers. The hotels have begun to show signs of activity, the Palmer house being the center of action. At the Palmer will be the headquarters of thirty-one of the thirty-eight states, of the territories, the national committee, Tammany hall and of the leading presidential candidates. All the political schemes will be done at the Palmer, and there naturally will the throng gravitate. The gathering of delegates thus far is not sufficient to afford even the most industrious interviewer data upon which to base positive statements as to the relative strength of the various states. The fact most apparent is that if the slightest indication should be received [illegible] the [illegible] would [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

How It Was Celebrated at Home and Abroad.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The Fourth of July celebration by the Tammany society was attended by an audience larger than has been called by the wigwam for many years, the immense hall being filled to the utmost capacity. The oration was delivered by Hon. S. S. Cox and was the event of the day. A large number of letters from distinguished Democrats were read, among them being communications from Gov. Cleveland, Gov. Hoadly, of Ohio; Congressman Reagan, of Texas; Gov. Pattison, of Pennsylvania; Gov. Glick, of Kansas, and Gov. Lowry, of Mississippi. In response to loud calls for John Kelly that gentleman made an able speech, which was enthusiastically received.

How Buffalo Celebrated.

BUFFALO, July 5.—The nation's birthday was fitly celebrated here. A procession was held in the morning, and in one of the carriages was seated Gov. Cleveland, who was loudly cheered all along the line. Rain caused the parade to be abruptly suspended. At the opera house the monument to the memory of the soldiers who fell during the war was presented by James M. Smith, and Irs M. Hedges, department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, responded. Gen. Stewart L. Woodford made the oration of the day. In the evening a banquet and camp-fire was tendered to the visiting post of the Grand Army of the Republic at Music hall. Gov. Cleveland responded to the toast, "The State of New York."

The Day in Berlin.

BERLIN, July 5.—American celebrated Independence Day with more heartiness and display than usual. A grand dinner was given in honor of the day, and the prominent toasts were "President Arthur," "ex-Minister Sargent," and "The Emperor," in addition to the customary one to the day celebrated. The two first were greeted with much applause, but all allusion to the recent Berlin incident were happily avoided. When the toast to the emperor was given it was received with cheers and prolonged clapping of hands. The guests all arose and drank the Kaiser's health standing.

In the evening the Americans devoted themselves to fireworks and dancing.

In Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The great national holiday, July 4, was celebrated here in an unusually quiet manner. All the executive departments were closed, and all the business houses suspended operations after noon.

The president spent the day in the executive mansion, busily engaged in considering bills that have been and were being passed in the closing hours of the session.

How it was Observed in London.

LONDON, July 3.—The recurrence of the Fourth of July did not disturb the ordinary equipoise of London, but there were many private and semi-public observances of the day that were noteworthy and enjoyable. Both of the American exchanges on the Strand were fairly covered with bunting and the stars and stripes were prominently displayed on many other buildings.

Throughout the Country.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Dispatches indicate that the Fourth was very generally observed throughout the country. There were the usual number of casualties, but few resulted fatally.

The Diamond Field.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The following is the result of the baseball games played yesterday:

At Chicago—Chicago, 8; Philadelphia, 1.
At Detroit—New York, 4; Detroit, 3.
At Buffalo—Boston 8, Buffalo 0.
A Louisville—Brooklyn, 4; Louisville, 5.
At Cincinnati—Athletic, 2; Cincinnati, 1.
At Toledo—Toledo, 10; Washington, 6.
At St. Louis — Metropolitan, 17; St. Louis, 0.
At Indianapolis—Indianapolis, 15; Allegheny 4.
At Cleveland—Cleveland 2, Providence 4.
At Washington—National 8, 12; St. Louis, 1.
At Baltimore—Baltimore Unions, 12; St. Louis Unions, 10.

Ten Eycke Wins the Race.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Only a moderate number of spectators were present at Oak Point when the single scull regatta was decided. Despite the hard weather the races were good ones. The first contest was in Whitehall boats over a mile and a half course. This was won by Charles Ray, R. Parker coming in second. The single scull shell race then followed. The entries were George W. Lee, of New York; James Ten Eycke, of Peekskill; James Riley, of Saratoga; Fred R. Halsted, of Boston, and George Guisel, of New York. The distance rowed was three miles and the purse was $250. Ten Eycke won easily by a length and a half. Lee was second and Halsted third. Time, 21m. 55s.

Suicide by Shooting.

BROOKLYN, July 5.—Walter Shaw, 29 years of age, who resided at No. 970 Fulton street, committed suicide in a most determined manner. This young man has been out of employment for some time, and is subject to epileptic fits. While suffering from a severe attack he procured two revolvers, and pleasing the muzzle of one to each of his temples discharged the weapons simultaneously. The noise of the shots alarmed the other inmates of the house, who at once hastened to Shaw's room. He was still breathing when they reached him, and an ambulance being summoned he was removed to the city hospital. The physician in charge pronounced his injuries necessarily fatal.

More Beer or the Silent Grave.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Bedford Karl and his wife were entertaining a visitor in their apartments on the top floor of 92 Forsyth street, last evening, when Karl proposed to go for another supply of beer. He asked his wife for the money. She replied that he had drank enough. Karl said that if she did not give him the money he would shoot himself. He got a large sized pistol, and putting the muzzle to his right temple, fired. His wife caught the pistol in time to change the direction of the bullet upward, but it is supposed to have reached his brain. He was taken to Bellevue hospital.

Senator Baldwin Fatally Injured.

LYNN, Mass., July 5.—State Senator John R. Baldwin was thrown while horseback riding and sustained a concussion of the brain and fracture of the base of the skull. His injuries are considered fatal. His horse was frightened by a firecracker. He was only 30 years old, but had served three terms in the senate and was the idol of the workingmen of the city.

Democrats Fired Upon by Negroes.

MONROE, Ala., July 4.—As a party of Democrats were returning from a political meeting at Bell's yesterday their wagon was fired into by two negroes armed with shotguns. Charles Smith received a severe wound in the arm. Others were wounded. The negroes escaped. The attack was caused by a small disturbance at the meeting.

To Our Friends.

The Reform Club of Plainfield having realized generous cash contributions sufficient to pay for and secure title to the property formerly known as the Second Baptist Church, corner of Second street and Central avenue, this city, and funds being likewise available, chiefly through the noble exertions of the Christian Temperance Ladies, to furnish and equip the purchased building when properly altered and repaired for the purposes of the Club, respectfully though urgently appeal to the liberality and kindly feelings of the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity for additional means to fully complete such needed alterations and repairs.

The good work already accomplished by the Reform Club, under the approving smile of Divine Providence and the still greater work awaiting fulfilment, fairly commend it to the favorable consideration and support of every friend of humanity.

The pecuniary demands made upon the public for various laudable objects, causes hesitancy on the part of the Club to solicit further aid, but valuing as its members do the all important Temperance reformation they are striving to permanently establish, emboldens them to thus ask and believe them to believing, that early and substantial encouragement will follow the asking.

Donations to the aforesaid purpose to the extent of individual ability and inclination, will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the officers of the Club, or either member of its Executive or Subscription Committee, the names of whom are hereunto subscribed.

An Appetite for Sausages.

Tommy (who had been listening to one of grandpapa's bible stories)—And were you in the ark, grandpa, with Noah and the rest of 'em?

Grandpa (indignantly)—"No, sir; certainly not!"

Tommy—Then how is it you wasn't drowned?"

Objected to His Red-Fellow.

[San Francisco Post.]

A couple of practical jokers, living at a big up-town hotel, bought a tarrapin while walking through the market the other day, and slipped it in the bed of a fresh arrival who had just registered. They watched that night until they saw the newcomer retire to bed. In about ten minutes a white-robed figure began shooting down the elevator shaft for the landlord. When the crowd got up status the victim conducted the landlord to the bed and turned down the clothes. "Mr. Hotelkeeper," said the stranger solemnly, pointing to the tarrapin, "I am from New Jersey, and I can stand most anything, but either that bug or me has got to take another room."

[Peguin, Texas, Times.]

Farmers bringing to town the first fruits of any crop—fruit, vegetables or grain—should at least inform the editor, so he can record it in The Times. The editor does no wish anything in quantity.

Setting Out on a Fateful Journey.

[Lowell Courier.]

Many Massachusetts school ma'ams are going to the teachers' meeting at Madison, Wis., during their vacation. The rule is for them to file a conditional resignation before they leave, so they need not hesitate to accept any offers of marriage to which they may be exposed.

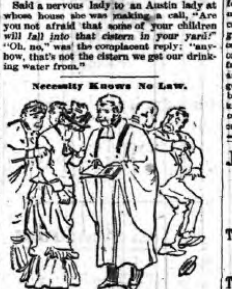
It Was Not the Drinking Water.

[Texas Siftings.]

Said a nervous lady to an Austin lady at whose house she was making a call, "Are you not afraid that some of your children will fall into that cistern in your yard?"

"Oh, no," was the complacent reply; "anyhow, that's not the cistern we get our drinking water from."

Necessity Knows No Law.



Parson (sternly)—"How could you come to church to be married to a man in such a state as that?"

Bride (weeping)—"It wasn't my fault, sir. I never can get him to come when he is sober!"

A Great Medicine.

"Doctor, I want to thank you for your great patent medicine."

"It helped you, did it?" asked the doctor, very much pleased.

"It helped me wonderfully."

"How many bottles did you find it necessary to take?"

"Oh, I didn't take any of it. My uncle took one bottle, and I am his sole heir."

Born Without Hair.

[Peck's Sun.]

John Armstead, of Adrian, Mich., has a calf that was born without any hair on its body. A hairless calf is a very nice thing to show to callers; but when winter comes, and Mr. Armstead finds that he will have to put woolen strips and an ulster on that boy-ing to keep him from freezing to death, he will wish that it had been born with enough hair to keep it warm.

Silk Hats as a Moral Agent.

[New York Sun.]

In order to impart dignity to the town of Marcos, Ill., forty of the merchants have signed a pledge to wear silk hats, instead of the wide-brimmed slouches that have been in fashion there.

THE BOOK THIEF'S DEVICE.

Making Valuable Books of Portraits and Rare Illustrations.

[New York Letter.]

"The newest trick of book thieves is a most curious one," said a well-known New York dealer, the other day, "and I confess it took me in completely, although I have been in the business forty years. And though I know a good deal. A young man well connected in sent representing himself as the assistant librarian of the new public library in Cleveland. He said he had come to the city to buy 30,000 books, among which he wanted to include about forty representative copies of the old theological works printed in New England within the first century after the settlement of the Puritans.

"Of course I gave him permission to look at what I had in that line," said the book dealer. "After spending the whole day about half an hour the man went out, saying that he intended to visit other bookstores in the neighborhood. He returned about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and looked again at the books, and then went away, promising to call this morning and make his purchases.

"Just after he had gone I noticed that he had put one of the books back on the wrong shelf. It was a volume of Cotton Mather's sermons printed in Cambridge in 1698, and was almost unique in this country. Taking it down in the afternoon I had noticed that some small substance between some of the leaves, and, sure enough, there was—a piece of wet string laid against the printing just to the left of where there had been a woodcut portrait of Cotton Mather himself. But the woodcut had disappeared. The rascal had stripped the string in during his first visit to the store, and it had so moistened the paste with which the portrait was fastened in the book that during his second visit he had slipped the cut out and put it in his pocket without cutting or tearing it in the least. An examination of the volumes the thief had looked over revealed the fact that he had in the same way stolen seventeen other woodcuts and engravings, the loss of which decreases the value of the volumes fully one-half. For instance, the Cotton Mather sermons were worth $150 with the portrait, while without it I can't sell the book for more than $80. Do I expect to catch him? Well, I hardly expect to be so fortunate."

"What do you think the man can sell his plunder for?" asked the reporter.

"Well, probably for about $600—perhaps more," said the book dealer. "And I pity the public libraries of the city, for that man evidently knows just what woodcuts and engravings are the rarest and most valuable, and he will play the same trick in those places if the librarians are not very careful."

His Opinion of Empty Banks.

[Chicago Herald.]

"My business isn't what it used to be," said a bank-breaker from New York, who came out to attend the national convention. "All of the gentlemen in the profession are either going to Europe or moving west. I may conclude to locate out here myself after awhile, for there is no use trying to make a living in New York or New England any more. There's no certainty about the business, and that's what kills it. Why, I can't think when a cove got into a bank he had a sure thing on a boodle, but it isn't so any more. Sometimes it takes a sharp man a year to get into a bank, and cook him a small fortune before. There's this man and that man to be fixed, there's expensive tools to buy, there's board and tailor bills to pay, and hard men to keep on a salary, so that by the time everything is ready there may be $5,000 or $10,000 invested in the business.

"I had a bank once, a big one down east, that stood me in $12,000, and when I got into it there wasn't enough money in the crib to let me pay 50 cents on the dollar. Yet that bank had an advertised surplus and deposits amounting to millions. When I got in I knew the concern was insolvent, and if I had had time to examine the books I would have found out where the money went to. A month after I paid the place a visit, the cashier turned up missing, and there was a great sensation over one of the biggest defalcations of the century. Now, you see, the only trouble was that the cashier took an unfair advantage of me. He was on the inside, and he had the thing cleaned out before I got there at all. That's what is making my business very risky down east. You never know at what moment you may run against one of these empty banks. Whited sepulchers is what we call them in our business."

EDSALL'S EXTRA!

We take pleasure in making the announcement to the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity, that we have just received a full line of one of the BEST and MOST reliable brands of

BLACK SILKS

Imported. It is of the well-known manufacture that was formerly imported by A. T. Stewart & Co., and sold in their retail department for many years, and has stood the most trying test and proved its unquestionable excellence to thousands who have worn it and can testify of its real worth and beauty.

It is still retailed by the successors of the old Stewart house, and by a special arrangement with the Importing Department we are enabled to offer it at precisely the same figures as their retail department, viz:

Locals.

—What would the Constitutionalist do if it could not grow?

—Mrs. Sheridan, the wife of the County Collector, died last week.

—Raritan Bay 7gets $20,000, and Raritan River $2,000 by the River and Harbor Bill.

—Regular meeting of the Council this evening, and of the Fire Board to-morrow evening.

—Vincent L. Fraser, collector of fireboxes, has his office with J. S. Cutter, on West Front street.

—A communication from the Loyal Ladies' League has been furnished us for publication. It will probably appear to-morrow.

—The representative in Congress of this district, John R. Kean, of Elizabeth, voted to pass the Porter bill over the President's veto.

—The funeral services yesterday of John Norris, the young man who was drowned last Thursday evening, were largely attended.

—The grove meeting yesterday afternoon was presided over by Judge Harper, and was addressed by the Rev. Dr. Yerkes and Robert Manning.

—The Elizabeth Journal talks about the Walker street bridge at Plainfield in its Saturday's issue. The Journal must have had too much Fourth.

—The temperance meeting was well attended last evening, and was addressed by the Rev. Dr. Yerkes, John Ulrich, Isaac Brokaw and Robert Manning.

—The Lincoln Club meet this evening to perfect their organization. It is expected that the Committee on Permanent Organization appointed at the last meeting will present their report.

—A special police officer recently arrested a young lad for using what the officer considered disrespectful language to him. The Mayor gave the boy some good friendly advice, and let him go.

—The Horse Committee of Engine Company, No. 2, in expressing their thanks in the News a few days ago for favors received, inadvertently omitted to thank Mr. John Morton for the loan of harness on July 4th, and request us for them to do so.

—The Blaine and Logan flag which Mr. Gep Frazee had flung to the breeze on Fifth street in front of his residence, has been stolen. Mr. Frazee feels very indignant over the matter. The flag has been in every State and Territory of the Union, Mr. Frazee says, and in most of the Central American Republics.

—One night recently in the vicinity of Franklin Place and Sixth street, some mischievous parties secured all the doormats belonging thereabouts, together with some choice plants, and left them on the piazza of one of the residents. We are informed by a resident of the vicinity, that although a first offense may be overlooked a second will bring down the full force of the law upon the offenders.

—An accident occurred at the Lehigh Valley coal wharves, at Perth Amboy, on Tuesday morning, by which several men narrowly escaped with their lives. A gang of coal shovelers were at work in a nearly empty bin when the planking of an adjoining bin, filled with coal, suddenly gave away burying four men beneath a mass of broken planks and thirty tons of coal. The coal was soon shoveled away, and the men rescued, though some were seriously injured.

Personal.

Mr. E. J. Hasbrouck is staying at the Bristol, Asbury Park.

Councilman Livingston will leave to-morrow for a trip to the Adirondacks.

Dr. H. J. Holcombe, of New York, is visiting his father, on Central avenue.

Corporation Counsel Marsh, with his wife and sister, sails for Europe Wednesday.

Mr. Henry Carpenter and family, of North Plainfield, will pass the season at Bay Ridge.

Mr. William H. Voorhees will attend the Democratic Convention at Chicago this week.

Mrs. Benjamin Smith and family will remain at Stamford, N. Y. during the summer and autumn.

Mr. C. A. Parks and wife, Miss Mamie Adams and Miss Fannie A. Honeyman are at the Trenton House, Asbury Park.

Mr. Frank Green and family started Saturday on a trip through New York state, intending to stop at Saratoga and other noted places.

Mr. F. H. Martin, of this city, is mentioned by the Asbury Park Evening Journal, as being present at a reception to Mr. Fred L. Somers, of that place, on last Friday evening.

Rev. Mr. Lyon, pastor of the First Day Baptist Church at New Market, preached his farewell sermon yesterday. He resigns on account of his wife's ill health, and proposes to take her with him to the Mountains.

The Rev. Mr. Fairfax has resigned from the pastorate of the Mt. Olive Baptist Church, on Liberty street. Mr. Fairfax has been in Plainfield many years, and is well known. He will remove with his family to New Haven, Conn.

Mr. Frederick A. Wann, of St. Louis, Assistant General Freight Agent of the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company, and his wife, who have been visiting Mrs. Charles Wann, of Willow avenue, North Plainfield, sailed for Europe Saturday on the steamer Alsatia.

A Tale of a Cat.

We will call her Mrs. Brown. She resides on Front street and owns or owned a cat—an abominable cat. She said it was a beauty, and Mr. Brown in her presence meekly assented, but oh, when he got that cat alone! That probably explained why the cat disliked him. He disliked the cat, but for peace in the family he pretended to like it to soothe Mrs. Brown's feelings, for he verily believed that that cat could make Mrs. Brown even sue for a divorce, so devoted was she to the feline brute.

This cat bore many evidences of its pugilistic propensities by numerous scars on its jowls and loins. Other scars showed how it was esteemed by neighbors. Half its tail had been shot away, a bullet had passed through its body. It had been scalded so that its fur would not grow in spots, exposing its bare skin. This had been done by a lady endeavoring to protect from it some pet birds. Still Mrs. Brown said it was a beautiful cat, and Mr. Brown meekly assented.

The cat had been a member of the family for six years. At last Mr. Brown discovered that the cat dreaded dogs. To get rid of it he encouraged a relative to present Mrs. Brown with a little scotch terrier, noted for his propensity for cats.

One evening Mr. and Mrs. Brown sat alone at the tea table when one of the little Browns burst in upon them with the pet dog at his heels. The cat first discovered the dog, and jumping on a chair rear by humped its back prepared for business, and thereby attracted the dog's attention. The dog made an impetuous rush at the cat, and the cat, attempting to back out of reach, overbalanced and fell backward on the floor. Immediately there was a go-as-you-please chase, the cat dodging about the chairs, Mrs. Brown and the stove, closely pursued by the dog, barking furiously. To say that Mrs. Brown was excited but faintly expresses it. She tried to catch the dog, and the more she screamed at it, the more lively the chase became, the dog evidently misunderstanding the meaning of Mrs. Brown's noise. At last the cat got at one side of the stove while the dog was at the other, humped his back in an instant and began shaking his nigh fore leg, defiantly clawing the air. The sight of the dog again rushing upon it, very suddenly, made the cat bound upwards sprawling its legs like an opening umbrella. As it alighted it bounded off again, jumping on a chair, and thence on the dining table, causing a great clatter among the dishes, on which it stood trembling with terror. Mrs. Brown called Mr. Brown a brute for laughing so. His laughter made his sides ache and the tears suffuse his eyes and stream down his cheeks. He could no longer restrain himself. At last Mrs. Brown caught the cat in her arms and gently lifted it out of the window. It disappeared and was seen no more, and though Mrs. Brown says she will never forgive Brown, he thinks time will heal her wounded feelings, while he'll never cease to rejoice at the loss of that cat.

Special Meeting of the Council.

The special meeting of the Council to consider the charges preferred against Policeman Kelly by Chief Dodd, was held Saturday afternoon. All the members were present except Messrs. Simpson, Gardner and Beguelin.

The call for the meeting, and the charges against Kelly were read by the clerk. President Coriell gave an account of the proceedings before the Police Committee. Kelly, through counsel, denied the charges, and asked for a hearing. Ex-Judge Snydam, who appeared for Kelly during the evening, stated that Kelly's counsel, Bergen, of Elizabeth, who had expected to be present, was unable to attend, and therefore asked for a postponement. The case was thereupon adjourned to this evening at eight o'clock. The Corporation Counsel was directed to prepare himself for the case. The Council then adjourned.

The City Courts.

Frederick Clark, of Westfield, arrested for being drunk, was on Saturday fined $2 by City Judge Good.

Thomas Marley, of Scotch Plains, was arrested for being drunk. It being his first offense and he being very poor and having a family dependent upon him, the judge dismissed him with a reprimand.

Charles Winston, also arrested for drunkenness, was fined $3, and will be let on a day at the station house in which to cool off.

Installation Services.

The pastor elect of the Crescent Avenue Church, the Rev. William R. Richards, will be installed to-morrow evening at 7:45. The Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of North Plainfield, will preside, and propose the usual questions. The installation sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Gillespie, of Westminster Church, Elizabeth. The charge to the pastor will be given by the Rev. Dr. Rankin, of Baskingridge; and the charge to the people by the Rev. Dr. Ketcham, of the First Church, this city.

A Serious Accident.

Last evening about eleven o'clock, Mrs. Ellen Daly, the proprietor of the City Hotel, while waiting for her son to return from Railway, whither he had taken some friends, accidentally fell from a window about fifteen feet from the ground. She struck the flagging on her hip and the back of her head, breaking two ribs and the collar bone. Although severely bruised and injured her physician, Dr. J. T. Fritts, thinks she will recover.

The Crescents Again Beaten.

The base ball game at Elizabeth Saturday, between the Elizabeth Athletic Club and the Crescents, of this city, resulted in the defeat of the Crescents by a score of 5 to 1. Up to the sixth inning each club had scored one run, the Crescents then became demoralized, and the Athletics put on four more. The Athletics were also more or less off their usual guarded manner, but the opposing club failed to take advantage of it.

State Matters.

Hammonton is about to organize a fire company.

Paterson's City Clerk has left, leaving his accounts $4000 short.

The fund for the relief of Engineer Baxter's family has reached $252.07.

Hattie McAllister, age seven, of Jersey City, fell from a second-story window and was fatally injured.

In virtue of some recent legislation, Burlington is to have a city sealer of weights and measures.

Mrs. Richard Burns, aged sixty, of Bayonne, fell down stairs yesterday and was instantly killed.

The Jersey City board of works estimated that $185,000 will be needed to cover its expenses during the next fiscal year.

The Lambertville hotel proprietors, having been refused a license, have closed their houses and yards against man and beast.

The fumes of naphtha, used in soldering cans at a Bridgeton factory, and inhaled by a Cedarville young lady, caused her death.

William Grimsby, a sailmaker, while looking for work died on the bay bridge last week from the combined effects of sunstroke and heart trouble.

Robert Staphl, a liquor dealer of 1942 Pine street, Camden, has been held in $300 bail by Justice Darr to answer the charge of selling liquor on Sunday.

Harry Stockman, the ten-year-old son of Andrew Stockman, of Camden, was drowned one morning recently while bathing in the Delaware at Chestnut street wharf.

Louis Schneider, a young German of Trenton, attempted to shoot his brother Carl in Friday afternoon. Carl, it is said, had been too attentive to his brother's wife.

The Delaware Rolling Mill has been sold at Phillipsburg to Dennis Reilly, of Easton, Pa., for $24,000, which was $6,000 more than the bid at a prior sale. The total claims against the mill are $173,000.

At Pierre Lorillard's Jobstown farm in addition to more than 2,000 chickens hatched by the incubator process, the same method has proved satisfactory with the eggs of the English pheasant, wild duck and prairie fowl.

The barn of Peter McKenna, of Bloomfield, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The horses and cows were safely bathing in the meadows and other property were burned. The loss is about $1,500 with insurance for $1,000.

A Philadelphia shoe manufacturer employing some 200 hands has made the proposition to the Salem Board of Trade that if he is given a building and a three-story factory building and move his plant to that city. The purchase money for the site has been subscribed.

Captain Harry Babcock, who was lost with his vessel off Barnegat in the late storm, was but twenty-one years old, and leaves a wife and child. The English Creek Mrs. Linda Scarboro, wife of the mate of the vessel, leaves a child and a three-story house she left with a relative at Sea View when she went on her unfortunate trip.

The Rev. Dr. Brator, of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been acquitted of the charges of immorality which were preferred against him and which were referred to the Conference at its last session. His acquittal comes from the Judicial Court of the M. E. Church which was composed mainly of New York by the Board of Bishops. The court reversed the decision of the conference.

The residence of Charles R. Adolphi, an insurance adjuster, of Newark, on Belmont avenue, was robbed on Saturday morning of a large quantity of jewelry and silver. The thieves gained entrance by prying open the back locks on a side door. Mr. Adolphi's mother, an invalid, was awakened by the intruders and gave an alarm, which was responded to by several neighbors. During a search closet a number of metal masks were found and the thieves rendered powerless. Michael Mc Donough, John Walsh and Timothy Toomey, residents of Jersey City, who have been suspected of Kearney robberies, perpetrated the robbery, were arrested, and were held for examination.

To Our Friends.

The Reform Club of Plainfield having realized generous cash contributions sufficient to pay for making the title to the property formerly known as the Second Baptist Church, corner of Second street and Central avenue, this city, and funds being likewise available, chiefly through the noble exertions of the Christian Temperance Ladies, to furnish and equip the purchased building when properly altered and repaired for the practical use of the Club, respectfully though urgently appeal to the liberality and kindly feelings of the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity for additional means to fully complete such needed alterations and repairs.

The good work already accomplished by the Reform Club, under the approving smile of Divine Providence and the still greater work awaiting future efforts, certainly commend it to the favorable consideration and support of every friend of humanity.

The pecuniary demands made upon the public for various laudable objects, cause embarrassment on the part of the Club to solicit further aid, but relying as its members do the all important Temperance reformation they are striving to permanently establish, emboldens them to this ask and induces them to believe, that early and substantial encouragement will follow the asking.

Donations to the aforesaid purpose to the extent of individual ability and inclination will be thankfully received and acknowledged by any officers of the Club, or other member of the Executive or Sub-Subscription committees, the names of whom are herewith subscribed.

Connecticut	6	New York	36
Indiana	15
Total			73

The number of electors to which each state is entitled was published in The News of June 21st ult. The total number of electors is 401, of which 201 are necessary to choose a President. Of these 401, 174 are already conceded to the Republican candidate, and 133 to the Democratic candidate. The Republicans need 27, the Democrats 48, of the electors of the doubtful States to secure them.

Provided the Republicans hold all the States conceded to them, they only require in addition New York State, with its 36 electors to elect Blaine. New York State is controlled by New York city, and if the city Democrats unite the State will probably add 36 electors to the Democratic chances, leaving them 12 short of the requisite number. New Jersey with its nine electors is more likely to go Democratic than Republican ordinarily.

The Democrats with New York and New Jersey still require one of the remaining States to secure them.

We are not a prophet, nor the son of a prophet, but we think it safe to say that on the tariff question the Republicans will carry Connecticut, and the Democrats Indiana. In that case and that all the sure States hold true to the election records, provided New York goes Democratic, the next President will be a Democrat.

It will be seen that New Jersey is in this campaign a very important State to secure.

We respectfully suggest to Common Council, at its meeting to-night the adoption of a resolution and the appointment of a committee to select and report upon a site for a public bath, that the boys of Plainfield may have some place to enjoy a swim, and some place to learn to swim, without danger of arrest from indulging in this delightful pastime in forbidden precincts, or danger of drowning, the expense of the bath to be borne by public subscription, in the securing of money for which we will cheerfully aid.

Properly regulated the bath would be made of great practical benefit to both sexes, as is the case in other cities.

No doubt the people of North Plainfield would cheerfully cooperate in such a movement, and be correspondingly benefitted.

A portion of either Green or Stony Brook might be utilized for the purpose at a small expense, and it is generally believed that such an institution would greatly enchance the attractiveness of this beautiful city, now possessed by nature and by art of so many charming features.

Let us not forget the boys. We were all boys once—that is, all who are now men. And the bath can be made to afford just as much pleasure to the girls. Of course, its privileges would not be confined to these; as adults of such sex would use it on regular prescribed days. Had there been such an institution, it is probable poor John Norris, who was buried yesterday, would not have been drowned.

It will doubtless be a popular institution and a public benefit, and it can be had this season by a strong pull and a pull altogether. Therefore let us pull.

What the Leaders are Doing—Preferences of the Delegates—Making Up the National Ticket.

Convention Notes.

CHICAGO, July 7.—United Press special: It has been a day of intense excitement. There has been more enthusiasm, more shouting, more people on the streets, more noise and processions, more gathering of hotel corridors, more hot and exciting discussions than on any day from the beginning to the end of the Republican convention. The principal Democratic demonstration has had more or less to do with this. Hundreds of members of trade and labor organizations, who took little or no interest in the early days of the week, are now surging into the hotels and crowding the curbstones, arguing and cheering for the man of their choice, and wearers of Butler badges are in the well-known majority. The enemy of the lion of Massachusetts are to be met with on every hand. This fact, coupled with Saturday night's demonstration, is anything but pleasant to the southern delegations, and they do not hesitate to express their opinions freely. The result has been some pretty sharp encounters which at times have threatened to develop into something warmer than mere argument. Outside of Butler the condition of affairs is precisely the same as on Tuesday—the prospect that any enemy of the lion of Massachusetts are to be met with on every hand. This fact, coupled with Saturday night's demonstration, is anything but pleasant to the southern delegations, and they do not hesitate to express their opinions freely. The result has been some pretty sharp encounters which at times have threatened to develop into something warmer than mere argument. Outside of Butler the condition of affairs is precisely the same as on Tuesday—the prospect that any of booms but no one claiming the lead. Neither have any dark horses been reached. The numerous processions have sadly disturbed the quiet harmony of the usual Chicago Sabbath.

The County Democracy, of New York, arrived a few minutes before 8 o'clock this morning. When the train of thirty cars drawn by two locomotives rolled into the depot, there were nearly 1200 Democrats of Chicago ready to receive them. The moment the train came to a standstill at the depot, was saluted with a volley of firecrackers and with hasty cheers. There were about 800 in the delegation from New York. Along the route to the hotel, the visitors were loudly cheered, and the streets were illuminated by the discharge of fireworks.

Yesterday afternoon the Cook county democracy with union veterans with music and flying banners marched to the Union depot and escorted the McDonald delegation to their headquarters. The streets along the line of march were crowded. Mike McDonald led the procession. A little later two detachments, with as many bands playing lively tunes went to the Twelfth street depot and received the brethren of Irving Hall with open arms and escorted them to the Leland. More people greeted the New Yorkers than participated in the reception to the Indiana delegation and the march to the hotel was one continuous ovation.

It was nearly seven when the trains bringing the Tammany delegates arrived at the Twelfth street depot. Mr. Kelly was received by the Tammanyites as they emerged from the dep ot.

When the Palmer house was reached, the services of a quad of police were necessary in order to secure an entrance for the new arrivals. John Kelly, arm and arm with Mayor Grace of Brooklyn, Mr. Kelly arrived with the rest of the delegation to the billiard hall, waited until the order to disband was given, again emerged and mounted the stairs to the Palmer house headquarters.

During the day a number of prominent Democrats arrived at the Palmer house, among whom are Senators Beck, Jackson, Harrison and Salsbury, and a large number of rep resentatives.

At the Various Headquarters.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The Palmer house has outdone all the regular convention aspects. Corridors are packed through and into grounds and corridors are crowded to their utmost capacity. There are two centers in the motley crowd around which the politicians swarm, the Flower headquarters and the headquarters of the New York County Democracy. The creme of the latter is to be found in room 107 at the eastern end of the third floor, where Kelly is reaming to the lustre of dignity to the Cleveland boom. Lester A. Faulkner engineers the Flower movement from Parlor 28, the first second floor. Manning as well as Faulkner, is almost unapproachable, the former because he is naturally dignified and of the conventional by the latter because he is beyond all gainsaying the busiest man of all the delegates. In the absence of Faulkner the house of the Flower headquarters are done by Joon R. George, of Milwaukee, a nephew of Roswell P. Flower. Mr. Manning keeps closely to an inner room, and Mayor Vance, of Brooklyn, is with him all are. There were hundreds of them and they had to wait patiently till their turn came. The only exception out of he line was made by Manning, who, arm and arm with Mayor Vance, with Mayor Vance, what transpired at this meeting of the Cleveland and Flower generals remains, of course, a profound secret.

Daniel Manning, the leader of the Cleveland followers, is a man of imposing exterior. Tall, faultlessly attired, and his gray hair and mustache well kept, with erect and dignified bearing, he impresses one very much, but one cannot become enthusiastic over any project he might advance.

A visit to Mr. Manning's rooms was not productive of any definite information. When asked as to the names of the delegates who would support Cleveland, Mr. Manning replied:

"I could not say anything definite if I wanted; besides it would be improper for me as chairman of the executive committee to give figures on an estimate. We expected to hold a meeting of the state delegation Saturday night, but quite a number of them objected, and we put it off. The delegation is now complete and the meeting will be held this forenoon. After that I can give you figures that you can rely upon. All that I can say now is that we have a working majority of the delegates."

"But," remarked the reporter, "Mr. Flower's friends say that many of them are the same claim. Wouldn't a mention of the delegates who are on your side settle the dispute?"

"I could not do that now," replied Mr. Manning; "you will have to wait till after our meeting."

"Who will nominate Mr. Cleveland?"

"Even that question has not been settled yet."

Gen. Faulkner, Flower's chief representative, is of medium height, slender, in his manner affable, decidedly blonde in color. He is always acting keen but cautious, and attends to an interview only so far as he thinks it will be agreeable to have printed. That done he is off in the twinkling of an eye, and listens to no more interrogations.

"How does the New York delegation stand in regard to Flower?" asked a reporter.

"Let me tell you the situation," replied the general, "and take down exactly what I say, not a word more." He then proceeded: "If the Kings County delegation goes for Cleveland, then he will have a majority of the state delegation, otherwise, if they do not, he is in the minority. If they vote for Cleveland, I feel sure that they don't Mr. Cleveland the strongest candidate that could be selected, but for cause which relate to the external politics of New York, we can not control them. Mr. Flower will have the majority of the delegation. What the Kings County delegation will do has not yet been decided. They have, besides Republican sections, a Jacksonian delegate-at-large, who is for Flower, also delegates in all. Mr. Flower is an able, loyal, popular man, offensive to no faction in the state, and I do not see how any of us venture to say that as against Blaine, he could not carry New York. In this great campaign for congress against Mr. Cutler, a popular Republican of Jackson county, Mr. Flower showed phenomenal availability as a candidate before the people for an elective office, and he was elected by large majorities. His career in congress added to his strength, and there is no reason to believe that he is any weaker in the state than he was in his congressional district. It is unscompromising, consistent Democrat who does not seek for Republican favors at the expense of his party, nor sacrifices principle in order to gain advantage with the enemy."

"Would you give Mr. Flower's position on the tariff question?" asked the reporter.

"Not now," was the reply emphatic; "let the Cleveland people proceed first."

Awaiting the Conferences.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The keynote to the selection lies in the result of the conference of the New York delegation, which is to take place this morning. Should the Flower men, however, the anti-Clevelandites claim hold the balance of power in the New York delegation, cast their nine votes against Cleveland. It would appear from present indications that the candidate for first place would be either Bayard or a western man. Leaders in the County Democracy say that should the entire vote of the Kings county delegates will surely support Cleveland, as they have individual pledges to that effect. All other delegations are said to be favorable to Cleveland, or Bayard, appear to be holding aloft, and will not express a decided opinion as to the situation, preferring to wait for the action of the New York delegation. There are among the Cleveland men quite a number who favor Randall as second choice, and say that in case of a Cleveland nomination, they will urge Randall as the strongest man who can be nominated. At present, however, it is apparent that Bayard will develop more strength in the event of Cleveland's defeat than the ex-speaker of the house. The leaders of the Bayard movement have been at work with good results, and from conversation with a number of Mr. Randall followers it appears that a combination between Bayard and McDonald for first and second places respectively is probable.

Of the above the following are reported as favorable to Cleveland, if the claims the entire Kansas delegation, 10 votes.

Tilden for Cleveland.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Edgar K. Apgar, of New York, said to a correspondent of The New York Tribune: "Neither Gov. Tilden nor his friends desire to use his views to control or seriously affect the action of the national convention; yet, if there are any delegates who desire as a help to making a decision, to consult Gov. Tilden's judgment of the situation, I understand Mr. Manning is authorized by Mr. Tilden to say to such delegates that in his opinion the nomination of Gov. Cleveland is the wisest and best that can be made. This opinion is not intended to be obtruded in any way upon the delegates who will gather here, but is to be freely given to them if they desire to see Mr. Tilden personally, yet desire to avoid themselves of the views of one whose judgment they may deem superior to their own."

"Then Cleveland is the choice of Gov. Tilden and would receive Republican votes?"

"He does. He said that the nomination of Gov. Cleveland would 'put the Republican opposition to Blaine to the test that every Republican who is opposing Blaine would continue that opposition if Cleveland is nominated."

Daniel Magone, of New York, who was of Gov. Tilden's canal investigating committee, says: "I am personally aware of the fact that Mr. Tilden has declared for Mr. Cleveland."

Cleveland and McDonald.

NEW YORK, July 7.—A dispatch to The New York Times says: "To judge from the talk among the New York and Indiana delegates, the nomination of the two states is likely to become consumated in making up the national ticket by the nomination of Cleveland and McDonald. The Indiana delegates are not all here yet, and the chief of them, Mr. McDonald, say they do not favor the nomination of Cleveland's associate as a candidate, and it looks very much as if the McDonald men will be ruled upon by New York to do as they please. Mr. Hendricks, Mr. Blaine in the Republican convention by joining forces with the Cleveland men to put the New York candidate at the head of the ticket, leaving the said of New York to name McDonald for vice-president."

The Kings County Delegation.

CHICAGO, July 7.—There is a reliable report current that at a meeting of the Kings county (New York) delegation in the Palmer house last night, a resolution was passed that the delegation support Cleveland for the presidency. It is generally conceded that this action is, as Kings county claims to be, the balance of power in the New York delegation, which, if it follows out the instructions given by the Saratoga convention, will vote as a unit for Cleveland, the majority of the delegation now claiming that having declared for him. It is also understood that the North Carolina delegation will push President for the vice-presidency.

Convention Notes.

CHICAGO, July 7.—It is understood in Monument Depot that Senator Beck will go to-day or to-morrow, and that the choice of temporary chairman rests between Col. Niles of Wisconsin and Judge Hubbard of Texas.

The Delaware delegation, 100 strong, reached here yesterday, and the Bayard headquarters have been established at the Palmer house, with accommodations for the committee and the delegation at large.

The American and Penn Randall clubs of Philadelphia have arrived and have been doing some active talking for the tariff champion.

The Cleveland leaders introduced a novelty in the way of campaigning by stationing in their headquarters at the Palmer a band of musicians. They will keep the thing up till night discovered patriotic airs loud enough to be heard a block away. It was a success as a draw.

AN AWFUL JOKE.

A Man Deprived of Reason by a Thoughtless Jest.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 7.—A very sad case of practical joking has occurred here. Joseph Landon, a sailor on board the Italian bark Martini, in this port, was arrested for some act of insubordination. The prisoner was taken to Point Breeze, where the Martini is lying, but as the captain was not on board the chief mate refused to take him back to the vessel. He, however, was brought back to the police headquarters and locked up. He spoke no English, though he understood some words. That night he was visited in his cell, the turnkey alleges, by a clerk at the Italian Consulate.

"You are to be hanged," said the clerk jokingly, significantly clasping his hands about his throat and protruding his tongue.

The Italian was overwhelmed with terror. "You cauna mean that," he gasped. Then he fell to the floor in a deep sentence of silence. He crouches in the corner of his cell and presents a pitiable object of terror. He sits and mutters by the hour, "Whata for they take me like this?" Several specialists in mental diseases visited the poor fellow and all pronounced him hopelessly deranged. All efforts to disabuse his mind have failed, Sooner Landon dies. He has lost the use of his tongue, but he heard them not, and only wailed piteously, "Whata for they take me like this?"

DROPPED DOWN IN THE PULPIT

Rev. Dr. Brodus Dy reome by the Heat in Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, July 7.—In the midst of his sermon Rev. Dr. John A. Broadus of the Washington Avenue Baptist church, Brooklyn, last night stopped his remarks. As he left a sentence unconcluded his hearers were very much surprised, and surprise gave way to consternation when the reverend gentleman, with outstretched arms and upturned face, staggered to the chair in the rear of the pulpit and fell into it heavily. Two members of the church, who occupied front seats in the gallery, hurried to him and found that Dr. Broadus was in a fainting condition. They assisted him out of the edifice and he went to the residence of a friend in the vicinity, the congregation being in the meantime dismissed. Dr. Hunt, who was lastly summoned to attend Rev. Dr. Broadus, said that he had been overcome by the heat. The patient was unable to attend to his pastoral duties in the evening, and there was therefore no service.

Serious Forest Fires.

MOULTON, Ala., July 7.—Forest fires are doing fearful damage in the vicinity of Patton. A large fire between the head of the Alegash and St. John rivers has been burning for three weeks, destroying many millions of lumber. Another fire between Greenville and West Branch, Penobscot, commenced about a week ago and is now running with terrible force. The air in and about Moulton is filled with smoke, and the smoke is so dense that a view of the country is excluded. These fires are fed by the large tracts of blown-down timber of the gales of early fall and the spring. The scene is witnessed by night is something terrible and grand. Unless there is rain very soon many lumbermen will be ruined, as their timber must be entirely destroyed.

Killed by a Gas Generator.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 7.—Prof. H. A. Clum was killed instantly Saturday in this city in Fireman's hall while generating oxyhydrogen gas for use in giving a stereopticon exhibition at the Baptist church. The stop-cock to the gas bag was shut off, which not escaped his notice, and he continued adding fluid to the apparatus in the stove until the explosion occurred. The upper portion of his body was crushed in and mangled as to be unrecognizable by a shell. The lower portion was blown to the large hall and the stove completely demolished.

Prof. Clum was celebrated in mechanical invention, and was a scientific student of much ability. He had several letters patent from this country and England.

He Took His Third Wife's Horse.

HARTWELL, Ga., July 7.—Six months ago a pleasant stranger, giving the name of Robert Hagee, presented himself at the farm house of Mrs. Melissa Christian, a young widow of some property, and sought employment. It did not take him long, however, to be advanced from the post of servant to that of husband. The brought about thanks, it is developed the fact that Hagee was already the proud husband of two wives in South Carolina, who still kept a warm place in their hearts for him. The industrious husband rode off with his third wife's horse and buggy between two suns, and now the ill-treated widow offers a reward of $50 for his arrest.

Mr. Blaine's Letter.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 7.—A card has been issued for next Saturday as the day Mr. Blaine would give out his letter of acceptance last night, but a United Press reporter was informed this morning by Mr. Blaine to state positively that the latter will not be ready to-day, nor probably a week or ten days. Mr. Blaine thinks his opponent will be Cleveland.

SUNDAY LEGISLATION.

The Naval Bill Alone Remaining to be Disposed of.

Closing up the Work of the Session—A New Measure Passed by the House—A Long Saturday.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Both houses were in session until after 7 o'clock Saturday evening, when the adjournment until Monday afternoon. The proceedings during the night were generally dull and uninteresting, and there were frequent recesses while the conferees on the committees were at work on the appropriation bills in dispute. An agreement was reached on the fortifications bill, the house yielding to senate amendments which increased the amount appropriated by the bill from $595,000 to $700,000.

The points of disagreement on the Sundry Civil bill were gradually narrowed down until at last the only question was over the Senate's proposition to strike out the proposed change from the fee to the salary system of compensation for United States officials, and the House finally yielded on this point, and so the bill was disposed of. The legislation which the House then surrendered was unanimously recommended by the Saratoga committee, and was approved by the officers of the department of justice and the accounting officers of the treasury. Senators Morgan, Harrison and others stoutly resisted the excision of this important legislation, which their inquiries had satisfied them was demanded by the public interest, but they were forced to yield to the House's position. The result of the conferences on the diplomatic bill was to strike out the item in controversy, namely, the senate's proposed appropriation of $250,000 to purchase concessions relating to the Nicaragua canal scheme, and to agree to the House points. In a debate in the house on this point there was a heated personal discussion between Mr. Hunt, of Louisiana, and Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, the former declaring his willingness to meet the latter "here or elsewhere." Explanations followed, and the offensive expressions used on both sides were withdrawn.

At the afternoon session of the house yesterday Mr. Randall presented the conference report on the general deficiency bill. Senate amendments increasing the appropriations by $378,949 were agreed to. The senate receded from the amendment appropriating $3,950 to reimburse the amount paid for the expenses of the commission appointed to go to Louisiana in 1877. The senate also receded from the amendments making appropriations to pay the Harlan and Hollingsworth company, William Cramp & Son, and John Roach for the care of the double-turreted monitors. A clause had been put upon the bill by Mr. Randall said, appropriating $27,686 for the payment of senators' clerks. The appropriation was put on in this specific manner so that the president would not be responsible for it. The house conferees had agreed to the amendment because they thought that the house had expressed itself sufficiently strongly against the bill, and because they fully realized that it was idle to continue the struggle longer. There was some objection to yielding to the senate on the item of senators' clerks, but the report was carried to without division. The senate subsequently agreed to a similar report from its committee.

Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, then submitted a disagreeing conference report on the naval appropriation bill, and it was agreed to. Mr. Randall said the report was for. Mr. Randall said the committees of both sides were determined, and but one way was open, that the support of the navy be provided for separately. He then submitted a bill which extends for six months the naval appropriations of last year, and appropriates a sufficient amount for the cruisers now being built. The house passed the new bill, but the Senate amended it so as to provide for completing the Texas and Maine gunboats. The debate in the House on the new bill was enlivened by a tilt between Mr. Reed of Maine and Mr. Cox of New York, the latter charging that Mr. Cox had ascribed to Admiral Porter statements about the unwisdom of duplicating the new cruisers which he (Mr. Cox) had himself previously uttered, and of which Admiral Porter was not the author. This Mr. Cox merely denied.

At 5 o'clock all of the appropriation bills except the Naval bill had been disposed of by both Houses. The House refused to accede to the Senate's amendment to the Naval bill, and that alone now stands in the way of final adjournment to-day.

The president last night signed the Fortifications and the Post Office Appropriation bills and a number of private bills.

An Opium Joint in the Big Flat.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Big Flat in Mott street, near Canal, is a huge tenement that shelters more humanity than many a village, and is also more cosmopolitan. Almost every nationality is represented in the crowding apartments. Fights are not unusual under its comprehensive roof, and seldom attract much attention. But a fight which developed in one of its rooms last night was of much proportions that it roused even the denizens of the Big Flat, and echoes of it reached police headquarters.

Word was sent to the Elizabeth street police station, and a handful of men, led by Sergeant Young, was sent to quell the disturbance.

When this had been done it was found that no one was hurt. It was also found that the fight had occurred in an opium joint, and that the proprietor conducted as disorderly persons and opium fiends.

Claiming a Large Fortune.

NEW YORK, July 7.—John Meehan, an ex-justice of the peace and formerly a clerk in the Richmond county supervisors, many years ago died a wait of Randall's Island and brought him up in his family at Mariner's ville, Staten Island. The lad was named John O'Brien. He remained with Mr. Meehan until 1850 to 1855, when he enlisted in the Union army. After the close of the war he led a wandering life, and finally came back to Mr. Meehan's home in 1873. He now claims to have been born to a large fortune. W. S. O'Brien, a well known mining speculator, died in California, leaving an estate valued at over $1,000,000. His brother, John O'Brien, of Port Richmond, received from the estate, it is said, $730,000. Patrick H. O'Brien died some time ago, and John O'Brien now says he is his son, and has put in a claim for his estate.

One Hundred and Three Years Old.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 7.—The death, in Westfield, of Mrs. Lucy Barnes, at the great age of 103 years is announced. She was born in Charlton, Saratoga county, and has been a resident of Westfield since 1821. Three children are living, the youngest over 70. She was the oldest resident of the county, has over forty living descendants, and until recently was in the possession of every human faculty. For seventy years she has been a member of the Baptist church.

STIRRING UP THE TORIES.

Mr. Gladstone makes a Most Unfortunate Remark.

LONDON, July 7.—The sanitary authorities of London are considering the propriety of adopt precautionary measures against the introduction of cholera from France, but their appeals have thus far proved unavailing. Mr. William Jervis, of Westminster, the home secretary, answers all requests of the kind by saying that the medical experts depart the benefit of quarantine as a preventative of the spread of cholera. Mr. Gladstone, on being appealed to, echoed the reply of the home secretary, and added that it was not the policy of the government at present to irritate France by any necessary and avoidable restrictions upon commercial intercourse. This has proved a most unfortunate remark for Mr. Gladstone, for it has provoked the furious anger of the Tories, and has also alienated from him many of the more timid of his own party. The Tories say that a cordial understanding with the Liberal leader was never more clearly shown than by his willingness to jeopard the lives of millions of Englishmen rather than risk disturbing the little comedy which he is arranging with premier Ferry regarding the Egyptian conference. This charge is the more effective because of the fear which prevails in England that the panic will be brought into Britain by means of the practically unrestricted traffic with Marseilles and Toulon. The cases of cholera in London just now might prove as fatal to liberal supremacy as the capture of Khartoum or the murder of Gordon.

THE CHOLERA IN EUROPE.

Increasing in Virulence Owing to the Intense Heat.

PARIS, July 7.—Special reports from Marseilles state that the number of deaths in that city from cholera during the past twenty four hours was fifteen, and that the disease is increasing in virulence owing to the intense heat.

The official report from Toulon gives the number of deaths during the past twenty-four hours as nineteen, and states that the scourge has gained a fresh impetus from the heat.

The excitement in this city over the cholera has increased, and many tourists and others have left the city having become alarmed at the reports received here and the influx of persons from the cholera district. Yesterday the second case of cholera was reported to the officials, and the victim in which the case occurred was immediately disinfected and the patient hurried off to the hospital.

Dr. Koch, the discoverer of the cholera germ in India, expressed hopes of being able to confine the cholera at Toulon to that district.

Several Cases at Aix.

PARIS, July 7.—One death from cholera occurred at Aix, seventeen miles north of Marseilles, and several new cases are reported there.

Dr. Koch pronounces the disease at Toulon Asiatic cholera.

Twelve Deaths in Marseilles.

PARIS, July 7.—The official report from Marseilles states that twelve deaths occurred there during the past twenty-four hours from cholera.

Shutting Down Lumber Mills.

DULUTH, Minn., July 7.—The lumbermen of the northwest are considering a proposition to shut down the mills from September 1 for the remainder of the year. They say that at present prices it is impossible for lumbermen to make anything, and that soon much more than that will be not needed, to restore prices. The proposition has been talked of by lumbermen all over the northwest, and if agreed upon all the manufacturers will go into it. A few lumbermen held a meeting to talk the matter over, but no decision was made or it expected to be made at present. The Duluth lumbermen, so far as known, favor the project. Reports from Eau Claire, Still and other places show that the lumbermen heartily favor the project.

Furious Storm in Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 7.—A destructive wind storm visited Rich Hill, Mo., demolishing the Presbyterian church. The M. E. church was lifted from its foundation, a flat factory unroofed and a number of small dwellings blown down. Several persons were killed and many injured in the town. The damage to property in the vicinity, probably will reach $20,000. Considerable destruction was also wrought at Walnut, in the same county.

Mr. Beecher on Cremation.

BROOKLYN, July 7.—During the sermon yesterday morning Henry Ward Beecher referring to cremation, said that the idea of the resurrection of the body would oppose a strong objection to the general practice of burning the dead. There might be sanitary reasons in crowded populations or reasons of convenience in favor of the custom, but all these had been dwelt upon and the Germanic-speaking people were violated by the idea of incineration.

The Red River Valley Crops.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 7.—Reports from all quarters of the Red River valley indicate the most favorable conditions for growing crops. The heavy rain of July 4 is thought to render doubt out of the question this season. The crops look ten per cent better, and there will be a large increase of the acreage. Wheat is nearly all headed out. It is estimated by many that the average yield will be twenty-five bushels per acre.

Return of the Lacrosse Team.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The City of Rome, from Liverpool, has arrived. Among the passengers are the members of the Lacrosse team, with the exception of young Hodge, of Princeton, who remained in Europe to cherish his fair complexion. They all themselves pleased with the result of the trip.

Porter and Lange, western brakers of some eminence, have agreed to do battle with hard gloves. The contest will be decided in a week.

The broadway National bank of New Jersey has brought suit at Akron, Ohio, against Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Toledo railroad company for $100,000.

Senator Logan has made a personal request about the floor leadership in New York that he has been the head of for years. He said that he had been called a hard grabber, and had been accused with having taken 50,000 acres of land, a statement the entire story to be published.

WOODHAVEN AROUSED.

A Furious Mob in Pursuit of a Bestardly Ruffian.

Lena Schmidt's Heroic Struggle for Life—An Officer's Bravery and Coolness Saves a Villain from being Lynched.

WOODHAVEN, July 7.—"Arrest that man! Stop him; he has assaulted a young girl!" were some of the cries that fell upon the ears of Captain William Carpenter, of the Rockaway police, who was on his way from Jamaica to Woodhaven, yesterday morning, to get the train for the beach. The cries came from an excited crowd of men who were chasing another man, who was running at breakneck speed. The man had passed Captain Carpenter before he heard the cries, but he paid no attention to him, thinking he was running to catch a train. When he heard the shouts, however, he started in hot pursuit.

"Surrender, or I'll fire," said the Captain, drawing his revolver, when he found that the man was gaining on him.

The fugitive paid no attention to the officer's command, but continued on his way. He was gaining steadily on the officer, and the latter fired a shot in the air. Then the fugitive came to a stand still, and facing about awaited the approach of Carpenter. The officer at once recognized him and took him to Woodhaven. On the way to the village a large crowd surrounded the officer and attempted to get the prisoner for the purpose of lynching him. Carpenter, who is looked upon as one of the bravest officers in Queens County, ordered the mob to march ahead of him.

"Let us have him," shouted a raw-boned farmer as he grasped the prisoner by the arm. "We want to hang him, we've had too much fooling down here. If we lynch one or two of these fellows it will be a warning to the others to stay away. Come, captain, we want him and must have him," and he tried to make Carpenter let go of his hold of the man.

"Here's a rope," shouted a young man who came running out of the woods. "Put it around his neck, and let's finish him now."

This was received with unanimous approval, and with a loud shout the farmers seized the rope and made a rush for Carpenter and his captive.

"For God's sake, don't let them kill me like a dog," said the prisoner, who was as pale as a sheet, and whose knees knocked together with fear as he saw the enraged faces of the citizens. "I'll go with you quietly, only don't let them take me away from me."

Carpenter, who is looked upon as one of the bravest officers in Queens county, ordered the mob to march ahead of him.

"By the eternal," he said, "I'll kill the first man that lays a hand on me or my prisoner. Now, get in front of me and keep there or there will be more than one dead man in the party." As he finished he pointed his revolver at the leader's head, while he grasped the prisoner more firmly with his left hand.

The crowd, seeing that the officer meant what he said, quietly marched ahead to the Woodhaven railroad station, where Carpenter was reinforced by two other officers, who kept the prisoner closely guarded in the depot until they secured a wagon to convey him to the Jamaica town hall.

While the wagon was being obtained the citizens of the village brought Lena Schmidt bleeding and torn into the depot. Capt. Carpenter led the girl into the room where the prisoner was.

"That's the man," she screamed, on seeing him, and fell fainting to the floor.

The officer assisted her to the open air, where she came to, and was taken to her home in the village. Carpenter, fearing the vengeance of the crowd, took his prisoner out by the side door, jumped into a coach in waiting and drove rapidly to Jamaica, where he locked him up in the town hall. The ruffian gave his name as William Lyman, 30 years of age, and said he resided in Brooklyn. He would give no explanation of his assault on Miss Schmidt. He is quite a good-looking young man, neatly dressed, and is quite intelligent.

Miss Schmidt, who is only 20 years of age, told her story to a reporter yesterday afternoon.

"I went to the grocery store about 8:30 o'clock," she said, "and on my way home that man who was arrested sprang from the under-brush, and, catching hold of me, threw me violently into the bush. I struggled and screamed, and he tried to stuff my apron into my mouth, but I was too strong for him, and he then grabbed me by the throat, saying, with a terrible oath:

"'I'll kill you if you don't keep quiet!'

"I kept on screaming, and pretty soon I heard some one coming. He let go of me and I was taken home."

The girl's limbs, neck and face presented unmistakable evidence of the terrible struggle she had gone through. The timely arrival of the citizens, who heard her cries for help, saved her life, and the presence of Officer Carpenter saved Lyman from being lynched. Lyman will be arraigned before Justice Betts, at the Jamaica town hall this morning.

Played the Hose on Him.

LOUISIANA, Mo., July 7.—Almost a tragedy was enacted at the water-tank of the Chicago & Alton railroad at this place, between Thomas Connelly, the man in charge, and one Thomas Brent, said to be a boiler-maker, of Indianapolis. The rules of the company are that no tramps or loafers shall be permitted to loiter around the premises. Finding Brent, who was hanging about, persistent to remain, Connelly turned the steam hose on him, when the former shot at him with a revolver, but missed, and then Connelly knocked him down with an ax, inflicting a serious wound on his forehead. On regaining his senses Brent fired twice, with no more effect, and was finally arrested, tried before the magistrate, and placed under $100 bond.

Inspired to Kill Christians.

CAIRO, July 7.—Considerable excitement was created here by an Arab running amuck through the streets with a drawn sabre. The religious exercises of the feast of Ramadan had crazed him and he deemed himself inspired to kill Christians. Before he could be disarmed he had wounded six Europeans with his weapon, two of them seriously.

The Rebels Repulsed.

CAIRO, July 7.—Advices received here state that 12,000 rebels attacked Debbah, but were repulsed with a loss of 3,000. The report is, however, not generally credited.

Burglars Make a Haul of Watches.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 7.—The jewelry store of John Warner was entered by burglars and robbed of $100 in money and over $3,000 worth of watches.

Mr. Gladstone Ill.

LONDON, July 7.—Mr. Gladstone is suffering from an attack of cholera morbus which is said believed to be of a serious nature, although his physician spent a couple of hours with him.

The season of flirtation and freckels had opened.

A Noble Ambition.

[New York Times.]

A philanthropist addicted to giving advice to ambitious young men who desire to better their circumstances, had his attention recently directed to the conductor of a Sixth avenue street car. The conductor was young and well favored. He had just attained his majority, and wore clothes which fitted his shapely figure. He had been graduated from one of the grammar schools of the city and had ungrafitable, but philanthropist drew these facts from the young man during extended conversations on the back platform of the car. The conductor recognized the presence of the philanthropist and confided to him his history and his hopes. But the hopes were ill defined. The philanthropist exulted in the character of his subject, and saw in him a possible protege. Visions of the conductor as a great lawyer, a distinguished physician, or an ornament of some other of the learned and useful professions or pursuits of life passed through his head. Which of these would the conductor select? Finally he broached this important question. "What," he asked one night as the car drew near his residence, "what do you think you would like to be?" "Well," said the conductor reflectively, as he took twenty-five cents from a passenger, rang up two fare, gave the passenger a lead dime and a nickel, and pocketed ten cents as his share of the transaction, "I think that above all things I'd like to be a conniving player." The shattered fragments of the philanthropist's dream floated away into the daylight, and the philantropist got off and walked home.

Looking Into the Future.

[New York Sun.]

"Yes," said the father, stroking his son's head fondly, "James is a bright, intelligent boy, and some day I hope to see him occupying an exalted position in politics."

"He is certainly a fine lad," acquiesced the visitor. "What do you expect to do James, when you grow to be a man?"

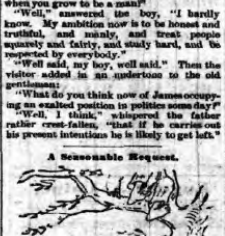
"Well," answered the boy, "I hardly know. My ambition now is to be honest and truthful, and manly, and treat people squarely and fairly, and study hard, and be respected by everybody."

"Well said, my boy, well said." Then the visitor added in an undertone to the old gentleman:

"What do you think now of James occupying an exalted position in politics some day?"

"Well, I think," whispered the father rather crest-fallen, "that if he carries out his present intentions he is likely to get left."

A Seasonable Request.



But the invitation is declined.

The Hot Car Stoves.

[Boston Transcript.]

"My! how hot it is!" exclaimed a fleshy lady on entering the car, her eyes fixed upon the stove. "What an idea! A fire such a day as this! What in the world are they thinking of? And she shoved up the window and fanned herself like all get out.

An elderly gentleman next enters. He sits down to read his newspaper, first glancing at the open window in an offended sort of way. As his eye sweeps around from the window to his paper, they fall upon the stove. "Great Scott!" he mutters. "Do they want to roast a fellow alive?" And up goes his window.

Each new comer sits down quietly, looks at the stove and then arises, "how hot it is! What awful heat they're going!" "Isn't it ridiculous!" or something of the kind; and each opens a window, one gentleman going so far as to open all the ventilators, while another opens the doors.

"Conductor!" cry a dozen voices, as that official makes his appearance, and a dozen forefingers point to the stove.

The conductor looks at the cause of all the commotion, his moist window glowing like a furnace seven times hotter than "it used to be hotter. He takes off his hat and mops his brow. Then he takes a long pokur, and, opening the door of the stove, he thrusts it in, throws open the door, then steps forward, looks into the ex-gay cylinder and remarks, with a laugh:

"Cold, by ceiphers! That boy's gone and painted them windows red!"

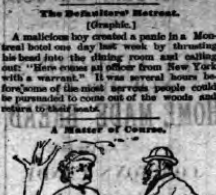
Instantly the doors are closed, every window comes down with a bang, and a little man in the corner tells the conductor if he won't please shut the ventilator.

The Befuddled Retreat.

[Graphic.]

A malicious boy created a panic in a Montreal hotel one day last week by thrusting his head into the dining room and calling out: "Here's reuse at all office from New York with a warrant." It was several hours before some of the most nervous people could be persuaded to come out of the woods and return to their seats.

A Master of Coarse.



Elderly belle—"Now, can you guess my age, major?"

Gallant major—"No, I can't; but you don't look it."

The Good of a Timely Shower.

[Texas Siftings.]

"I was mighty thankful for that rain we got yesterday," said

"Yes, it did the corn a world of good. How many acres have you got planted in corn?"

"I've got no corn planted this year at all. I wasn't thinking about crops."

"Well, how then can the rain benefit you?"

"You see I don't often get a decent dinner at home, as my wife says she can't cook in hot weather; but yesterday there was to be a church picnic, and she fixed up a lunch basket for the preacher's table, but it rained so the picnic could not come off. To keep the preacher's lunch from spoiling we had it for dinner, and it was the best dinner I've had since my wife married. There was no end of chicken and jellies and that sort of alleviations. Don't tell me that rain yesterday didn't do any good. It was the most refreshing shower we have had for years."

They Were Thirsty Souls.

Doctor (who had just seen the patient)—"He's in no worse, but, (gravely) the question will no doubt soon arise as to the advisability of tapping him."

Mother-in-law—"Oh, doctor, don't say that. Nothing was ever tapped in this house that lasted over a week!"

Breaking It Gently.

[Philadelphia Call.]

Young Wife—"My dear, you were the stroke oar at college, weren't you?"

Young Husband—"Yes, love."

"And a very prominent member of the gymnastic class?"

"I was the leader."

"And quite a hand at all athletic contests?"

"Quite a hand! My gracious! I was the champion walker, the best runner, the head man at lifting heavy weights, and as for carrying! why, I could shoulder a barrel of flour and——"

"Well, love, just please carry the baby a couple of hours; I'm tired."

Experimental Philosophy.

Party (who has been looking at a picture on schoolboy)—"Did he 'ah' partly right. The sarah doosh mow?"

The Reason.

[The Somerville Journal.]

"My darling, you never have kissed me yet," he said.

"Haven't I?" she answered, with a gurgling laugh.

"Never," he repeated, "and I wish you would now. Will you?"

She did.

"Ah!" he sighed, "how sweet it is to feel the pressure of your warm lips on my cheek."

"Do you know why my lips are so warm?" she asked.

"Because——because," he stammered.

"Because," she broke in, "no ice cream has passed them for ever so long."

He took the hint.

Boston Commercial Bulletin: "A crowded house car. Enter Mrs. Mulcahey with a jag. Mr. Mulcahey, who is seated, inconsolably—"What I heard the whiskey for you, Mistress Mulcahey?" Mrs. M. (with withering sarcasm)—"Thank yes kindly sorr; but ye have all ye can howld now, I'm thinkin'."

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Battle Pultowa, 1709.

Locals.

—The Methodists give an excursion to Ocean Grove on Friday.

—Mrs. Daly, who fell from a window at the City Hotel Sunday evening, is better to-day.

—The new Ryder building on Front street has reached the surface, the first floor beams having been laid.

—The Rev. William R. Richards will be installed as pastor of the Crescent Avenue Church this evening.

—Mr. T. J. Halstead while walking across Front street corner of Somerset street, last evening, was knocked down by a team of horses, and seriously injured.

—Mathew Flanigan came to this city from Elizabeth to get work, but instead got drunk and was arrested. It being his first offense the Judge gave him a reprimand and discharged him.

—Dr. Mattison, while out walking last evening, was struck about a quarter of an inch below the eye, by what was supposed to be the unconsumed portion of a sky-rocket, or some fire work, falling to the ground. A very bad-looking black eye resulted from it.

—At frequent intervals during the afternoon and evening of Thursday, a stage will run from the corner of Park avenue and Front street, to accommodate those wishing to attend the Lawn Party, to be held on the Park House grounds, by the Young People's Association of the Park Avenue Baptist Church. The fare will be ten cents.

—Strangers in town, and others who are making preparations to leave for their summer vacation are reminded that Kindly's popular dry and fancy goods establishment is the proper place to go for the "hundred and one" articles needed at this season, in this line. A whole column in this paper is devoted to a description of attractions he offers.

A Curious Verdict.

The case of Edward J. Jukes vs. Frazee Hatfield, came to trial before Justice Nash and a jury of twelve men yesterday after noon. The case was an action in trespass on the case for damages for breach of contract to let a farm at Fanwood for a term of one year.

When the plaintiff had rested his case the counsel for the defense asked for a verdict for his client on the ground that the plaintiff had not proven that a legal tender had been made for the rent. The Justice sustained the point taken, and instructed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant. The jury brought in a written verdict after this style: The Jury brings in a verdict for the defendant by the instruction of the Justice, but unanimously think the plaintiff has been wronged.

Jackson and Coddington and ex-Judge Saydam appeared for the plaintiff, W. L. Hatfield for the defendant. The case will be appealed.

Installation of Officers.

D. D. G. C. Morrison was present at the session of Unity Lodge, No. 103, Knights of Pythias, last evening, and installed the following officers: C. C., Joseph M. Hawkins; V. C., John P. Evans; P. Prel. Sears; M. at A., William B. Mosher; I. G., Charles Dunham; O. G., James Randall. Visiting brethren were present from Harmony Lodge, No. 69, Perseverance Lodge, No. 74 and Good Will Lodge, No. 101.

Early Closing Movement.

To the Editor of The News:

The Dry Goods Merchants of this town are to be commended for closing their stores at 8 o'clock and thereby giving their employees a few hours rest. Every lady will doubtless encourage this movement by buying her goods through the day or the early part of the evening.

PUBLIC SPIRIT.

Fraternizing.

Thirty members of Winfield Scott Post, No 73, G. A. R., started on the 11 o'clock train to-day to participate in the ceremonies at Newark in honoring three ex-deformed veteran comrades from Virginia, in return for the hospitalities shown by the latter at the Yorktown celebration a few years ago.

St. Joseph's Picnic.

The picnic for the benefit of St. Joseph's Church, which was postponed, Fourth of July, on account of weather will take place at Weidner's Grove, next Thursday evening. Singer will run all forenoon from the corner of Front and Somerset streets.

THE TRIAL OF KELLY.

The Council in Session for Nearly Six Hours—Convicted on Three of the Fourteen Charges—Suspended until September 1.

The regular meeting of the Common Council for July was held last evening. All the members were present excepting Messrs. Simpson and Beguelin.

The minutes of the last regular and last special meetings were read and approved.

The rules of order were suspended, and the investigation of the charges against police officer Nicholas Kelly was made the order of the evening.

Gen. Fay, of Elizabeth, Kelly's counsel on this occasion, moved that the testimony in the case be taken before a Supreme Court Commissioner, and read at the next meeting of the Council. Corporation Counsel Marsh stated, in reply, that it would involve a great expense, and that, furthermore, the consideration of the charges had been made the special order of the evening at Kelly's request at the last special meeting. The Council decided that the trial should proceed.

Gen. Fay then wanted Council to subpoena Margaret Bunworth, at present an inmate of the County jail, and said that the Council had a right to subpoena her. Corporation Counsel Marsh said the council had no such power, and desired counsel to point out the authority to him. He also said that the prosecution desired this same woman, and had tried in various ways to secure her attendance, but that the authorities at the jail would not let her go.

After this preliminary tilt the prosecution opened the case.

The facts brought forth on the most serious charges were the same as appeared in the issue of The News of June 23, in the article on "Developments from a Disorderly House Case." The minor charges were at first made the basis of examination, but they soon gave way to the more serious ones.

On the resting of the case for the prosecution, Gen. Fay again asked for an adjournment, which the Council refused.

The defense endeavored to break down the weight of the testimony of the prosecution on the more serious charges, and in rebuttal to that testimony, the substance of which has before been given, called Nicholas Kelly, Anna Fox and Peter Schneiderwind who denied in sum total the charges of immorality.

The case was submitted to the Council without argument shortly after 1 a. m. The Council then took a recess of about twenty-five minutes. On coming to order, on motion the council unanimously found three of the fourteen charges against Kelly confirmed, and the remaining ones not proven to their satisfaction.

The charges sustained are those accusing him of failing to report for duty on June 22, of failing to go on duty at all during that day, and of using disrespectful language to his superior officer.

The council then unanimously passed a motion justifying Kelly's suspension from duty from July 3, and also continuing the suspension until September 1 next with loss of pay.

Business especially needing attention was then taken up.

An ordinance, introduced by Mr. Marsh, concerning the paving of several streets was read twice, engrossed and ordered to a third reading.

The Corporation Counsel was granted leave of absence till September 1.

A petition from Carl Peterson, florist, asking for permission for his greenhouse on Pierce street near North avenue. Referred to Fire Committee with power.

The Council then adjourned until eight o'clock to-night.

The Lincoln Club Meeting.

The Lincoln Campaign Club met in adjourned meeting last evening to complete the organization of the club. The meeting was held in Association Hall on Park avenue, and D. E. Titsworth presided.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was received, and the constitution and by-laws recommended were adopted.

The following officers were then elected: President, J. W. Murray; First Vice-President, D. E. Titsworth; Second Vice-President, G. M. Stiles; Third Vice-President, C. M. Goddard; Recording Secretary W. M. Stillman; Corresponding Secretary, G. W. Cope; Treasurer, J. B. Coward; Finance Com., the President, the three Vice-Presidents and the Recording Secretary; Membership Com., the Treasurer, Recording Secretary, W. A. Woodruff, G. Belcher, E. E. Authouy; Executive Com., J. D. Spicer, E. P. Williams, B. F. Coriell, F. S. Runyon, H. A. Thorn; Sergeant-at-Arms, C. Jones. The number of members was increased to fifty-five, and some subscriptions were taken in. Remarks were made by G. W. Cope and others. The club meets every Monday evening.

Personal.

Mr. Charles Westervelt is at the Grand Avenue House, Asbury Park.

Mr. A. D. Button and family will spend the season at the Lent's End Hotel, Point Pleasant."

Mr. Will Rosslle, formerly a resident of this city and having many friends here, is in town for a few days.

Mrs. J. H. Harbarger, Mr. D. Soedeker and wife, Miss Lulu Soedeker and Mr. George Soedeker are stopping at the Taylor Cottage, Asbury Park.

Hem.

Mr. Williams' wonderful dog Box gave an exhibition yesterday afternoon and evening at Laing's Hall which was attended by a number of the most prominent ladies and gentlemen of the city, and the performance was certainly marvelous and kept the audience in wonder for over and hour. Mr. Williams has concluded to give but two performances a day hereafter. Matinee at 4, evening, 8.00.

From Garfield League.

To the Editor of The Evening News:

Garfield League does not intend to engage in a controversy. We have too much reverence for the noble dead to bear to see them do anything unseemly. On the contrary we are ready to bear and endure in the spirit of him, who three years ago breathed out his life at Elberon by the sea.

But we do not intend to quietly submit to any such statements as were furnished you July 2d. They were inaccurate in the main, and we feel are a slur upon Garfield League. Membership in the Loyal Ladies' League is restricted to the "wives, mothers, daughters, and sisters of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, or marines of the late rebellion," who can comply with all the requirements of our Order.

To effect an organization, application must be made to the Department President of the Loyal Ladies' League as follows: "The application for a Charter shall be signed by at least ten persons eligible to membership in the Loyal Ladies' League, and shall in all cases be accompanied by the charter fee of five dollars." Thus you see a Post of the Grand Army of the Republic has nothing whatever to do with the application for a charter, and Winfield Scott Post could not possibly, as is stated, comply "with the regulations," no member of that or any other Post in the land, could sign an application for a charter, for the simple reason that their sex debars them from membership of the Loyal Ladies' League.

Winfield Scott Post decided that they would have a ladies' auxiliary; that it should be a "Loyal Ladies' League, and not a Woman's Relief Corps. Then invitations were sent out to a number of ladies. These held a meeting, and signed the application for a charter, each lady paying her share of charter expenses. Our charter reads as follows, omitting, for the sake of brevity, the names of the charter members:

"LOYAL LADIES' LEAGUE, AUXILIARY TO THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

Department of New Jersey, To all unto whom these presents come, greeting:

Know ye, that reposing full trust and confidence in the fidelity and loyalty of sisters, names of charter members) and by virtue of authority conferred by Charles H. Houghton, Commander of the Department of New Jersey, Grand Army of the Republic, under general order, No. 16, dated Matuchen, December 26, 1881, and in conformity with the rules and regulations adopted by the Loyal Ladies' League, I do hereby constitute them, and their associates and successors a subordinate league of the Loyal Ladies' League, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, to be known as Garfield League, No. 23, of Post No. 73, Grand Army of the Republic, Department of New Jersey, and I authorize and empower them to perform all acts necessary to conduct said organization in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Loyal Ladies' League.

Dated at the headquarters of the Department, of Camden, New Jersey, on the second day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty four, and of our Independence, the one hundred and eighth."

Signed, Sallie D. Hugg, Department President.

Laura McNeir, Department Secretary.

The above charter has not been surrendered to, suspended, or annulled, by our State Department, and we, as a body of ladies, will continue to work as an auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, to which we are proud to belong. We fully appreciate the high honor of being able to call such men as Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Logan comrades.

Since the resolution passed by Winfield Scott Post on the 11th of June, we have received invitations from different Posts in the State of New Jersey to become their auxiliary.

As regards dissensions in our League, we are a secret society, and how your informant became possessed of his information is best known to himself, but as the attempt has been made to place us before the public in the light of a discordant body, we will say this—we are to-day a united, prosperous League, and one guarantee for success in the future is our watchword, "God and our native land," and the fact that every one of us walks with a shadow by our side, and if we forget the memory of our dead on the fields of Bull Run, Malvern Hill, the Hospital ground of Alexandria, the prison yard of Salisbury, far off Galveston, or the honored graves in "God's Acre," at Scotch Plains and at Sampton, may our right hand forget its cunning.

As regards the appearance of our notice in your columns it was left for you on the evening of June 10th and appears in your issue of the afternoon of June 11th. The resolution of the Post purporting to sever, connection with Garfield League, was not passed until the night of June 11th, so how could matters be in "abeyance?" as your informant alleges.

We have never sent an authorized communication to omit our notice from your list of societies. Such communication must be signed by the President of the League to be official. Finally as you claim to have inserted a former notice "by mistake" and by so doing did injustice to Winfield Scott Post, be kind enough to publish this article as a retraction of that of July 2nd and do justice to Garfield League.

The lady elected to the office of President on the 2nd of January still bears the honor.

FAIR PLAY FOR KELLY.

Policeman Nicholas Kelly is given another chance by the action of Common Council last evening. He is merely suspended until September 1st without pay, the Council preferring to consider the charges of immorality generally as not proven to their satisfaction. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was, we understand, satisfied with the sentence under the circumstances.

One of the charges related to the belligerent visit of the policeman to this office and his interview with the editor. Counselor Marsh relied upon this as one of the strong points in this case, and his assumption was by letter, urged our attendance to testify. We declined to comply, under the belief that it would have placed the real issue in a false light in this community.

We exposed and attacked Kelly because of his offenses against public morals, and on his own statement afterwards in this office, showing him in our opinion to be utterly unfit for any position of public trust, however insignificant, but, on the contrary a dangerous and disreputable man generally. We do not believe it advisable in Council or in the opinion of the respectable people of this community as to the impropriety of having such a man on the police force at all. If a man may be judged by the company he keeps, we should judge by the testimony of Kelly's own witnesses last night and by his own testimony that he is a very bad egg.

The Reform Club, of which he is a member, did not desert him to its credit be it said, in its hour of trial, and it is hoped that his conduct hereafter will justify their intercession in his behalf.

We believe they, and not the evidence saved Kelly, and he can show his gratitude in no better way than by an irreproachable life henceforth.

We don't take any stock in his reformation, for we believe he simply "wears the livery of heaven to serve the devil in," but hope events will prove we are mistaken. If he sincerely endeavors to reform and become a better man, people will soon find it out and respect him accordingly, and he will find The News will gladly help him in helping and just as quickly expose him if he takes the opposite course. Kelly says he is in earnest about reforming, and we say, thereupon, fair play for Kelly.

Points About Patents.

[Washington Cor. of the New York Sun.]

The belief of some persons that sugar in paying quantities can be got from cornstalks as well as from sorghum, recalls the fact that the state of Connecticut gave to Edward Hinman a patent for making molasses from cornstalks in October, 1717, or nearly 167 years ago. Senator Platt, who introduced that bill, intended it for a joke, especially as some other curious old Connecticut patents, showing that the spirit of invention was rife there at an early date. There were no devices in the list for manufacturing wooden nutmegs, but in 1793 a patent was given to Benjamin Hanks for a clock which will wind itself up."

Another interesting patent may be derived from Mr. Platt's bill. Patents issued in 1790 there were but three patents issued by the United States government, in 1791 but eleven, and in 1795 but twelve, the issue for year before last was 18,135, and for last year it was 22,198, a certain epoch of three years from remarkable fluctuation in annual list. Thus in 1856 the number of new patents rose to 1,730 from only 846 for the previous year, and the year was hard and unsatisfactory. So in 1860 the new issues were 8,874, but the following year the number bounded to 12,301. Very oddly it never afterward varied 3,000 up or down in successive years, the new patents for 1880 being 12,956. But the next year the number suddenly started forward to 15,548, and there since been steady and great growth. Also the number of the designs of last year should be added to the new patents the aggregate would be 22,982.

Canals of India.

[Foreign Letter.]

The India canals are a distinctive feature of the country. They are splendidly built, being designed solely for irrigation, although having locks, so as to make navigation possible. The largest and most important one is the Ganges canal, which cost the government over 20,000,000, is about 900 miles long, runs out of the Ganges and proceeds into the Ganges again. When the subject of building it was agitated, the influential natives vowed they would never for an instant tolerate it, tapping as did the sacred river of the Hindoos. Then when the work was actually begun they changed their tactics and generally declared that they would not remain in or flow through the canal. When the fallacy of this position was shown, they receded from it and contented themselves with solemnly asserting that it never would ever avail himself of the improvement. It is now in full operation, however.

NEW YORK TO VOTE AS A UNIT

Her 72 Votes to be Cast for Governor Cleveland.

MR. TILDEN AGAIN DECLINES.

Caucus of the New York Delegation. The Presiding Officer—Who will be Temporary Chairman—Battle's Vote to be Challenged. The Unit Rule—No Dark Horses as Yet—Thurman in the Field.

GROVER CLEVELAND

NEW YORK, July 8.—A special to The World, dated 1 A. M., says: The action of the New York delegation is the event of the day. Gov. Cleveland has forty-nine votes, more than two-thirds. Gov. Cleveland certainly will receive the seventy-two votes of New York and all the votes of New England except Massachusetts, and after the first ballot he will receive most of those of Massachusetts. He will have part of the delegation from Georgia, South Carolina, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Nebraska, Illinois, Minnesota and a larger if not the larger part of the scattering vote of states that have no candidates of their own. Thurman will be presented by California, but it is settled beyond a doubt that he will not get a small vote from Ohio. The majority of the Ohio delegates will vote for Hoadly. McDonald will get about seventy-five votes from Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois. Bayard will have the votes of Delaware, most of those of Maryland, all of North Carolina's, a few from South Carolina, most of Mississippi, part of Georgia and Texas, and scattering votes in the south generally. Randall will have the vote of Pennsylvania, and scattering votes in West Virginia and other southern delegations. This will probably give him about 100 votes. It is as certain as anything can be that Mr. Cleveland cannot have a majority on the first ballot. Mr. Bayard is aware that unless the opposition to him should intensify to will, after some balloting, get enough of the Randall, Hoadly and Bayard vote to give him the nomination. In any event the battle has got to be won.

The Bayard strength, which is unquestionably considerable, is worked up by the southern senatorial syndicate, consisting of such influential men as Vance and Ransom, of North Carolina; Hampton, of South Carolina; Jones, of Florida, and Lamar of Mississippi. They have been working untiringly for Delaware's candidate, and the effectiveness of their work is apparent in the fact that all of the South Carolina delegation, a part of the South Carolina body, all of Mississippi and a large part of Texas and Louisiana have been secured to him. These states were, up to the time that the senators began their work, regarded as almost certain to support Cleveland next to Tilden. Mr. Bayard's strength is almost entirely in the south. Mr. Cleveland's largely in the north and west and New England.

Caucus of the New York Delegation.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The caucus of the New York delegation has, of course, been the event of the day.

As a prelude the anti-Cleveland men met in John Kelly's room. There were twenty-five of them, and they issued protest against Grover Cleveland. Then the caucus was brought out with very strong emphasis the statement that he could not carry New York; that he would lose the state to the Republicans by a majority of 100,000 votes; and that any man the convention might name, whether he should be Flower, Bayard, Randall or some western man, would be more acceptable to the rank and file of the New York Democracy than Cleveland.

Under the head "Make no Mistake" some words of this strength is almost sure to be Cleveland publication received the meeting's endorsement.

MR. KELLY'S RESOLUTION.

Then Kelly submitted a resolution which will cause a revolution in the convention. It states that:

Whereas, In a contest such as the New York state Democracy is now engaged in the unit rule in the convention makes it impossible for delegates in the minority to represent the wishes of their constituents, since the unit rule is an unjust measure, since it denies the exercise of individual and personal preferences, and that therefore they are resolved to oppose the unit rule in the action of the New York delegation, and that, if it is in effective to prevent the choice of a man for Democratic candidate for president who cannot carry New York, they claim the right be then taken into the national convention.

THE ONLY WAY TO DEFEAT CLEVELAND.

In a speech John Kelly said that this means was the only way to defeat Cleveland. With the Kings county delegation for him he would have forty-five delegates. They were a majority and sufficient without a two-thirds rule to vote for the nominee, the vote being cast as a unit. Mr. Kelly said that the national convention of 1868 ordained that the unit rule could be disposed with at any time at the option of any subsequent national convention.

The resolution was promptly carried to oppose the unit rule and resolved to defeat it in the delegation. A resolution was also adopted that if the Cleveland men were too many in the state meeting and carried the unit rule to vote on the Hoadly vote on the unit question to be offered by Kelly, the Flower and Tammany delegates should withdraw and hold a meeting to decide what next to do. The meeting then adjourned.

AT WORK ON OVERTHROW THE UNIT RULE.

Agents immediately went around to see whether the other states would work to over throw the unit rule in convention. To their surprise they found that several of the states were ripe for it. Massachusetts, Iowa, Kansas, Delaware and some others committed their willingness to go into the scheme, and the matter has been discussed by the different delegations.

PROPOSITION OF THE MINORITY.

This scheme was the 1st resort in case Cleveland. It had been thought over carefully, and at a meeting of the anti-Cleveland leaders this proposition was made:

"Cleveland has now forty-five delegates. They are a majority, and can go into session and without as vote to have the vote of the entire delegation cast for him. We are not as the minority, will have no votes. We must resolve on some plan to go into the convention and show that the state is not the audience that Cleveland. The only way open is to break the unit rule."

MEETING OF THE STATE DELEGATION.

Equipped with this plan the Tammany and Kelly delegates met for the first meeting of the state delegation. A crowd six deep lined the corridors leading to the large parlor where the New Yorkers met. The police were guarded door and admitted delegates only. The caucus was long and exciting.

RESULT OF THE VOTE.

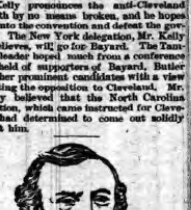
After organization an informal vote was taken as to choice of candidates, as follows: For Cleveland, 47; Flower, 22; scattering, 3. The final formal vote was exactly like this. On the second vote, on the 4th ballot, Assessment of Flower, nobody but Jacobs, of Kings county voting for him. For Bayard: Belmont, Grady, Bowers, Kelly, O'Donovan, Miller and Voorhis. For Hoadly: Jacobs and voted. For Slocum: Faulkner, Dowling, Stahlknecker, Sandford, Murphy, Hamilton, Stevens, Moore, Danforth, Sears, Brewster, Kelly, Van Schaick, Cassidy and Leary voted. It stood 47 for Cleveland, 25 against.

After this vote a few opponents of Cleveland began to leave the room. Tammany fought against the unit rule, but Jacobs, an anti-Cleveland delegate, spoke in favor of it, saying that the Tammany men were now opposing it were its staunchest friends in the Saratoga convention. It was not honest, he claimed, for Kelly to urge the unit rule at Chicago when he had brought Kings County was with him, but to oppose it at Chicago when he found Kings County against him.

The second ballot stood 47 for Cleveland, 15 for Slocum, 9 for Bayard, and 1 for Tilden. The delegation then adjourned, to meet again at 6 o'clock.

TO CAST THE VOTE FOR CLEVELAND.

At 4 o'clock the caucus re-assembled, and the discussion on the unit rule was renewed with great vigor. After a long debate, a resolution was adopted by 61 to 11 that the 72 votes of New York state shall be cast in the convention for Cleveland. An amendment by Mr. Sheridan, seconded by Mr. Powers, and also adopted, that when the vote is given as a unit a statement shall accompany it to the effect that the delegation is not unanimous in its preference, and that the vote on supporting Cleveland stood as follows: Cleveland, 58; Slocum, 13; Bayard, 2; Flower, 1. This was only on condition of this statement being made that Mr. Kelly gave his consent to the 72 votes being cast together. Mr. John H. Mooney, one of Mr. Kelly's friends, announced positively that Mr. Kelly pronounces the anti-Cleveland stredgth by no means broken, and he hopes to go into the convention and defeat the governor. The New York delegation, Mr. Kelly still believes, will go for Bayard. The Tammany leader hoped much from a conference to be held of supporters of Bayard, Butler and other presidential candidates with a view to uniting the opposition to Cleveland. Mr. Mooney believed that the North Carolina delegation was instructed for Cleveland, and had determined to come out solidly against him.



POTTER PALMER.

Probably the most widely-known, and during the conventions the most popular hotel in Chicago is the Palmer house, its genial host and owner being Potter Palmer, who has been a remarkably successful business man.

The Temporary Chairman.

The national Democratic executive committee have just selected Gen. Hubbard, of Texas, as temporary chairman of the convention. It was thought that Col. Vilas, of Wisconsin, would be the choice of the committee for the office, but there was no contest over the matter, and Gov. Hubbard was the unanimous selection. He is a man of much physique, large and fine looking, and is said to be a skilful parliamentarian, in addition to which he has the power of keeping a large assemblage in order. Gov. Hubbard will probably be elected to the office when he comes for the election of a permanent chairman by Allan G. Thurman, of Ohio.

The Presiding Officer.

It is generally conceded that the convention will need a master hand to control it. There will be very little figuring for candidates for the position. There are no great issues to be settled. There will be no momentous questions to be decided. Any man can gain a decisive point by holding the sympathy of the presiding officer. Consequently the only consideration in the selection will be wishes of the nominee. If a very loud call for the selection of Allan G. Thurman. He would command the respect and consideration of the delegates. But Thurman is not the choice of the majority of the New York delegation, and that, it is in the Bayard. It is not unlikely that if Thurman finds it inexpedient to act that Vilas, of Wisconsin, will be selected presiding officer.

Ex-Mayor Prince, of Boston, will be temporary secretary, and Richard J. Beight, of Indiana, sergeant-at-arms.

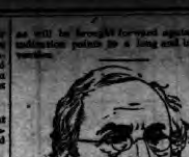
Thurman in the Field.

The Thurman members of the Ohio delegation arrived this afternoon and finally decided to put Allan G. Thurman in the field. This complicates the situation more John C. McLean is to be given the chairmanship of the delegation.

The Unit Rule.

The attempt to abrogate the unit rule in the convention will be seconded by Butler, McDonald and other candidates. Kansas voted against the unit rule at its meeting. Iowa was instructed for Cleveland, but against. Iowa was instructed for Cleveland, but decided to vote for Cleveland, twenty-one being given by the New York governor and one blank.

New Hampshire instructed its delegates for Cleveland also. The drift was toward Cleveland after the New York state meeting, as Kelly's threat to defeat the unit rule is regarded as having no influence with many delegates. Boswell P. Flower's chances are not injured, so it is claimed, by the turning of his vote to Slocum. If the unit rule is abolished as well be brought forward again. Many additional points go a long and bitter one.



HENRY R. PAYNE.

Henry R. Payne is now practically constituted out of the race, though prominent at one time as a presidential possibility.

Dark Horses not Spoken Of.

The general situation is practically unchanged, except that Cleveland probably has added considerably to his strength during the day. Both the friends of Cleveland against the field, with the chances more in favor of the former than at any time heretofore. The Indiana delegation are urging McDonald for first place, and claim that in the event of a break they will be sure to succeed.

On the other hand the Randall and Bayard men are confident that if a break should come, their respective candidates will be looked to in preference to a western man. The movement regarding the Bayard-McDonald ticket heretofore referred to continues, and this is conceded on all hands to be the most favorable combination that could be made, except perhaps that of Randall and McDonald. Either Randall or Bayard appears to be well thought of by all the delegates, and it is safe to say that the New York delegation, if it is found that Cleveland cannot rally strength enough to secure the nomination, will cheerfully support either one of these gentlemen who can muster strength on the first ballot.

Dark horses are not spoken of.

State Delegations Organized.

The several state delegations met and organized as follows:

Pennsylvania—Kelley C. Cox, for national committee; Malcolm Hay, resolutions.

Iowa—M. M. Ham, national committee; E. H. Thayer, resolutions.

Tennessee—Horace Maynard, national committee; Albert T. McNeil, resolutions.

New Hampshire—A. W. Talloway, national committee; Harry Bingham, resolutions. Delegation unanimous for Cleveland.

Maine—Edmund Wilson, national committee; D. R. Hastings, resolutions.

Nebraska—James R. Boyd, national committee; J. Sterling Morton, resolutions. A majority of the delegates are for Cleveland.

South Carolina—W. T. Dawson, national committee; D. Wyatt Aiken, resolutions.

Louisiana—R. F. Jonas, national committee; D. D. Bark, resolutions.

New York—A. S. Hewett, member of committee on organization; member of national committee not yet appointed.

Nevada—John H. Dennis, national committee; D. E. McCarthy, resolutions. The delegation is for no man but Tilden.

Kansas—C. W. Blair, national committee T. F. Fenton, resolutions.

Vermont—B. B. Smalley, national committee; J. J. Enright, resolutions. They have agreed to vote for Cleveland as a unit.

Connecticut—Thomas W. Waller, national committee; A. E. Burr, resolutions. They are solid for Cleveland.

Alabama—T. C. Clark, national committee; Gen. L. P. Walker, resolutions. They are divided between Bayard and Thurman.

West Virginia—Henry Bedle, national committee; ex-Senator H. G. Davis, resolutions. All are favorable to Randall.

Arkansas—J. J. Sumter, national committee.

Illinois—S. Corning Judd, national committee; William R. Morrison, resolutions.

Michigan—Don M. Dickinson, national committee; Timothy E. Tarney, resolutions.

California—M. Y. Turley, national committee; Gen. T. J. Clunie, resolutions. The delegation is solid for Thurman.

Maryland—Senator Gorham, national committee; Chas. J. Gwin, resolutions. The majority of the delegates are for Bayard.

Ohio—N. N. Armstrong, national committee; George L. Converse, resolutions.

Georgia—Patrick Walsh, national committee; E. F. Howell, resolutions.

Texas—A. T. Holt, national committee; D. C. Geddings, resolutions. They are uncertain over candidates.

Butler's Vote to be Challenged.

The Massachusetts delegation are said to be solid for Butler, except in the case of Mr. Prince. It is understood that Prince will challenge Gen. Butler's vote on account of his being a candidate on the Labor and Greenback ticket, and therefore unable to pledge himself for the nominee of the convention. It is said that when this occurs Mr. Butler will deliver a vigorous speech in defense of his position. The delegation was organized by electing the following officers and members of committees: Chairman, the Hon. G. Abbott; secretary, W. Coveny; organization, John Proctor Knowlton; resolutions, John W. Corcoran; resolutions, Gen. R. F. Butler; vice president for the state, James E. Estabrook.

The Ohio Delegation.

The Ohio delegation is badly mixed as to its preference for the presidential candidate. A prominent delegate states the probable standing as follows: Hoadly, 30; Thurman, 14, and the other two for Cleveland. No vote on this question was taken at the delegation however, and nothing definite can be said as to how they will stand. Mr. McLean was unanimously elected chairman of the delegation. It is said that he was given on the promise from McLean that he would not claim it as a victory for his views.

A. S. Howell has been chosen by the meeting of New Yorkers as a member of the committee on resolutions. Mr. Converse was chosen as the member on the same committee from the state meeting of the Fifteenth delegation. Mr. Warner, who aspired to the position, received but eighteen votes, against twenty-six for Mr. Converse.

The Territorial Delegation.

The executive committee of the territorial delegation appointed at a meeting of the full delegation met, at the latter's headquarters, and organized by the election of Samuel Ward, of Montana, chairman, and William Jefferson, of Dakota, Columbia, secretary. Reports received from the committees showed that over twenty state delegations still support the proposition to give the territories a vote in the convention. Senator Morrow will present the resolution.

Solid for Randall.

The Pennsylvania delegation selected Mr. Malcolm Hay as member of the committee on resolutions. Ex-Senator William B. Wallace will pass Samuel J. Randall in nomination before the convention. Mr. Randall arrived here this morning. The delegation is solid for him.

The Rules to be Adopted.

It has been decided to adopt the rules of the last Democratic convention with the following modification: That in voting for candidates for president and vice president no state will be allowed to change its vote until the roll of states has been called and every state has cast its vote.

All in Readiness.

The convention hall is now completed and in readiness for the opening. The hats and south ends, which are reserved for invited guests, are cut off from all communication with the square space in the centre devoted to delegates and alternates. Solid board partitions five feet high effect this result, and are too high to climb over and contain no opening. There is only one entrance for the delegates. This door is nearly in the centre of the building, and through it the delegates and alternates reach their seats, and they cannot possibly get anywhere else than in the space allotted to them. The reporters of the press are also at the same point. The press tables are on an inclined plane, running from a level with the speakers' stage downward. The delegates' seats are plank-covered opera chairs, while those of the alternates, which are separated from the delegates by a three-foot fence, are plain. The decorations are completed. They are quite handsome. Above the stage a mammoth flag of the nation is draped in large folds, with smaller flags for borders. Pictures of Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and Horatio Seymour are placed upon them. The full length of the galleries are decorated with stripes of red, white and blue, with the shields of the various states hung in the loops, and very large national flags unfurled at intervals of twenty feet, from each rafter the entire circumference of the building.

ROSWELL P. FLOWER.

R. R. Libby, of New York, asked yesterday, "Why is it that the Democratic party is using the cut of Adam Forepaugh, the circus man, and calling it a likeness of R. R. Flower, candidate for president? If the man is responsible for his picture, could not Forepaugh claim it as well as Flower?" The conundrum will, perhaps, never be solved.

A Street Parade.

About two-thirds of the delegations and visiting clubs made a street parade on the invitation of the Grover Cleveland democratic club. Over 6,000 men were in line and fifteen bands furnished the music. The visitors made a fine appearance, and received an enthusiastic greeting along the route.

The Latest Estimate.

A dispatch from Chicago to The New York Times says: Late canvass, made by one of Gov. Cleveland's friends, gives the following estimate of his vote:

Arkansas	12	Missouri	16
California	8	Nebraska	3
Florida	4	New Hampshire	4
Georgia	12	New Jersey	10
Illinois	22	North Carolina	10
Iowa	13	Pennsylvania	30
Kansas	11	South Carolina	14
Kentucky	13	Tennessee	12
Louisiana	8	Texas	8
Maine	12	Vermont	5
Maryland	8	Virginia	12
Michigan	22	West Virginia	4
Minnesota	7	Wisconsin	12

According to this canvass and estimate, Cleveland will get 453 votes on the first ballot.

Mr. Tilden Positively Declines.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The following is an authentic copy of a communication to Mr. Barnum, chairman of the National committee, from Mr. Tilden:

GREYSTONE, July 5, 1884.

To the Hon. Wm. H. Barnum, Chicago, Ill.:

I have received your telegram informing me of the disposition to nominate me for the presidency, and asking, "Will you accept a unanimous nomination from the convention?" and also a telegram from Mr. Manning, saying, "It seems absolutely necessary that you (I) should answer Barnum's telegram as soon as possible."

Your inquiry was explicitly answered in the negative by my letter of June 19 to Mr. Manning. S. J. TILDEN.

American Politics Abroad.

LONDON, July 8.—The Daily News editorially predicts the success of the Democrats in November if they nominate Cleveland at Chicago, but says that Tilden's candidacy would certainly insure the election of Mr. Blaine.

The Times thinks that Cleveland will secure the nomination, and that he can weather the opposition of John Kelly and Tammany Hall. Should Mr. Tilden, however, show a desire to reconsider his declination and accept candidature it will be "all up" with Cleveland.

The Times deprecates the practice of the Democrats throwing stones at the Republicans, and says neither party being able to show a clean bill.

Panic-Stricken on a Fire-Escape Balcony—Overcome with Terror and Ready to Jump for Life. Saved His Basket.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Flames shot over the housetops on Spring and Elm streets yesterday, and people came running in the quarters of Engine No. 30 on the next block above, crying that a row of tenement house was burning, and that a score of the tenants were shut up in the building by the stairways being on fire. When the firemen reached No. 210 Elm street, behind which a five-story tenement occupied by ten families, a wild scene of excitement and dismay was being enacted on the fire-escape balconies above the second floor.

The windows of the second story were blazing, and the fire, which had rushed up the staircase, was blazing fiercely out on the roof. A young man named Thomas Vaughn, who lives in the neighborhood, had clambered to the fourth story, where an Italian's family named Pasqua were standing panic-stricken on the fire-escape balcony, and had asked Jennie Pasqua, a girl of 16, to the roof. They stood on the roof, deterred by the flames issuing through the skylight from seeking a refuge on an adjoining building on Crosby street, and both came close to the coping apparently ready to jump to the sidewalk, 60 feet below. The crowd of people in the neighboring yards caused the young man to lead his companion to the windward of the flames, and both were soon safe in the Crosby street tenement.

A number of the other tenants were clambering down, but there still remained others on the fire-escapes when the firemen ran into the yard. Two Germans, a man and one or two old Italian, the grandfather of Jennie Pasqua, who stood on the balcony of the fourth floor hugging a small basket to his breast. He was unwilling to part with the basket, which, it is said, contained his savings, and could not descend the fire-escape while encumbered with it. A woman with a baby in her arms was standing on the same balcony, overcome with terror, and another was on the escape on the floor below ready to jump for her life. Firemen Wray and Pierce Farley went to the assistance of the woman and after they had landed both safely in the yard they ascended again and brought down the old Italian with the basket.

Shortly afterward hook and ladder No. 8 arrived, and as it was almost impossible to expeditiously bring a ladder through the front hallway, the firemen of the truck company buckled on their life-saving belts and carried their scaling ladders into the yard. A chain of ladders was quickly built up the front of the house, and the firemen entered every room to satisfy themselves that all the occupants had made good their escape. With the water from three hose lines the fire on the upper floors was under after it had caused a loss of about $1,000 to the building and the furniture of the occupants. The fire started in the second story rear room, and is supposed, by a carpenter, who occupied the half of the second floor, and he is the heaviest loser among the tenants.

MURDERED IN STREET BRAWLS.

Two Men and a Woman Killed in Brilliantly Assaults.

TROY, July 8.—Martin Hussey with gone beome accompanied by his brother, whereupon a party of four, including Hussey, set upon the latter. Tobin drew a pistol and fired. Martin fell shot through the neck, and died in fifteen minutes. Another shot wounded Hussey in the head, but he recovered. Allies to bolt, Matt Brier, Philip Dane and Henry Stolls, believed to be the assailants, are under arrest and will be examined Wednesday.

Clementina Gangem was assaulted by Napoleon Gravell in his saloon. He struck her with a bottle and fractured her skull. He is charged with murder in the first.

The third murder occurred in Albany. Michael Downey, aged 26, and Dennis Desmond, aged 35, quarreled at South Ferry Hotel. Dalton interfered. Downey drew a revolver and shot Desmond through the heart. Downey was arrested and jailed.

Results of Comparison.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 8.—Both daily papers of this city, The News (Republican), and Herald (Democratic), have stopped the Associated Press service and are now taking the United Press over the lines of the Bankers and Merchants Telegraph company. Both Dailies have taken the Associated Press report for over twenty years, and was local correspondent of the Associated Press. The change was made after a comparison of the two reports had satisfied that the United Press furnished the best.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—The Newport News, the only daily in the city, has ceased publication and is now being served with the United Press report.

Still Champion of the World.

LONDON, July 8.—The International amateur athletic meeting took place at Birmingham and was well attended. L. E. Meyers, the champion short distance runner of the world, brilliantly maintained his reputation by running a half mile in 1 minute 55 2-5 seconds, beating the record by one-fifth of a second. The last event in which the American was interested was the 120 yards race, in which Wood, of London, beat Arthur Waldron by half a yard; and the mile race, which was won by Snook, with Harry Frost, of Chicago, second.

O'Brien Wins the Libel Suit.

DUBLIN, July 8.—The trial of the suit of Sergeant Cornwall, for criminal libel against Mr. William O'Brien, editor of United Ireland, for £2000 damages for libel, was ended by a verdict in favor of the defendant. The court-room was crowded by friends of Mr. O'Brien, who, immediately on hearing the announcement of the former, exhibited their satisfaction in a demonstration. The presiding judge threatened to have the court closed. Quiet was, however, restored, and Mr. O'Brien, the defendant, was carried out in triumph by his admirers.

Died While Singing a Hymn.

BROOKLYN, July 8.—As he was taking part in the singing of a hymn at an Sunday morning in the Emmanuel Baptist church, Mr. Elijah Lewis, a dry goods merchant, 67 years of age, who lives at No. 186 Montague street, this city, suddenly became faint, fell to the floor of the edifice and died. Mr. Lewis had for some time been suffering from heart disease. He was a deacon of the First Baptist church on Henry street, and one of the managers of the Baptist Home.

Crazed With Religion.

LONDON, July 8.—Col. Kitchener has telegraphed the government from Assouan urging the imperitive necessity of preparation against an uprising of Arabs after the fall of Khartoum, which is now in progress, has ended. He states that they are already becoming crazed with religious fervor, and that the government should make every preparation for these hostilities.

ADJOURNED SINE DIE.

The Forty-Eighth Congress Ends Its Lengthy Session.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The senate received a message from the house announcing non-concurrence in the senate amendment to the bill making temporary provision for the naval service. The amendment provided for continuing work on the monitor Monadnock. After some debate the senate receded from its amendment.

On motion of Mr. Bayard a vote of thanks was given to Mr. Edmunds for the ability, courtesy and impartiality with which he had performed the duties of the president pro tempore.

Mr. Allison, chairman of the appropriation committee, summarized the work of congress on the appropriation bills. He said the whole amount of this year's bills in excess of last was $21,000,000. The excess arose largely from the fact that last year we had no river and harbor bill, while this year that bill amounted to $15,000,000. The total appropriations this year were $190,301,-287.13. In respect to one or two features of the naval bill this amount was estimated, but the variation would probably be less than $200,000 from the amount he had mentioned. This aggregate did not include re-appropriations, which for pensions alone this year amounted to $60,000,000, raising the aggregate to $250,301,287.13.

After a few remarks by Mr. Edmunds, the senate adjourned at 3 o'clock.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—In the absence of Speaker Carlisle, who started at 3 o'clock yesterday morning for Chicago, the House was called to order by the clerk, and on motion of Mr. Randall Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn of Kentucky was elected temporary speaker.

Messrs. Randall, Turner of Georgia, and Hiscock, who were appointed a committee to wait upon the president and ascertain whether he had any further communications to make to the House, performed that duty and announced that the president had no further communication to make.

The House then passed a number of pension bills which had already been passed by the Senate, and at 3 o'clock p. m. Mr. Blackburn declared the House adjourned.

THE DREAD DISEASE.

Not One-half of the Deaths Believed to be Reported.

PARIS, July 8.—Despite the official reports showing thirteen deaths from cholera at Marseilles, it transpires that the actual number is twenty-seven. It is believed that the Toulon report does not indicate more than half the number of deaths that have occurred in that city during the past twenty-four hours.

BERLIN, July 8.—Dr. Koch's report and expression of opinion that the cholera will attend into Germany has created a semi-panic on the Berlin Bourse.

PARIS, July 8.—The official reports state that seventeen deaths from cholera have occurred at Toulon during the past twenty-four hours, and at Marseilles thirteen.

Whole Orchards Leveled.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 8.—Later reports from the northern section of this county indicate that the storm of Saturday night was much more severe than at first supposed. In some sections it assumed the nature of a tornado, leveling whole orchards, uprooting groves of shade trees and blowing down barns, tobacco sheds and other outbuildings. A heavy fall of hail is also reported, inflicting severe injury on the growing tobacco.

Freeman Wins Easily.

PORTLAND, Me., July 8.—The five-mile single scull races between Teemer and Conley was rowed at Lake Sebago at 4 P. M., Teemer easily winning in 34 minutes and 10 seconds. Conley's time, 34 minutes and 10½ seconds. Teemer adopted Hanlan's trick of pulling away from his antagonist and then resting on his oars. About $700 changed hands on the contest. Before the race Teemer sold 100 to 85, and after the start 100 to 50.

The Dead Fish.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 8.—Seth Green, the veteran fish commissioner, says the dead fish floating in Lake Ontario are not shad, as stated in an Associated Press dispatch. The latter fish are safe in the deep schools, and the weakest ones, unable to get food, starve to death. He asserts further that the scarcity of white fish is due alone to overfishing with pond nets.

A Train Plunges Through a Bridge.

GALVESTON, Tex., July 8.—A Denison dispatch says that a Missouri Pacific southbound freight train was precipitated through a burning bridge near Chicota. Ten cars were wrecked and burned. The head breakman, named Mason, was killed. He has a family at Buffalo, N. Y.

Was the Meat Poisoned?

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 8.—The Times' special from Erie, Pa., says: Mrs. Curry prepared a dinner of canned beef, of which she, her husband and three children partook. Shortly after, the entire family were seized with frightful spasms. Physicians pronounced them poisoned by arsenic, and believe that the children will die.

Result of a Change.

JASPER, Ind., July 8.—The postoffice and adjoining building were found to be in flames at an early hour yesterday morning. The contents were saved and buildings partly saved. The fire was undoubtedly incendiary, and is attributed to a bitter feeling engendered by a recent change of postmasters.

American Securities in London.

LONDON, July 8.—The market for American securities has been greatly oversold within the past few days. Denver and Rio Grande shares and bonds showed a decided weakness, owing to large sales ordered for account of Amsterdam holders.

Looks Like Another.

LIVERPOOL, July 8.—The Philadelphia team met the Liverpool club in a game of cricket, scoring 185 runs in the first inning. The Liverpool team had scored 21 runs, with two wickets down, when the game was closed for the day.

Society Belles Drowned.

NORFOLK, Va., July 8.—Misses Susie Gibson and Charlotte Williams, two well-known Richmond belles, were drowned at Old Point while bathing. The body of Miss Gibson has been recovered, but Miss Williams is not yet found.

To Raise Funds.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 8.—The stockholders of the Merino mill, to raise funds, voted to reduce the capital stock from $110,-000 to $55,000, and then voted to increase its capital stock from $55,000 to $135,000.

One Hundred and Three Years Old.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 8.—Phoebe Peck has died in Westfield at the great age of 103 years. She was born in Charleston, Saratoga county, and has been a resident of Westfield since 1827.

Sporting Men Come to Grief.

NEW ORLEANS, N. Y., July 8.—The police raided ten of the most notorious gambling dens, and seventy-five of the sporting fraternity were arrested.

OUR PORTRAIT GALLERY

Persons Prominently Before the Public at the Present Time.

Mrs. John A. Logan, W. H. Calkins, Gen. Sloeum, Wm. L. Roach, S. T. Randall, Potter Palmer and Prof. Wiggins.

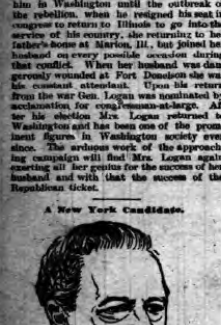
An Ardent Supporter of the Republican Ticket.

MRS. JOHN A. LOGAN.

The most enthusiastic woman supporter of the Republican ticket is Mrs. John A. Logan. It has been said time and again that Mrs. Logan writes her husband's speeches; that she aids her lord and master out of the grammatical messes which grow thick and fast over a neglected education, the facts being that she takes charge of his correspondence, reads all his letters, and lays the contents before him. She will also search the libraries, and copy the facts on any subject on which her husband desires to be informed or wishes to speak. The American ancestry of Mrs. Logan goes back to revolutionary times, her great grandparents being a sturdy Irish settler of Virginia and a French pioneer of Louisiana. Her father, Capt. John M. Cunningham, served in the fierce Black Hawk war. Her mother was Miss Hinsdath Pentzinc, whose family had removed from Louisiana and settled in Missouri. It was here that John Cunningham met his bride, and it was near the present village of Sturgeon, then known as Petersburg, in Boone county, Mo., that Mary Simmerson Logan was born, on August 15, 1838. When she was four years of her parents removed to Illinois and settled at Marion, in Williamson county. In 1850 she was sent to the convent of St. Vincent, near Morganfield, Ky., a branch of the Nazareth institute, the oldest institution of the kind in the country. This was the nearest educational establishment of sufficient advancement in the higher branches of knowledge. Having graduated in 1855, Miss Cunningham returned to assist her father, who was sheriff of the county, clerk of the circuit and register of the land office, in preparing his papers. John A. Logan was prosecuting attorney of the district and that same year they were married, the bride being but sixteen years of age. From this time on she has been his almost constant companion and helpmeet. Accompanying him on all his professional journeys during the political campaigns from the time he was elected a member of the legislature until he took his seat in congress.

In all these hard-fought political campaigns the noble wife went with her husband, assisting in much of his work of correspondence and research, frequently receiving his friends and conferring with them on the details of the campaign. When Mr. Logan came to congress as a representative Mrs. Logan came with him. She remained with him in Washington until the outbreak of the rebellion, when he resigned his seat in congress to return to Illinois to go into the service of his country, she returning to her father's home at Marion, Ill., but joined her husband on every possible occasion during that conflict. When her husband was dangerously wounded at Fort Donelson she was his constant attendant. Upon his return from the war Gen. Logan was nominated by acclamation for congressman-at-large. After he election Mrs. Logan returned to Washington and has been one of the prominent figures in Washington society ever since. The arduous work of the approaching campaign will find Mrs. Logan again exerting all her genius for the success of her husband and with that the success of the Republican ticket.

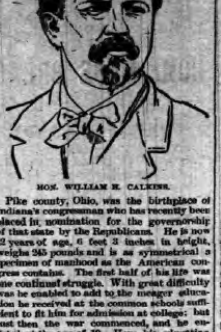
A New York Candidate.



GEN. HENRY WADSWORTH SLOCUM.

Though a congressman-at-large from the state of New York, Gen. Slocum's name has been brought more prominently before the public of late in connection with the proposed National Democratic convention. A native of Syracuse, New York state, where he was born September 24, 1827. Young Slocum graduated from West Point in 1852, and entered the First artillery, being assigned to duty in Florida, where he served for two years, when he resigned, was admitted to the bar and settled in Syracuse as a lawyer. In 1859 he was elected to the state legislature. In 1861 he went to the war as colonel of the Thirty-second New York volunteers, and joined McDowell's army; was assigned to Col. Porter's brigade, Hunter's division; was shot through the thigh at Bull Run; was promoted brigadier-general of volunteers in August, 1861; commanded a division at Suffolk, Md., and Glendale; became a major general July 4, 1862, and fought through the battles of Manassas, South Mountain and Antietam, commanded the Twelfth army corps at Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg; led the Twentieth army corps through the Atlanta campaign, and commanded one of the grand divisions of Sherman's army in the march through Georgia and the Carolinas, ending with the memorable skirmishes and battles of the campaign; resigned in 1865 and settled in Brooklyn, N. Y., for a time, was elected from there to congress in 1868, serving two terms. In 1880 he was returned as a congressman-at-large.

The Republican Nominee for Governor of Indiana.



HON. WILLIAM H. CALKINS.

Pike county, Ohio, was the birthplace of Indiana's congressman who has recently been placed in nomination for the governorship of that state by the Republicans. He is now 49 years of age, 6 feet 3 inches in height, weighs 245 pounds and is as symmetrical a specimen of manhood as the American congress contains. The first half of his life was one continued struggle. With great difficulty was he enabled to add to the meager education he received at the common schools sufficient to fit him for admission at college; but just then the war commenced, and he enlisted at the age of 19. Here his education was continued at Fort Henry and Fort Donelson. At bloody Shiloh he was taken prisoner and confined at Libby prison. From here he escaped in time to take part in the battle of Nashville and the whole Atlanta campaign. In the siege of Spanish Fort and Fort Blakely he continued his military education graduating at the close of the war with the title of brevet lieutenant colonel. Then came a struggle with poverty. All the male members of his and his wifes' families having either died or been killed in the war, he found himself with two families to support and no trade or profession. He immediately set about studying law, which he mastered sufficiently to be admitted to the bar in a very short time. In 1866 he was elected state attorney and served four years. In 1871 he was elected to the Indiana state legislature. In 1876 he was first elected to congress, and has been returned on the expiration of each term since. During his second term in congress he was a member of the committee on elections, and in the forty-seventh congress chairman of the same committee. He was placed in nomination for governor of Indiana by the Republican state convention on the first ballot by a majority of eighty-two votes over Col. Dudley, his chief competitor.

A Prominent Pennsylvania Congressman.

SAMUEL J. RANDALL

was born in Philadelphia October 10, 1828, where he received a good academic education, pursuing his studies with a view to mercantile life. His school days over, he entered the counting room of a mercantile house; but his father-in-law, the late Joshua Randall, had developed in him a fondness for political life, and the duties of a merchant were perforce rather distasteful. In 1852 he accompanied his father to Cincinnati to assist in the nomination of Buchanan. For four years Mr. Randall was a member of the city council, familiarizing himself with city politics and making such acquaintances which was afterward to push his political fortunes. In 1858, he was elected to the state senate, of which he was a conspicuous member. When, in the winter of 1860-61 the civil war began, he was in the legislature and was also a member of the "First troop, Philadelphia city cavalry," which took its name from a company formed in 1774. Immediately after the fall of Fort Sumpter, the troop tendered its services to the government, and were accepted May 13, 1861, for ten months' service days. In 1862 Mr. Randall was elected to congress from the Third district, and has been continuously re-elected, having served on every committee of importance in that body since. In 1876 he was elected speaker, at a time when the people were very much excited over the disputed election, and even after the electoral commission had decided there were those in the house who proposed to filibuster and prevent the announcement of the result. Mr. Randall should expire by constitutional limitation. White he could filibuster when necessary to defeat a bill he considered injurious to the country, he was fully as able to shoot obstruction when the country was in peril from it. Mr. Randall remained speaker until 1881.

A Minister's Criticism.

[Rev. T. B. Forbush.]

The third commandment against the class of goody-goody books written principally for Sunday-school libraries, which teach directly, or by implication, that all bad boys break their legs or get drowned, while all the good boys and girls die young and go to heaven. Perhaps the evil here lies partly in the reaction which sends youth to the other extreme; but the effect of such stuff on the children's minds with, and because of its untruth to nature and life, should be studiously avoided.

Proportion of Students.

[Exchange.]

Out of a population of 35,000,000, England sends 5,000 students to her two universities; Scotland, with a population of 4,000,000 has 4,000 university students, and Germany, with a population of 45,000,000 has 20,000 in her various universities. The New England states, with a population of 4,110,000, sends 4,600 students to their eighteen colleges and universities.

There is a reason in England that the fisherman army is about to organize a battalion of bicycle and tricycle corps.

Mr. Spurgeon calls those sermons that "dish up the same meat in many times" "cold mutton."

I WOULD NOT.

[J. Allen McDonald.]

I would not live till snows of time
Lie drifted in my tresses,
Till to my ears no more be chime
Rings to the years an answering rhyme,
Leaps not to love's caresses.

I would not care to mourn my dead,
Where'er they sleep, or sorrow
For time reels on with tireless tread
And for our loves, he leaves instead
Their memories to borrow.

I would not wait 'till winter's night
Enfolds me, wild and hoary,
And brings within my soul a blight,
As shadows sweep across the light
And shroud its splendid glory.

Ah, no! while yet my years are young
I would the gods should call me!
With half my song as yet unsung,
And youth's fair dream not more flung,
Lo! pallid death enthrall me.

And when upon his breast I lie,
His lips my eyelids kissing,
Oh, friends! pass me lightly by
The lowly dead, whose hopes were high,
But cry, "his face is missing."

LUXURY OF NEW YORK.

Picture of a Superbly Furnished New York City House.

[Cor. Boston Herald.]

The luxury of New York life is ever increasing. Here is a picture of a house which has become famous for its hospitality. The present mansion represents the wealth of two houses turned into one. As the right as one enters, is the library, rich in bric-a-brac, and furnished with Gobelin tapestry. The hostess receives them in the afternoon. Next comes a little music-room in blue and gold, containing cabinets with choice specimens of bric-a-brac, and enameled clocks and watches. One passes through this into the banquet hall, which is twenty-five feet square. Gobelin tapestry lines the walls, covers the table, and hangs over the doors. Two enormous plush portieres have applique work composed of old Spanish saddlebags, and are bordered with gold and silver embroidery derived from the clothes of the Spanish Court. The young daughter of the house, from the brush of Carolus Duran, over the fireplace. Ancestral plate is heaped upon a massive sideboard, and the cabinet contains a celebrated dessert service of English porcelain, designed expressly from some of Angelica Kaufmann's most celebrated painting, and valued at about $5,000. The square table seats about twenty-four guests, and when covered with superb varieties of roses—always one color, pink, red or yellow—and glittering with soup plates of gold repoussie work, presents a brilliant sight. The guests are seated in carved high-back chairs, and over all is the tender illumination coming from silver candelabra and lamps shaded in pale blue and rose color. Six servants wait at the table. Superb bouquets of pink roses tied with pink satin ribbons, and such substantial accessories as vinaigrettes and bon bonnieres, are given every lady.

The dinner-room opens on the left into a billiard-room, where there are some excellent pictures, and thence one emerges into a large, square hall, which extends to the top of the house. Here the Hungarian band is stationed through dinner. The hall has an enormous fireplace, chairs covered with old petit point tapestry, and, for decoration, a number of stag heads, shot by the host on his Scotch moors. The next floor above contains a $15,000 a year, competent 60,000 serve, and covers a territory of nine miles. From the rear of the hall arrange a nursery, supported by a wrought steel chain. The stairway is of carved oak, and would do credit to an old English manor house. The ball-room, which opens into the hall, is a large, square apartment, fitted up in the Louis Treize. The walls are in white and gold, panels of cupids, painted by some French artist, adorn the ceiling, and the gilt furniture is covered with crimson and gold velvet brocade. The onyx tables, mounted in ormolu, are superb. The room is lighted with electricity, and is the favorite where the bratons received her guests. The portieres are of altar cloths, purchased abroad, and remarkable for their old Spanish and Italian embroideries.

The Last Whig Convention.

A writer in The Home (N. H.) Sentinel gives reminiscences of the last national Whig convention, which was held in Baltimore, and relates these incidents: "The weather was intensely hot during the days of the convention, and the nights were so hot that the streets were thronged with people who could not sleep. There were some 20,000 visitors to the convention from outside of Baltimore. It was necessary to quiet the restless crowds that gathered about Barnum's hotel and in Monument square, on which the hotel fronted, by the band playing for their benefit at different times from 1,000 to 5,000, and here they would remain through nearly the whole night, night after night. To keep them quiet a platform was built before one of the front windows of the hotel, from which speakers would address them. The speakers would vary from dull to lively; from dry to eloquent and entertaining, and among those of the latter kind the crowd would become impatient and force them to stop.

"We give a few examples of the stopping process. A speaker began: 'I am from the state of New York—a state great by her great rivers, great by her majestic lakes, great by her towering mountains—' 'Yes,' ejaculated an impatient listener, 'and great by her orators!' and the speaker immediately squatted down. Another speaker arose and in a fervent way of the Empire State began to speak frequently of him as a 'veteran warhorse.' 'We don't want a horse,' cried an anti-Scott man, 'we want a statesman!' and this speaker sat down."

Running a Hole Out of Town.

[New York Times.]

A friend who has been traveling in Mexico, brings back a good story illustrative of the peculiar lack of inventiveness of the people of our sister republic. A church was lately built at Lagos, on the main line of the Mexican Central railroad. When the faithful the fathers were annoyed to find that a big hole, from which the clay for the adobe used in constructing the edifice had been excavated, remained directly in front of the main entrance. Orders were given to have the unsightly hole filled up. This was done by shoveling into it earth and clay from the extreme end of the lot. Then it was filled up other hole, and so the painstaking Mexicans went to work and filled that up in like manner, leaving another gap in the ground, which was then filled, and the operation was repeated until the hole was run out of town, so to speak, and the good fathers congratulated themselves on being rid of an unsightly nuisance. People who think that the Mexicans are not more enterprising than they are, will find in this little tale one explanation of the difficulty which stands in the way of a rapid development of the country.

Drawing the Crowd.

[Bismarck Tribune.]

When a horse goes to Mexico he gives his driver a little strychnine pill to keep up sufficient wind, and this causes the people to think it a new kind of mixed drink and they crowd the bars to their utmost capacity.

To Our Friends.

The Reform Club of Plainfield having realized generous cash contributions sufficient to pay for the entire title to the property formerly known as the Second Baptist Church, corner of Second street and Central avenue, this city, and funds being likewise available, chiefly through the noble exertions of the Christian Temperance ladies, to furnish and equip the purchased building when properly altered and repaired for the practical use of the Club, re-joyfully though urgently appeal to the liberality and kindly feelings of the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity for additional means to fully complete such needed alteration and repairs.

The good work already accomplished by the Reform Club, under the supporting aegis of Divine Providence and the still greater work, including future efforts, certainly commend it to the favorable consideration and support of every friend of humanity.

The pecuniary demands made upon the public for various laudable objects, cause hesitancy on the part of the Club to solicit further aid, but valuing as its members do the all important Temperance reformation they are striving to permanently establish, emboldens them to thus ask and induces them to believe, that early and substantial encouragement will follow the asking.

Donations to the aforesaid purposes to the extent of individual ability and inclination, will be thankfully received and acknowledged by the officers of the Club, or either member of its Executive or Building Committees, the names of whom are hereunto subscribed.

—For the additional convenience of his guests and accommodation of residents in the vicinity, Mr. Johnston, the popular manager of the Park House, has just fitted up a tonsorial apartment in the hotel, and secured the service of Mr. Maynard, the North avenue barber, to attend to their wants in this respect.

—A horse belonging to John Walker backed into a small passageway in the rear of his store on Park avenue yesterday afternoon. In order to get the horse out the stone wall of the passage way had to be taken down, and the earth dug away. The horse was uninjured, which fact, considering the nature of the accident, was very fortunate.

Installing a Pastor.

A few weeks ago the people of this city had the pleasure of attending the ordination and installation of the new pastor of the Congregational Church. Last evening they had the pleasure of attending the installation of the new pastor of the Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Rev. William R. Richards. Mr. Richards comes from the Congregational Church, of Bath, Me., and is very highly spoken of.

The church was nearly filled last evening with the members of the church and congregation and their friends. The exercises were after the following order:

Organ Voluntary.
Anthem, "O come, let us sing." Holden.
Invocation.
Reading of Scripture.
Prayer.
Hymn 121, "Ye Servants of God."
Sermon, Rev. John Gillespie, D. D.
Hymn 109, "O holy Lord, our God."
Constitutional Questions, Rev. W. E. Honeyman.
Installation Prayer, Rev. W. E. Honeyman.
Anthem, "Lovely Appear," Gounod.
Charge to Pastor, Rev. John C. Baxter, D. D.
Charge to People, Rev. K. P. Ketcham, D. D.
Prayer.
Hymn 105, "With Heavenly Power."
Benediction, Rev. W. R. Richards.
Welcome to Pastor.
Organ Voluntary, Coronation March, Meyerbeer.

The sermon by the Rev. Dr. Gillespie, of the Westminster Church, Elizabeth, was on the theme, "God's Presence with People and Pastor," and was a very able and earnest discourse. The entire service was interesting and attentively followed throughout.

Cruelty to Animals.

To the Editor of THE NEWS:

I believe there is a law in New Jersey for the prevention of cruelty to animals, but do people know about it, and is it ever enforced? I have seen and heard of so many acts of cruelty lately to birds, toads, and the larger animals, some committed by children and allowed by their parents, that I think it is time somebody spoke in behalf of the helpless creatures who cannot speak for themselves. A few days ago, a woman threw a half grown kitten from a second story window, on West Third street, and left it in the street to suffer. Will not our good Mayor, who has done so nobly in other things, come to the rescue and let such brutes in human form know that there is a penalty for every such cowardly act! HUMANITY.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Abram Snediker, a resident of Jamaica, L. I., came to this city a short time ago to be treated for Bright's disease by Dr. Fields. Yesterday afternoon at half-past five o'clock he was out riding, and before eight he was dead. During the early part of the evening he was seized with an apoplectic fit which caused his death.

Personal.

Mr. Charles Guion, who went to Denver, Col., several weeks since, for the benefit of his health, writes that he has been very much improved by his sojourn there.

Mr. William R. Carr, of New York, has again taken the Ketcham cottage on Fifth street for the summer.

Hotel Arrivals.

LAING'S HOTEL—L. Morris, N. Y.; C. G. Watkins, Keene, N. H.; L. Murphy, Reading, Pa.; Harry H. Schroder, N. Y.; Mrs. L. Harris, M. H. Clarkson and wife, J. C. Clarkson, Newark.

Camden will be represented by six delegates in the National Prohibition convention which will be held in Pittsburg July 23.

THE COUNCIL MEETING.

The Police Ordinance Amended—The Streets to be Macadamized—Other Business Transacted.

Pursuant to adjournment the Common Council met last evening for the transaction of regular business.

Present—President Corsell, Councilmen Dumont, Gardner, Livingston, Love, Marsh, Wadsworth and West. Absent—Beguelin, Ross and Simpson.

The reading of the minutes was dispensed with and the regular order of business proceeded with.

The following were read and referred to he Finance Committee. The Treasurer's report for the quarter ending June 30, and the City Collector's report for the month ending June 30.

A communication from Craig A. Marsh, Corporation Counsel, requesting a leave of absence was read and referred to the committee on Laws.

The Communication related the condition of the legal affairs of the city, and also stated that Mayor Maxson had consented to perform the duties of Corporation Counsel during Mr. Marsh's absence.

Leave of absence had been granted at the meeting Monday evening.

Thirty claims were introduced, passed through the various committees and paid.

The Committee on Licenses reported favorably on the applications of various persons for cartman's and peddler's licenses, and the same were on motion granted.

The report of the Police Committee being informal, rule 39 was suspended on motion of Councilman Marsh, to enable one member of any committee to sign bills for salaries, so that the same could be paid.

Councilman Wadsworth of the Finance Committee availed himself of the privileges thus afforded and had sundry bills in his care ordered paid.

A communication was received from George W. Moore, offering to collect back taxes to 1879 for 10 per cent. of the amount collected, and those due since for five per cent. Referred.

Councilman Dumont submitted a communication from Corporation Counsel Marsh, accompanied by a survey, relating to presumed encroachments by the P. and R. R. Co. at the Washington street crossing. These were found to be about two inches, but the explanation was satisfactory. New girders will span the street without columns.

On motion of Councilman Marsh it was resolved that the Collector of Assessments report delinquents and furnish a description of property in arrears, and that the same be ordered sold.

A NEW POLICE ORDINANCE.

Section 3 of the City Ordinances, which relates to the removal of officers for misconduct, was unanimously amended on motion of Councilman Marsh. The amendment provides that in the case of a policeman charged with any neglect or misconduct, the charges shall be made direct to the Police Board, who shall give the policeman a hearing, if he desires it, and may suspend him, if guilty, for a period not exceeding three months, without pay; or, if they consider that he should be expelled from the force, they shall so report at the next regular meeting of Common Council, who may expell such policeman, six votes being necessary on any of the charges preferred.

AN ORDINANCE ON PUBLIC MORALS.

By request of Mayor Maxson, the ordinance relating to the morals, etc., was on motion of Mr. Marsh, unanimously amended to prohibit the selling, giving or delivering of any intoxicating liquors to minors, or to persons intoxicated or addicted to intoxication, under a penalty of fine, not exceeding $100, or imprisonment not exceeding 60 days, all other ordinances inconsistent therewith being repealed.

A communication was presented by Councilman Dumont from George W. Moore, notifying Common Council that he had claim to all the Commission in the case of Levy Hatfield, at five per cent. on the sum of $398.83. Collector Johnson also claimed commission thereon at six per cent. Mr. Marsh stated that there was no question in his mind about the correctness of Mr. Moore's right to the commission, and Mr. Dumont considered that the city should not be called upon to pay both claims, amounting to 11 per cent. The whole matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

MACADAMIZING STREETS.

Mr. Dumont, as chairman of the Street Committee, stated that, at the last regular meeting, a proposition was received from Mr. Wilson to supply the city with crushed stone at $1.70 per ton, including delivery. The committee, he said, do not think it desirable to take any vessel at the quarry, believing that there would be a saving in the cost of cartage. To this end it was on his motion resolved that the Committee on Streets be empowered to contract for a supply of stone at the rate of $1.70 cents per ton at the quarry, or $2 per ton delivered in any part of the city north of Ninth street, and between Richmond street and Plainfield avenue.

Discussion was had on the resolution, on the propriety of the city purchasing its own crusher, some of the members favoring the purchase of one at once, others favoring delay until next year.

Mr. Dumont reported that the Street Committee required an extra appropriation of something over $1,400 for the year, for repairs of streets and sewers. So ordered.

The Street Committee were directed to report on the advisability of a resolution offered by Mr. Serrell to improve the drainage of Plainfield avenue at Second street.

Mr. Serrell called the attention of the committee, under misunderstanding at this point, several days after a rain. Mr. Serrell offers permission to run the drain through his property to the brook.

Upon the favorable report of the Auditing Committee, on the bills for salaries of city officials, the rules were suspended and the same ordered paid.

A customary private detective fund, at a contingent police, of $100 was voted to be expended by the Mayor at his discretion for detective work.

On motion of Mr. Corsell, (Mr. Love in the chair) it was resolved that the Law and Ordinance Committee confer with residents and property owners on Plainfield avenue between Second and Third streets about setting their fences back to the city line.

Mr. Corsell stated that property owners requested that some action be taken in the matter, because many of the fences now are beyond the boundary.

Adjourned.

Democratic Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE NEWS.]

Chicago, July 9. 11:00 a. m.

Convention assembling. Immense cheers on entering.

A motion to reconsider vote on Unit rule to be made. Senator Grady denies that Tammany will bolt, or ask reconsideration of the vote.

Convention called to order at 11:15 a. m.

Committee on Credentials reported in favor of allowing each Territory and the District of Columbia two votes.

Miller offered resolution changing term of Presidency to six years. Referred without reading.

Convention much wild over the appearance of Thurman which is considered significant.

Committee on Permanent Organization named W. C. Vilas, of Wisconsin, for President of the Convention.

Vilas was escorted to the platform by Hendricks, of Indiana, and others, and was received with cheers.

In his speech to the Convention Vilas advised harmony, and predicted victory for the party.

Resolution to adjourn till to-morrow lost. Motion to nominate at three p. m. was voted down, though close over 50 resolutions intended as planks for the platform were presented and referred, it having been decided that all resolutions pertaining to the platform should be referred without reading.

Grady challenges vote. Demands call of delegates. Great confusion—hisses.

Chairman rules, "Won't accept challenge of vote."

Gov. Waller of Connecticut arose to a question of privilege. He asked that spectators either be prevented from hissing and interrupting or that the halls be cleared.

Chair upholds him. Great excitement.

Chairman states that no objection could be made by delegates till the roll of States was completed. Roll call proceeding.

Motion to lay resolution that Convention proceed to present candidates on table lost—ayes, 256; nays, 552.

Grady stated that the vote of New York was 40 nays; 19 ayes, 4 absent.

Chicago, 3:00 p. m.

Mr. Grady was listened to with great attention. His mention of Bayard's qualities cheered, and his name received with much enthusiasm. Indiana reached and Hendricks takes the platform amid cheers, to present McDonald.

Chicago, 3:30 p. m.

Delegates and audience rise to meet Hendricks with cheers, waving hats and handkerchiefs. Three cheers for Hendricks given with a will.

Chicago, 3:45 p. m.

Hendricks said the question of Reform was one of paramount importance. He was listened to with great attention throughout. When he named McDonald there was much cheering.

Chicago, 4 p. m.

At the close of Hendricks' speech there were more cheers for McDonald, coupled with the name of Hendricks.

Gen. Black of Illinois seconds the nomination of McDonald.

Chicago, 4:15 p. m.

Black presented McDonald's claim in a very eloquent manner, and created a marked impression.

John W. Bainbridge, of Col., presented the name of Thurman. When Thurman's name was mentioned, there was great and long cheering. The audience and many delegates rising to their feet.

Fire Board Meeting.

The Fire Board held their meeting for July in the parlors of Granite Engine Company's house last evening. Present,—President Van Winkle and Messrs. Morris, Cutter, Livingston and Jones. Absent,—Mr. Depew.

The following names were proposed for membership of the different companies:

Alert Hose Co., No. 1.—John W. Murray, Jr., E. J. Cooley, J. L. Moore, F. Van Emburgh and L. B. Wright.

Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co.,—Geo. Ball and Thos. Fabee. These were laid over for the customary thirty days.

Engine Co., No. 1, sent in the names of the following members for expulsion, the cause being non-payment of dues: Henry Lutz, A. Murphy and L. Green. The action of the company was confirmed and the members were expelled. They also sent in the name of Adam Beck, for disorderly conduct and assault, which was laid over for thirty days.

The same company presented the name of Thos. L. Anderson and Jas. G. Connolly for active membership. Confirmed.

Mr. Thos. Price then sent in a communication stating that he had not been notified by Granite Engine Company of their action in expelling him, and hoped the Board would take no action on his name. The communication was laid over for thirty days.

Engine Co., No. 2, sent in the names of Wm. Warnock and Peter Richert for expulsion for non-payment of dues. The names were laid over for thirty days.

The different companies applied for exemption certificates for the following persons: Granite Engine Co., No. 1—S. C. Ryder; Plainfield Engine Co., No. 2—John Kelly; Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co., No. 1—N. W. Conway and J. L. Shepherd. Referred to the Secretary.

Mr. L. J. Weigle, was proposed for a member of Warren Engine Co., No. 3. Laid over for thirty days.

The following bills were presented and ordered paid:

T. O Donne, $20 36; G W Grant, $3; Plainfield Gas Light Co., $70 90; J E Flannery, $12; John Kelly, $5 20; John Kiley, $5 20; Isaac Taynor, $2 20; Chas Abis, $7; P Kiley, $2 20; Abraham Freeman, $3; A Love, Jr., $4 50; C L Davis, $2 20; W B Maiter, $1; J A Rogers, $137 80.

The following bills were referred to the committee on Repairs and Supplies: Carney Bros., $51 85; and J E Flannery, $15.

A communication was then read by the Secretary from Mr. J. Howard Wilson claiming that the action taken by Engine Co., No. 2, in expelling Robert Manning and Wm. Craig was void, it being done at a special meeting. The names were referred back to the company for correction.

Mr. Morris then offered a resolution to the effect that no person was a member of any company until he was confirmed by the Board. The resolution was carried.

Also that the Chief Engineer be directed to obtain a list of the members of the different companies so that the Board could expell those who do not live in the city or do active fire duty, the Board claiming that they were defrauding the city of taxes and the county of jurymen. The resolution was carried.

Also, that Mr. J. A. Moore, the Foreman of Granite Engine Co., No. 1, be appointed by the Board as Senior Foreman, and act as Chief Engineer in the absence of the Chief or Assistants at a fire. Carried.

A resolution was then offered by Mr. Morris that a Fire Patrol be appointed by the Chief Engineer, not to exceed five men from each company, to protect property and keep all persons except firemen and reporters outside of the ropes. The resolution was carried.

A communication from Engine Company, No. 2, was then read, requesting the Board to procure them a pair of spring hinges for their engine house doors. Referred to the Committee on Repairs and Supplies.

Also a communication from Granite Engine Co., No. 1, stating that their steam heating apparatus was out of order and that they needed a new one. Referred to Committee on Repairs and Supplies with power to repair the old one.

The meeting then adjourned.

State Matters.

The corner stone of the new Masonic Temple at Trenton, will be laid on the 15th instant, with imposing ceremonies.

David Peters, of Philadelphia, while alighting from a seaside train at the Pennsylvania Railroad depot in Canden Sunday evening had his left foot mashed by falling under the car.

A sad drowning accident occurred yesterday in Barnegat Bay, just below the pier at Seaside. Captain Jacob Grant, who was taking a party out for a sail, was knocked overboard by the jibing of the boom of his boat. The party managed to steer the yacht to the direction of the sinking man, and a rope was thrown, which the Captain grabbed as he came to the surface for the last time, but being greatly exhausted by his struggles he let go his hold and was drowned. The deceased was a general favorite among the people of the hotel. The body was not recovered.

RECENT LEGAL DECISIONS OF INTEREST TO BUSINESS MEN.

A judgment against a joint debtor, obtained in an action upon the joint contract against him alone, is a bar to a subsequent action on such contract against the other joint debtor, according to the decision of the Supreme Court of Indiana, in the recently decided case of Lawrence, administrator, vs. Sample.

It is not necessary, in order that a use may be regarded as public, that the whole community or any large portion thereof participate in it. If an improvement be of public benefit, the fact that some members of the community may be specially benefited by it above others will not deprive it of its public character.—So held by the Supreme Court of Indiana, in the recently decided case of Ross et al. vs. Davis et al.

Section 4,747 of the United States Revised Statutes provides that "no sum of money due or to become due, to any pensioner, shall be liable to attachment, levy or seizure, by or under any legal or equitable process whatever, whether the sum remains with the pension office or any officer or agent thereof, or is in course of transmission to the pensioner entitled thereto, but shall inure wholly to the benefit of such pensioner." In the recent case of Robinson vs. Walker, in which the interpretation of that section was involved, the Kentucky Court of Appeals held that pension money received from the United States is exempt from seizure for debt while it is being transmitted to the pensioner, but not after it is actually received by him.

Where, after time has been given to the principal by the creditor, the surety, with all knowledge of all the facts, promises to pay the note if the principal does not, he is liable without any new consideration for the promise, according to the opinion of the Ohio Supreme Court Commission.

Agreements entered into between creditors for the purpose of releasing an insolvent debtor must be based upon such consideration, such as the agreement of all or of a certain per cent of the creditors to relinquish their demands, and the acceptance from a debtor of a less sum than is due, or the agreement to accept it, is no bar to an action for the sum due, if there be no other consideration. So held by the Kentucky Superior Court.

A policy of insurance provided that the company should not be liable for any loss or damage under the policy if default should be made in the payment of any installment or premium due by the terms of the installment note. This stipulation was held to be binding on the holder of the policy in a case decided by the Kentucky Superior Court. The court said that the stipulations not in violation of public policy might be inserted in a policy of insurance, and if so inserted would be binding on the parties to the policy.

The case of Morrison vs. Garth, decided by the Missouri Supreme Court in October, was a suit upon a negotiable promissory note payable to the order of S. D. Garth, and signed "Clogden and Garth. S. D. Garth." The name of S. D. Garth had been erased from the face of the note and placed on the back after the execution and delivery by Garth, at the request of the holders, and without the knowledge of the makers. The Supreme Court held the rule to be firmly established in Missouri that any alteration of a written instrument after delivery without the consent of all the parties, however immaterial in its nature or however innocently made, vitiated the instrument.

In a case decided recently by the Kansas Supreme Court, it was held that where a creditor purchases of a debtor a stock of merchandise, the value of which is agreed upon by the surrender of notes held by him against the debtor and part in money, and the debtor transfers the merchandise with the direct intention to defraud and delay his other creditors, the purchase by the creditor cannot be upheld if he is cognizant of and privy to the fraud of the debtor. The court held further, that, if in the transaction the creditor had no actual knowledge of the fraud, or notice of the fraudulent design of the debtor, yet if the circumstances surrounding the debtor were such as would put a prudent man upon inquiry, which if prosecuted diligently would have disclosed the fraud, he cannot be deemed a purchaser in good faith.

THE CONVENTION

Tammany Receives a Set-Back at the Start.

THE UNIT RULE SUSTAINED.

Grady's Amendment Lost by a Vote of 463 to 332.

A DAY OF EXCITING SPEECHES.

Mr. Kelly, Mr. Grady and Others Declare that the Minority from New York should Not Be Ignored—Gov. Vilas for Permanent Chairman.

The Proceedings in Detail.

CHICAGO, July 9.—If the session of yesterday is to be accepted as a criterion of what is to follow, the national Democratic convention of 1884 bids fair to be one of the most exciting in the history of the party. From the moment that the portly temporary chairman announced that the assemblage was ready for business until the panel fell for adjournment oratorical fireworks and popular manifestations of approval or disapproval held full away. Gen. Smalley, of Vermont, set the ball rolling with an apparently harmless resolution that the rules of previous conventions be adopted, with the exception that in voting for candidates for president and vice-president no state be allowed to change its vote until the roll of all the states had been called. The motion was seconded from all parts of the hall, and the chairman was about to put it through with a rush, when a stentorian "Mr. Chairman!" coming from the section occupied by the New York delegation caused 12,000 pairs of eyes to turn in that direction. It was Senator Grady who demanded attention, and his object was to submit a resolution permitting the vote of a state to be challenged and a poll of individual delegates taken. Amid the storm of cheers, hisses and counter cheers which greeted this amendment, John R. Fellows sprung upon his feet to the right of his fellow delegates, and in a fiery speech—in the course of which he defied all the states assembled to strike New York from the crown of her sovereignty—antagonized the amendment. Mr. Menzies, of Indiana, tried to promote harmony with an amendment to the amendment that the state be allowed to change their votes, but the convention was in no mood to thus easily get rid of the matter, and Senator Grady again secured the floor and made a speech full of fire, impudence coupled with a warm denunciation of machine methods. He was frequently, however, interrupted with cries of order, and once the chairman was compelled to demand that the rules of courtesy be observed. The discussion was continued by several delegates but without adding anything new, until John Kelly arose. Then the hall shook with applause and it was several moments before quiet could be secured. His opening sentence demonstrated that his voice was as capable of being heard, and the galleries set up a yell of "Platform." The Tammany chieftain paid no attention to the clamor, but when he was and in a long address, inaudible to two-thirds of those present, questioned the right of the majority to limit or gag the minority. Pelows was on his chair the moment Kelly concluded, and succeeded in getting into a tilt with the Tammany leader, which, but for the smiling face and genial nature of the latter, might have developed into personalities. Fellows' ironical declaration that he had heard of a Democratic future, in which reforms and purer methods, when Kelly and Grady made such eloquent denunciations of machine methods, brought down the house. By this time the convention was tired, and the speakers following were listened to with impatience. So great was the interest manifested in the roll call that two-thirds of the immense hall left, and the announcement of the result was received with prolonged applause. When Judge Cochrane, challenged the vote of New York, it looked for a moment as though another fight was imminent, but the chair quickly decided that the vote should be recorded as announced, and the delegates proceeded to ballot for the open air.

THE PROCEEDINGS IN DETAIL.

The Opening Speeches and Those Which Followed.

CHICAGO, July 8.—At 12:40 Chairman Barnum rapped the convention to order. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Marquis, Gen. Butler and Senator Thurman standing up in front of their delegations. Chairman Barnum then said that harmony seemed to prevail throughout the party, and it was their intention to nominate a ticket which would receive the unanimous and hearty support of the party in November. In this selection made by the national committee of a temporary chairman he had been gratified by the desire to have an impartial officer. Such a man was Gov. Richard E. Hubbard, of Texas, whom the committee had elected chairman pro tem. Hubbard's selection was ratified by the convention and Gov. Hubbard was escorted to the stage by A. S. Hewitt, of New York; Senator Jones, of Louisiana, and Senator Voorhees, of Indiana. He is a man weighing over 200 pounds, with a long gray beard and a voice which penetrated the hall at every point.

GOV. HUBBARD'S SPEECH.

He said that the Democratic party had met on a great occasion, which would not justify any mistakes. Though they had been defeated by a quarter of a century, still had the confidence and the will to succeed as well now as when he bearer of victory perched above their heads. But for treason in the ranks of their party would now be in possession. They did have it, but the people plundered it of its rightful spoils. Struck from behind by fraud and perjury and falsehood stole the presidency. Though rightfully elected, those political leaders, Tilden and Hendricks (here the speaker was interrupted by great cheers which rent the hall), preferring peace rather than war, renounced what properly belonged to them. The theft of the presidency in 1876 was the blackest age in the country's history (applause). The Democrats would have avenged it had not many, fresh and uncut from Washington, here poured out like water (applause). The Democrats would very likely go into power this fall and not forgive one iota from their principles for disaffected Republicans. If they wanted to come into the ranks they could do so. The speaker deprecated the bloody shirt cry raised by the Republicans. The Democratic party would reform affairs, and should put forward candidates whose names should be a platform in form. (Cheers.) It wants a platform that would speak in no doubtful tones, or as a Delphic oracle. It should declare against corruption in the appointment of the civil service; against the so-called department of justice; against the abuses of the postal service; against robbery in high places that is to be found in the government shall be based equally and equitably on all classes of the people; and that the hundred millions of surplus revenue should not be allowed to accumulate.

In conclusion he urged that whatever candidates were nominated should be supported loyally, declaring that he who refused to support them would not be a good Democrat, and hardly a patriot. (Applause.)

SMALLEY, THE FIGHT.

Gen. Smalley, of Vermont, offered a resolution, which was adopted by the national committee, that the rules of the previous conventions rule this convention, with this difference, that in voting for candidates for president and vice-president no state be allowed to change the vote until the roll of all the states was called.

Senator Grady, of New York, offered an amendment that when the vote of any state was announced it could be challenged and the roll called by delegates, and in a fiery speech—in the course of which he defied all the states assembled to strike New York from the crown of her sovereignty—antagonized the amendment. Mr. Menzies, of Indiana, tried to promote harmony with an amendment to the amendment that the states be allowed to change their votes, but the convention was in no mood to thus easily get rid of the matter, and Senator Grady again secured the floor and made a speech full of fire, impudence coupled with a warm denunciation of machine methods. He was frequently, however, interrupted with cries of order, and once the chairman was compelled to demand that the rules of courtesy be observed. The discussion was continued by several delegates but without adding anything new, until John Kelly arose. Then the hall shook with applause and it was several moments before quiet could be secured. His opening sentence demonstrated that his voice was as capable of being heard, and the galleries set up a yell of "Platform." The Tammany chieftain paid no attention to the clamor, but when he was and in a long address, inaudible to two-thirds of those present, questioned the right of the majority to limit or gag the minority. Pelows was on his chair the moment Kelly concluded, and succeeded in getting into a tilt with the Tammany leader, which, but for the smiling face and genial nature of the latter, might have developed into personalities. Fellows' ironical declaration that he had heard of a Democratic future, in which reforms and purer methods, when Kelly and Grady made such eloquent denunciations of machine methods, brought down the house. By this time the convention was tired, and the speakers following were listened to with impatience. So great was the interest manifested in the roll call that two-thirds of those present left the hall, and the announcement of the result was received with prolonged applause. OTHER SPEAKERS ON THE FLOOR.

Carter Harrison, of Illinois, argued that if the State of New York had instructed its delegates to vote as a unit, and if they failed to do so to vote, they would be disobeying their state, but this convention had nothing to do with that. (Applause.) He would probably be found voting differently from Mr. Grady on the question of candidates, but he wanted a free vote now.

Mr. Jacobs, of New York, said that he was one of the delegates, and would exercise his privilege of voting against the choice of the majority, but as a Democrat and as a man loyal to his constituents he would be obedient to the orders of the state convention and bow to the will of the majority. (Applause.)

Mr. Grady asked him if, at the Saratoga convention, he had been a word of discussion as to the unit rule.

Mr. Jacobs replied that there had not been, but it was because everybody agreed to it in advance.

THE TAMMANY CHIEF RISES.

John Kelly arose amid great applause. Cries went up for him to take the platform. Order was restored and he said that except by the vote of the convention, a delegate could not leave his seat.

Kelly, therefore, spoke from his seat. His voice was very low, and it was difficult to hear him. He said that in the amendment before the convention was the foundation of Democracy. It was a question whether a majority of men could control the votes of a minority. He did not regard any instructions of any state binding upon a national body. This was a higher power than a state convention, and he appealed to it to say whether the views of good Democrats could be stifled and their voices drowned, or whether they were to have a vote like other people.

There were sixty-two counties in the state of New York, of which but ten or twelve were Democratic. According to the argument of Mr. Fellows the good Democratic counties or New York (which would elect a Democratic president if an opportunity was given to them) would be disfranchised. That was the principle which was now presented, and he appealed to the sense and liberality of the convention in favor of Mr. Grady's proposition.

Fellows quoted Cochrane's statement that the reason Tammany did not oppose the unit rule at Saratoga was because they thought things were different then, but that Tammany would have a majority at Chicago. Fellows' statement was repudiated, but he repeated it amid great applause, when he also said it was not necessary for Tammany to repudiate machine methods, because the entire country knew everything done by the Democratic party in New York was Tammany—in spite of the people. He was rewarded with prolonged applause and laughter.

Gen. Bragg (Wisconsin) followed with opposition to the unit rule.

Kirks of Louisiana made an argumentative address in the interest of harmony.

When Manning repeated the New York vote as 72 Cochrane challenged it, and the vote of New York was demanded a roll call, was howled down by the convention. The vote is regarded as a black eye for Tammany. It is given in detail:

FELLOWS BECOMING OBSTRUCTIVE.

Mr. Fellows again spoke against Senator Grady amendment. There had been, he said, an extraordinary misconception of the issue involved. It did not look to stifling the voice or ignoring the opinion of a majority of men. The question was whether the state of New York had a right to say how the will of her majority should be indicated. She recognized the democratic methods of ascertaining what her will was; but, when the will of the majority was ascertained, she had a right to prescribe the form in which that will should be expressed. He asked Kelly how it was that they, too, had obtained the credentials which permitted them to be here at all.

Kelly replied that Mr. Fellows represented one Democratic club in the city of New York, and he (Kelly) another.

Mr. Fellows suggested that they represent no club. He said that in the Democratic city convention which sent delegates to this convention he had voted against Bayard. He did not regard any instructions binding upon a national body. This was a higher power than a state convention, and he appealed to it to say whether the views of good Democrats could be stifled and their voices drowned, or whether they were to have a vote like other people.

Mr. Kelly said that the gentleman's purpose now was to ignore him (Kelly) and not allow him a vote in the convention. It was regretted that he (Kelly) was excluded. (Cheers.)

Mr. Fellows proceeded with his argument. All that the majority of the New York delegates desired to do was what their state had instructed them to do—cast their votes in a certain prescribed form. The convention should not take away that right. It was a right dear to the state of New York. If she were stripped of that right she would feel degraded and dishonored. He declared, ironically, that Mr. Kelly and himself were in tender sympathy with each other. He confessed that he had a brighter hope set before him than better methods and purer forms when he found from the lips of Mr. Kelly and Mr. Grady such eloquent denunciations of machine methods. (Laughter and applause.) They all understood that everything which they did in New York was the spontaneous outcropping of popular will (laughter) and that the hand of arbitrary power never controlled their political methods. In conclusion he asked whether the national convention would strip New York of her power in this matter. (Cries of "No.") NEW YORK'S VOTE TEMPORARILY WITHHELD.

The discussion was continued by Messrs. Bragg, of Wisconsin, and Burke, of Louisiana, the latter defending the previous question. Mr. Bowers, of Indiana, withdrew his amendment to the amendment, and the call of states on Senator Grady's amendment was commenced. The vote of the state of New York was withheld temporarily, and when all the other states were called the aggregate, without New York, stood 332, nays, 391. Then the vote of New York was then called for, and Mr. Manning, the chairman of the delegation, announced seventy-two votes in the negative.

HOW THE BALLOT LAY.

There was a chorus of protests. Delegate Cochrane made a violent speech. Another excited delegate from Nevada stood upon his seat and shouted himself hoarse without anybody being able to hear him. Chairman Hubbard was asked if that was the way the vote was to be recorded. His answer was that it was. It was, he said, the question at issue, and he had no authority except to accept the announcement of the chairman of the delegation.

The general result was then announced: Ayes, 332; nays, 463.

The vote on Mr. Smalley's original resolution, that the rules of the last convention govern the body was then adopted.

A resolution was then offered and adopted for the appointment of a committee on credentials and one on permanent organization. A committee on platform was ordered, and it was appointed that all resolutions in regard to the platform be referred to that committee without discussion.

At 4 o'clock the convention adjourned until 11 A. M. to-day.

The Committee on Credentials.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The committee on credentials appointed by the national convention met at midnight at the Grand Pacific hotel to act on the credentials of the various delegations. A contest in the Massachusetts delegation from the seats of the congressional districts, and the contestees and contestant were notified to appear before the committee at an adjourned meeting to be held this morning.

The resolution introduced in the convention by Senator Voorhees giving full membership to the delegates from the territories and the District of Columbia was taken up and a committee from the territorial delegations was invited to appear before the committee and present their arguments.

Samuel Ward, of Montana, Williams Dickson and Edward D. Weight, of the District of Columbia, made arguments on the rights of the territories to representation and a voice in the selection of national rulers, and the committee unanimously resolved to recommend the passage of the resolution to the national convention.

The Committee on Resolutions.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The committee on resolutions was in session up to a very late hour. The greater part of the session up to 11.30 was devoted to hearing organizations and committees of delegations of the various resolutions on the subject of the tariff and other matters properly belonging to the platform. A delegation of workingmen was also heard by the committee, and urged that proper respect be paid to their interests. The only action taken was to cast a vote for chairman of the committee. This resulted as follows: Hon. John G. Carlisle, of Ohio, 18; for Wm. R. Morrison, of Illinois, 18; Butler, of Massachusetts, and Fenton, of Kansas, being absent. At the suggestion of Henry Watterson, it was then proposed to proceed with the work upon the platform and to defer the selection of a chairman until a platform should be framed. For explanation of this action, a member of the committee said resolutions stated that it was thought best to take this course, inasmuch as a chairman could be selected at any time after it was found whether Mr. Morrison or Mr. Carlisle would present the platform as agreed on.

At 11.30 P. M., Gen. Butler, escorted by Judge Abbott, of Massachusetts, and several other friends, and followed by a score or more representatives of labor league societies, rowdies and toughs, left Iroquois club, where the conference of the committee on resolutions was being held. He was at once ushered into the meeting room and was received with cheers as he took his seat at the tables and entered into the business before the committee.

Voted Under a Misapprehension.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The Indiana delegation declares its intention of never casting a single vote for Bayard and a solid vote for McDonald, but in the event of a break may go to Bayard. This delegation will to-day again raise the question respecting the unit rule, as it is claimed that a number of the delegates misunderstood the question as presented, and voted under a misapprehension.

Convention Notes.

CHICAGO, July 9.—It is said that the Illinois delegation will support McDonald for first place as long as practicable, and will afterwards support Bayard.

Col. Vilas, of Wisconsin, will be the permanent chairman.

It was rumored last night that efforts are being made to unite the opposition on Thurman or Bayard.

The Michigan delegation have decided to cast their vote on the first ballot as follows: Cleveland, 19; McDonald, 2; Bayard, 3; Bissell, 1; Hendricks, 1.

Senator Grady, Mr. Kelly's lieutenant, says he is satisfied beyond all doubt that Cleveland cannot now be nominated; that he will show by consultation on the first, and probably on the second ballot, that that there will be a break in favor of either Bayard or McDonald.

Mr. Randall on His Way.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 9.—The Hon. Samuel J. Randall was in the city at noon yesterday, on his way to the Democratic convention. He refused to talk to a reporter, but to the Hon. J. C. O'Donnell, a friend, he talked quite freely. "I would not attend the convention," he said, "if I did not hope to be able to aid in the construction of a platform. The great mass of the members of our party are unwhipped, and we must nominate a candidate and present a platform that will pledge the party to the practical interests of its members, and to command their continued support and respect."

"What about your own candidacy?" asked Mr. O'Donnell.

"I suppose I shall take my chances with the rest. But," and Mr. Randall laughed heartily, "I have not seen much signs of a Randall boom in the papers I have read."

In further conversation Mr. Randall said he did not expect the convention to finish its work this week, and gave his listeners to understand very clearly that he expected a hard fight on the tariff and other planks relating to the tariff. He did not allude once to the other candidates or their claims.

Gen. Roscrans Receives a Letter from "Edmund Kirk."

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Gen. Roscrans received a letter a few days ago from James R. Gilmore, known by his nom de plume of "Edmund Kirke," who is now at Lake George, N. Y., in which he writes: "I have just returned from Boston, where I met the leaders of Massachusetts Republicans, who told me that if Cleveland should be the nominee of the Chicago convention you would be asked to take the second place on the Democratic ticket. I happened to be present at Saratoga, that Cleveland will be nominated; and I presume, upon the friendship of former years, to urge you not again to decline such a nomination, as you did in 1880, when I was the medium of assuring you of the first place. Had you not declined then, the country would have been spared from Garfield and Arthur and the eight years of Grant."

Gen. Roscrans says Gilmore came to him at Murfreesboro, Tenn., in the spring of 1863 as the representative of the anti-Lincoln movement, led by Sumner, Chase, Greeley, Wade and others, and urged Roscrans to become the Union candidate in place of Mr. Lincoln.

New York Prohibitionists.

ALBANY, July 9.—The Prohibition state convention met here yesterday. William J. Groo, of Middletown, was chosen temporary chairman, and J. L. Rankin, of Orange, and Miss Frances E. Nicholson, of Rochester. Seventy-five delegates were elected to the national convention at Pittsburg.

The platform declares, briefly, that the traffic in alcoholic beverages is the principal cause of crime, pauperism and insanity and the enormous taxations with which the state and nation are burdened, and that the best interests of the family and the state demand its absolute suppression: that the time for independent political action has come, and that women should have the right of suffrage. A full electoral ticket was nominated, with Walter J. Farrington and the Rev. Dwight W. Williams as electors-at-large, Walter C. Barrington and Virgil Willard, of Allegheny, were nominated for judges of the court of appeals.

EUROPE'S CHOLERA SCARE.

The Disease Appears on German Soil as Prof. Koch Predicted.

BERLIN, July 9.—The assertion of Prof. Koch, the famous expert, that the French scourge would reach Germany, and ultimately spread throughout Europe, is painfully verified. It is now officially announced that one death from the dread disease occurred at Constance, in the duchy of Baden, and two other cases have been reported.

The announcement has caused considerable alarm throughout German, and extra sanitary precautions and strict quarantine rules are being inforced in order to prevent the further spread of the epidemic in other parts of the empire.

Making Londons a Refuge.

LONDON, July 9.—London is being literally crowded with Americans frightened away from Paris and other places in France by the steady spread of the cholera.

Preparing to Ward Off the Scourge.

ALBANY, July 9.—The state Board of Health has issued a circular memorandum announcing that it will again do battle with its deadly march. The Atlantic ocean and its organized resources of sanitary knowledge and authority in our country and in European countries, and the close connection with our shores and the infected region of the Mediterranean, are barriers trusted thus far for defense. Local boards will be ordered to make sanitation examinations for a rigid observance of the sanitary laws.

Drunk with a Fortune in His Pocket.

NEW YORK, July 9.—A row broke out at Chatham and Pearl streets on Monday night for bridg drunk, John Dugan, a farmer of Newark, N. J., was taken to the Elizabeth street station house by Officer Dowling, of the sixth precinct. When searched two packages, each containing twenty-five $20 bills, were found in his pocket. Justice Smith fined Dugan ten dollars, which he paid out of his $1,000.

Fatal Accident to an Actress.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Jennie Neuville, an actress, lately playing in "Hazel Kirke" was knocked down at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-fourth street by a horse attached to a runaway horse, and received injuries from which she died shortly after. The deceased was a resident of St. Louis, Mo., and only arrived in this city last week.

Horror for Tait in Vienna.

VIENNA, July 9.—Great regret is expressed in social and diplomatic circles here at the removal of United States Minister Taft from his diplomatic post here to St. Petersburg. Despite the grumbling hatred of Bismarck and Herbert, Mr. Taft attained a high social position.

Found Dead in the Woods.

JERSEY CITY, July 9.—The body of a dead man with a bullet hole in his right breast and another in the right thigh, and what appears to be a cut on the left cheek, was found in Gray's woods, near Reservoir, north of this town.

A BUDGET OF NEWS.

What Is Going on Outside of the Chicago Convention.

A Remarkable Experience—A Noted Burglar Killed—Phoebe Paulin's Assassin—The O'Brien Libel Suit—800 Men Idle.

CLEVELAND, July 9.—On June 14 the schooner Cataract, while anchored off shore at Wheatley, Ont., had her chain parted in a heavy storm and was thrown upon the shore. When the sea receded she was 300 feet from the water and buried five feet in the sand. She was then propped up and two unsuccessful attempts made to pull her back to the water, violent storms interfering each time. Three tugs finally got her off, and, strange to say, she was undamaged except for the opening of a few seams. She arrived here in tow yesterday.

"Prince" McGowan Killed.

BALTIMORE, July 9.—An inquest was held on the body of "Prince" McGowan, who was killed early yesterday morning. The jury rendered a verdict to the effect that McGowan came to his death from a pistol shot supposed to have been fired by Gus Slater. The latter was committed to jail. McGowan was known as a rough, and of late years has been a conspicuous figure in the police courts. He has been indicted eighteen times for various offenses since 1882. He was tried a year ago for the murder of Onno Sorter, but was acquitted. McGowan's wife became a mother about half an hour before her husband was shot.

Bonfires in Cork.

CORK, July 8.—The verdict in the O'Brien libel suit was celebrated in the city as a national victory. A number of processions paraded the streets, with bands playing national airs, while large bonfires of tar barrels were kept burning in the principal streets. Several prominent National speakers addressed a large outdoor meeting. One of the speakers, a priest, hailed O'Brien as one of God's chosen gentlemen, and exhorted the multitude to offer up prayers in Mr. O'Brien's behalf.

Phoebe Paulin's Assassin.

NEWARK, N. J., July 9.—It was reported yesterday—and the news was received by the public with a degree of satisfaction that is almost indescribable—that the murderer of Phoebe Paulin, the girl so mysteriously and brutally done to death almost in sight of her home, on the Orange Mountain, last summer, had been traced and would soon be in custody.

Eight Hundred Men Idle.

BUFFALO, July 8.—The stove works of Sherman S. Jewett & Co., in this city, have shut down, throwing eight hundred men out of employment. It is expected to be only temporary.

The Alleged Excessive Charges.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 9.—A rehearing was given by the railroad commissioners in the case of D. J. Richardson, of Louisville, and also in the case of the citizens of Constableville against the Utica and Black River railroad for alleged excessive charges in freight rates. After hearing statements the arguments were adjourned to July 23.

In the case of the investigation into milk rates charged by the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company for milk received by the road from the Newburg Dutchess and Connecticut railroad the board have rendered a decision that the through rate charged should be thirty cents instead of forty, and they recommend that that rate be established.

Thanking His Preserver.

BERLIN, July 9.—The emperor, while promenading at Ems to-day, was observed to stop and converse with a stranger who joined him in his walk, the two chatting familiarly. The curiosity of the bystanders became greatly excited and their surprise was still greater when it transpired that the stranger a Belgian gentleman, named Peerbloek who, in 1854, at Ostend, saved the life of the emperor, who was bathing, and had ventured too far from shore. Up to this time, the emperor had been unaware of his preserver's name, but their casual meeting resulted in mutual recognition, and M. Peerbloek was overwhelmed with the emperor's thanks.

The Diamond Field.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The following is the result of the baseball games played yesterday:

At Chicago—New York, 11; Chicago, 8.
At Columbus—Columbus, 6; Athletics, 3.
At St. Louis—Allegheny, 1; St. Louis, 7.
At Indianapolis—Washington, 4; Indianapolis, 5.
At Louisville—Louisville, 4; Baltimores, 3
At Cincinnati—Cincinnati, 10; Brooklyn, 4.
At Buffalo—Buffalo, 5; Providence, 5.
At Cleveland—Cleveland, 1; Boston, 10.
At Detroit—Philadelphia, 11; Detroit, 4.

Seriously Ill.

LONDON, July 9.—Mr. Henry L. Clapp, a member of the Lotus Club, of New York, has had a sudden attack of paralysis, and he is now lying in a dangerous condition at the Army and Navy hotel in this city. Mr. Clapp is connected with the house of Fairbanks & Co., a. Jo manufacturers, and was visiting this city on business connected with London branch at No. 108 Upper Thames street.

A Favorable Impression.

BERLIN, July 9.—The prompt confirmation by the United States senate of the appointment of Mr. Kasson to the Berlin mission, has greatly mollified the ill feeling existing among Germans, and created a favorable impression in diplomatic circles. As yet, however, there has been no comment by the press.

CONDENSED NEWS.

There are 17,000 acres of American vines under cultivation in the department of the Gironde.

The report of Assignee Davis shows the liabilities of Grant & Ward to be $16,792,647, and the actual assets $67,174.

The 5-year old trotting race at Chicago was a desperate affair of seven heats, Eva being the successful competitor.

Eagle Gargh's Philadelphia "female baseball players are stranded in Baltimore and cannot raise funds to return home.

The Mescalero Indians threaten to kill stock to feed themselves if the government does not supply them with more rations.

A fatal shooting affray occurred at the Elm Church, at Brazos Bottom, Texas, between two negroes, resulting in the death of one and the fatal wounding of the other. There was great excitement, as the parties commenced shooting just as the congregation was leaving the church.

Dr. W. T. Barnard, for a number of years connected with the war department in Washington, and lately secretary of the Baltimore and Ohio Relief association, has been promoted to the position of assistant to Mr. Robert Garrett, president pro tem. of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company.

WHERE MY HEART CURNE IN.

[Edward S. Ellis.]

Summer and winter are one to me,
And the day is bright, be it warm or chilly.
For fair away, over sunny seas,
Sadie's treasure lies, and all is mine.
I see the ripples that fall away,
As she cleaves the same waves before;
And nearer, nearer, every day,
Draws the happy hour when she comes to shore.

"But what if she meets some one on the way?"
"If you never knew her, the tempters galed"
It has made me happier, day by day,
It has eased full many an aching pain;
It has kept the spirit from envy free,
Has dulled the ear to the world's rude din;
Oh! best of blessings let's been to me
To look for the hour when my mate comes in.

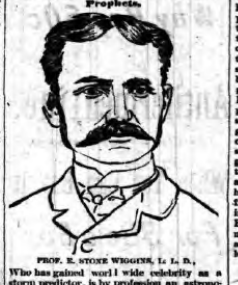
THE LATE WILLIAM A. BEACH.

Mr. Beach was born in Saratoga county, N. Y., December 13, 1800. His father was Miles Beach, a merchant of Saratoga, and his mother's maiden name was Cynthia Warren. She was a relative of Dr. Joseph Warren, of Bunker Hill. Among the important cases in which he was engaged was the defense of the state agent and others who, under Gov. Seymour's administration, were summoned before a military tribunal at Washington upon a charge of tampering with soldiers' votes. The defense was successful, and ended in the discontinuance of the sort of military inquisitions.

For nearly twenty years Albany and Troy fought in the state courts and in the supreme court of the United States over the question whether the navigation of the Hudson should be hampered by a bridge at Albany. Mr. Beach all this time conducted the fight for Troy against the bridge. The absolute need by the railroads of a bridge at last brought about Troy's defeat, but the long contest had made his reputation.

Removing to New York in 1871, he appeared for the defendant in Erie's $5,000,000 suit against Commodore Vanderbilt. He was opposed to Charles O'Conor in the Jumel litigation, and was engaged for his people in the second trial of E. D. Sickles for the murder of James Fisk, jr. He assisted Mr. O'Conor without fee in the defense of Frank Walworth. In Tilton against Beecher he was leading counsel for the plaintiff, and his ability in that notable case will be long remembered. He died at Tarrytown, N. Y., on June 28.

The Most Prescient of Weather Prophets.



PROF. E. STONE WIGGINS, LL. D.,

Who has gained world wide celebrity as a storm prevision, is by profession an astronomer, and from the study of astronomy he has deduced a theory that the movements of the planets bring about the atmospheric changes which we call storms. If this theory proves correct, it will be a comparatively easy matter to calculate the approach of storms and protect ourselves from the dangers of shipwreck and other disasters produced by the elements. On various other subjects beside that of meteorology is the professor at variance with the opinions of distinguished scientists who have gone before. For instance, in his "Architecture of the Heavens" he originates the theory that comets are born from the sun. In 1873 he wrote against Proctor and his theory that the moon is a dead planet. Prof. Wiggins asserting that the only reason he could be visible that is destitute of an atmosphere, his belief being that light does not exist through space, but only in the atmospheres of the planets, which accounts for his most recent announcement that the earth is in possession of a second satellite or a dark moon, which by its influence has interfered with his calculations in predictions, but has remained undiscovered owing to its being without an atmosphere, and consequently devoid of the light refracting property. Prof. Wiggins also claims to have demonstrated the incorrectness of Sir Isaac Newton's theory that bodies at the Equator are lighter than the same bodies near the poles, by proving that the direct opposite was the case.

It is, however, as a storm predictor that Wiggins has won world-wide notoriety. Born near the sea, in Queens, New Brunswick, December 4, 1839, he early devoted much of his attention to the study and observation of storms. The first prediction of his that caught the ear of the general public was in advance of the storm of September 14, 1882. Since that time opinions have varied as regards his reliability as a weather prophet. Prof. Wiggins announces the following dates as the ones on which the most severe storms of the present century occurred: September 23, 1884; October 29-30, 1884; March 19-20, 1885; September 29-30, 1886 (very heavy); March 29-30, 1887. But on the afternoon of September 30, 1887, will occur the heaviest storm that will take place till the year 1900. This storm will be accompanied with earthquakes, and the forests on our eastern coasts will in all probability go down before it.

A Hogastrophe.

[Wheelman's Gazette.]

Adown the sloping country lane
The wheelman wheeled his wheel;
The wheelman wheeled his wheel in vain,
His speed of a wild hurricane.
As upon the path he did ride
Crouching in a corner of the fence,
The hungry razor-back lay low in wait,
Ready to suddenly spring thence,
And hurl the victim to his fate.
The wheelman came,
"Boo-hoo-po-hoo!" The old hog jumped into the way;
Full ninety feet the wheelman flew
And wheeled his wheel no more that day.

AT SUMTER'S SIEGE.

How a Couple of Veterans Fired the Ten-Inch Barbette Gun.

A Shot at Stevens' Battery—Loaded for Another Trial—An Unexpected Result—Turning a Somersault.

[The United Service.]

For four hours we had been pounding away at Stevens' battery and making no impression on it. This was very annoying to the men, and doubtless equally so to the officers. The non-commissioned officers believed they could demolish the battery with the ten-inch gun. The ten-inch gun referred to was mounted en barbette on the third tier, and the major had ordered that no guns on that tier should be manned. Orders were stored in the quickest way. Under the circumstances, the major's orders might be disregarded. They would not, however, take anybody with them. The blame, if any attached to the act, would rest entirely on their shoulders. Consequently they watched their chance, and when the major was out of their way, slipped up-stairs to the barbette battery.

The gun was already loaded and aimed at the very battery they desired to strike. For weeks before the bombardment began all the guns were kept loaded. They had nothing to do, therefore, but slip in a friction primer in the vent and pull the lanyard; this was the work of a moment. The guns was fired, and the non-commissioned officers below who were in the secret, watched the flight of the shot with almost wishful interest. It missed Stevens' battery hugely, by a hair's breadth—just grazing the top of the battery. Great was the disappointment. So much risked; so little won. But the two sergeants were not ready to give up so. They might as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb. They were determined to have another shot. The gun was reloaded, which was quite a task for two men, as the shot weighed 128 pounds, but when they tried to run the gun "in battery" they failed. It required six men to throw the carriage "in gear," and the task they undertook could not accomplish it. Although the discharge of the ten-inch gun had escaped the observation of our officers, it had been noticed by the rebels. They knew all about the position and power of that particular gun, and had no doubt wondered at its silence. Now that it had opened, it was of the utmost importance that it be silenced at once; so every rebel gun that could be brought to bear was turned on it, and a shower of shot and shell came thundering and hurtling about the ears of the two sergeants, who were still struggling in vain at the handspikes.

Matters had now reached a crisis. "By Gemini," said Sergeant Tom, "let us fire her as she is." It was the only thing they could do. So the elevating screw was given half a turn, the primer was inserted, and the ordnance sergeant ran down to see if the coast were clear. Meantime Tom, who was left holding the lanyard, found himself in a tight place. Shot and shell were coming faster than ever. The rebel gunners were just getting the range. Tom was lying down, because, as he said, there was no room for him to stand up. What he feared was being killed so long! Traverse circles were being torn up by the enemy's shot, and great blocks of granite were flying about the terreplein. He could stand it no longer; the lanyard was pulled and the shot struck the battery and seemed to do considerable damage, but the gun, having been fired out of battery, recoiled over the counter-hurters and turned a somersault backward. As the ordnance sergeant reached the top of the stairs he met the ten-inch gun going in the opposite direction, and, looking around for his friend discovered him hugging mother earth half dead with fright—not at the enemy's shot, but at having dismounted the ten-inch gun of eight. Both compatriots came down. There were now additional reasons for keeping mum about the ten-inch gun, and the major never learned how it was dismounted.

[Louisville Democrat.]

"It would hardly be supposed that a single letter of the alphabet could have the effect of changing the whole course of a man's life, but it did in my case. Some twenty years ago when I had never been outside of New York, I was in Baltimore, and was in correspondence with a gentleman in Michigan in reference to the purchase of a large saw-mill and an extensive tract of heavily timbered land. I made arrangements to meet him in Saginaw and perfect the trade, and sent him a telegram saying: 'I will meet you there.' I immediately started on my journey to Saginaw, and when I arrived there I found the gentleman whom I had gone to see had started the same day I did for Baltimore. On reaching that city he found that I had gone west, but no one knew whither, so he returned home. The mistake I had started on my return trip from Saginaw to Baltimore to meet him there. When he got home he found another purchaser for the property, to whom he sold it and received the money for it. The purchaser has since, out of that very property, become one of the wealthiest men in the northwest, while I am poor. The whole trouble resulted in the message being transmitted, 'I will meet you here,' instead of, 'I will meet you there.' I am now struggling for a living in Lewisville, when, if it had been for that unfortunate 'r' I would in all probability to-day be a millionaire."

Taking His "Capsules."

[Boston Globe.]

"I done spen' I got to go ag'er, boss," said a worried looking colored brother to a West End druggist a day or two since. "I done been so hot all las' night dat de sin't no mo' 'spiration lef' on my bones, an' all dis yere mornin' I has ter git up while I couldn't talk, an' I moved 'round my room tongbut drop out nose' any minute, de jaws done clatter so."

"Why don't you try quinine?" said the courteous clerk.

"Dunno, boss; 'spose dat are do stuff. Mas' he' some kin' o' pizgie, or it 'pears to me like I die 'fore ter nightfall."

Presently the agaish darkey departed with a package of quinine capsules, the drug being sold in that form to make the dose pleasanter to take. Two days later the clerk, in his usual customary, inquired how he liked the medicine.

"Fus' rate, boss, fus' rate; only de sun' time you' give me de stuff I jes' wish yo' wouldn't put it up in dem air littah gloss cases; cost me a heap o' trouble yest'day to get it out, and I spose I lost some considerable of it, but it brack up do agar."

—By direction of the Board of Fire Commissioners, Mr. Eugene Lane, has ordered a set of the Hollenbeck patent door springs, for automatically opening the doors of the house of Engine Co., No. 3, when the driver mounts the seat of the engine. The patentee is the engineer of Muscleana Engine, No. 1, of Newark. When these springs are in position, the Horse Committee's improvements will be completed.

The City Court.

Samuel Hedden was brought before City Judge Good this evening for using abusive and offensive language. He plead guilty and was severely reprimanded.

Eugene Brausen was arrested for being drunk. He was fined $5.

Charles Williams, an old offender, arrested for drunkenness, was given 60 days in the county jail and $25 fine.

Alexander Williams, colored, was fined $5 for indulging in a fight.

Ellen Sweeney was brought before the court on a complaint of using offensive language. Sentence was suspended.

Bicyclers Entertained.

Last evening nine members of the New Brunswick Bicycle Club under Capt. Merritt wheeled over to this city, and were met by as many more members of the Plainfield Club. The long line of bicycles with their colored lanterns presented a pretty sight as they passed through the streets. There would have been a regular parade but the visiting club did not reach here until ten o'clock. The Plainfield club escorted their visitors to the Park House, where a sumptuous "lay out" awaited them.

Entertainments at Netherwood.

Proprietor Woodruff, of the Hotel Netherwood, is constantly on the alert to see that his guests have the best of everything that is going in the amusement, as well as in other lines. He has arranged for a fine concert for to-morrow evening, at which one of the well-known prima donnas will appear. On Saturday evening orchestral music will be furnished as usual. On Wednesday evening of next week an exhibition of legerdemain will be given by two famous experts in the line. Other entertainments will follow during the season.

No Deficiation.

A report in circulation to-day that there was a deficiency of about $8,000 in the accounts of ex-Treasurer Depew, of the Fire Board, has been investigated by a reporter of THE NEWS. The books show that there was a balance of $1,898.40 due. This has been paid, and on account thereupon audited by the Board as correct.

The site for the encampment of the entire National Guard next month has been selected, and consists of 1,000 acres between Spring Lake and Squam, and directly fronting upon the ocean.

Bitten by a Dog.

A few days ago a three-year-old daughter of a German named Riker, who lives near Henry Ritter's on the road to Rahway, was sitting on the front stoop of her home playing, when a spitz dog belonging to a Mrs. Cole who lives next door, jumped at the little one and began biting it. The father of the little girl ran to the rescue and was bitten on the hand several times. The father took the child to Dr. Daly's office at Rahway, where the wounds were cauterized. The little girl's face is badly swollen, the worst bite being near the eye, and the whole face from the forehead down to the chin is a mass of tooth marks. It is claimed that the dog was mad, but that cannot now be determined. Dr. Daly gave orders to have the dog caught alive if possible, but if killed to be left where it fell there to be seen by him as soon as possible. The dog was killed about an hour after the biting, but Dr. Daly was not informed of the fact till the next day after the carcass had been in the rain all night. The doctor does not however think that the dog was mad.

Railroad Ingenuity.

A committee of Asbury Park people recently waited upon the managers of the Reading and Pennsylvania Railroads and presented the demands of the citizens that lower rates of fare be established between Philadelphia and New York and the seaside resorts adjacent to New York. Great stress was laid upon the fact that Asbury Park and Ocean Grove were such prosperous and thriving places, that, as compared with Atlantic City and Cape May, they were entitled to lower fares.

The answers of the railroads have just been sent to the committee. Each of the roads presents a statement showing that while Asbury Park has fifty per cent. better railroad facilities than Atlantic City the fares are only slightly over one per cent. higher. Then, the railroads refer to the committee's statement of the marvellous prosperity of Asbury Park and the adjacent resorts, as compared with Atlantic City, as proving that the railroad rates to the former places are more favorable than to the latter.

Plainfield Ahead in all Lines.

Morristown's streets will show handsomer pavements and more of them than any other town in the State.—Banner.

Which is a mistake. Plainfield is the banner city of the State.—Plainfield Constitutionalist.

And the Constitutionalist is just right. There are more fine horses, more fine carriages, more fine houses, more stores, more banks, more newspapers, more churches, more fine, expensive properties, more homes, more school houses, more large factories and more wealthy citizens in Plainfield than in any city of anything like its size in Union or Morris counties. Yet, for some unexplained reason, Plainfield is not fully represented on the tax books, as it pays no more taxes than the 5th ward of this city, which hasn't a public building, a bank or a hotel, has only five churches, comparatively few stores, no large factories, and can't compare with Plainfield in the matter of wealth. This is an outrage which the citizens of Plainfield have borne with remarkable fortitude.—Elizabeth Journal.

Personal.

The Rev. Dr. Hurlbut has returned from his trip to Kansas.

Mrs. W. B. Ovington, of Chicago, is at her sister's, Mrs. B. M. Case, on Church street.

The Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, of the Trinity Reformed Church, preached the sermon last evening at the ordination and installation of the Rev. D. Charles Preyer as pastor of the East Reformed Church of Newark.

A Little Girl's Serious Accident.

Monday afternoon, Lucy, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. Thomas Crosses, of Milton, was coming up in a wagon near her home, when the driver started the horse, throwing the child out of the wagon, striking the back of her head upon the ground. She was carried to her home in an unconscious state, and has remained in a semi-unconscious condition ever since. Dr. Daly was summoned and attended the sufferer. He thinks it is a case of severe concussion. The next afternoon the child seemed easier and recognized the members of the family.

Too Much Fourth.

Mr. Griswold Harte, son of Bret Harte, has been confined to his home on Front street, since the Fourth of July, till to day, on account of the too previous ignition of some powder as he was discharging a cannon, a portion of the blast getting into his face, and affecting his eyes, so that he is compelled to wear color glasses. His whiskers and eyebrows withstood the fiery blast unsinged.

Democratic Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE NEWS.]

Chicago, 11:30 a. m.

The convention has assembled. There is an immense crowd in attendance.

It is said that six of the Iowa delegation have changed from Cleveland, four going to Thurman and two to Bayard.

Randall has developed a great deal of strength this morning.

The Convention was called to order at 11:03.

The first business in order is the call of States for Presidential candidates.

Hendricks has just entered the hall. He was greeted by tremendous cheering.

Mayor Harrison rose to a question of privilege. He wished to denounce the assertion of Cochran, of New York, that the galleries were yesterday filled with his police and henchmen interested for Cleveland.

Chicago, 12:30 p. m.

Tammany will announce to-day its acceptance of Thurman and Bayard.

There is a report in circulation that if Cleveland is not nominated on the first ballot the County Democracy will withdraw his name and push Hewitt.

Chicago, 1 p. m.

The mob at the doors is immense. The police superintendent has been called to protect the delegates. The mob is crushing down the doors, and the greatest excitement prevails. Ladies faint and many people's lives are endangered.

A resolution, significant of fight, has been adopted. It provides for the printing and circulating of the platform before it is read to the Convention.

Livingston, of Missouri, in behalf of the majority of the delegation from that state seconds Cleveland's nomination. He is greeted with applause and hisses. Chair rules him out of order. Thomas F. Howell, of Ohio, nominates Hoadley, but does not get any applause.

The presentation of Randall's name is greeted with storms of renewed applause. Gov. Abbett, of New Jersey, seconds Randall's nomination. Abbett says that although any of the great names mentioned could be selected, some could be elected easier than others. There should not be any contention over the name of Randall. Cheers. Abbett mentions Cleveland's name which is greeted with loud applause continued for some time. He asks certain Republican States to unite on the man who could carry doubtful States; then they could regenerate their own States. Abbett asked New York if there was any element in its candidate, in which Randall was not stronger. He said that even if there was unity in New York, Randall was stronger than Cleveland on the question of reform, and therefore a more acceptable candidate.

Chicago, 1:30 p. m.

John W. Cummings takes the platform, and seconds Bayard's nomination amid cheers. He alluded to Kelly and Moriarty as slaves, only allowed to speak as their masters direct them. Received loud applause. Cummings said to thrust New York's candidate upon them was to lose Massachusetts and the election. Cummings finished amid loud applause.

Chicago, 2 p. m.

The chances for a ballot to-day are growing less. The night session will probably be devoted to the adoption of the platform.

Chicago, 2:30 p. m.

L. F. Youman's went to platform to second Bayard's nomination. He said it was gratifying to find the old bay State and the palmetto State to join hands on Delaware's man.

F. M. Rose, of Arkansas, seconds nomination of Cleveland.

Rose said Arkansas would cast her entire vote for Cleveland, and was certain that he could be elected.

Mr. Delaney, of Wisconsin, seconds the nomination of Cleveland.

Gen. Bray, of Wisconsin, took the platform and also seconded Cleveland's nomination. Renewed cheers.

Chicago, 3 p. m.

Bragg said he voiced the choice of the young men of Wisconsin and Mississippi on the great god of New York. They loved him most for the enemies he had made—applause—and so did the ladies.

Grady sprang to his feet, and in behalf of Cleveland's enemies used some forcible language. Great confusion prevailed. Bragg said that such action on the part of a Senator was a disgrace. Cheers, hissing and confusion. Bragg pointed to Grady, and said his labor had been a crank of this unwelcome discord and confusion.

Bragg said the party had followed the old leaders to death, and it asked a new and young man to lead it, one possessing life and blood. He closed amid renewed cheers.

Jones, of New Hampshire, asked consent to second the nomination of Cleveland.

Gen. Kent, of New Hampshire, took the platform, and made an earnest appeal for the nomination of Cleveland. He said it meant certain success.

Doolittle asked the Convention not to throw away this great opportunity for success.

Walker, of Connecticut, took the platform and seconded the nomination of Cleveland in an eloquent speech. He deplored the unfortunate controversy in the Empire State, but having listened to all the evidence he thought the verdict must be in favor of Cleveland.

On the announcement of the result of the call of States, the mention of each candidate's name elicited cheers, especially the name of Cleveland, many of the delegates rising to their feet.

Chicago, 4 p. m.

The Convention has adjourned until 8 p. m. The Committee on Resolutions are ordered to report at that order.

FROM AN ANXIOUS MOTHER.

To the Editor of THE NEWS:

I noticed a very reasonable and sensible suggestion to the Common Council in Monday's issue of your paper in relation to a public bath house, and impatiently waited for Tuesday's paper to see what action would be taken in the matter by that honorable body, only to be disappointed in finding they had given all their time to other matters and not referred to that at all. They possibly think a bath house for boys a small matter. Would they have thought it a small matter if it was one of their children or a near relative that met the fate of poor unfortunate Norris last week, a fate which is likely to befall any one, even a swimmer in the "mud holes," which are around our city, and are nicknamed "bathing places."

A bath is not only a luxury but a necessity; and how much more is a bath house needed here than it is in most other cities, where besides having them, they have also an abundant supply of running water to supply the houses, and bath tubs in almost every house, while here the luxuries of the tub or running water, bath tubs in our homes are the exception and not the rule. And our poor boys, who long for a bath have to travel a long distance in the sun and get overheated thereby, if they would have a bath in the end, or desire to swim after dark in forbidden places, in danger of drowning in the dark and also of being arrested.

And we poor mothers, with all our other cares, have to sit and wait in aching suspense the return of our boys. Not knowing but instead of a healthful youth, a poor lifeless body may be carried home to us, with the usual story, "he got into a hole, we tried to save him and could not."

This is not a fancy picture, but the feeling that I and numbers of others have almost daily felt during the hot days of this and other seasons. And we would consider a bath house erected in some convenient location, an almost priceless boon, and would stand ready to add our "mite," were the expense defrayed by public contribution, besides sincerely thanking you for suggesting the step, and the Council or any other body of citizens that would have proper authority to adopt it, and thus allay the fears of anxious mothers.

ONE OF THEM.

A WANT SUPPLIED.

To the Editor of THE NEWS:

There has been no want more greatly felt by the inhabitants of Plainfield for years past, than a good, honest, unprejudiced daily paper; a medium through which the whole truth of the transactions of the city and surrounding districts, can be conveyed to the people; rather than a dingy, dull sheet, going up to promulgate some party purpose or by presenting a part of the truth and leaving the remainder in the shade.

That want is supplied in its fullest sense by the EVENING NEWS. Every intelligent person who thinks upon the welfare of our beautiful city, congratulates and appreciates the advent of such a journal, and acknowledges that they find in it all that they desire. Since its birth, the long dormant spirit of public interest is being awakened, and what else can its energy will not, are long, procure for us a city hall, swimming baths, public parks, free library, athletic grounds, places for evening study, and the many other institutions which contribute towards the physical, moral and commercial development of our citizens. The monopoly of the sale of New York papers at from fifty to one hundred per cent. more than their published values, has been a sufficient reason for many thoughtful people to abstain from buying them rather than encourage such imposition. For four cents more than it costs for one Sunday paper, we can now have our spicy EVENING NEWS every evening for a week, thus getting the news of the city, country, and in fact the world, first hand, at first cost; and at the same time be encouraging home trade by supporting an honest enterprise in our midst, which is supplying our greatest want.

Trusting it may continue to maintain its present reputation, and wishing it still greater success, I remain,

ONE WHO LIKES IT.

THE CONVENTION

A Day of Speech-Making at Chicago

FIVE CANDIDATES NAMED.

Cleveland, Bayard, McDonald, Thurman and Carlisle.

BUTLER'S NAME NOT OFFERED.

Tammany Makes Another Assault Upon Cleveland — Remarkable Firmness Displayed by Chairman Vilas—Mr. Cochrane's Eloquent Tribute — Text of Section at the Platform — Two Reports Probable. Convention Prattle.

CHICAGO, July 10.—The convention went at solid work yesterday with a rush, and last night had completed the work of the presidential nomination, with perhaps one exception, are officially before the country. The exception is Gen. Butler. When Massachusetts was called today she was responded to, the whys and wherefores not being stated. It is said that Butler's name will not be placed in nomination, but this has not been confirmed and the probabilities are that the name of the ex-governor will be put before the convention. The immense human mass almost dusk the galleries struggled with the presiding officer for the control of the convention, and but for the remarkable firmness and decision displayed by Chairman Vilas mob law would have undoubtedly prevailed. There was no indication that the galleries were packed in the interest of any particular candidate or faction. The [illegible] was no respecter of persons. It simply wanted to have a good time and it must be remembered that it desires were amply gratified. For long intervals tumult and pandemonium reigned supreme, until chairman, sergeant-at-arms and managers were physically paralyzed. Toward the close of the proceedings half a dozen or more individuals, whose enthusiasm got the better of their discretion, were summarily seized head over heels from the hall, and this proceeding had an exemplary effect for the balance of the session.

All the contradictions which have been telegraphed broadcast over the country to the contrary notwithstanding, the Tammany representation was not disposed to act precisely in accordance with the programme communicated to the United Press on Monday by Mr. John Kelly, and the last resort of the bolters in the convention, the Hills and Cochrane, regardless of the hoots and yells of disapprobation which filled the air, stood before the throng, and, in eloquent, but rather bulletic terms, stated the grounds upon which a portion of the New York delegation were opposed to the nomination of Grover Cleveland. It was a courageous and bold proceeding, but it won them respect, and both had the satisfaction of compelling a hostile audience to accord them a fair and impartial hearing. Towards the end of the session the proceedings were more noisy than ever, and it was amidst a scene of absolute and indescribable confusion that an adjournment was effected until this morning.

The talk around the hotels is to the effect that the position taken by Tammany is becoming more and more untenable. The Tammany stock has improved considerably. As say rats the ex-senator from Ohio is the lion of the floor.

THE DETAILED REPORT.

Scenes, Speeches and Incidents—The Situation Last Night.

CHICAGO, July 10.—The closing scenes in the convention yesterday afternoon were of almost unparalleled excitement in similar bodies. When Hendricks presented the name of McDonald the cheers were deafening. Gen. Black, of Illinois, seconded the nomination of Mr. McDonald. "They would present," he said, "a platform which would appeal to the utter prejudice of the people. They also needed a man whose antecedents (known of all men) constituted a satisfactory answer to all reasonable objections. They needed a man whose record on all public questions could be found without a search warrant and determined without an inquisition. (Applause.) Mr. McDonald was such a man. He had met the responsibilities of silver and the saving of the Pacific coast from coolies or vile labor. A wise legislator, a true financier, brave statesman, his record glittered with the stars of truth, and all might see its glory. Every star on it was a Democratic star, and all its glories were the glories of the people."

Hon. J. W. Breckenridge, of California (one of the last Democratic vice-president of the United States), was heartily cheered when he came on the platform to second Gen. G. Thurman, of Ohio. He said: "California has sent us her representatives, and it is pure and simple work for us to present for the consideration of the Democratic party a man who needs no eulogy at her hands. She has asked us to present for your consideration a man whom, if you nominate, we believe is the best calculated to consult in the hearts of all will be the next president of the United States. (Applause.) Such a man is Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio. He said: "California's ten votes are cast for a man who needs no introduction to the Democracy of America, and I ask you to recognize that the sword has settled the point. I present you a name offering in the person of John G. Carlisle."

BUTLER QUIETLY IGNORED.

When the state of Massachusetts was called the response was awaited with much curiosity. Cheers and hisses were about equally balanced, but it was announced by Mr. Abbott that Massachusetts had no nomination to make at this time.

Mississippi was called. Charles E. Hooker, of Mississippi, took the platform and seconded the nomination of Mr. Boyard.

Carter Harrison, who had previously urged an adjournment on behalf of 5,000 thirsty people, inquired what would be the result if the ticket should be made up of Hill and Cleveland. The chair informed the mayor that the parliamentary law would remain unchanged, if the call lasted till sunrise.

New York was called. Daniel Manning announced that the nominating speech from New York would be made by Daniel S. Lodge, of Buffalo. [illegible] was loudly cheered as he took the platform, and it was some time before he could obtain a hearing. When order was finally restored he said:

LOCKWOOD'S SPEECH.

"It is with no ordinary feeling of responsibility that I appear before this convention as a representative of the Democracy of the state of New York for the purpose of placing in nomination before this convention, as candidate from the state of New York for president, a candidate for the [illegible] This responsibility is made greater when I remember that the richest pages of American history have been written from the record of Democratic administration. This responsibility is made still greater when I remember the only stain in all our political history is adding insult to injury to the rights of the American people in 1876, and that that outrage and that injury is still unavenged, and the responsibility is not lessened when I recall the fact that the only Democrat who's name I shall present to you has been my political associate from our youth to the present hour, and in the convention has stood before this throng, and, in eloquent, but rather bulletic terms, stated the grounds upon which a portion of the New York delegation were opposed to the nomination of Grover Cleveland. It was a courageous and bold proceeding, but it won them respect, and both had the satisfaction of compelling a hostile audience to accord them a fair and impartial hearing. The talk around the hotels is to the effect that the position taken by Tammany is becoming more and more untenable. The Tammany stock has improved considerably. As say rats the ex-senator from Ohio is the lion of the floor.

JOHN M. PALMER.

Cleveland can give the party the vote of New York. He can do it by reason of his upright character and pure administration, and his undisputed courage in the right under all circumstances. His candidacy we ask on the ground of his honor, his integrity, his wisdom and his democracy, and in the last that his nomination will be satisfied by his election as a Democratic president of the union." (Applause.)

The enthusiastic applause which greeted Mr. Lockwood's speech had scarcely subsided when Senator Grady was upon his feet. The chair, however, recognized R. A. Jones, of Minnesota, who seconded Cleveland's nomination.

AN EXCITING SCENE.

Then occurred one of the most exciting scenes of the day. Grady again rose to his feet and proceeded down the aisle, meanwhile calling vociferously for recognition. Half of the galleries hooted, the other half cheered to the echo, and the delegates were similarly divided in their demonstrations. Grady with folded arms looked down smilingly upon the tumult. From the head of the New York delegation Daniel Manning mounted a chair and yelled through the din a point of order, that if Grady rose for any other purpose than that of making or supporting a nomination he was out of order. The chair was in doubt for a moment, but finally concluded that as he had given Grady the floor it was not within his province to dictate what he should say. Again the crowd howled. Grady proceeded, but before his eloquence had got a start Bragg, of Wisconsin, who has in two days proved to be a champion of the little gravel objector," rose to another point of order. He was howled into silence, and then Senator Grady proceeded. Perhaps never before in his admirable delivery and pleasing bearing secured him the attention of every part of the hall, and toward the close of his address he was repeatedly and warmly applauded.

SENATOR GRADY'S SPEECH.

In the course of his remarks he said: "At a recent convention within those walls, amid unbounded enthusiasm and joy, we presented to the public the name of their candidate. But the enthusiasm died out almost immediately, and he has been the coldest of candidates ever since. I have been waving plume and not a plain story that I have no hope will arouse the enthusiasm of those whose only concern is that some local advantage may be gained under the name of Cleveland and his form. (Applause.) I should be glad to support Mr. Cleveland except that I know, and believe I can show you, that he cannot carry the state of New York at this point in an unerring test. If Cleveland is the choice of New York her delegation would not be so widely divided between his friends and his opponents." (Applause.)

It was at this juncture that Gen. Bragg, of Wisconsin, raised that the business before the convention was to nominate candidates, not to attack them.

Mr. Grady resumed his remarks. He repudiated the idea that the Irish or the Catholic vote of the world was moved by it. (Applause.) "The anti-Monopoly element and labor interests," said the speaker, "Catholic and Protestant, and of all nationalities are opposed to him and would oppose his election with good reason."

Mr. Grady then passed to a review of the history of Gov. Cleveland's administration. He asserted that though elected by 192,000 majority he owed that overplus purity to a remarkably enthusiastic Democratic support, and not to the Democratic-Mugwump plots, on account of the then recent passage of the railroad commission bill, which, said Mr. Grady, had afterward been nullified by the governor's action and vetoing bills, and of Republican disaffection on account of the same interference in local concerns, of which Cleveland has himself since been guilty. (Applause.) Then followed the fall of 192,000 in 1884 and changed to a defeat in 1883 by 18,599 votes, of a candidate representing Mr. Cleveland's views. "Such a record was never fast (referring to an expression of Mr. Lockwood) if the party could afford to pass by like those of Thurman, Bayard, Randall and its other veterans, to take up an obscure man from Erie county, with no record to compare with theirs. Mr. Grady then spoke of the ill-concealed joy with which the contents of the pockets of the poor man to put them into the treasury of a vast corporation. He entered into the details of the governor's action on the Buffalo charter bills, and spoke at length in this strain. The audience became very impatient, and frequent shouts of "Sit down!" "Finish in 10-2-30!" etc., were heard. When he concluded became too great Mr. Grady would pause and fold his arms composedly, while Chairman Vilas pounded the desk in convention and galleries that the gentleman from New York would be protected in his right to speak until he had finished. Many struggles occurred over motions to adjourn, to take a recess. The orator was several times thus obliged to pause, while three cheers for Cleveland were given in response to a call from some persons in the audience. His patience remained unruffled, however, and after each interruption he resumed his calmly expressed analysis of Cleveland's standing. He concluded by saying that while his fellow-thinkers would take the gambler's chance of winning, even with Cleveland, they asked for a man, and there were several men such as he had named, on whom the party could unite, and who could carry New York undoubtedly.

Mr. Grady received applause as he stepped down from the platform.

There was more disorder after Grady had resumed his seat. Judge Cochrane, of New York, obtained a hearing, and was met with a storm of "noes" and a motion to adjourn. In no wise intimidated, however, the chair gave him the floor. He said: "I am a Democrat, and I believe that the name of Cleveland ought to be received with pleasure in a Democratic convention, and of whose ability to carry the critical state of New York there can be no question." (Applause.) Hill and none will be raised by the minority of his delegation. (Applause.) In behalf of that minority let me say a few words which may enlighten you as to the condition of the party in our state."

Gen. Bragg here made the point that the gentleman was not speaking to a nomination. The chair overruled the objection.

JUDGE COCHRANE'S ELOQUENCE.

Judge Cochrane proceeded. His several efforts were greeted with cries of derision, ironical laughter, to which he was also unsolicited and made the puppet of the person who had captured the majority of the delegation. "We in New York," he said, "without the wish or invitation to settle her quarrels" asked Judge Cochrane. "Why hazard the great election, trusting unsupported prognostications, instead of intelligently and choosing from among the illustrious names which are the common property of the party, some candidate whose name will be an argument in his favor, whose history will be a platform, and whose record will be a long step toward the confidence and support of the voters of the country. (Applause.) I will name no man never concerned in a single act savoring of corporate influence, one who never prostituted the executive pen to the veto of a bill conceived in the interest of labor; whose legislative career is marked by the first great check upon the encroachments of a ruthless corporation, and who can never be suspected of desiring to veto a bill for being first written in the senate as before they reported, no action whatever having been taken. The subcommittee then went to work to revise, and, as soon as completed, the report was submitted to the full committee and read and adopted this morning.

Thurman Gaining Strength.

CHICAGO, July 10.—The excitement is intense and the Palmer house is literally packed with people. There are at least 30,000 people in and about the house. The California and Ohio delegations, headed by a band, marched with wild bandanas on their hats, and all shouting for Thurman. They say they are about to "draw a crimson streak through the town."

"Scuff," as the Ohio statesman has been dubbed by his followers, appears to be gaining strength, but nothing appears to have any effect upon Cleveland boomers.

ALLAN G. THURMAN.

Carlisle on the Situation.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Speaker Carlisle, in conversation with a representative of the United Press, said: "I am all at sea, and I do not think there is any man in Chicago who can predict the nominee with any degree of certainty."

When asked for his opinion as to the result of to-day's proceedings, Mr. Carlisle said that he thought Mr. Cleveland had the strength.

Mr. Prince, of Boston, was also of the same opinion, and insisted that the tide was turn before the balloting began, and that there would be a break to Bayard.

The Cleveland men, on the other hand, are very sanguine, and claim that on they will secure the nomination on the second ballot.

Convention Whispers.

Thousands of voices may be continually heard shouting in turn for their respective candidates.

Henry Watterson sent for Speaker Carlisle yesterday afternoon, desiring his counsel on the platform.

The Plainfield men have a glee club at the headquarters singing national airs with cheerful tunefulness.

As compared with the other delegations the Plainfield contingent of Indians appears to be rather gloomy.

The Randall boom appears to have suffered, and some of the Pennsylvanian's most ardent supporters are said to be "weakening."

But little is heard of the Bayard movement, but his friends say they have their lieutenants out, and that a still hunt is effectively going.

When he entered the dining room o the Palmer House last night, John Kelly was overheard to remark to a friend: "Have got a good fight, and am satisfied, or, no matter who is nominated, we will be defeated."

The speech made by Mr. Bert Cochrane, of New York, seconding Thurman's nomination, is the talk of the town. It is conceded to have been one of the most eloquent and convincing arguments yet made before the convention.

Almost momentarily there are bands of music playing national airs, passing down State street and in front of the Palmer house, and the streets are so packed with humanity that the street cars are blocked, and it is with the greatest difficulty that they get through.

CHOLERA IN SPAIN AND ITALY.

No Decrease in the Mortality in Marseilles and Toulon.

PARIS, July 10.—The Republique Francaise hears that there are many cases of cholera in Valencia, Barcelona, Rome, Leghorn and Viterbo, and demands that the government at once declare a vigorous quarantine against Spain and Italy.

MARSEILLES, July 10.—Nine deaths from cholera occurred here Wednesday evening, and fourteen between noon to-day and midnight yesterday.

A number of policemen have tendered their resignations on account of the cholera scare, and were refused by the mayor.

TOULON, July 10.—There was six deaths here from cholera Wednesday evening, and five between 9 a. m. and 9 yesterday.

The Diamond Field.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The following is the result of the baseball games played yesterday:

At Baltimore—St. Louis Unions, 8; Baltimore Clubs, 3.

At Cleveland—Boston, 8; Cleveland, 12.

At Detroit—Philadelphia, 1; Detroit, 7.

At Buffalo—Buffalo, 5; Providence, 1.

At Columbus—Athletics, 2; Columbus, 4.

At Chicago—New York, 1; Chicago, 8.

Lightning Strikes in Taunton.

TAUNTON, Mass., July 10.—Lightning struck a tree on Weir street this afternoon, shattering the trunk. It tore a ragged rent in the roof about fifteen feet long, passing out on the electric light wire. A number of ladies were prostrated.

A Big Embezzler Caught.

ERIE, Pa., July 10.—Adam B. Bahnder, the cashier of the Citizens' Erie County Saving bank, was arrested upon a charge of embezzlement. In default of $100,000 bail he was committed to prison.

MR. SAGE PROSTRATED.

The Great Financier and Speculator Sick Abed.

Advised to Retire From Active Business—Depressing Effects of Recent Misfortunes—His Career as an Operator.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Shortly after noon yesterday Mr. Russell Sage, who had been attending to business as usual at his office, No. 71 Broadway, complained of feeling unwell. One of his clerks called a carriage and Mr. Sage was taken to his uptown residence and put to bed. When the clerk returned to the office he was piled with questions as to Mr. Sage's condition.

"The old gentleman is not dangerously ill," was the reply; "but he has gone to bed. The fact of the matter is he is tired out and needs rest. His physician has advised him to retire from business for a few weeks and go into the country, where he can secure the quiet which he so much needs."

Dow, Jones & Co.'s Wall street circular contained the following announcement:

"Some rumors have been current in regard to the retirement of Mr. Sage from active business. We can state that Mr. Sage has been told by his physician that he must devote very little time to business. He is suffering from nervous prostration."

Speaking of Mr. Sage's illness an old broker remarked:

"I am not surprised to hear that the veteran doctor of puts and calls is suffering from nervous prostration. In fact I have been expecting such a result for several weeks past. In the first place, he is well advanced in years. He is now in his 75th year, and recently the great excitement and worry of mind, consequent upon his recent financial misfortunes, have tended to weaken him mentally and physically.

"Then you believe that he has virtually retired from the street?"

"Oh, I don't imagine that he will step down and out from business life all of a sudden, but there is no doubt that he will hereafter leave the larger share of his stock and financial transactions to be attended to by his clerks. He is almost broken-hearted over what he regards as the shabby treatment which he received at the hands of his fellow-operators in stocks. He told me a few days ago that he had assisted many men to get a start in the world, and that some of them had turned against him and taken advantage of his unfortunate situation in the market. He claimed that when they saw that he was cornered they should have given him time to get out of the predicament without subjecting him to serious losses."

Mr. Russell Sage's business career has been indeed remarkable. Beginning his business life at the bottom of the financial ladder, he climbed until his wealth at one time was estimated at fully $15,000,000. It is related of him that when he was a young man he and his wife practiced the most rigid economy. They lived in a small house, and Mrs. Sage assisted in gaining a livelihood by making collars and cuffs for one of the Troy shirt manufacturing establishments. At that time Mr. Sage kept a small grocery and provision store in Troy. He employed no clerk or assistant, and attended to all the work of the grocery himself. For a few years his attention was devoted to the retail trade, and his customers were mainly people who resided in the country about Troy. Subsequently he embarked in a wholesale trade, in which he accumulated about $50,000.

In 1855 he became interested in railroads, and several negotiations for the transfer of railroad stocks which were contracted by him swelled his fortune into the millions, when he came to New York and speculated in stocks on a large scale. He purchased a heavy interest in the Pacific Mail Steamship company, and was for several years one of the leading spirits in that corporation.

BLAINE AND LOGAN.

Their Letters of Acceptance Nearly Ready for Publication.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 10.—To-day Mr. Blaine will attend commencement at Bowdoin college. He has decided to call in help upon his letter of acceptance. Friday's train will bring Whitelaw Reid, Wm. Walter Phelps, Chas. Emory Smith and Steve Elkins to give it a final review before it is given to the press. It is also thought some changes may be suggested in the course of The Tribune. Gen. Logan has telegraphed to Mr. Blaine that his letter of acceptance was ready for publication, and desired to know when Blaine proposed to issue his, so that he might make his public at the same time. Logan's letter, in addition to a formal acceptance of the nomination, will treat upon the results accomplished by the war, and urge the necessity of maintaining the same in accordance with the principles involved in that struggle.

BOSTON, July 10.—A 120-ton cannon which was being constructed at the South Boston foundry for government use, exploded as molten lead was poured into the "flask," a pit thirty-six feet deep and ten feet in diameter. The building was fired, but the blaze was extinguished. The gun, when finished, would have been worth, $12,000. It is now only worth its weight for old iron.

CONDENSED NEWS.

THE FALSE PROPHET.

The Personal Peculiarities of the Man of the Soudan.

Life in a Straw Hut—Thirty-nine Wives—The Black Man's Prophet a Total Abstinent.

[Dongola Cor. London News.]

Mohammed Ahmed is in person tall and powerfully built, but somewhat inclined to corpulency. His complexion is between brown and red—what the Arabs call asfer—that is, green. The expression of his countenance is agreeable, and when in repose his face is lighted up by a constant placid smile. If the statements of his enemies may be trusted, this outer aspect of benevolence furnishes but a deceptive key to his character. Against them we refuse to recognize the divine nature of his mission he can be severe to cruelty. He is credited with Jeffreys' trick of weeping over the fate of those victims which he orders to execution, so as to create the impression that he punishes dissent and disobedience with personal regret at the command of Allah. In barren discussion as to the nature or authority of his mission he loses no time. If any man be bold enough to challenge its divine origin or express disbelief, he is permitted to choose between submission, acknowledgment, and full decapitation. This method of reasoning has the advantage that it is brief and effective. Few men are bold enough to sacrifice their heads for their opinions, and the result is a general acquiescence in the divine authority of Mohammed Ahmed's mission. On the other hand he protects and encourages those who voluntarily accept him as the true mehdi—the man sent by Allah to reform mankind.

HIS DIVINE MISSION.

Beyond question Mohammed Ahmed is a man of considerable intelligence and extraordinary force of character. No ordinary man could have raised himself from an humble position and made himself master over the restive and jealous Arab tribes, as Mohammed Ahmed has succeeded in doing. It has been customary to represent him as the instrument or tool of other men, but if he ever occupied that position he has ceased to do so. To-day Mohammed Ahmed is the absolute master of the life and property of every man from Obeid to Fashoda. He boasts none education, as it is understood in the east; that is, he reads and writes, and is well versed in the koran and commentators. He speaks both the Barabari and Arabic languages. Some Catholic priests who have met him personally state that he is by no means a vulgar impostor, but, on the contrary, impressed them as a man thoroughly convinced of the divine nature of his mission and wholly devoted to carrying out the religious reforms which he claims he has been sent to effect. The more intelligent part of the population do not pay any faith in his divine mission; but among the mass of people, who are sunk in almost absolute ignorance, Mohammed Ahmed is undoubtedly regarded as a prophet sent by Allah, whom it is sinful to resist. "Had he declared himself a king," said an intelligent merchant the other day, "no one would have followed or obeyed him, but because he comes as a prophet the people fear to disobey him lest they should expose themselves to the divine vengeance."

IN A STRAW HUT.

Mohammed Ahmed's life is simple in the extreme. He indulges in none of the luxuries or vanities of life, except, perhaps, a weakness for a large number of wives. He is credited with the possession of thirty-nine of these aids to happiness, though the orthodox number allowed by the Koran is only four. This seems a case of temperance overdone, as he keeps within the letter of the Mohammedan law, the ladies taking their turn to be divorced and taken again. Perhaps with the object of this little family arrangement is to enable him to strengthen his affinities by alliances contracted with the families of the principal chiefs, from among whom he is careful to select the partners of his joys and sorrows. He has several children, but none old enough to take any part in his important religious work. Since the capture of Obeid the mehdi has taken up his residence at the Moudirieh, or governor's residence, a fine stone building in the center of the town. Here he lives in a large hall, but sits every day transacting the necessary business and receiving the visits of his followers. His wives occupy a building situated behind the Moudirieh, but communicating with it by a garden.

In this garden the prophet has had constructed for himself a hut of straw, in which he sleeps, or is supposed to sleep, and passes the time not occupied in business or public prayer. This to does become one of the tenets of the new Moslem reforms as preached by Mohammed Ahmed is that it is unlawful—that is, contrary to the ordinances of God—to construct houses or live in them. Houses are effeminate luxuries, and therefore must be destroyed. In accordance with this new dispensation the Bedouins, on the capture of Obeid, proceeded to wreck the houses of the inhabitants, and an order was issued forbidding the townspeople longer to dwell in them. The result of this ordinance is that the population have been obliged to construct huts of straw after the approved Bedouin fashion in the court-yards of their houses, and in these they live as best they can. This is correctly enough styled by the mehdi his camp at Obeid. In this climate the hardship of living in a straw shelter is not very great, as it rains only a few rainy except during the fierce heat of the autumn months, which really correspond with our springtide, in so far as they are the season for planting the single crop on which the people of the Soudan depend for existence.

THE "CIVILIZED ELEMENT."

The people here and at Kordofan who call themselves civilized, that is to say, have imbibed only the smattering of culture and socialistic reformers with which modern unbelief that the Quarter St. Germain looks upon the communist of the outer boulevards. This, however, does not work well after the situation, as the "civilized element" is, after all a very small section of the population, and as a rule not over well liked by their neighbors, who, though they respect their superiority and their affectation of European manners and dress. To the vast mass of the people it is a matter of utter indifference whether they live in mud-walled houses or huts, but all of them are glad to welcome any deliverer from Turkish government. By the government of the Turk the people of the Soudan mean the government of the white man. It makes no matter what your country or creed is, if your face be white you are an enemy to be destroyed. This state of feeling has been caused by the cruelties of the oppressions and extortions of the Turkish and Circassian officials, who have ruled their region with a heavy hand.

But it is not the official class alone who are responsible; the rich and powerful merchants have had their share in the work of provoking the uprising of the Arab population. Nothing the conduct of the Turkish officials the rich merchants in their superstitions were accustomed to levy contributions on the [illegible] and in their turn [illegible] whatever they [illegible] a draught of pay [illegible] for the [illegible] were [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Locals.

—Sherwin's got something new—an excellent $2 shoe.

—It is said that a Reform Club Convention is to be held.

—Fishing parties off Sewaren are having good luck, it is said.

—There will be a concert at the Hotel Netherwood this evening.

—The Elizabeth Athletic Club will play the Hudson of New York to-morrow.

—The best company of city supply many of the New Brunswick butchers.

—At the business meeting of the Reform Club last evening the excursion committee reported that $85 had been taken in over the expenses.

—The Somerville Unionist-Gazette says the Rev. Dr. Lewis, of this city, "is one of the most natural and most gifted of pulpit orators in New Jersey."

—The sling of a bee caused the runaway of a team of horses attached to a hay wagon, in New Market yesterday, resulting in injuring one of the horses, breaking the harness and damaging the wagon.

—The Elizabeth Herald wants Miss Hurst, the electric girl who is at present astonishing New Yorkers by her marvelous lifting powers, to come to Elizabeth, and try to move the council to do something about the debt settlement. Why not have her move the debt itself?

—The pile of lumber which has obstructed Front street in front of the new Ryder building has been removed by order of the Mayor. The lumber has been a great obstruction to the street and sidewalk at this point for some time. The Mayor gave his personal attention to the matter.

—The charming style of "Crescent Ave.," whose regular letter for the week appears today, has excited a strong desire in one of our subscribers of literary note and means, to make her acquaintance through us. His efforts have, of course, been futile, as these are matters not to be divulged. It may be stated, however, that she is a popular writer in the leading magazines in the country, as her style would indicate.

Servants Unpaid.

Numerous complaints are made before City Judge Good by servant girls for the nonpayment of the wages due them, the amounts due generally being between $50 and $60. The amount though seemingly not large, represents from three to six months' work; and the poor servant girl to whom the amount is due, in all probability has no other money except that which she earns from day to day. In very many cases, also, besides supporting herself, she shares her earnings with her family. To deprive this class of workers of their money is a great injustice, and should not be allowed.

Card of Thanks.

The Trustees of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, and the Mutual Aid Society of the Potter Press Works, desire us in their behalf to thank each and all of those who assisted in the recovery of the body of the late John Norris, Mr. C. Potter, Jr., for arranging for the funeral services, the Rev. Dr. Lewis for conducting the same, and the choir of the Seventh Day Baptist Church for the music on the occasion. The late Mr. Norris through his prudence and forethought had himself provided the means whereby all his burial expenses were defrayed.

St. Joseph's Picnic.

The picnic for the benefit of St. Joseph's church was held in Woodside Grove yesterday afternoon and evening. There was a large attendance. The music was furnished by Prof. Guttman. The grand march was led by Mr. David Barry and lady. The grove was beautifully illuminated and decorated with flags and chinese lanterns. The picnic was a success financially and other wise.

Potter Press Works.

The Potter Press works were shut down last evening until Monday, for repairs to shafting and machinery. On July 3d, the works were shut down until July 8th, to overhaul the engine and boiler. The work on the new additions are being rapidly pushed forward, and it is expected that the foundry addition will be ready for operation the beginning of next week.

The Methodist Excursion.

The depot platform was crowded this morning by the members and friends of the Sunday School of the Methodist Episcopal Church, on the occasion of their excursion to Ocean Grove. The train, which followed the regular 7:30 a. m. train to New York, consisted of thirteen coaches and one baggage car. The excursionists are expected back about 7:30 this evening.

A Pastor's Wife Dead.

The wife of the Rev. Mr. Compton, of the Methodist Church of Dunellen, died yesterday after an illness of several years.

The Lawn Party.

A very pretty sight was presented, as one walked toward the Park House last evening, by the colored fires, chinese lanterns and fire works on the lawn. As one neared the place the scene increased in brilliancy, and the powers of "youthful jollity" seem to have been let loose. The occasion was the annual Lawn Party of the Young People's Association of the Park Avenue Church. The one last year was such a great success that every one was anxious to attend the one last evening, which they did—either inside or outside.

Many hundreds wandered around inside among the various tents and stands during the afternoon and evening. The veritable Jersey gypsy queen was on hand, and her services were constantly in demand. One importunate young lady would hardly wait for the grounds to open in the afternoon, so anxious was she to know what the fates had in store for her.

At the refreshment tables business was lively during the whole time, and the fruit stand and flower bower did a thriving business. One unique feature was the long line of candles set in the ground on one side of the lawn, and ending by forming the letters Y. P. A.

Music was furnished by a string band from New York.

The affair was so successful that it has been determined to continue it this evening. All the attractions will be on hand in full force.

A New Form of Rascality.

Says the Rural New Yorker: In several parts of New Jersey farmers have lately been victimized by a trick that will doubtless soon be tried in other parts of the country also. In the above instances a glib-tongued rascal represented himself to be the agent of the Excelsis Lock Company of Meriden, Conn., (there is no such concern there), and wherever he could get a hearing said he was anxious to put in as many locks this season as possible, for he wanted to obtain a large number of references so as to secure large contracts in Philadelphia and Boston later on. To start the "boom" he offered handsome locks free of charge, provided the farmer would allow him the use of his name as reference on a proposed circular, and would pay the locksmith for putting on the locks. This was an irresistable bait and forthwith a large number of elegant locks were put on house doors. Within a fortnight all the houses thus protected, in the same district, were robbed on the same night, and a considerable amount of booty was secured by the professional burglars. In several cases where the doors were additionally secured by bolts, these were slipped back with the skill of a professional burglar.

Reduced in Salaries.

Some of the Presidential post-offices in this State have been reduced in salaries by the effect of the last calculations of mail matter sent out from each. Somerville loses $100 (falls from $1,700 to $1,600) and so does Bergen Point, Bloomfield, Boonton, Bordentown, Cape May, Dover, Keyport, Mount Holly, Paterson, Rutherford, South Orange, Tom's River, Vineland, Washington and Woodbury. Millington, in Morris county, on the shores of Somerville, has risen to the Presidential grade, with a salary of $1,200. The following offices have been increased each $100: Brick Church, Bridgeton, Camden, Hackensack, Hightstown, Long Branch and Montclair. Plainfield retains the same salary as formerly.

A New Law About Recognizances.

A new law, passed by the last Legislature, is quite important. It is in regard to recognizances, or bail pieces. From time immemorial it has been the custom for only the judge before whom the recognizance was taken, to sign these pieces, and all the surety had to do was to seal his bond on hearing the terms read, and pay forty cents fees. Now it is necessary that not only the "recognizer," as the bondsman is called, but also the person bailed, must sign the document, in addition to the judge issuing it. No other form of recognizances will be valid after this. All the judges who are likely to accept bail have had new blanks printed to conform with the law.

Personal.

Miss Georgie Chamberlin, Assistant Secretary of the Chautauqua School of Languages, has gone to Chautauqua for the season.

Mrs. M. J. Dixon and her two daughters, of New York, are on a visit to friends in Plainfield, prior to occupying their cottage at Long Branch.

Mr. F. T. Lincoln and family leave town to-morrow for their cottage at Mt. Tabor, to be gone for several weeks, for the refreshment of soul and body. Mr. Lincoln has been a resident of Plainfield about 40 years, and is a temperance worker.

Before the City Judge.

Mary Lake, arrested as a disreputable character, was given sixty days and $20 fine.

Thomas McGraith, arrested for drunkenness, was discharged with a reprimand, it being his first offense.

To Tackle Jersey City.

A delegation of the Reform Club headed by Mayor Maxson is to go to Jersey City on Sunday and open the temperance work there. That there is an ample field no one will deny, and the delegation have an opportunity of covering themselves with glory.

Democratic Convention.

Cleveland Wins!

Nominated on 2d Ballot.

[SPECIAL TO THE NEWS.]

Chicago, 11 a. m.

The Convention assembled at 10:35 a. m.

Colorado will change her vote to Cleveland on the first ballot this morning.

The Cleveland men claim that the Illinois delegation will vote solid for Cleveland on the first ballot this morning.

It is also claimed that Pennsylvania will give him forty votes, and that Cleveland will poll at least 450 votes on the first ballot.

Chicago, 11:30 a. m.

It is said that Randall's influence will be turned to Cleveland this morning, and that McDonald, Rosecrans and Vilas are the most prominent candidates for the Vice-Presidential nomination.

A number of telegrams from different parts of the country suggesting the proper persons to nominate have been received by the Convention, and laid on the table.

A motion that the vote of a State should not be changed until a succeeding ballot is taken was lost.

Pennsylvania withdraws Randall's name from the list of candidates.

McDonald and Carlisle have also been withdrawn. Indiana voted for Hendricks.

A great deal of consultation is going on among the delegates.

The roll of States for the second ballot was ordered at 11:20 a. m. Cleveland gains six from Thurman.

Chicago, 12:30 p. m.

Illinois casts 28 votes for Cleveland amid great cheering. About half the delegates rise to their feet, and make loud demonstrations.

If Cleveland holds what he had on the first ballot, this change will give him a majority of the Convention.

Ohio gives Tilden two votes and Hendricks one.

Cleveland gains two in Oregon from Bayard, and Hendricks gets two.

South Carolina gives Hendricks two, Bayard's loss.

Thurman gains two in Tennessee, Bayard's loss. Hendricks gets one vote.

Cleveland gains two in Texas, Thurman's loss.

Hendricks gets two votes in Virginia.

Chicago, 1 p. m.

The result of the second ballot is as follows:

Cleveland	475
Hendricks	124 1-2
Bayard	150
Thurman	60
McDonald	2
Randall	5
Tilden	2

Cleveland loses one in West Virginia.

Pennsylvania gives Cleveland forty-two.

Illinois changes one from Cleveland to Bayard.

Cleveland gains one in Kansas.

North Carolina changes 22 from Bayard to Cleveland.

Ohio is trying to change her vote amid great confusion.

Cleveland's friends claim there will be change enough to give him the nomination on this ballot.

Georgia changes to Cleveland, a gain of eight.

Cleveland's nomination is conceded.

A number of delegates are struggling to be heard in order to change their vote.

Chicago, 3 p. m.

Cleveland is nominated on the second ballot by changes.

Chicago, 2:30 p. m.

The second ballot after the changes is as follows:

Cleveland	683
Bayard	81
Hendricks	45 1-2
Thurman	4
McDonald	2
Randall	4

The nomination of Cleveland has been made unanimous.

It is said that in all probability Vilas will go the Vice-Presidency.

State Matters.

City Clerk Hague, of Paterson, has been found guilty of the charges against him by the Board of Aldermen, and has been removed.

Much anxiety is expressed concerning the health of ex-Congressman John Hill, of Boonton. He is sick with an acute attack of Bright's disease.

The difficulty between Jersey City and the Erie Railway on the score of taxes has been adjusted by the payment to the city of three notes aggregating $76,107.70.

The courts have been invoked to compel the New Brunswick Common Council to organize. There has been a deadlock existing in the Council for some time.

The Porpoise Fishing Company of Cape May has made its first experimental haul, the immense net working admirably and catching a number of the great fish.

A TRIP TO ASBURY PARK.

Sitting behind me in the cars on my journey to Asbury Park last week, were two rather elderly gentlemen, engaged in hearty conversation, and raising their voices. In proportion to the rattling tumult of the train, most of their remarks were plainly heard; they were gentlemen of the old school, (as most elderly gentlemen are,) perfectly familiar with a portion of the country through which they were passing, and comment on the vast extent of land owned by various parties which they knew, discussed the different members of the bar, weighed the characters of the State judges, remarking on their ages, foibles and habits, and edified me with descriptions of their former law cases of interest along the road. In speaking of the vast improvements made all along the sea coast, one asked the other what he thought of the advantages of the very long "boom" he replied that he thought it was fairly bewildering—and that he was afraid to go there on account of there being so many ladies; his friend laughed at him, and asked if he was not single. "No no!" replied the other, I think it no joking matter for a quiet bachelor, like myself, to find himself surrounded, as it were, by a crowd of women and children, who fill the corridors and piazzas at every hotel and boarding house. All the stages are full of them, also the board walk, stretching along the shore for two miles. I was in the house only a few moments when I was introduced to ten of them in a group, and later in the evening, was presented to some twenty more—that was last Summer—and this year, they tell me, it will be very unsafe for a marriageable man to go there, as it is leap year, and the ladies intend to take the matter of proposing into their own hands, therefore, I will not go. "The fact is," continued the bachelor, "the throng of women who go there, are described as being tired, sorrow laden, feeble of health, perhaps unloved—unlovely—who have gotten rid of the household, the routine, and the cares of daily life at home, who grasp hold of a religious life to recompense them for what is lost at home, and lying beneath their gravity and spirituality is a warmth and vitality—a latent force which arises about for enjoyment and expansion, and you cannot find a quiet nook or corner in the whole place; the babble of society is forever on the ear, well seasoned with religious phrases, and a perfect mix of doctrine, Deuteronomy and devilry, duty and dish-water, appear in the daily routine of conversation. "Well," said his listener, "you have been a bachelor so long, perhaps you walk safely through such influences?" "Yes," said he, "I am no longer a love sick school boy, to be mocked and deceived by the blandishments of the fair sex, my wealth and fame which I longed and toiled for I have gained, and they must satisfy, for there is nothing left in life for me, who made so vain use of its morning. I am entering the meridian, and my thoughts must be of the evening; therefore, I shun general society, and the society of women in particular. His friend, at this rather pathetic point in the conversation, hastened to change the subject, introducing the ever pleasant topic of money and its gain, and I ceased to listen. I listened no longer, I had ample food for thought, especially, as I was on my way to Asbury Park, and a new interest had been awakened in regard to a religious and social possibilities.

Well, I have explored hotel, boarding house, board walk, and even the nooks and corners described by that self enamored bachelor, and I must say his descriptions were true, as regards the throng of ladies of all ages, who actually live, move, and have their being out in the pure bracing air on the broad sea-shore, and walking to and fro on the broad walk skirting the ocean, which, grand and awe-inspiring as it is, often serves as a back ground to many a very unfortunate lovely faces and figures, tripping along—many of them, like beautiful butterflies flitting here and there, adorned with nature's own glorifying! Such is life's mockery! Others as it seemed to me, such azure eyes, golden hair, cheeks, with their sea shell flush, visions of beauty, that steal through the windows of the eye, and transport the longing soul. Let him beware, who, wandering there, believes his heart forever proof against such over powering fascinations, for he may be in the most favorable way for falling an easy victim to the snares lying in wait at every turn. During my visit there, I saw several bachelors who seemed very cautiously musing their way along the beach, taking advantage of the early morning hours when the lovely beings, who they feared yet longed to meet, were sleeping off the telling effects of the night before.

I saw a friend there—a dignified, health seeking widower—a man, who has a way of inspiring friendships, without much effort on on his part, he being one of those who accomplish good everywhere, his mind, of great social breadth, as thoroughly opposed to a state of isolation, loving that genial gossip which forms at times a part of human nature. He will be useful to his fellow creatures; he will have his spiritual arms full of good projects; he will desire to care the sickly who ought to die; desire to lend the weary and listless who ought to starve; and will preach total abstinence to the youths who declare, that beer is not an intoxicating beverage; and he will find it his duty to preach the gospel in early life, for he is a philosopher by nature and habit; he will note throughout those various religious meetings, the toddlings of each youthful son from weakness towards strength, followed by the rapid march of minds which have attained their full powers, and in his daily attendance on the tabernacle, imbibe that spiritual lordliness which is worthy of the interest it occupies and higher beings, inspiring him with an ardent desire to seek the salvation of the miserable spirits on the verge of destruction.

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO, July 11.—The delegates were slow in assembling last night, but the galleries and the portions of the floor reserved for the general public were packed by 7 o'clock and fully 5,000 people on the outside clamored in vain for admission. About 8 o'clock many of the delegations arrived in a body. The old war horses were greeted with the same enthusiasm which has marked the opening of each session.

There were upward of 10,000 people on the outside of the Exposition building eager to obtain information respecting the convention proceedings. The Baltimore and Ohio telegraph company has arranged a large sheet opposite the building for the purpose of throwing upon it through a stereopticon process a series of bulletins. The crowds about the building clamored for bulletins but none excepting those having tickets were allowed to pass. A large squad of police guarded each of the entrances for the purpose of preventing a recurrence of the terrible crush which occurred during the morning.

THE CONVENTION CALLED TO ORDER.

It was not until 8:30 that the convention was in a condition to justify Chairman Vilas in calling it to order. In the interval the Tammany men were surrounded by a large number of delegates and an important conference was apparently in progress.

Mr. R. H. Henry, of Mississippi, as soon as the convention was in order, submitted the following resolutions:

Resolved, First—That the convention has read with profound regret and intense admiration the statesmanlike and patriotic letter of Samuel J. Tilden, expressing the unresponsiveness of his constitutional organism which constrains him to decline the high station for the highest office in the gift of the American people.

Second—That though fraud, force and violence deprived Samuel J. Tilden and Thos. A. Hendricks of the office conferred upon them by the Democratic party in 1876, they still live, and now will live, in the hearts of the Democracy of the country. (Applause.)

Third—That this convention expresses the nation's regret that this same lofty patriotism and splendid executive and administrative ability, which characterized and purified the city and state governments of the great Empire State cannot be given to the nation in the supreme station of national trust and conviction, so long and unanswerably demonstrated and maintained by the Democratic party in its national capital.

Fourth—That a copy of these resolutions be authenticated and that the Secretary of the convention amount a committee whose duty it shall be the same of the convention to forward or present the same to Hon. Samuel J. Tilden and the Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks. (Applause.)

When the clerk had read the two paragraphs of the above a delegate from Indiana arose to a point of order that the resolution must go to the committee without reading. The chair overruled the point, and the resolutions were unanimously adopted amid applause.

Mr. Cleveland, of New York, sent up a resolution to the clerk's desk, but at this moment Gen. Butler entered and was greeted with round after round of applause. Cleveland's resolution provided simply that to-morrow the roll of states be called for members of the national committee. He failed to include the territories and a motion to so include was carried in a viva voce vote by a large majority.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

The roll was then called. The following named gentlemen were chosen as members of the national committee:

Henry G. Sample, of Alabama; S. R. Rockwell, of Arkansas; Mr. Stokeland, of California; M. S. Waller, of Colorado; Wm. E. Barnum, of Connecticut; Samuel Pasco, of Florida; Frederick Walsh, of Georgia; S. Corning Judd, of Illinois; Austin H. Brown, of Indiana; M. M. Ham, of Iowa; C. W. Blair, of Kansas; Henry D. Pilcher, of Kentucky; Hon. B. F. Jones, of Louisiana; Edmond Wilson, of Maine; A. P. Gorman, of Maryland; Hon. J. J. Dickinson, of Michigan; D. H. Kelley, of Minnesota; S. A. Johnston, of Mississippi; John G. Prather, of Missouri; Hon. James E. Boyd, of Nebraska; Dennis J. Oakley, of Nevada; Alfred W. Salloway, of New Hampshire; Seeldon Ransom, of North Carolina; W. W. Armstrong, of Ohio; Jonathan S. Barnaby, of Rhode Island; Francis W. Dawson, of South Carolina; Col. Robert A. Cheney, of Tennessee; Hon. O. T. Holt, of Texas; P. V. Smalley, of Vermont; Hon. J. S. Barbee, of Virginia; Lewis Baker, of West Virginia; Hon. C. K. Graham, of Wisconsin; Hon. Stephen Dexter, of Wyoming; Hon. Wm. Higgins, of Arizona; Wm. Dixon, of the District of Columbia; Mr. Haley, of Idaho.

dates of their nomination: Col. S. W. Bardice, Arkansas; Daniel E. Bester, Alabama; ——Sells, California; T. W. Waller, Connecticut; W. D. Shipley, Florida; Milton P. Reese, Georgia; A. D. Stevenson, Illinois; Col. E. D. Bandeau, Indiana; Hon. S. D. Kinney, Iowa; C. C. Burns, Kansas; Attila Cox, Kentucky; Hon. James Jeffreys, Louisiana; E. H. Osgood, Maine; Hon. Geo. Wells, Maryland; Daniel J. Carman, Michigan; Henry Bear, Minnesota, Hon. Chas. D. Hooker, Mississippi; D. R. Francis, Mobile; Hon. P. Piatt, Nebraska; Gen. Hancock, Nevada; John D. Cottingham, New Hampshire; W. G. Love, North Carolina; David S. Baker, Jr., Rhode Island; James H. Earl, South Carolina; Gen. W. H. Calls, Tennessee; Hon. James E. Dwyer, Texas; Hon. G. Spear, Vermont; Gen. Robert Byerly, Virginia; S. D. Howson, Montana, J. A. Cole, Washington Territory; Hon. W. W. Stevenson, New Mexico, W. H. Halliday, Wyoming; G. Hewitt, Arizona; E. D. Wright, District of Columbia.

Among the slain which were passed on account of their not being ready were New York and New Jersey.

The next states having been completed there was a moment's interval and then all eyes were turned in the direction of Gen. Butler. He did not rise, and the committee withdrew before it's report on the subject of a chairman of the national committee, which had been referred to them. The committee reported a resolution providing the committee shall be instructed in their choice of a chairman to members of that committee, which was unanimously adopted.

THE TWO-THIRDS RULE.

W. T. Ferry, of Arkansas, offered a resolution, but at this juncture Gen. Butler marched down the aisle, mounted the platform and shook hands with ex-Mayor Prince and took a seat behind the chair. Loud applause and hisses greeted his progress.

Mr. Ferry's resolution provides that hereafter the two-thirds rule in national conventions shall be abrogated, and that a majority vote shall henceforth prevail. This rule has been in force when a vote by states was demanded on this resolution, seconded by five states, and was ordered.

Mr. Cochrane, of New York, asked if the resolution did not apply to the present convention, and he denounced the scheme as a revolutionary measure. He moved to lay the resolution on the table.

A scene of confusion followed, a dozen delegates trying to speak. Leon Abbett, amid the points of order that this convention had no right to make rules for the future convention. It stultified the members of this convention, he said, and made them ridiculous in the eyes of the Democracy of the country. He concluded by moving to postpone the resolution's consideration indefinitely. A call of states was ordered on the question of Mr. Cochrane's motion. A motion to dispense with the call of the roll of states was carried with a rush, and Mr. Ferry's design upon the two-thirds rule came to nothing.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTE ON PLATFORM.

Congressman Morrison was then recognized to present the report of the committee on resolutions, or platform of principles.

He proceeded to read, and was listened to with the greatest degree of respect. He said: The convention which has this convention was seriously disturbed by the shouts from the lusty throats of thousands of persons outside the building to the Baltimore and Ohio company to come out a ballot, tin announcing that it was possible that a ballot would be reached.

The clause in the platform asserting that the Democracy favored friendly relations but no entangling alliances with other nations on this continent was greeted with prolonged applause. The part of the platform in which the tightest interest centers is the clause relating to the tariff, and which is as follows:

That a change is necessary is proved by an existing surplus of more than $100,000,000 which has yearly been collected from a suffering people. Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation. We denounce the Republican party for having failed to relieve the people from crushing war taxes which have paralyzed business, crippled industry and deprived labor of employment and of just reward. The Democracy pledges itself to purify the administration from corruption; to restore economy; to revive respect for law and to reduce taxation to the lowest limit consistent with due regard to the preservation of the faith of the nation to its creditors and pensioners.

Knowing full well, however, that legislation affecting the occupations of the people should be cautious and conservative in method, not in advance of public opinion, but responsive to its demands, the Democratic party is pledged to revise the tariff in a spirit of fairness to all interests. But in making reductions in revenue it is not proposed to injure any domestic industries, but rather to promote their healthy growth. From the foundation of this government taxes collected at the custom house have been the chief source of federal revenues. Such they must continue to be. Moreover, many industries have come to rely upon legislation for necessary protection, so that any change of law must be at every step regardful of labor and capital thus involved. The process of reform must be subject in the execution to that plain dictate of justice.

All taxation shall be limited to the requirements of economical government. The necessary reduction in taxation can and must be effected without depriving American labor of the ability to compete successfully with foreign labor, and without imposing lower rates of duty than will be ample to cover any increased cost of production which may exist in consequence of the higher rate of wages prevailing in this country.

Sufficient revenues to pay all the expenses of the Federal government, economically administered, including pensions, interest and principal of our public debt, can be collected from the following sources:

Duties, customs, internal revenue taxes, and the sale of public lands.

The revenue from customs should be limited to the needs of the government economically administered, and these duties so adjusted as to bear most heavily upon articles of luxury and bearing lightest on articles of necessity.

OTHER POINTS OF THE PLATFORM.

The party recognizes, the platform goes on to declare, that new issues are born of progress, but fundamental Democratic principles will ever remain the best security for free government. It calls for a change of governmental administration from agents to a corruption of Republicanism and asserts that owing to the recent nomination an independent section of that party are in revolt. It publishes the fact that it favors the navy, to remove burdens on shipping, to reserve lands for settlers, to secure fair elections, to elevate labor, had been true to it. It favors a Democratic congress the task of equalizing bounties and pensions. It had not reduced the tariff as its commission had advised, but had imposed unnecessary taxes to pay subsidies a few. It had depleted the returns to agricultural labor. Its counts had overthrown the rights of colored citizens. It had allowed the franchise to be stolen.

The internal revenue tax is a war tax, and while continued should be devoted to relieve remaining war burdens and for pensions.

An American continental policy based on more intimate relations with our sister republics is favored, but no entangling alliances.

We believe in the gold and silver coinage authorized by the constitution, and currency convertible into coin without loss.

We demand equal justice to all citizens, and a free and fair ballot.

We oppose contemporary laws interfering with individual liberty.

We favor legislation tending to equitable distribution of property, and to prevent monopolies, while rights of property must be observed as defined by law.

Free labor should be fostered, public lands should be kept for settlers, and unearned grants revert to the government.

We welcome all the oppressed, but do not sanction the importation of foreign laborers under contract. *Our present immigration civilization demands the exclusion of Mon*golians. We insist on protecting our citizens at home and abroad. We point to the prosperity of Democratic administrations as the best we have enjoyed.

The government should improve our great waterways and secure cheap transportation. We demand an American policy which shall restore the supremacy of our merchant marine.

Instead of the Republican party's discredited scheme and false pretense of friendship for American labor, expressed by imposing taxes, we demand in behalf of the Democracy freedom for American labor by reducing taxes, to the end that these United States may compete with unhindered powers for the primacy among nations in all the arts of peace and fruits of liberty.

With profound regret we have been apprised by the venerable statesman through whose persevering labor by reducing taxes, vital principle of republics (acquiescence in the will of the majority) that he cannot permit us again to place in his hands the leadership of the Democratic hosts, for the reason that the achievement of reform in the administration of the federal government is an undertaking now too heavy for his age and failing strength.

Rejoicing that his life has been prolonged until the general judgment of our fellow-countrymen is united in the wish that that wrong were righted in his person, for the Democracy of the United States we offer to him in his withdrawal from public cares not only our respectful sympathy and esteem, but also the best homage to freemen, the pledge of our devotion to the principles and the cause now inseparable in the history of this republic from the labors and the name of Samuel J. Tilden.

THE MINORITY REPORT.

Gen. Butler rose to present a minority report at the conclusion of Mr. Morrison's reading. When the general attempted to speak there was a perfect storm of applause, mingled with hisses, howls and cat calls.

He said that he objected to so many things in the regular platform with which he agreed, many which he thought ought to be omitted, and several which he thought should be added. He would not trouble the body with their judgment. He asked the clerk to read the minority report.

The clerk proceeded to do so, but cannot prolonged laughter at the outset by announcing it as "Gen. Butler's platform," to an apology for which the general bowed humorously.

The principal points in the minority may be summarized as follows:

First—That no taxes, direct or indirect, can be justly imposed upon the people except to meet the expenses of an economically administered government.

Second—That the revenue necessary for the ordinary expenses of the government should be raised by customs duties upon imports.

Third—That all materials used in the arts and industries and the necessaries of life, if not produced in this country shall come in free, and that all articles of luxury should be taxed as high as possible up to the college of prohibition.

That in imposing custom duties the law must be fully adjusted to promote American enterprise and industries, not create monopolies, and to foster and build up American labor. It provides further that labor has a ri ht to demand of the government to establish tribunals to which the great controversies arising between labor and capital, which may lead to revolution, may be judicially and justly referred with the full power to enforce its decree; and that labor has a right to demand a just share of the profits of its own production.

It views with alarm the absorption of public lands and individual demands of congress to apply appropriate remedies with a stern hand, so that the lands of the people may be held by the many and not by the few.

It then calls upon congress to exercise its gr[illegible] sum of regulating in[illegible] that the [illegible] ds into abuses [illegible] the growing evils [illegible] ets of life offices, and [illegible] legal tender notes [illegible] as a standard of [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and

THE CROP PROSPECTS.

Official Reports of the Promise of Cotton and Other Crops.

The Corn Average—Wheat Up to the Normal Standard—A Large Increase in the Area of Tobacco.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The report of the department of agriculture for July relative to cotton represents that rains have been excessive during June over the entire breadth, the temperature low, the plants too succulent and generally late for the season. With reasonable weather hereafter, the condition will improve. With drought following exposure of such succulence by clean cultivation, serious injury would result. There is nothing at present to render a fair crop impossible; but the next sixty days will be awaited with interest, if not anxiety. The general average of condition is one point lower than in June—80 instead of 87. Last July it was 93. The averages are: Virginia, 87; North Carolina, 87; South Carolina, 85; Georgia, 90; Florida, 99; Alabama, 86; Mississippi, 88; Louisiana, 85; Texas, 80; Arkansas, 88; Tennessee, 88. The area in corn has increased about two per cent. The total area will be between 69,000,000 and 70,000,000 acres.

A few states report a decrease—Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Louisiana and Minnesota. There is a good degree of uniformity in the increase of the southern and central districts. It is 3 per cent. in Iowa, 20 in Nebraska and 30 in Dakota. There is also an increase on the Pacific coast. The average of condition is 95 against 88 in 1885, and has been exceeded but twice in July in ten years—in 1879 and 1880. The principal states averages are: New York, 96; Pennsylvania, 93; Michigan, 90; Ohio, 95; Kentucky, 90; Tennessee, 85; Indiana, 97; Illinois, 90; Iowa, 102; Missouri, 98; Kansas, 94; Nebraska, 95. The prospect is most favorable in Iowa, which promises the best yield since 1879, and the largest crop ever grown in the state.

The condition of spring wheat is up to the normal standard—100; the same as in July of last year. Wisconsin and Minnesota stand at 101 and Dakota at 102.

Winter wheat is harvested in the south and will soon be cut in its northern belt. It sustains the promise of previous reports; the average of condition is 94, one point higher than in June, and the same as in the May report.

The winter wheat covers an area of about 27,000,000 acres, and unless the threshing records should prove disappointing, or injury result in the stack, the outcome would exceed 330,000,000 bushels of winter wheat.

Oats average 98; last year at this date, 97. The average for rye is 97.

The excessive production and low price of potatoes in 1885 has caused a reduction of 3 per cent. in area. Condition is good.

A large increase, amounting to nearly 10 per cent., has been made in the area of tobacco.

Confident the Solid South can be Broken.

BOSTON, July 11.—A Washington special to The Journal, says: "Gen. Logan will go to New York to-day, where he expects to meet Mr. Blaine to consult with him in reference to the campaign in the south. It is understood that Gen. Logan will urge upon Blaine the necessity of an earnest and active campaign in Virginia, North Carolina and West Virginia, and that he will try to convince Mr. Blaine of the advisability of a personal canvass of those states.

Gen. Logan is said to be confident that the solid south can be broken, and at least two states secured to the Republican party by an earnest effort.

Paul Morphy Dead.

NEW ORLEANS, July 11.—Paul Morphy, the great chess player, and for many years the chess champion of the world, was found dead in a bath tub. His death was caused by congestion of the brain, brought on by taking a shower bath while in an overheated condition. Deceased was a native of New Orleans, and a creole. His father was judge of the state supreme court, and was an eminent jurist. Young Morphy, even when a boy, showed a master mind at chess, and gave every promise of the position he subsequently obtained as the leading chess player of the world.

Horwhipped for Abusing his Sister.

PETERSBURG, Va., July 11.—William E. Edmunds, a highly respected farmer of Dinwiddie country, living about twenty miles from this city, was forcibly taken from his bed by a large body of masked men on Monday night, blindfolded, carried about two hundred yards and, after being tied with a rope to a tree, horsewhipped until his body was thick with bleeding wounds. Edmunds was charged with abusing his sister.

The Independent Republicans.

BOSTON, July 11.—The executive committee of the Independent committee of one hundred have voted to instruct the chairman and secretary to confer by wire, immediately upon the reception of the nomination from Chicago, with the Independents of New York, New Haven, Philadelphia, Buffalo, St. Louis and other places relative to the time and place of holding a national conference. The probabilities are that the conference will be held at New York.

Charges Against the Executive Franchise.

DANVILLE, Va., July 11.—Judge Paul, of the United States district court, which is now in session here, charged the grand jury regarding crimes against the executive franchise. "But, gentlemen," said he, "you must bear in mind that your inquiries on these points are confined to federal elections. You have nothing whatever to do with state elections."

Mr. Sage Much Better.

NEW YORK, July 11.—It was stated by his chief clerk yesterday that Mr. Russell Sage, who was attacked by nervous prostration on Wednesday, had so far recovered as to be able to take a trip into the country. Mr. Sage has decided to take a rest for at least a month. This he is doing in accordance with the advice of his physician.

Butted His Head Against a Wall.

JAMAICA, N. Y., July 11.—James Dunsby, of East New York, who is now a prisoner, visited his head against the stone wall of his cell, inflicting injuries from which he will die. It is supposed that he is insane.

Not for 100,000 Marks.

BERLIN, July 11.—The University of Heidelberg has declined an offer of 100,000 marks on condition that women shall be admitted as students.

Thousands of Acres Burned.

BERLIN, July 11.—A fierce fire has been raging for the past two days in the forest of Wynguinn. Thousands of acres have been devastated.

It was with the utmost difficulty that permission was obtained to have the connecting wires strung along the tops of the house, the owners fearing an increase of liability of their property being struck by lightning. Prof. Morse, a professor of natural philosophy of Cornell university, had charge of this experiment. Fifteen thousand dollars were needed to construct a line from Port Lee to Philadelphia, which was the first line of the projected line to Washington via Baltimore. This money was subscribed, Mr Corcoran, of Washington, being the first contributor. The first telegraphic charter issued in the United States was granted by the Maryland legislature. The first company was known as the "Magnetic Telegraph company."

FIRST LINE TO NEW YORK.

The line was started from Philadelphia and was completed to Port Lee Jan. 30, 1846. The Morse's Experimental Line from Baltimore to Washington.

Text of the First Message—Primitive Communication Between New York and Philadelphia—The First Company.

[New York Evening Telegram.]

The near completion of the laying of the first of the Commercial company's cable from Valentia to Dower bay, calls to mind some interesting facts connected with the history of telegraph building in this country. Forty-one years ago, in the month of May, Professor Morse accomplished the aim of his life in having laid the first working telegraph line in America between Washington and Baltimore. On March 3, 1843, preceding the great event, congress had passed a bill appropriating $3,000 for the construction of this experimental line. The debate on this question was sharp, and public opinion much divided. The resolution was finally passed, the vote standing 90 years and 83 nays. New Hampshire, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama and Arkansas voted solidly against. New York stood 33 for, 11 against. The bill had yet to pass the senate. Professor Morse was then at one of the darkest periods of his life. After paying his hotel bill at Washington and procuring a ticket for New York—for he despaired of the bill passing in the senate—he had just 37½ cents left. On the day he was not to leave Washington Annie G. Ellsworth, the daughter of the commissioner of patents, was the first to announce to and congratulate Professor Morse on the final passage of his bill. The professor replied: "Annie, you are the first to inform me, and now I make you a promise. When the line is completed, the first dispatch sent upon it from Washington to Baltimore shall be yours."

EARLY DIFFICULTIES.

Mr. Morse at once turned his attention to the construction of the first telegraphic line in America; the government allowed him a salary of $3,500 per annum meanwhile. Alfred Vail took charge of the machinery, and Ezra Cornell superintended the construction. Mr. Morse at first adopted the underground method. He ordered forty miles of a fine wire cable in New York enclosed in lead. A trench to lay it in was dug by a plough invented for the purpose. But seven miles of wire were thus laid from Baltimore to the Relay house. Mr. Morse found, to his great chagrin, that the method was insuitable, but not till after half the appropriation had been spent. It was finally determined to lay the line on poles, with two copper wires, covered with cotton saturated with gum shellac. In May, 1844, the line was completed. The first office was at Washington, in the capitol. The apparatus used on this first line was bulky and coarsely constructed. The relay magnets weighed 185 pounds, and consisted of eighteen inches in diameter, of No. 16 copper wire, insulated with cotton thread. Mr. Morse presided at the instrument in Washington and Mr. Vail in Baltimore.

THE FIRST MESSAGE.

Miss Ellsworth was sent for by Mr. Morse and he requested her to frame the first message to be sent over the first wire. She sent in the message: "What has God wrought!" It was successfully transmitted, and the strip of paper on which it was imprinted was claimed by Governor Seymour of Connecticut as the only thing he had to show as a relic of his state, and of the inventor, who had there received his college education. The first public message sent was by Vail to Morse. The occasion was the meeting of the national convention at Baltimore to nominate a president. James K. Polk was nominated by the democracy, and Silas Wright for the vice presidency. Mr. Morse conveyed the message to Wright, who was in Washington. Wright declined the nomination, and telegraphed to that effect to Baltimore. It was a great surprise to the convention to receive this news within a few minutes of their previous action. The body refused to believe the information received, and waited until a committee had been sent to Washington to confer with Wright. The committee confirmed the first news by a second one. Thus the telegraph received a great boom and came prominently into public notice.

OPENED TO THE PUBLIC.

The new line was worked merely for exhibition until April 1, 1845, on which day it was opened for public business and a rate of transmission fixed. The first operators under this rule was Vail, at Washington, and Mr. Henry J. Rogers, at Baltimore. The tariff was fixed by the postmaster general at 1 cent for every four characters, under whose supervision the line was placed by congress, which voted an appropriation of $8,000 to keep it in operation during the year. The receipts for the first four days of public operation were exactly 1 cent. This was the contribution of an office-seeker, who wanted to use the working of the wire for nothing at all, but who was informed that it was impossible, as the operators were sworn to do their duty. As the office-seeker had but a $20-bill and 1 cent to be sold, it was arranged that he should invest the cent's worth of his electricity. Washington asked Baltimore "what signal meant "What time is it?" Baltimore replied "1," which was 1 o'clock. As this message included only two characters, the office-seeker was entitled to half a cent in change. As the change was not forthcoming, the line was kept vacant ahead on the legal rates. On April 5 business was brisk; 1884 cents was received. On April 6, Sunday, no messages were sent. On April 7, there was a startling rise in the receipts—60 cents. On April 9 the business was overwhelming—$1.32. This was too good to last. On April 9 the receipts dwindled down to $1.04.

THE FIRST COMPANY FORMED.

When the value of his invention had been fairly established Mr. Morse offered it to the government for $100,000. Upon a subsequent representations made by the postmaster general the offer was refused. Mr. Morse then set to work to enlist private capital in the development of his invention. It was not an easy task. Men with money fought shy of the new undertaking. To stir the capitalists up, one experiment was tried. This was laid in New York city, from 112 Broadway to a house near the Metropolitan hotel. It was with the utmost difficulty that permission was obtained to have the connecting wires strung along the tops of the house, the owners fearing an increase of liability of their property being struck by lightning. Prof. Morse, a professor of natural philosophy of Cornell university, had charge of this experiment. Fifteen thousand dollars were needed to construct a line from Port Lee to Philadelphia, which was the first line of the projected line to Washington via Baltimore. This money was subscribed, Mr Corcoran, of Washington, being the first contributor. The first telegraphic charter issued in the United States was granted by the Maryland legislature. The first company was known as the "Magnetic Telegraph company."

Personal.

Ex-Councilman Poank and family are at Yonkers.

The Hon. H. J. Taylor is visiting friends at Irvington on the Hudson.

Mr. Asa Collier and wife have been at Concord, Mass., for a few weeks.

Prof. James Lyon, of the Plainfield Academy, is summering in Connecticut.

Mr. S. R. Struthers and wife have returned from a three weeks trip to the Catskills.

The family of the Rev. Dr. Hurlbut will occupy their Asbury Park cottage this season.

Mr. S. H. C. Dunshee and his sons, Charles and John, are spending a few weeks at Saratoga and the Catskills.

Mr. M. J. Dixon, of New York, who with his brother, of Newark, in 1862, in New York, originated the manufacture of Dixon's Ice Cream, through the merits of which both brothers have since acquired wealth and fame, visited some friends in Plainfield yesterday. They are, Scin believers in the efficacy of advertising, in which they have expended upwards of $50,000, with corresponding returns. To meet the popular demand they require the products of most of the largest creameries in Orange and Delaware Counties, New York, and are probably the largest manufacturers of ice cream in the world.

The Churches To-Morrow.

The Reform Club meeting will be held in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the evening.

The Rev. Mr. Gamser, of New York, will officiate at Grace Church during the absence of Dean Rodman.

The Rev. Dr. Bridgeman, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, of New York, will preach in the Netherwood Union Chapel at eleven o'clock.

The Rev. C. P. McKenna, a celebrated Dominican missionary, will preach at the 10:30 mass to-morrow in St. Mary's Church, and in the evening, at 7:30, will address the Holy Name Society.

The First Presbyterian and Trinity Reformed Church, will worship together at the Trinity in the morning and at the First Church in the evening. The Rev. A. V. V. Raymond will preach on both occasions.

The Netherwood Concert.

According to announcement the young—very young—prima donna Lina da Costa appeared at the Hotel Netherwood last evening and delighted the guests and their friend with her singing.

The program, supplemented by many additions, was as follows:

PART FIRST.

Song, "Waiting" . . . Millard.
Song, "No, no, not now." . . .
Recitation, "Lady Clare." . . . Tennyson.

PART SECOND.

"Letter Song," from the Opera of Rip Van Winkle.
"Dear Fairy Queen," from Opera, Mountain Queen.
Scene from the Opera of Rip Van Winkle.

The frequent encores received by the young singer testified to the appreciation of the company.

A Dishonest Servant.

On Wednesday, Caroline Farley, a colored woman, of Rossle, was lodged in the County Jail to await trial for grand larceny. It appears from the complaint that the woman had been working for a family named Dexter, and she is charged by them with taking $1500 in cash from a drawer of a bureau. The drawer contained over $1,900, but the prisoner is charged with taking only the smaller amount.

A Sad Domestic Case.

Out West, "Old Ben Connett," as he was familiarly known, was a leader of a negro minstrel troupe. He had a wife and, we understand, two children. Several years ago he left his first wife and came to this vicinity, where he had been brought up. He purchased what is known as the Dog Tavern, at Short Hills, about two and a half miles from this city. Three years ago he took unto himself a housekeeper named Durhan, representing himself to be an unmarried man. She had had a husband but had been deserted by him, and considered that she was dead. Under these circumstances she and Connett were, it is alleged, married, and a child, a girl, was born unto them.

About six months ago, Mr. Connett died, and forthwith quarrels arose about his property.

We understand that while the coffin was being covered in the grave, and the supposed wife, nee Kate Uhrhan, was standing beside the grave, sisters and brothers of Connett took forcible possession of his late residence, and upon her return refused her admittance. She began a suit, to establish her rights as Connett's widow, but was defeated, because unable to show that she had been legally divorced from her first husband, or that he was dead, prior to her alleged marriage to Connett.

Samuel Connett, a brother of deceased, was appointed executor, and thereby became possessed of all the property. Some of the personal property was sold, and nee Kate Uhrhan was given a bedroom suite, a table and a sewing machine, and with these she went to live with her married sister in North Plainfield.

About a week ago we understand that she was visited by a sister and brother of the deceased Connett and a demand made for the deed to a burial plot which during his lifetime had been purchased. The plot was large enough to contain six bodies, and she held the receipt showing that she had paid for it as the wife of Connett. She refused to surrender it, and a row ensued, to which allusion was briefly made in these columns at the time.

A few days ago Sheriff McMurtry by virtue of a writ of attachment, demanded the possession of all the personal property which had been given nee Kate Uhrhan at the time of the sale. To-day it was removed leaving the unfortunate woman without so much as a bed to lie upon. She was, however, left the child. A numbered person who are familiar with the facts feel in deep sympathy for her and think that she has been more sinned against than sinning.

Ratification by the Democrats.

The Democrats of this city had made full preparations some time since to ratify whatever nominations should be made by the Chicago Convention. When the news was received yesterday afternoon of the nomination of Cleveland on the second ballot, their joy knew no bounds, and the breech-loading cannon recently purchased by the Democratic Association was promptly placed in position on the plaza on Fourth street in front of the freight house. Early in the evening the booming commenced, and was kept up for several hours, the little affair making plenty of noise.

The corset band had also been engaged and set out early on a series of serenades. After visiting County Clerk Vosseller, the band and the accompanying crowd went to the Democratic Association rooms on Front street, where speeches were listened to from the Chairman Mr. James Martine, Judge Louis Wadsworth, Hon. Joseph W. Yates and Judge Harper. There was also a speech from Mr. Strin believes in the efficacy of advertising, in which they have expended upwards of $50,000, with corresponding returns. To meet the popular demand they require the products of most of the largest creameries in Orange and Delaware Counties, New York, and are probably the largest manufacturers of ice cream in the world.

The band then sallied forth and serenaded James Clark, Hon. Joseph W. Yates and the Park House. Loyal Democrats paraded around with the band, and talks of a complete walkover were heard on all sides. Our Democratic contemporary's office on North avenue was gracefully draped with a flag bearing the name of Cleveland upon it.

K. of P. Installation.

The following officers of Perseverance Lodge No. 74, K. of P. were duly installed last evening by D. D. G. C., Morrison, of Elizabeth:

C. C., J. W. Wakefield; V. C., A. R. Goe; Prelate, C. W. Jones; M. at A., N. W. Conway; I. G., L. Demick. O. G., S. J. Robinson.

After the installation the D. D. G. C. were escorted to Dixon's Ice Cream Saloon, where refreshments were served in an excellent manner, after which the members returned to their Lodge Rooms and entertained their guests till near midnight by singing, speaking, etc. Thanks were given to the members who kindly assisted on this occasion, also to Brother Sears and Evans and other members of Unity Lodge for their assistance and the wish expressed that friendly feelings may ever exist.

Netherwood Entertainments.

Prof. Neithammer, who gave such satisfaction at the Netherwood last season by his piano recitals, will appear there for the first time this season on Tuesday evening. The management hope to secure his services for Tuesday and Thursday evenings during the remainder of the season.

The Jewell Brothers will give an exhibition of legerdemain, including the box trick, on Wednesday evening.

A grand hop will probably be given in a few weeks. Numerous other entertainments are also in preparation.

County Expenditures.

The Somerset Gazette thus tabulates certain county expenditures:

For Bridges—Hunterdon, $22,040; Somerset, $6,068; Union, $10,267; Somerset, $25,126.

For Court Expenses—Hunterdon, $6,808; Somerset, $7,636; Union, $21,376; Somerset, $12,771.

For Pay of Freeholders—Hunterdon, $4,360; Somerset, $1,729; Union, $6,816; Somerset, $3,585.

Debt—Hunterdon, $66,800; Somerset, Union, $242,200; Somerset, $62,000.

Hotel Arrivals.

CITY HOTEL—Charles Fulps, Georgetown, Pa.; James Carey, Brooklyn, New York; Wm J Fethers, Wm P Bray, J F Roberts, Phila.; Robert Miller, Ocean Beach; West Bobardo, Geo Dudley, Cornelius Landers, Asbury Park.

LAING'S HOTEL—John P Schenck, Millstone, N. J.; Miss Lucy Marsh, Newton, N. J.; E W Holden, Worcester, Mass.; O W Brart, Madison, N. J.; Harry Armstrong, Ed Cicero, Howard Butler, New York.

State Matters.

Hoboken reports an increase of $277,000 in real estate valuations this year.

A large meteor was seen at Bordentown and Ocean Beach the other evening.

James Burns, who had only three days to serve, escaped from the Hudson County Jail on Monday.

The New Jersey State Dental Society will hold its annual meeting at Asbury Park on the 16th inst.

The Jefferson Club, of Newark, will ratify the Chicago nominations with a monster demonstration next week.

It is said that the Paulin murder mystery has been solved, though no definite information will be given by the police.

Isaac Shreeves, of Camden, fatal meat Merchantville, a few days ago, a five-legged turtle with the date "1756" cut on its back.

A flock of turkeys on the farm of Robert Peacock, of Deerfield, Cumberland county, were struck by lightning during a recent storm, and every one was killed.

Samuel Clark, a farmer, of Upper Penn's Neck, Salem county, lies in a critical condition by being poisoned by London purple, a preparation used to kill potato bugs.

The congregation of the Haddonfield Baptist Church has decided to remove their edifice to a site opposite the New Jersey Centennial Building. Five thousand dollars will be paid for the present lot.

Wood Lewallen, aged 16 years, was accidentally struck in the groin by a scythe in the hand of another boy, on his father's farm, near Millville, a few days ago, and bled to death before medical aid could be summoned.

The name of the Italian recently washed ashore at Holly Beach was Guiseppe Altini. A hole was discovered in his forehead, which is supposed to have been made by a bullet, while there was a terrible wound in the abdomen.

The Richmond veterans who are visiting Newark were Wednesday taken up the Hudson and East Rivers, and also to Coney Island, when they enjoyed a clambake. Yesterday they made a tour of Newark and inspected the factories of that city.

The three children of M. Steuck, of 1 First street, Hoboken, aged three, five and seven years, were playing on some bales of hay piled on the sidewalk yesterday. One of the bales fell on the three children. The little leg broken and the others were badly injured.

George F. Larrabee, of No. 52 1-2 Mercer street, Jersey City, attempted suicide Wednesday by shooting. The ball lodged in his head. His condition is critical, though his recovery is not impossible. He is 72 or 73 years in the employ of the ferry company, but had for some time been out of a situation, and had become despondent.

Ex-Judge Garretson, the expert appointed to examine the accounts of ex-Collector John McMahon, of Hoboken, in his report shows that McMahon had stolen $55,000 of the taxes for this year. His books show a deficiency of $51,251.50, but that does not cover the entire defalcation. One of his practices was to give receipts for taxes paid in cash and make no entry in the books. Mayor Tinkham thinks that $30,000 was stolen in that manner.

A serious row occurred yesterday at Cinnaminson, in which Constable Conway, the supposed tramp named John Kelly, alias "Prince Jack," and John Greensmith, aged twenty-four years, who gave his residence at 401 Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia. The latter was cut in a shocking manner in the right arm and shoulder, and his condition is serious. He was removed to the Pennsylvania Hospital. "Prince Jack" was arrested and locked in the Camden Jail. He was too drunk last night to give any account of the affray.

FOURTH DAY'S SESSION.

CHICAGO, July 18.—The fourth day's session of the convention was called to order by Chairman William F. Vilas. Although the hour for assemblage was set down for 10 o'clock, it was over an hour after before the proceedings actually commenced. Again there was that vast wilderness of upturned faces, that strange mingling of color, confused rather than clear, and across the whole mass there was a fluttering motion, caused by the owners of thousands of fans, who were almost as equally afflicted by the heat as the listless fans. In the center of the hall senators, congressmen and delegates crushed against each other down the aisles as they tried to make their way to their places. They shook each other by the hand with great warmth, and from a distance their smiles and wagging heads could be seen as clearly as the quivering of the hastened poles that indicated the wherebouts and existence of the delegates from the different states as they were arrayed against by statesman upon whom the fates of the country depend.

Amid the buzz and bustle caused by the movement of thousands of people, the murmuring of innumerable voices, Chairman Vilas pounds that most unmerciful gavel of his, and calls the convention to order in a voice which already shows signs of wearing out.

PRAYER.

The proceedings were opened by prayer by the Rev. Mr. Thomas Clarke, of Grace church, Chicago. The pastor said, among other remarks: "O, Lord, keep every delegate from being guided by like or dislike or selfishness. May the delegates have the interest of the people at heart and may all corruption and bribery soon be ended."

After reading a number of telegrams from the public, and on a motion which was handed up by a gaunt gentleman from Missouri, whose hair stood back like the quills upon the fretful porcupine, Chairman Vilas called upon the meeting to come to business and implored everybody to keep quiet. The chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation arose to his feet and said that his delegation begged to withdraw their votes for Randall. This, the first sign of a break, made a few cheers and considerable noise to wonder. The chairman decided that the proper order of business was to go on and call the roll of states for the second ballot for candidates for president of the United States.

THE PROCEEDINGS.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The convention was called to order at 12:04 o'clock.

A number of telegrams from various parts of the country suggesting proper persons to be nominated were laid on the table.

A motion that the votes of states should not be changed until the succeeding ballot was lost.

Pennsylvania withdrew Randall.

Roll of states for second ballot called.

On second ballot in Alabama Cleveland gained 1 from Thurman.

In Colorado Cleveland gained 6 from Thurman.

In Florida Cleveland lost 2 and Bayard gained 2.

In Georgia Cleveland gained 4 and Bayard lost 2.

Illinois cast 1 vote for Hendricks amid great cheering.

Applause and cheers increased. Many delegates and most of the audience were on their feet, the chairman trying to restore order.

The cheering continued. Handkerchiefs, hats and umbrellas waved. The band struck up, but could not be heard for the cheering.

The chairman vainly endeavored to restore order.

The Tammany men were standing up on their seats cheering and waving their handkerchiefs.

Applause broke out afresh.

The Tammany men called for three cheers for Hendricks, amid renewed applause and hisses.

The tumult somewhat subsided, through the efforts of the gentlemen and delegates.

Order was restored. Mr. Voorhees withdrew McDonald and went for Hendricks.

Tumult broke out again. The delegates struggled to be heard. Many of them consulted with other delegates.

Illinois cast 38 votes for Cleveland, a gain of 10. (Great cheers.)

Iowa—Cleveland lost 1; Hendricks gained 4 votes.

Pennsylvania retired for consultation.

Kansas—Cleveland gained 1; Bayard's loss.

Kentucky withdrew Carlisle; feast one for Thurman; Cleveland, 3; Bayard, 7; Hendricks, 15.

Louisiana—Cleveland gained 1; Thurman, 3.

Maryland—Cleveland gained 4; Bayard's loss.

Massachusetts cast 12½ votes for Hendricks, 8 for Cleveland—a gain of 2 for Cleveland.

Michigan cast 12 for Hendricks; Cleveland lost 1.

Missouri—Cleveland gained 6; Missouri cast 2 for Hendricks.

Mississippi—Cleveland gained 1; Hendricks, 2.

Nebraska—Cleveland gained 1.

Nevada cast 5 for Hendricks.

New Jersey—Cleveland gained 1; cast 13 for Hendricks, 1 for Bayard.

Ohio—Tilden, 2; Hendricks, 1 (only change).

Oregon—Cleveland gained 2 from Bayard; Hendricks got 2.

South Carolina—Hendricks got 1; Bayard's loss.

Tennessee—Thurman gained 2, Bayard's loss; Hendricks got 1 vote.

Cleveland gained 2 in Texas, Thurman's loss.

Virginia—Hendricks got 2.

West Virginia—Cleveland lost 1.

Wisconsin—Hendricks got 2; Cleveland gained 8.

District of Columbia gave Hendricks 3.

The roll having been called, Pennsylvania was called for and the chairman announced for Cleveland, 42 (another noisy demonstration, which interrupted the further announcement of Pennsylvania's vote) for Hendricks, 11; Randall, 4; Bayard, 2; Thurman, 1.

Illinois changed 1 from Cleveland to Bayard.

Kansas changed, giving Cleveland a gain of 1.

North Carolina changed 12 from Bayard to Cleveland.

So far, Cleveland had 507, lacking 40 votes.

Virginia changed, giving Cleveland a gain of 10.

Georgia changed to Cleveland, a gain of 8. Cleveland's nomination conceded. Delegations were struggling to 16 heard to change votes.

Cleveland was nominated on the second ballot.

Mr. Hendricks requests that the nomination of Cleveland by made unanimous.

Great cheering. Bands playing. Waving of hats and handkerchiefs. Floral piece, with an eagle on top and the name of Cleveland, was brought in.

A large portrait of Cleveland brought from applause.

Cleveland's portrait was placed in front of the platform, amid much applause.

Mr. Wallace, of Pennsylvania, moved for a recess until 8 P. M., in order to give time for a consultation on the vice presidency. Carried.

AN UNPARALLELED SCENE.

How the Name of Hendricks Was Received by the Convention.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Between the conclusion of the roll call and the official announcement of the vote there occurred a scene probably unparalleled in the history of political conventions, one indescribable in its grandeur and indescribable by pen. Gen. Mussies, of Indiana, had scarcely concluded the final announcement that Indiana desired to cast her entire vote for Thomas A. Hendricks, when, as if moved by a common impulse, the entire audience was upon its feet. A moment later, like a flash of lightning, the contagion of excitement had spread to the floor, bearing aloft the shields and banners emblematic of their states, moved to the center of the hall and commenced the parade around the galleries. For fifteen minutes cheer after cheer, equal to the roar of the heavens' artillery, echoed through the structure and was accompanied by the thunderous din from outside. Then taking advantage of a temporary lull, the musicians, who had caught the enthusiasm of the moment, struck up the familiar and soul-stirring strains of "Auld Lang Syne." The effect was electrical, the scene one never to be forgotten. The audience took up the song in a moment and it was performed by more than 15,000 throats. Delegates from Texas clasped the hands of their brethren from New York, the men of Maine fell upon the necks of their compeers from the territories and strong men who but a few hours before had been pouring forth grape-shot invective sat back in their chairs with the tears coursing down their cheeks. On the platform hands clasped in hands, each voice trying to outvie the other as the refrain "In the name of Auld Lang Syne" was heard and a circle composed of President Vilas, Henry Watterson, Gen. Black, Col. Cluny, of California; Gov. Waller, of Connecticut, and ex-Gov. Holbrook, of Texas, joined hands. Butler was weighing in hands of a delegate from Colorado. Even that staunch old leader of the Republican party E. B. Washburne, of Illinois, who has been a Mugwump throughout the convention joined in the ovation with his tremulous voice as he waved his handkerchief over his head. Shelley the band leader, sprang to the air from "Auld Lang Syne" to "America" and again the audience took up the patriotic refrain with, if possible, more boisterous enthusiasm. Succeeding it came "Home, Sweet Home," and now the gathering, exerting its voice with might and main, completely drowned the music of the band. The mass voices of several hundred ladies who were scattered about the hall rang out high and clear above the more robust tones of the stronger sex persons. As the mingled voices of the assemblage died away in the last strains of "Home, Sweet Home" Gen. Breckenridge, of California, requested the band to play "Old Hundred," and once more the blended voices of those present grandly swelled to the music and rhythm of "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." The demonstration occupied forty-five minutes.

THE VICE-PRESIDENCY.

Ex.-Gov. Hendricks Nominated by Acclamation.

CHICAGO, July 11.—At 5 o'clock the convention reassembled and as the delegates were slow in reaching their seats, it was 5:30 P. M. before Chairman Vilas called the gallery to order. A resolution to indorse the Democratic platform, their power on the ground that he was present as the spokesman of McDonald. Indiana declined to present any candidate. Hon. F. P. Fenior, of Kentucky, named the name of Gov. G. W. Glick, of Kentucky.

The nomination of Rosecrans was seconded and the speech-making, which up to this time had been rather commonplace, were now given a most extraordinary impetus by ex-Senator Wallace, of Pennsylvania, who mentioned the name of Thomas A. Hendricks and was greeted with a storm of applause. He said:

HENDRICK'S BANK PRESENTED.

"It would be beneath the dignity of the convention to refuse to nominate the man who has already been elected vice-president of the United States, but has been deprived of his chair by the rules which have suspended and that the convention nominate Thomas A. Hendricks for the vice-presidency by acclamation." (Great applause.)

Menzies, of Indiana, was upon his feet in an instant, and declined the nomination in behalf of Mr. Hendricks, and although he insisted that he was authorized to do so, he was most industriously laughed down by the convention, and Gov. Waller, of Connecticut, quickly rose and indorsed Hendricks' nomination. He said:

"I rise on behalf of the delegation I represent here to second the nomination of Thomas A. Hendricks for vice-president. The Democratic party of the country will have power enough in defiance of fraud and in accordance with law to place him in the chair. If my name in the party's keep I know it. We know Mr. Hendricks at this time would not accept the nomination in these circumstances, but will withdraw. He does not want this nominati n, every man knows. But, gentlemen, he is entitled to a position on the presidential ticket, for he was robbed of an election by the Republicans in the presidency of 1876, owing to physical infirmities, could not be named in 1884, but, thank God, Thomas A. Hendricks of Indiana, is the man who will be named again serve the party and the ticket; and with the statesman from New York on the ticket in 1884 to represent the East, and Hendricks of Indiana to represent the West, there will be, in the opinion of every Democrat, a glorious victory in November. Thomas A. Hendricks had been elected vice-president of the United States in 1876, and the Democratic party demand of him again his name as their candidate, and they will not take no for an answer. I move that the rules be suspended, and that this convention nominate Thomas A. Hendricks, of Indiana, as the candidate for vice-president by acclamation."

QUICKLY CHANGING TO HENDRICKS.

At the conclusion of Gov. Waller's remarks California quickly withdrew its name from Rosecrans and followed with the withdrawal of Glick; Indiana speedily substituted Hendricks for McDonald, and Gov. Hubbard, of Texas, taking advantage of the idea that Gov. Hendricks was withdrawn, secured the attention of the audience and spoke indorsing the selection of Hendricks as vice-president. He said:

"I can appreciate it to say that all done since the terrible robbery in 1876 she has stood with out at the ballot box that foul calumny." (Applause.) And when she cannot have the head of that gallant soldier, because of his physical infirmity, she wants to give to that part of it that is delivered that which is his own. (Applause.) Mr. Hendricks will give us a living embodiment of the Democratic principles." (Applause.) He will unite the element of hostility that was proved against the gallant head of the ticket whom we unanimously chose this good day as our leading standard bearer. He will carry Indiana, which we need, with the majority such as it gave in 1876. (Applause.) For Old's sake give it to him. He deserved it. We will march, a army of Gen. Butler's friends have been heard to remark that he had made a fool of himself. From Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont comes the news of great enthusiasm over the whole ticket. The placing of Hendricks on the ticket is thought to be a remarkably politic move as it adds the popularity of the old ticket to the strength of the new.

The Independent committee of one hundred in this city say that they have advices from all parts of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont and Massachusetts showing that thousands of Republicans in each state will vote for Cleveland. Cleveland is the man of all others that is most dreaded and feared and they are as happy as the Democrats over the result.

At the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The announcement of Cleveland's nomination at Chicago created but little excitement in this city. Washington is almost deserted of prominent Democrats. What few remain are loud in their praise of the candidate and platform. Senator Cockerell, of Missouri, thinks Cleveland a fortunate selection. "The nomination was most judicious. Cleveland is pure and has a good record," he observed Cleveland to be stronger in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey than any other Democrat.

Senator Pugh, of Alabama, regarded the work of the convention as a great success both in its platform and its nominations. Personally he had preferred Bayard, and had hoped that he would be selected by the northern Democracy; but he was pleased with Cleveland's nomination. The loss the party might sustain from John Kelly in New York he believed to be unimportant as any fold by votes the party could not otherwise obtain.

Senator Garland said he was highly pleased with the nomination. He did not believe John Kelly's possible defection would hurt Cleveland much. The platform was a grand one. "The issue is now defined," said he, "it is reform for the country to decide the question."

Senator Mahone, when asked what he thought of the nominations and platform, replied good humoredly that he had no opinions to express about either and had nothing to say about the situation. On the other hand, Republicans generally regard the nominations and the platform with satisfaction.

Secretary Chandler thinks Cleveland cannot carry Maine with any hope of success. Cleveland, he said, would lose New York state in November by a majority but little smaller than that by which he carried it in 1882. Both platform and ticket, he believes to be weak, and to insure Republican success wherever it had been reasonably hoped for.

At Cleveland's Home.

BUFFALO, July 12.—The news of the nomination of Cleveland demonstrated the falsity of the reports of popular opposition to him in his home. Bulletins posted in all the United Press papers and the telegraph offices have been surrounded by dense crowds for the past few days, and last night the news of the convention and two hours after midnight. There are a few Democratic politicians in town and demonstrations of popular interest were made. Immediately the United Press and Baltimore and Ohio bulletins were displayed simultaneously to crowds blockading Main and Seneca streets, and were received with cheers. A display of fireworks was made and an address delivered by Mr. Crosley, editor of The News. The streets were alive with people and great firecrackers and colored fires were burned. The procession was entirely impromptu, the inclination being to have a big blow out on the part of the delegates and clubs from Chicago. All classes of citizens express gratification at the nomination.

The News in New York.

NEW YORK, July 12.—At the Fifth Avenue hotel, and in and around the Republican headquarters, excitement has been intense. The corridors of the hotel were unusually crowded, and the drift of the conversation indicated that Cleveland's nomination was decidedly the most popular one. Generally it was plain that his selection caused a much more hopeful feeling than has heretofore been manifested among Republicans gathered here. They viewed the nomination as equivalent to the defeat of the Democrats in this state, and spoke of the result as a foregone conclusion. Senator Platt, chairman of the Republican state committee, stated that Cleveland was an easy man to beat, but the Republicans would have to work hard all through the canvass in order to be sure that the prevailing sentiment of all the supporters of Blaine.

At Rochester, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 12.—Cleveland's nomination was received here without any enthusiasm. It is well known that Monroe county has a large and determined anti-Cleveland force of Democrats under the leadership of William Purcell, and the governor's course last spring in the western House of Refuge matter changed the political opposition to personal hatred. It is openly asserted by Democrats here that he will be retire from the editorship of The Union. John E. Morey, one of the largest stockholders in The Union, when asked if the paper would support Cleveland, replied: "You bet your boots it will, body and breeches, right up to the handle." William J. Fowler, a prominent Democrat said: "I will not vote for Cleveland. As soon as the sentiment can be ascertained, it may be said that about one-third of the party is placed on one-third of the ground, but will come to the support of the ticket, while the other third will not be reconciled to the nomination, and will mostly vote for Blaine. Yesterday afternoon twenty-five guns were fired off for Cleveland, the powder having been paid for by State Senator Charles T. Baker, a Republican. He told some Democrats the other day, if they nominated Cleveland he would buy the powder to fire their guns, and they compelled him to keep his promise.

At Syracuse, N. Y.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 12.—Within twenty minutes after the news was received of Cleveland's nomination was flashed over the United Press wires, guns were fired opposite the City hall, and this evening a torch-light procession and display of fireworks in honor of the convention is highly satisfactory to the majority of the Democrats of this county. The Democrats openly express that their choice is the strongest, and a very general feeling was the interest manifested by some Republicans. The Tilden men are very jubilant and claim the state for Cleveland by figures running from 35,000 to 50,000.

At Utica, N. Y.

UTICA, N. Y., July 12.—The Democrats of Utica are pleased over the ticket. There were 11,000 votes polled here for John Kelly and while he has got forgiveness, and his followers could not be expected to be greatly enthusiastic over the nomination of Cleveland. With that exception, however, the satisfaction is general. Hendricks finds especial favor here. A hundred guns were fired by the Democratic county committee, but there was no other demonstration.

At Binghampton, N. Y.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., July 12.—The Democracy are ratified by Chicago ticket by an enormous popular demonstration. Several thousand people have been in the streets during the evening, firing cannon and celebrating with music and fireworks. It is the largest ratification meeting ever held here.

PRESS COMMENTS.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The World says: "The Democratic convention has done its work well. The nomination of Gov. Cleveland will command the overwhelming sentiment of the party will be hailed as an omen of success all over the United States. The association of the name of Thomas A. Hendricks with that of New York's governor, brings into the campaign the great feats of 1876. Samuel J. Tilden steps aside. With his approval, his friends and admirers put little by place before Cleveland and Hendricks his reform principles, as well as to his state and national honors. Cleveland and Hendricks stand practically as the representatives of reform in politics. The nomination is precisely the opposite of the nomination of Blaine. But the great point of uncertainty is the real magnitude of the Republican revolt against the Blaine nomination. No doubt all the malcontents of that party will give their support to the Democratic candidate, and how much will that amount to? It means much. The ticket ought to carry New York! Will it bring over to him other states that are now doubtful? Meanwhile the ticket is strong. The nomination is one for Cleveland, yet do not want Blaine, something to be determined by the judgment and conscience of the citizen. Mr. Cleveland has, himself, set the example of independence of his party, and besides, this is a great year for boldng.

The Star (Tammany's organ) passes the nominations over without comment of any kind.

The Sun: "Well, the convention has nominated Grover Cleveland, and now the question will be whether he can or will be elected. We have had our own opinion, but perhaps there was some mistake about it. We shall live and learn, we hope."

The Times: "The Times will heartily support Gov. Cleveland. In opposing Mr. Blaine it finds itself already upon impregnable ground and in excellent company. It has closely watched the action of the candidates nominated at Chicago yesterday, and it has entire confidence in his probity, in his intelligence, and in his ability to administer well. He ought to be the next president of the United States, and we believe he will be."

BOSTON, July 12.—The Transcript (Rep.) says: "No one can help but admire the courage and sagacity which induced the convention to nominate Gov. Cleveland for president. This promises practically unless in a new era for that party."

The Globe (Dem.): "There is not a shadow of doubt that Cleveland will be elected."

The Journal (Rep.), the only daily paper in the city which supports Blaine, says: "Cleveland will prove the easiest man to beat that could have been nominated."

LONDON, July 12.—The News hopes that Cleveland's nomination is a sign of the outstripping of a new spirit in American politics, and indulges in the belief that he will be elected. His election would reflect great credit on the American people for obvious reasons. With Cleveland in the executive chair the public would be safe, while with Blaine there is no telling what his administration would bring forth. "The election of either candidate," says the News, "is not but little importance outside of the United States."

The Times says: "The nomination of Cleveland means the overthrow of the civil service system, the restoration of political respectability, and the overwhelming defeat of James G. Blaine."

The Standard says: "A more satisfactory result than the choice of Cleveland could hardly be desired and Tilden's friendship achieved it. Cleveland's record is sustained and the fight is now between the state and the unclean. Should the country ultimately prefer Blaine it will be because it is afraid that a party that has been so long out of power would be too greedy for the spoils of office."

Tammany and the Ticket.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Kelly and his district leaders are disappointed and disheartened. When the ballots were showed that Cleveland was gaining in nearly every state Mr. Kelly's face did not have a smile on it. He whispered to Senator Bellmont on his right and Grady on his left. As the states began to change their votes to Cleveland, and the Tammanyites saw that the fight was ended, they refused to join in the music that had nothing to say. Before the result of the ballot was announced Mr. Kelly arose and quietly walked out of the convention. His lieutenants remained to witness the final act in the drama. When the Tammany boys walked out they looked crestfallen, and several of them were heard to say to the victorious County Democracy: "Well, now you will see."

Mr. Kelly did not wish to talk on the results of the convention. He said he had nothing to say.

"I must say," he remarked, "that in my opinion the convention made a mistake. Of course we will return to New York to support Gov. Cleveland. When we get back we can have a calm review of the action of the convention and ascertain the feeling of the people. The nomination may give rise to complications and we should be ready to straighten them out. We may have some difficulty. I do not care to say anything more."

Ben Butler's Position.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Since Gen. Butler left the hall last night he has kept very close to his room, and it has been about as difficult to obtain an audience with him as though he were the Czar of all the Russias. Inasmuch as his chances from Massachusetts have been very loud in declaring that he will run and do his best to defeat Cleveland, one more effort was made to get an expression from him.

"It is useless for you to attempt to interview me, young man," he said. "I have no opinion to express, and saying anything at this time as to what I propose to do. In truth I do not myself know. It will be necessary for me to survey the entire field under the new condition of things, to consider the case calmly and to consult with the people whom I represent, and whose best interests I am bound to serve. I will not make any announcement of my course until I have had ample time to do this, and I then will have no compunctions about speaking my mind. Nothing to-day, however, as please excuse me."

CONVENTION SCENES.

The National Democratic Gathering Illustrated.

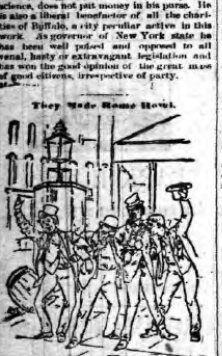
Accurate Portraits of the Prominent Characters, Together with the Most Lively Incidents Sketched on the Spot.

THE NOMINEE.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Mr. Cleveland, the Democratic nominee for the office of president, is a large man somewhat above the medium height, with a strong and striking face. He has dark, penetrating eyes and heavy eyebrows. His movements are deliberate and dignified, but devoid of that heaviness which sometimes accompanies men of his type. He has a vigorous, robust constitution; possesses a large frame, and inclines to corpulency; has a nervous, sanguine temperament, light complexion and thin brown hair. He is slightly bald, but is what the ladies call "a real good-looking man," though those of them have as yet captured him for a husband. He is not a rich man, in spite of his frugal bachelor habits. He does much free legal work for poor clients and has a way of mislaying them which, though most creditable to his conscience, does not put money in his purse. He is also a liberal benefactor of all the charities of Buffalo, a city peculiar active in this work. As governor of New York state he has been well poised and opposed to all venal, hasty or extravagant legislation and has won the good opinion of the great mass of good citizens, irrespective of party.

They Made Rome Howl.



PAINTING THE TOWN RED

The Democratic national convention opened in Chicago on the 8th of July, with speed and delightful weather. Brass bands paraded the streets continually, followed by crowds of delegates yelling, hooting and shouting for their favorites. The Palmer House lobby was black with a struggling mass of humanity until long after midnight. They cheered for Cleveland, Colly and Butler. They made Rome howl. Each one of the men had a whitewash brush and a pot of red paint in hand, and they painted the town with a vermillion hue that will not soon be forgotten by those present. Nearly 3,000 persons are gathered at the Palmer House, and in many of the rooms fifteen and twenty delegates are quartered together. They are very glad to get that accommodation, even at the exorbitant rate of six and ten dollars per day. Kelly and Butler are leading figures here, and wherever they go they are followed by crowds cheering and hooting for them.

The Empire State.

AT CLEVELAND'S HEADQUARTERS.

An amusing scene occurred here one evening when Gen. Butler, after a vain effort to make himself heard on the platform at the ladies' entrance of the Palmer House, entered the building, intending to speak from a front window. As he was moving along the corridor, surrounded by a jubilant body guard, one of them saw the door of a front parlor ajar. In poured the body guard and planted the general at an open window overlooking the great crowd below. The Butler men had unwittingly taken possession of Cleveland's headquarters, and the general was addressing the crowd from Daniel Manning's window, standing under a picture of Grover Cleveland. In vain Hubert O. Thompson protested. Ben's body guard swaddled him to him. The general kept on talking and the body guard drowned Thompson's protests in their cheers. Finally Thompson shouted:

"Well, gentlemen, Mr. Manning courteously gives you the use of his parlor until 11 o'clock. So so good as to leave it at that hour, as he wishes to retire.

Bold Ben finished his speech amid terrific yells. He was then whisked back to the Bay State headquarters as red as cochineal from his overexertion. There he sat for an hour mopping himself and pledging his friends in glasses while receiving the congratulations of his enthusiastic admirers.

The Bay State Men.

GEN. BUTLER'S HEADQUARTERS.

Gen. Butler took charge of his own quarters, and with Col. Plympton, ex-Collector Simmons, Roger A. Pryor and the editorial corps of The Boston Globe, were working up his boom as though he really expected the nomination.

At Headquarters.

IN THE PALMER HOUSE.

The Palmer house was crowded like the Madison Square garden at a slugging match. People who had rooms there and who went out in the afternoon were unable to get in. The narrow stairs leading from the office to the upper floors, where the headquarters of almost all the state delegations were, was so jammed with people that it was almost impossible to get up or down.

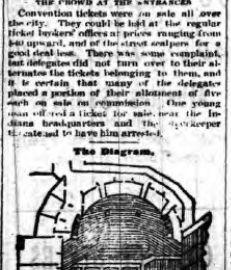
From the gallery the great rotunda presented a swaying sea of faces, and its arches echoed a din of voices that gave a vivid reminiscence of the confusion of tongues.

Going to the Convention.

THE CROWD AT THE ENTRANCES

Convention tickets were on sale all over the city. They could be had at the regular ticket brokers' offices at prices ranging from $40 upward, and of the street scalpers for a good deal less. There was some complaint, but delegates did not turn over to their alternates the tickets belonging to them, and it is certain that many of the delegates placed a portion of their allotment of five each on sale on commission. One young man offered a ticket for sale near the Indiana headquarters and the proprietor threatened to have him arrested.

The Diagram.



PLAN OF THE CONVENTION HALL.

This plan, prepared by Messrs. Adler and Sullivan, is a vast improvement on the arrangement for the previous convention. The space allotted to spectators is greater than at any previous gathering. There are 820 seats for delegates, 804 for alternates, and 7,200 chairs for the audience. The accommodations on the stage and in the space allotted to the press, together with the galleries, will bring the seating capacity of the hall up to 14,000, besides leaving room for the standing audience of several thousand. Additional entrances and exits render the hall less dangerous in case of a panic.

"Gath" says: "John Kelly made a good impression by his first speech. It was during the discussion of the unit rule that he took the floor amid applause. He was dressed in plain black. Frequently interrupted with cries to take the platform, Kelly proceeded with his statement, while reaching out not fully heard, though his manner increased the impression that he was more at ease than he was generally set down to be. No person had yet spoken with more self-possession and dignity of manner, and his growing age gave dignity to his rather meditative countenance. The cartoons depicting Kelly bear no resemblance to him. His face is an indictment of every cartoonist in the United States, for it would be creditable at the head of any American household. No person who has yet spoken was listened to by the delegates with more interest, especially by those from the south."

The Tammany Men.

GRADY, KELLY AND SPINOLA.

Ex-Senator Thomas F. Grady, the silver-tongued orator, Kelly, the irrepressible, and short-cutter Spinola, with his renowned straight bristling tile were the most conspicuous among the Tammany leaders found at their headquarters.

Cleveland's Men.

HUBERT O. THOMPSON, DANIEL MANNING AND ABRAM HEWITT.

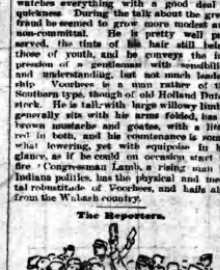
The corpulent Hubert O. Thompson was the one who excited the amusement of the country delegates. A dozen of them would remain plastered against the plate glass doors of the Palmer restaurant for three hours each day, to see him once wash a meal. Daniel Manning, the Napoleon of New York politics, is a large Daniel O'Connell looking man, with curling hair around a small head, and with a waxed mustache, sitting listening with deference to the dudish Thompson. Abram S. Hewitt is a thin, nervous and excitable man. He wore a pair of glasses, and looked as though he had not had a good night's rest since he left Washington or Chicago.

In Indiana Group.

MESSRS. D. W. VOORHEES, JOHN E. LAND AND THOMAS A. HENDRICKS.

One artist pictures an Indiana group. Hendricks is of the very nervous temperament, with a rather reddish skin, flexibility and feminity in his countenance, and he watches everything with a keen flash of quickness. During the talk about the great fraud he seemed to grow more modest and non-committal. He is pretty well preserved, the tints of his hair still being those of youth, and he conveys the impression of a gentleman with sensibility and understanding, but not much leadership. Voorhees is a man rather of the Southern type, though of old Holland Dutch stock. He is tall, with large willowy limbs, generally sits with his arms folded, has a brown mustache and goatee, with a little red in both, and his countenance is somewhat lowering, yet with equipoise in his glance, as if he could on occasion start to fire Congressman Lamb, a rising man in Indiana politics, has the physical and mental robustitude of Voorhees, and hails also from the Wabash country.

The Reporters.



IN THE CROWDED PRESS QUARTERS.

Truly these are press quarters. It is probably the most uncomfortable spot in the convention. With the jostling of the newspaper boys between the cramped space behind the chairs, it is phenomenal that men are able to accomplish anything. But the character of the work turned out from this hot, tumultuous, busy, bothersome place is the most highly good. Men are considered the possible equality one with another a name, while the jokes and criticisms with occasional explosives circulate, and the ills is incessant, and buttons, the speed correspondence is roaring like a storm at sea. Indeed, some of the brightest and most interesting, as well as picturesque reports are ground out under these circumstances and as a forcer hour of inspiration and exhilaration.

A Kentucky Group.

SENATOR BECK AND SENATOR BLACKBURN.

Were the leaders of the Blue Grass delegation from Kentucky. Senator Beck would be a good medium for a vicarious talker, having an unfailing supply of two hundred words a minute. With twinkling eyes and an amusing expression of confidence he talked about the chances of the candidates in the same manner that he would discuss the merits of a running horse at the Lexington meeting. While Watterson was as intensely interested in the proceedings as if Hic and death depended on it, his "starred gob dose" had evidently been left at home, as a diligent search failed to disclose it. Blackburn, cool and deliberate, acted as a brake on the restless spirits of his colleagues in their private conferences.

A Southern Group.

MESSRS. BURKE, CARROLL AND BUTLER.

Louisiana had as a representative one of the most astute and successful of political managers, Major E. A. Burke, proprietor of The Times-Democrat, whose management of the Hancock boom in 1880 at Cincinnati bore its own fruition under the warm influence of southern leadership. Major Burke is director-general of the New Orleans Cotton Exhibition, which will open in the fall. The central figure in the above group is Ex-Gov. Carroll of Maryland, a grandson of the distinguished signer of the Declaration of Independence. Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, and the calm and dignified Senator M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, stands on the right with his arms folded.

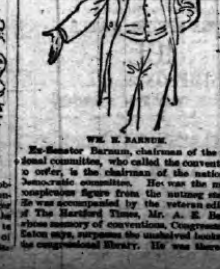
The most striking looking man in all the delegations was a long-haired, red-complexioned genius from Oregon. He was a perfect picture of the old-time Pirate of the Spanish Main. The most grave man in the New York delegation was Dan Lockwood, who presented Gov. Cleveland's name to the convention.

An Ohio Group.

DURBIN WARD, ALLAN G. THURMAN AND W. P. ARMSTRONG.

In a small room near parlor 8 in the Palmer House was found discussing presidential chances a highly representative trio from the Buckeye state—the old war horse, Durbin Ward; the old Roman, Allen G. Thurman, who would be favorite with east of the delegation from his state, and W. H. Armstrong, of The Cleveland Plaindealer. The most active worker among this delegation was undoubtedly John R. McLean, of The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Chairman National Committee.



WM. H. BARNUM.

Ex-Senator Barnum, chairman of the national committee, was called to the convention to offer, as the chairman of the national Democratic committee. He was the most conspicuous figure from the extreme state. He was accompanied by the veteran editor of The Hartford Times, Mr. A. E. Burr, whose memory of conventions, Congressman Ex-Governors, supposes the unshaved locks of the congressional librarian. He was there in connection with the Connecticut delegates. So, too, was Gov. Waller.

Tammany's Orator.

THOMAS F. GRADY.

Thos. F. Grady is a typical New York boy. He is scarcely a decade since he left the city schools. His antecedents [illegible] poor working people, and he is but a few years since he entered the assembly for the first time, his family at the time occupying a floor in a tenement in an obscure quarter of the city. Before entering politics he achieved a local reputation as a temperance advocate, speaking on the subject at every opportunity. Among his stanch young party leaders he is the direct opposite of Theodore Roosevelt politically, socially and physically. That he has some claim to the title of "Silver Tongued," is conceded, and the impetuosity and coolness which has characterized his conduct in the convention is due to his youth.

The Chevalier.

SENATOR WADE HAMPTON.

led the Palmetto legion. Like Powell Clayton, he looks a battle-scarred veteran, and like the latter the missing limb was not the result of fighting for his country, but is an example of the damage that can be obtained from a mule when the latter's cussedness is developed to any great extent. The story goes that after serving unscathed through the civil war he met with an accident while riding a mule which necessitated the amputation of his leg.

"Horizontal Bill."

HON. WILLIAM R. MORRISON

Col. Morrison, of Illinois, the chairman of the committee on resolutions who had been kept out of the deliberations of the convention through his labors on the platform, stepped on the stage on Thursday night to present the report of that committee. His appearance was greeted with tremendous cheering. He is of medium stature, has thick hair and full beard, closely cropped. Owing to his efforts to bring about a horizontal reduction in the existing tariff he is frequently spoken of as "Horizontal Bill."

Chicago's "Eagle."

CARTER HARRISON, MAYOR OF CHICAGO.

Carter Harrison, the Ben Butler of the west, looks the part. He was old twenty-five years ago. He has gray, thin hair on top, but more copious side locks, and a mild hazy look, indicative of good living; gray, full beard, worn like the Confederate generals in the war, and a strong mouth, full of white teeth, nearly perfect. He has blue eyes, and while his address is general in character, he has lots of the Chicago method of bringing his whole temper to the front. His age is fifty, and he hails from Chicago, natch.

When he rose to speak the gallery gods would shake the building with cheers as they recognized their old leader. At one time in offering a motion for recess he said: "On behalf of 10,000 hungry people and Alton Gurney and I move that the convention adjourn till 7 o'clock to-night."

Excitement.

A SCENE AMONG THE DELEGATES.

At times the excitement in the convention approached pandemonium. The row with Grady on Beecher's count with Hughes and Grady turned with such vehemence on Tammany was as the voice of Lake Michigan when the temper is on.

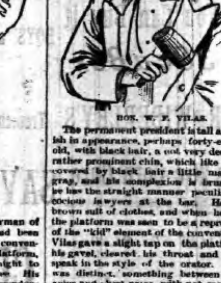
Pennsylvania's Leader.

HON. SAMUEL J. RANDALL.

The Temporary Chairman.

RICHARD B. HUBBARD.

The Permanent President.



HON. W. F. VILAS.

The permanent president is tall and young in appearance, perhaps forty-eight years old, with black hair, a rather deep head, a rather prominent chin, which like the lips is covered by black hair a little marked with gray, and the complexion is brunette, and he has the straight nose peculiar to precocious lawyers at the bar. He wore a brown suit of clothes, and when he came to the platform was seen to be a representative of the "kid" element of the convention. Mr. Vilas gave a slight tap on the platform with his gavel, cleared his throat and began to speak in the style of the orator. His voice was diction, something between a mouth voice and chest voice, with not many throat tones in it.

The Unexpected.

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS.

The unexpected always happens. Hendricks was the surprise of the convention. It was a surprise when he appeared as the champion and spokesman of his friend McDonald, it was a surprise when the Indiana delegation dropped McDonald after the first ballot and took up Hendricks, and it was a surprise when the opposition to Cleveland, in the desperate effort to beat the favorite, rallied around Hendricks.

Mr. Hendricks has a patrician face and bearing, a ready voice and cold light blue eyes. He can make a graceful speech and talks well always. He belongs to the intellectual and rapidly increasing order of smooth-faced men. His high forehead, sparsely built face, flaxen hair and thin, straight nose indicate the keenness and caution which are the dominant traits of his character.

—New Brunswick goes up head on the early closing question. A movement is being started there to close up all the stores at six o'clock, excepting on Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

—According to the New Brunswick Home News a man who has kept account of the number of kisses exchanged with his wife since their honeymoon began has come to publication, as follows: First year, 36,500; second year, 18,000; third year, 9,650; fourth year, 120; fifth year, 2. Some people may not believe this, but then some people are not married.

Damaged by a False Alarm.

"Duke" is the name of one, and "Silver" the name of the other of the trained fire horses of Engine Co., No. 2. When the fire alarm gong sounds Duke boldly responds; Silver usually waits for Duke to lead. This is merely a difference in temperament, the proficiency of both horses being about equal.

Zephyr truck was at Flannery's repair shop in Third street last week undergoing repairs, which were completed Saturday.

By direction of Chief Carney, the driver of Engine Co., No. 2, went with Duke and Silver to bring the truck to its house. The horses were left standing on the street, while Mr. Flannery and the driver attempted to run the truck out of the repair shop into the street. The jolting of the truck as the wheels crossed the curb caused the hammer to strike the gong on the truck, and the horses misunderstanding this as a signal to start for a fire, started on a run toward the depot. A horse and carriage owned by Mr. Hogan Taylor, of Rockview avenue, and in care of the conchman, Mr. Dennis Barry was waiting at the depot, in the path of the runaway horses. The pole between the horses struck and demolished the carriage, and injured Mr. Barry in the hand and hip. The carriage horse was also started to run away. One of the spectators caught and checked Duke and obedient Silver also stopped. Another spectator stopped the carriage horse. The city will probably be called upon to pay the damage.

The Reform Club at Jersey City.

A delegation of thirty members of the Reform Club, including the Choristers, went to Jersey City yesterday, and held meetings in the afternoon and evening.

The afternoon meeting was held in the grove on the hill, and was addressed by Mayor Maxson, ex-Councilman Lindsley, John H. Sayres and Thomas Price. The meeting in the evening was held in the Rev. Farmley's Church on Grove street, and was addressed by Mayor Maxson, John H. Manning and Frank Dodge. The beer saloons were in full blast, and several beer garden concerts were given in the afternoon in the immediate neighborhood of the meeting. Sixty-nine signers to the pledge were secured at the afternoon meeting, and seventy in the evening

Coming Excursions.

Three excursions to Ocean Grove are announced. The Sunday Schools of the Trinity Reformed and the First Presbyterian Churches will go there on Friday.

The following Friday the First Baptist Sunday School will make their annual visitation. And on July 30th, the Park Avenue Baptists will combine with the Scotch Plains Baptists to make up the last one.

The Stangerbund steamboat excursion will take place on Thursday.

St. Mary's Church will give an excursion to Alpine Grove on the Hudson on July 24th.

Engine Co., No. 2, will go to Keton Point, Conn., on Aug. 27th.

Run on the Train.

The following is from the Asbury Park Evening Journal of Saturday:

Yesterday when one of the brakemen on the morning train was arranging the switch near Park Hall he gave a good swig to another man out of what looked to be a quart rum bottle. As he had to hurry back to go with the train he was obliged to hold the bottle as he swigged the contents down. On that train were five hundred excursionists, and one quart of rum distributed among the train hands might imperil the lives of all.

Beware.

The law declares it to be a crime to throw any dead animal or other offensive matter in the brook in Plainfield, and fixes the penalty at thirty days' imprisonment and one hundred dollars fine.

A RELIGIOUS CONVENTION.

Several Hundred Delegates to be in Plainfield in a few Weeks.

For a number of years past a very quiet and modest body of worshipers have held meetings in the old Y. M. C. A. Hall on Front street. In Summer grove meetings have occasionally been held on the spacious grounds of one of their number. No extensive advertising of their meetings or of their religious views has been made in order to secure converts. The few citizens who are acquainted with them they are known by the names of Plymouth Brethren, United Brethren in Christ and various other appellations.

Some time since a News reporter became aware of the fact that a large number of them from different sections of the country were to hold a convention at Plainfield during the latter part of this month. Thereupon in order to secure authentic information up on the subject, the scribe wended his way to the residence of Mr. P. J. Loiseaux on Brookside avenue, at the head of Water street. Mr. Loiseaux is one of the firm of Loiseaux Bros., publishers of Biblical literature.

The reporter was very courteously received by Mr. Loiseaux. In response to various questions, concerning the workings of the sect, their belief and the coming convention, Mr. Loiseaux said:

We are persons who as a rule have been among the various denominations, and who have found by the Scriptures that the state of things in Christendom is in many things wrong. We think it to be wrong for Christians to be divided. There should be no denominations. We come together simply as Christians. We have no name. We are, however, known by names, the names differing in different sections of the country, the most common being that of Plymouth Brethren. We have no regular organization. What we do, we do simply as Christians. We have no regular ordained preachers. When we recognize that one of our number has been gifted of God to expound His Word, we give him the meeting. All our expenses are provided for by purely voluntary gifts. We have held meetings in Plainfield for about 16 years. There are about 40 regular attendants. The coming Convention is to be composed of persons from all parts of the country. Two years ago we held such a convention and about three hundred were present. There may be more in attendance at this one. The convention will meet on July 31st, and continue in session a week or ten days. The meeting will be held in a large tent on this place. It is not a camp meeting open to the public. It is a company of Christians, known to each other as such, coming by special invitation to spend a few days together for mutual edification by prayer and the study of the Scriptures. Meetings are held in the morning at ten, in the afternoon at three, and in the evening at eight. On the Sunday afternoon at three a Gospel meeting will be held to which the public will be invited.

The Plainfield Public Bath Project.

Now that the National Convention business is completed, we again take up the subject of a public bath. To test public feeling and give the project a start we call for the raising of a fund by public contributions. Persons favoring such a project may forward to the editor of THE NEWS, such sums of money as they desire to contribute, or the amount they are willing to contribute, together with the contributor's name and address in each instance, and whatever is thus contributed will be deposited to the credit of the Plainfield Public Bath Fund, in one of the banks of the city, subject to the order of a committee to be appointed by popular vote. To prevent any mistake, contributions will be published as received. Those contributing will oblige us, if they will state with their contributions by letter the number and names of persons to compose such a committee, a majority to have the choice.

We also invite communications as to the best location and the best plan for such a bath for the consideration of the committee, that the bath may be preeminently a public enterprise. The letters should be as brief as possible and to the point.

We are fully satisfied that such an enterprise is practical, that there is enough running water, by proper damming, to make a bath, of which Plainfield may feel proud, in which the art of swimming may be learned, and enjoyed, during the Summer months. The enterprise under proper management may be made self-sustaining as a bath in Summer, and as a skating rink or other pleasurable rendezvous in Winter.

The necessity of such an institution was suggested to us by Engineh of the late John Norris of the Potter Press Works, at which place we understand that the project is highly favored and from which we presume a liberal contribution will be made. It was also further suggested by the hardship to which boys in this vicinity are subjected to secure a swim. We believe such an institution would be a highly prized blessing in this vicinity. We are now ready to give it a helping hand, and proceed to business by calling for contributions.

Banner Raising.

"Abadish," said Mrs. Brown, to her better half, looking over her specs, from a copy of the News in her hands, what are the jolly-tushuns banana-raising for?"

John—"Votes."

Mrs. Brown—"Well, banana peels have so often raised me, that, if I could, I would vote for every man who raised one out of the way of my footsteps," and she then resumed her reading.

Personal.

Mr. D. C. Adams is at the Trenton House, Asbury Park.

Mr. A. J. Couturier left for Canada to to-day to visit friends and relatives in Montreal.

Miss Lu Baker, formerly of this city but now of Asbury Park, has been in town a few days visiting friends.

For Being Drunk.

John Kelly and Frank Bowman, of Westfield, came to this city Saturday night, and before returning spent a short time in the city rooms for getting drunk. They were fined $5 and $7 respectively.

Wedding Bells.

The Crescent Avenue Church was again brilliantly lighted, and its doors opened to the public one evening a short time ago, for the celebration of a marriage.

All the young people of the present generation, know very well that when a wedding is announced to take place in a church, the display and parade upon it will be of far more interest than merely witnessing the ceremony itself—and most young people are so accustomed to attending church weddings, and criticising the style and cost of the whole festive procession, that they entirely ignore the serious and irrevocable nature of the rite, which is taking place at the altar; then, there is much speculation over the precise manner the procession will form, in the march down the church aisle, as there are several modes, or decrees, on that important point; and to witness that very difficult mode of procedure, will alone crowd the edifice. For most church weddings, the sexton is called upon to open the church doors—on the night before the wedding—to light up, brilliantly. The organist is asked to preside, and the actors in the coming scene arrive. The sexton closes the doors, and then begins the troublesome labor of marching and counter-marching in accordance with the unerring notes of Mendelssohn, after several trials and defeats, the organist last succeeds in his task, and makes the crooked paths straight, the future road easy to travel, tells them it will be a great success, closes the organ, takes one more look on the little crowd below and—if a married man—he exclaims to himself—"What rubbish!"—if a bachelor, exclaims, "By George, none of that funny business for me; no, sirs, when I'm ready to marry I'll tuck my girl under my arm and go quietly before a minister and get him to tie the knot; no criticisms over the length of my strides to the altar, no vulgar comments on my appearance, or the tone of my replies, and no laughter when I salute my wife; the public shall not get the bulge on me," and he may add Vanderbilt's expletive on the dear public as he lights his cigar and hastens away to spend the remaining hours with his sweetheart. In my early childish days I attended several church weddings, which to my infant mind were very solemn affairs. The usual custom in such events were rigidly plain, inexpensive, devout and unostentatious, the contracting parties walked arm in arm together down the aisle, the bridesmaids and groomsmen followed, taking the same solemn gait as was their custom when entering the sacred edifice on the Lord's day. No instruction was given them by the organist, the parents and relatives were seated without the aid of ushers, and the ceremony proceeded with the utmost impressiveness, and no laughter was evoked, when the proud husband saluted his bride—that was taken as a matter of course; and the organist concluded the event by playing the only "triumphal," then known or available to musicians. Ah, those were simple but good honest old times; when shame of any sort were little known, and when attempted were quickly detected and exposed.

There are many young people like the organist, aforesaid, who shrink from all the common glare and publicity of a church wedding. Well, let them resort to the good old fashioned manner above described, in spite of the protesting remarks, of friends and, want is far better, save their funds, towards building a cosy home of their own; and just such a cosy home was lately—it was built for a young married couple—a perfect gem at very little cost—it will soon be described and cost given.

CRESCENT AVE.

Runaway this Morning.

Mrs. Dr. Elsburg, who resides near Washington Rock brought some friends to the train this morning in a dog-cart and as the train was leaving the depot she attempted to turn round and wave adieu to her friends at the same time. The result was an upset and a runaway. Mrs. Elsburg was cut near the eye, and her arm and side somewhat injured. The dog-cart was but slightly damaged.

The Park House Germans.

Among the most enjoyable events of last season were the Germans given at the Park House. All lovers of dancing will welcome the opening of this season's series, to-morrow evening. The proprietor, Mr. G. E. Johnson, has made every arrangement possible to conduce to the success of the affair, and a fine time is anticipated by the guests and their friends. Dixon will furnish refreshments.

The New Jersey Republican State committee has been called to meet at Trenton on Tuesday, August 5th, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of fixing the time and place for holding the state convention, at which the Republican nominations for presidential electors will be chosen.

State Matters.

In the State Prison at the present time there are 462 convicts, 1 of which is 25 women.

On complaint of Alderman George Smith, of Newark, Attorney Denny has instituted a suit against the Rahway Street Car Company for running horses cars in defiance of the city ordinance. Mayor Haynes has refused to license the company because they did not comply with the law.

The number of school children in Jersey City as reported to the Board of Education by the census takers is 23,307. While many of these are taught in parochial and private institutions, there is a growing need of more public schools, the present number of free sittings now available being only 15,064.

The enormous asylum at Morris Plains, probably the greatest institution of its kind in the world, is nearly full. Its capacity is about 800 patients. The smaller asylum at Trenton has 600 inmates, and several of the counties have asylums. Essex is just completing one of splendid proportions.

There is no little stir among the manufacturers at Paterson over the new law that went into effect July 1, prohibiting the employment of young boys and girls under certain ages. It is estimated that there are in the Paterson mills and shops at least a thousand children who are not eligible under the law, and who must be discharged at once if their employers would not be fined from $50 to $100 for each offense.

THE REPUBLICAN SIDE.

To the Editor of THE EVENING NEWS:

The democratic pyramid stands on its apex, the great and trusted leaders, the men of brains and power, with heels in the air, are their base; while a little obscure young recruit is on the earth—the apex.

Thurman, Bayard, Hendricks, Hoadley, McDonald, were great leaders and guides when Cleveland was in his teens.

Their long service, ability, statecraft and renown went for nothing, as against an accidental corner, who I was hoped could carry New York against Blaine.

The emergency must have been great, and yet the outlook is not promising. There stands John Kelly, with folded arms and firm set teeth, speaking for 50,000 Tammany braves. "I——won't lift a finger for Cleveland;" and there stands Dana who some morning will be likely to say to his 200,000 readers: The democratic candidate is "a good young man, and weighs 150 pounds."

No man who can and does read the papers, who does not know that the real reason for casting adrift all these great leaders, and lifting this young and comparatively unknown man, Cleveland, into national prominence, was that two years ago he was elected Governor of New York by a large majority, and from thence it was hoped he could carry New York.

Nobody knows his views on any national question, and he has never even made a speech that has met the public eye. Afraid to venture with any of their known tried veterans, the party has repeated the easy device of 40 years ago, and nominated another James K. Polk, but the world has grown 200 years in the last 40; and the means of reaching the intellect and judgment of voters, have multiplied twenty fold during that time, and Cleveland's light caliber and insignificance cannot shield him from such investigations as will assign him his exact status before the country. But the crowning act of the late convention was its tariff plank, almost the only important measure in its platform. Eight men "sat" on that nest of eggs, and the result was the tariff chicken, or duck, or goose, just as you please. They did not have a Bible handy, or they might have known how "vain it was to spread the net in sight of the bird;" and old Waltoo, the angler, might have told them to "cover the ...an catch no fish."

... have come out tariff for revenue ... taxation shall be ... es." This is free ... and "exclusively" ... knocked Hay out in one round.

Well, the mountain has labored. What is the result? Two little mice, viz: an unknown young man for president, and free trade for his political war cry. The feast is spread, help yourself. E. W. R.

AN EDITOR'S ASPIRATIONS.

"The editor of the New Brunswick Times does not spurn the Congressional apples of Sodom or turn his head away from the political ropes of sand which are being thrown to him. He only says that he is not a candidate but that he does not decline a nomination. As he has been making this interesting statement in his periodical publication about every other day, for an indefinite number of weeks, an anxious country ought to understand his position."—Newark Evening News.

We understand that ex-Congressman Miles Ross was at the Astor House, New York, last Friday, offering bets even that Cleveland would carry New York State, and that he made one bet at least, with a well known Jersey man of $300.

The Utes are now very bad Indians. As a cavalry horse are after them the Utes are likely to become very good Indians. The best Indians are dead Indians and clear story Indians.

BETWEEN THE BALLOTS

A Bit of Inside History of the Democratic Convention.

Cleveland's Narrow Escape from Defeat—A Stampede for Hendricks Averted by Shrewd Manœuvres of Cleveland's Friends.

NEW YORK, July 14.—A dispatch from Chicago to The New York Times gives the following: A correspondent who was present during the excitement after the clerk began to call the roll on the second and decisive ballot for president and before the result of the balloting was announced jotted down some interesting incidents. According to the stories told by prominent Clevelanders the handsome governor of Connecticut came very near "pocketing his pelf in it." The announcement that Illinois cast one vote for Hendricks was followed by a burst of applause and a chorus of yells. For eighteen minutes the work of the convention was delayed by this display of apparently spontaneous enthusiasm, manufactured by the cause of Butler and Kelly. After Voorhees had withdrawn the name of McDonald and had formally nominated Hendricks those agents were again yelling and have yelled ever since. The governor of Connecticut was affected by the clamor. Was Hendricks about to bear away the prize? If so, he wanted to be on the winning side. In talking with his fellow-delegates. They learned that in his opinion Hendricks was the coming man. He arose in his place, trembling with excitement, lifted his head, and tried to catch the chairman's eye. Just at this moment the friends of Cleveland in the New York delegation saw what was them ran to his seat and began to labor with him. They asked how a man who had seconded Cleveland's nomination so impressively could think of supporting Cleveland in the heat of battle and second the nomination of the man who had betrayed his friend, and who was pushed forward by Kelly and Butler. If Hendricks should be nominated by the assistance of Connecticut given at this critical time, and if he should be defeated in November, he would be regarded by governor of Connecticut, they asked, bear the responsibility for that defeat. That veteran politician, William H. Barnum, returned to the head of the delegation and joined those men in their attempt to persuade the young governor that he was in danger of ruining his own political life by this fickleness. They feared that by his eloquence he would take other New England states with him and bring victory to the anti-Cleveland plotters. While they were at work Gen. Black checked the Hendricks movement by giving Cleveland the votes of ten Illinois delegates who had on the first ballot voted for McDonald. The New York and Connecticut followers of Kelly and Butler were beaten. The governor of Connecticut sank into his seat, thankful that the opportunity had delayed the execution of his purpose.

Hendricks was a delegate at large from Indiana, and he voted for himself. He was sitting with the Indiana delegation when Voorhees went up to the chairman's desk and said: "I stand before you at the unanimous request of the delegation of which I am a member to present the name of Governor E. McDonald for the purpose, at the proper time, of casting the vote of Indiana for Thomas A. Hendricks." It appears that Hendricks joined his fellow delegates in the request that McDonald should be withdrawn. Five minutes later Chairman Manning said: "By the unanimous consent of the delegation of Indiana I cast 30 votes for Thomas A. Hendricks." One of those votes must have been that of Mr. Hendricks himself. The Hendricks movement was pushed on by Benjamin F. Butler's room between 3 and 4 o'clock on Friday morning. Kelly was there, and Roger A. Pryor, also, and a number of the national committee says that Mr. Hendricks was there at one time, but he does not know that he was the last one when the decision was reached.

Hendricks' Acceptance.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 14.—A democratic meeting to ratify the nominations of Cleveland and Hendricks was held here last Saturday night. Messrs. Hendricks and McDonald were expected to be present at the meeting, but neither put in an appearance. Hendricks was the "Autocrats." The meeting was called to order by Austin H. Brown, and William E. English was made chairman. Mr. Hendricks was received with great enthusiasm. He said:

"My Fellow Citizens: You are almost as much as they were in the convention at Chicago. I thought they would not stop up there at all, and I thought there was no limit to the number of people there, but I see there is almost as large a crowd here. I am very much encouraged and delighted to meet you on this occasion. You come to me and to express your approval of the nominations that were made at Chicago. I am glad that you are cordial in the expression. This is a great year with us. Every fourth year the people elect the two great officers of the government. This year is our great year, and every [illegible] change. We are confident we may be, is called upon to reconsider all questions upon which he is disposed to act, and having reconsidered, to cast his vote in favor of what he believes to be right. The Democracy of Indiana appointed me one of the delegates to the convention at Chicago. It was a convention marked in its character for sobriety, deliberation and purpose. It selected two men to carry the banner, and leaving that convention and going out before the people the question is, 'Will you help carry the banner?'

I make my appeal for your support for the high office for which I have been nominated by the Democracy of Chicago. (Great cheers). Grover Cleveland, governor of New York, is the nominee for the president. He was promoted to that high office by the highest majority ever accorded any citizen of that state. He is a man of established honesty of character, and if you will elect him to the presidency he will, the United States you will not hear of Star routes in the postal service of the country under his administration."

An Senator Frye Sees It.

LEWISTON, Me., July 14.—Senator Frye said last night he believed the democratic nomination very weak. He thought the prospects of success poor, and even with a strong nomination the party would have stood but a slight chance. He was confident that 20,000 majority for Blaine in Maine would be a grand victory. He designated as sheer nonsense the talk of carrying the state by 30,000 majority, and said: "If we can't do it we lost the state. I was appointed chairman of the committee, and we put in a year's hard labor. We worked every day. The majority two years ago was the largest ever fought in the history of the state, or that ever will be. The largest vote was polled and we were victorious by a 9,000 majority."

Senator Frye claims that Blaine will receive the largest Irish vote any Republican nominee ever got. The campaign will not be settled till the middle of September, and all then Mr. Frye will go and take his country and its off.

As Usual Not.

VINCENNES, Ind., July 14.—The Evansville and Terre Haute railway, five miles north of this city, last night, an extra train passed on the track and nearly caused the wreck of a train coming from the north on the Ohio and Chicago connection. An engine and caboose was running on the Chicago train for the next ten minutes ahead of it at 30 miles per hour, the usual rate of speed. At the point of the curve the leader of the extra jumped the track, dragging off the rear drivers of the engine and hauling the caboose with it for about three hundred yards. The ties were torn from the road bed and the rails for that distance were bent like corkscrews. The engineer is now under the horse and the caboose is broken into splinters. The wheels and trucks were scattered about in the woods promiscuously, and the ruins of the caboose lay a hundred feet away. The occupants of this car were the conductor, William Lucas, of Sullivan; James O'Brien, of Evansville, and Mr. Mitchell of Decatur, Ill., a passenger. He was riding in the company of the conductor. Lucas crawled out of the wreck and started around the curve to flag the approaching train, but fell off his crutch and, striking it as he ran. When he saw that it was recognized by the engineer of the passenger train, he dropped to the ground from exhaustion. Both legs were broken. Mitchell had his nose and leg broken. Fireman O'Brien is bruised and injured internally. He and Mitchell are on [illegible] at this place. Engineer Hall, Brakeman William Bohaman, of Evansville, was temporarily on the engine and was cut on the forehead. The engine remained on the track and the engineer kept away. The passenger train which was warned by Lucas ran over some of the loosened rails before it could be stopped.

TWO DESPERADOES SHOT.

Rattlesnake Jake and Bill O'Fallon Killed After a Desperate Fight.

HELENA, Mont., July 14.—Two desperadoes, known as Bill O'Fallon and Rattlesnake Jake, engaged in a shooting affray half-breed Indians at Lewiston, eighty miles northeast of Helena. The row ended in all parties drawing weapons. At the first fire Rattlesnake Jake had three fingers shot off, while upon he and his partner swore they would "clean out the town," and began firing at everybody in sight. Both had revolvers and gun in town; but these were used with good effect, and both desperadoes were soon crippled. O'Fallon, finding himself mortally wounded, rode to the nearest surface, "I am shot and a dead man, but will stay with you," fell from his horse. Raising himself to his knees he took deliberate aim with his rifle at a young man named Smith, not concerned in the fight, and shot him dead. The citizens then opened a general fire on O'Fallon, who had in the meantime risen to his feet. He was shot five times before he fell, and then, lying flat on the ground and covered with blood, continued fighting until [illegible] exhausted. He fought desperately, continuing [illegible] ing until he died, wounded in fourteen [illegible] spots. The citizens [illegible] killed wounded. The desperadoes were members of a horse-thief band, which for some time had infested that part of the territory.

COURTNEY EXCOMMUNICATED.

Two Cardinals Who Have Agreed Never to Row With Him More.

NEW YORK, July 14.—F. W. Mack, of Auburn, wrote on July 3 to Wallace Ross, asking if Ross would put up $1,000 against $1,000 that Courtney could not row Hanlan's way, to be rowed on Seneca Lake on August 16. Ross sent this reply:

ITHACA, July 7, 1884.

MR. F. W. MACK: In reply to yours of July 3 I beg to say I have, with numerous other persons, refused to make matches with Courtney, and will not in any way with Courtney again, and I propose to adhere up to it. Yours truly, WALLACE ROSS.

The agreement referred to by Ross is this:

To the Public: In view of the public career of Charles E. Courtney, we, the undersigned, do hereby declare he has done so much to disgrace professional sculling, we, the undersigned, do refuse to row with him, and will not, if we can avoid it, in future, rowing, hereby pledge ourselves never to associate with him in any way with Courtney again, and I propose to adhere up to it. Yours truly, WALLACE ROSS.

To Tunnel the St. Clair River.

TORONTO, July 14.—The future competition the Grand Trunk has to expect from the Canadian Pacific and other roads in through passenger traffic is evident from the step inaugurated that company to consider the advisability of carrying out of an extensive scheme. It is proposed to construct a railway tunnel under the St. Clairs river, about one and a half miles below Sarnia, thus forming direct communication with the United States. Mr. Hickson, and Mr. William Ward, has been engaged to make the preliminary tests. He proposes to experiment by drilling from a boat moored in the river. If the rock is found practicable for tunneling, it is stated that the work will commence at an early date.

Heavy Dry Goods Failure.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The dry goods district was excited Saturday by the news that the firm of Wallace, Ross & Co., Nebraska dealers in dry goods at No. 278 Broadway, had made an assignment to Lewis May, of the firm of May & King, bankers. The firm was one of the oldest in the city, having been established three-quarters of a century ago, while the house itself went back nearly ten years more. It was said known, both in this city and all the Nebraska towns, as one of the largest jobbing business. The firm was composed of Wm. M. Halstead, Wm. A. Haines, John B. Myers and J. Edward Conolly. The liabilities are estimated at $1,000,000.

To be Notified at Buffalo.

ALBANY, July 14.—Governor Cleveland had a complimentary visit day yesterday, although he had many callers in the evening. The committee to notify him and Mr. Hendricks of their nomination for the office of vice-president will leave the city in a few days for Buffalo, as citizens of that city wish him to receive the committee there. The governor will decide the matter soon, but will remain in the city some days in order to receive the delegation from California, and others who have expressed the wish to wait on him.

A Greenback Call.

ALBANY, July 14.—George O. Jones, chairman of the New York State Greenback committee, has issued an extra circular to its members in which he says:

"The political developments of the past week indicate a crisis. Important for every member to attend the committee meeting to be held at Stanwix hall, in Albany, July 16."

The Cholera.

PARIS, July 14.—Thirty-six deaths from cholera were officially reported at Toulon yesterday.

MARSEILLES, July 14.—The official report of the health committee places the number of cases of cholera in this city during the past twenty-four hours at 81 [illegible]

LEAPING FOR LIFE.

Panic at a Fire in a New York Tenement.

Four Stories and No Fire Escapes—Exit by the Stairs Cut Off—Narrow Perplexed with Fearful Exciting Scene.

NEW YORK, July 14.—A fire broke out yesterday in the four-story house, No. 8,195 Second avenue. John Sheiling, a baker, living in the second floor, about 2 o'clock in the morning found smoke in the cellar and flame rolling out of the cob-shaft. He hastily aroused the family and they escaped to the street. The fire ran through the cellar and smoking the first floor.

On the first floor Fred Realander with his family slept in the rear of the store. They escaped without difficulty.

On the second floor in the rear lived Louis Loudon, a butcher, and his wife Eva. Mad with terror, she attempted to leap to the street. Her husband, holding her by the wrists, lowered her till her feet touched the top of the shutters of the window below, from which she could step to the neighboring fence. As her husband released his hold her foot slipped and she fell to the flagging of the yard. Her right arm was broken in two places, and she received a severe cut in the side from the jagged edge of the shutter. Loudon managed to lower himself to the yard.

In the room above that occupied by the Loudons lived Jacob Schaefer and baby. In the first moment of panic Mrs. Rose seized her child and wildly attempted to leap from the window. Rose held her firmly. Taking the baby, Rose wrapped it in a blanket, and attaching a cord began to lower it to the yard. In his nervous haste he had not secured the blanket quite properly and the child fell headlong, striking on the pave. It received slight injuries. As the child fell Mrs. Rose fainted. Her husband was making the passage to the window to follow when the police burst in and rescued them both.

James Morris, his wife Bridget and eighteen-months-old child lived on the third floor front. They were awakened by cries at the window, falling on the wooden awning below. She received a severe cut in the side and a number of bruises.

A. Sherrer lived on the fourth floor in the rear, went to the roof with his wife and two children. As they were making their way to the adjoining roof the flames burst with a volcano from the top of the ash shaft. Mrs. Sherrer staggered and fell and narrowly escaped falling to the yard.

John McManus, a conductor on the Second Avenue railroad, with his wife and three months-old child, occupied the fourth floor front. He ran downstairs and opened his wife's waist, and while she held the baby in her arms attempted to lower her to the street. She had scarcely left the window when the fire broke. When the police broke in unfortunate woman's skull was found to be fractured. Her left thigh was also broken in two places. She was carried to the police line around

MANGLED BY A FREIGHT TRAIN

Two Men Killed and Four Severely Injured on a New Jersey Road.

BOONTON, N. J., July 14.—An accident occurred on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad about a mile above this place, by which four men were seriously injured and another was killed. A gravel train was doing some filling in above the track and the men were dumping the earth from the cars when a coal train came along. The men kept working while the train was passing. While dumping one of the cars the chain that held the opposite side of it broke, throwing the carload of dirt on the men who were working between the two trains, and completely covering one of them, Charles Crytz. When rescued he was unconscious. His injuries are severe, and small hopes of his recovery are entertained. John F. Kelly, aged 35, was thrown under the passing train, the wheels cutting off his right leg below the knee and the right arm at the shoulder and mangling the other arm and leg badly. His face was crushed so that he could hardly be recognized. A doctor was summoned at once, but he could do nothing for him. Kelly died while being taken to his home. He leaves a widow and four children. John Murner, aged 50, was severely injured about the body and shoulders, but will recover. John Herrs, aged 40, and James Beatty, aged 45, also received severe injuries. All have large families and reside here.

WENT WILD DURING THE STORM.

An Epileptic's Violent Fit of Madness After a Thunder Peal.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Hamilton Walling, Jr., of No. 90 Charles street, has been subject to epileptic fits for twelve years. He is a very powerful man, weighing nearly 200 pounds, and latterly he has been temporarily insane after each attack. He had a very severe fit one day last week, and when it ended he had developed religious mania. During the heavy thunder storm of Saturday, his insanity seemed to become more acute, and the vivid lightning so greatly frightened him that his white-haired father could hardly prevent him from springing from his bed and dashing out of the window of his sleeping room on the first floor.

Shortly after 3 o'clock, after a peal of thunder, he shouted that somebody was calling for him, flung his father to the floor, got out of the window in his night clothes, and began to climb over a fence. An alarm was sent to the Charles street station, on the block below, and Policeman Wiley, Townsend and Reilly chased and caught him. It required their combined strength to get him into an ambulance. He was taken to Bellevue hospital.

Mr. Walling is a bachelor. His father is a nephew of Superintendent Walling.

Trouble Feared from Strikers.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 14.—The strike of the miners in the Hocking valley against a reduction of from 70 to 60 cents per ton is likely to terminate within a few days by the introduction of new men. About 500 of them, it is said, will be thrown into the Hocking district to-day.

Some days since the Ohio coal exchange and other operators ordered their men to remove their tools from the mines, since which time the mines and other property of the owners have been guarded by a force of Pinkerton's detectives and other men picked up in Cincinnati and various other localities, who would not be in sympathy with the miners should trouble arise. For several days the managers of the Hocking Valley and Toledo railroad have placed guards at all their bridges and trestles in the mining region. Every effort is being made by the managers to land the new force at the mines before their arrival is anticipated by the old force. By some serious trouble is apprehended, although up to the present time the miners have observed the best of order.

Sunk By An Excursion Steamer.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 14.—On the river, twenty miles below the city, about 9 o'clock Saturday night, the steamer Charles Morgan, with between 400 and 500 excursionists on board, near Horseshoe Bend, collided with the little screw steamer Central City, bound for Memphis with a cargo of flour and produce. The Morgan struck the Central City amidships, cutting her down, and she soon sank, but all on board were taken off safely. The excitement on the Morgan was very great for a time, but when it was definitely known that the steamer was not injured the passengers became calm and several hours later were landed at a wharf in the city. The captain of the Central City says he blew his whistle before the vessels struck, but the pilot of the Morgan asserts that he did not hear it, and that, the night being dark and a heavy storm raging at the time, he did not see the little steamer till it was too late to avoid her. He also says that the Central City was not showing the proper lights.

Buried With His Great-Grandson.

HOBOKEN, N. J., July 14.—A little white satin-covered coffin and a large black velvet-covered coffin stood side by side yesterday afternoon in the Methodist church in Eighth and Washington streets. The little coffin contained the body of William Powlees Kerr, aged ten months, the great-grandson of Peter J. Powlees. The black coffin contained the remains of Peter J. Powlees, aged 84, who died ten hours after his great-grandson. Peter J. Powlees was one of the founders of Hoboken engine company 41, in 1848. He was one of the original founders of Masonic lodge 357, and he was master of the lodge of which William M. Tweed was a member.

Wisdom on Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—While at Deer park the representatives of the United Press called upon ex-Secretary Windom, who had just arrived from Europe, and asked his opinion on the nominations made by the respective parties for president and vice-president. "I think," said Mr. Windom, "that the Republican ticket is a very strong one and one which will succeed."

Referring to the Democratic nominations, Mr. Windom said: "From a Republican standpoint I am very well pleased with the ticket. I think a much stronger one might have been selected."

Mr. Windom will leave for the west to-day.

Holding the Government Responsible.

PARIS, July 14.—A stormy meeting was held here to denounce the rejection by the chamber of deputies of the amnesty measure which sought to effect the release of Socialist and Communist convicts. The speeches were of the most violent and inflammatory character, the government being held responsible for all acts of calamities, including the floods. One of the speakers who said he resided in Toulon, declared that M. Ferry would surely be lynched should he ever show his appearance in that city.

Ten Words—25 Cents.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Beginning tomorrow, the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph company will adopt a uniform rate of 25 cents for ten words between all offices on its lines, except where the rates would increase the present rates.

STANDING HIS GROUND.

Gen. Schenck's Pluck in the House of Representatives.

A Scene of Riotous Confusion—Nearly a Personal Encounter—Sidell's Question—A Pistol for One.

[Ben: Perley Poore.]

Gen. Schenck, of Ohio, who served eight years in congress—1843 to 1851—before the rebellion, was one of the early champions of emancipation, and had several altercations with the slaveholder. On one occasion it is reported that the venerable Joshua R. Giddings was virtually refused a hearing when he desired to make a personal explanation. A scene of the most riotous confusion followed, and in the midst of it Schenck, broad-shouldered, square-headed and powerful, rose in his place and commanded silence by the intensity of his manner and the vehemence with which he scolded:

"I have no personal interest in this matter, Mr. Speaker, nor knowledge of the matters alleged; but when the honorable gentleman, my colleague, who has been so violently and gravely assailed, desires to make a personal explanation, surely he should to be permitted to do so. Under the circumstances, sir, no gentleman would object."

Again, however, there came from different parts of the chamber cries of "I object! I object!" and again Schenck, with renewed emphasis, said:

"I repeat, Mr. Speaker, that under the circumstances no gentleman would object."

As a result Mr. Schenck's courage and pertinacity, Mr. Giddings was allowed to make his explanation. When the scene was over there was much discussion as to who Schenck's redoubtable colleague, Mr. Giddings gentleman would object, and Jacob Thompson, of Mississippi, who was afterward secretary of the interior, communicated to him the impression which was general in the house, that he meant Sidell, of Louisiana.

"That is a mistake," replied Mr. Schenck; "I did not even know that he was in the house."

"Are you willing to make that explanation public?" asked Thompson.

"Certainly," was the reply. "I will do so with pleasure."

The next day on the floor Mr. Sidell, in accordance with this arrangement, rose and asked if the gentleman from Ohio referred to him when he said that no gentleman would object to Mr. Giddings' explanation.

"No, certainly not, sir," replied Schenck. "I did not even know that the gentleman from Louisiana was in the house."

Still Sidell questioned him, saying: "If the gentleman from Ohio knew that the member from Louisiana was in the house, would he have made that remark?"

"That," replied Schenck, "is a hypothetical question, and I will not be questioned in that fashion."

Still the southern member went on to interrogate him, and, at last, entirely out of patience, Schenck took the floor, against the almost violent efforts which his friend, Governor Vance, of Ohio, made to restrain him, and said: "It is evident that what the member from Louisiana desires to know is to whom I referred when I said yesterday that no gentleman would object to the explanation of my colleague. Lest there be any further doubt upon this subject, I will say here and now that I meant and referred to the drunken number from Alabama, Felix G. McConnell."

As may well be imagined, this declaration created the wildest excitement in the house. McConnell, one of the most violent of Democrats and a duelist, was friend to Washington, rushed down the aisle shaking his fist at Schenck, and for a moment it was believed that a personal encounter could not be avoided. With difficulty order was at last restored, and the ordinary business of the house for a time resumed. Just before adjournment, however, Garret Davis came over to where Mr. Schenck was quietly seated, and said: "Have you a pistol, Schenck?"

"No," replied the latter, "I never carried one in my life."

"Well, you had better carry one to-day," said Davis, "for McConnell is swearing he will shoot you on sight."

"Still, I haven't got a pistol, and don't know where to get one," replied Schenck.

"Take mine, take mine," said Davis, quietly, at the same time handing his friend a pistol. For some days after this Mr. Schenck went armed. Three days later he met McConnell as he was walking down the eastern steps of the capitol. The Alabamian was standing quietly on the portico, but made no demonstration as Schenck passed him, and so the affair ended.

A Street Car Pun.

[Detroit Free Press.

It was a Cass avenue car. Two young ladies were standing up directly in front of a morbidly eccentric man who had not once looked at them or offered them a seat. One of them stepped on his foot, which had no business to be there anyhow, and maintained her position. Then he glared at the other passengers and asked aloud:

"Why am I like a character in an old nursery rhyme?"

Nobody answered, though all were dying to know.

"Because," said the eccentric man, as he settled back in his ill-gotten seat, "I have bolles on my toes."

Work Before Him.

[Philadelphia Call.]

"My dear," she said, as he sat him earnestly, "it's growing late. You must get up."

"What time is it?" he growled.

"It's after 7 o'clock."

"Well, that's not late for Sunday morning."

"But, my dear, you forget that there is work before you. We are to have chicken-for dinner, you know, and you have got to catch them."

The strong man was out of bed in a second.

A New Ship Canal.

[Inter Ocean.]

The project of connecting the bay of Biscay with the Mediterranean sea by means of a ship canal through the river Garonne, is being revived. It is strange that M. de Lesseps has not devoted some attention to this scheme before now. It is entirely practicable, although the cost would be great. To De Lesseps this would not be a very great obstacle.

Feeding the Motor.

[Burlington Hawkeye.]

Considerable excitement was created in Philadelphia, one day last week, by a rumor that the Keely motor was able to stand alone. Investigation, however, revealed the unnerving fact that it was being fed up against the wall in the corner, while the great inventor was feeding it stock out of a large, strong basket.

SHE SAW THE POPE.

An American Girl's Interview with "His Holiness."

She Called Him "Mon Pere," and Didn't Give Him a Single Title—A Blessing and and a Gift.

[Washington Star.]

A gentle, winning, and brave little American girl who is traveling in Europe, caring devotedly for her invalid father, a retired naval officer, writes to a lady friend in Washington, giving the following graphic and ingenuous description of an interview she succeeded in getting with the pope:

"And what more?" Monsignor Macchi asked, but with much of the manner that I was encouraged to tell him I wanted your crucifix blessed specially, and I did so want the holy father to say a word to me! He laughed, but very kindly asked me all about myself; I said I was American Catholic from my birth; papa a naval officer, a convert; and we were to leave Rome the next day. He said the holy father was much fatigued, but he would see, and, if at all possible, I should have the pleasure I longed for, but not to be disappointed if I were refused; but I felt such a whole heart. I answered I could wait over so long, and patiently enough. Special audiences, you know, mean several people who kneel about, and the pope goes round and speaks to each one, and this, I thought, was the way I would have my pleasure, and while I was regretting I could not get more, monsignor came to me and said I was led into a more grand room to one wherein I found waiting the lady from whom I got my idea of special audience. So, my dear friend, I had the audacities to kneel and not get my fee for beyond me. She left the room, and I amused myself watching the three ladies who were waiting to be led in. Imagine—my dear, I imagine—I was the second one called, and before I could realize I had been called, I was in the room with our "high priest."

He sat on a chair, all in white, all in white, and looked so benignly at me while, in few words, monsignor made the introduction of the little American girl, who wanted his holiness to say a word to her. Then he left. The holy father smiled and looked so gracious that my fears vanished, and in a moment I was on my knees at his side, and alone with him. I don't know if I fulfilled a single point of etiquette. I am sure I only called him "Mon Pere," and didn't give him a single title. I could think of nothing formal. I knelt there half leaning on his knee, on which I laid my rosaries. In my left hand I held your crucifix, as in my right I clasped his dear hand, which I might, like at will, while his soft, beautiful, keen eyes seemed to read my soul! He asked me all about myself, and dear pa; and stanuns, and my house, and my pleasures and looked distressed when I told him of the trouble which ever grieves me. He said he would pray for ours and every one, then gave your crucifix a spot all blessed, laying his hand on it and my precious little cross, gave me a benediction with both hands on my head, and then, with a wave of his hand, and a sweet smile, I was dismissed. I never trust many steps to be called me, and send particular blessing to papa.

I did not come out of the room as all in the prayer way I say, instead of contemning myself out, I turned and dropped on my knees in the middle of the room, when he again blessed me, and rather, on my head up and my eyes full of tears, I ran out, and I don't believe the holy father liked it any the less, for monsignor called me as I passed to wait, and he, with a kind smile, gave me a medal which he lastly came carrying a silver medal, which he pressed into my hand, looking very, very pleased as he told me the holy father had blessed it, and that it was my own. This is my proof that I have not dreamed all this, and the precious gift to the little American girl hangs on my rosary; a relic of a saint is sometimes all I have to live. I did have some enough left to thank the chamberlains, one and all, as I passed, for their courtesy, and get down stairs and out into my own waiting house at 11, and wondering if all the happiness had been mine.

More Trees, or Less?

[The Current.]

On the recent "Arbor Day" in the Dominion of Canada, there was planted in the province of Quebec over 150,000 trees. The injunctions of the Forestry association had to be heeded in Quebec as well as in some of our own states where an "Arbor Day" is observed. Of course, the country is not by the forest-planting enthusiasm that North America will speedily become a Sahara, if people do not turn out and plant trees and sing "Woodman spare that tree!" The lumbermen tell a different story, and the timber will really soon be sold out in spite of the statistics of the Forestry association. A correspondent of The Quebec Chronicle is bold enough to confront his tree-planting brethren with the assertion that the forests should not be planted because they have a very "deleterious effect upon the climate."

Further, he says: "A country is almost invariably a vast country, and as we have quite enough moisture and humidity now, I question if it is wise to increase the supply by the growth of forests." We are countries with much drier climates than ours, and not near so cold, clearing their forests; Italy, by cutting down the Appenine woods, has wonderfully improved its climate, and Germany, owing to the clearing away of its dense forests has obtained a similar blessing. In our extremely cold country we need a dry, bracing atmosphere to enable it fit to live in, and we should move cautiously in covering the ground with trees, as thereby a very large proportion of the rain falls directly on the soil." It is profitable to hear both sides on every question. There are extremists in the matter of tree planting and in the matter of tree cutting. We certainly do not want too many trees, but that many of them are necessary for climate and agricultural and sanitary purposes, as well as for ornamental purposes, is very evident.

The Question of Free Will.

[Detroit Free Press.]

In one of the Philippine islands it is customary, when a young fellow asks the old folks for their daughter, to set her into the woods a mile or two, and if the lover finds her before sunset she is his. If not he forfeits all claim. The girl is given one hour the start. This gives her a fair chance, and she can use her own judgment about hiding after she gets in the woods.

Just What It Is.

[New York Graphic.]

A western paper says: "Mr. Meeker, of Argo, Col., has a duck that laid an egg with a nickel embedded in the yolk." This is not a freak of nature. It is a California newspaper lie.

To the Same Old Tune.

[Utica Observer.]

The old song used to be "Tee that my grave is kept green." If the orientation movement increases in strength we may be called upon to hear "See that my urn is kept dug."

—Gamble Engine Co., No. 1, expect a new hose carriage which is to be sent on trial this afternoon.

—Auction sale of the effects of the late Judge Beebe at Evona to-morrow morning at ten o'clock.

—The funeral services of the wife of the Rev. Mr. Compton, the Methodist minister at Dunellen, were held yesterday.

—The speakers at the Grove meeting on Sunday were the Rev. Dr. Williams, Alexander Titsworth and James Huntington.

—A notice has been posted in the Bound Brook Woolen Mills that until further orders the works will be closed on Fridays and Saturdays.

—The Central Times has placed a bulletin board in front of its office on Front street, and headed both sides "Campaign Pun." The board is covered with cartoons from The Judge. The Constitutionalist has not yet recognized that with pictures from Puck of the "stooped man."

—During the thunder storm of Saturday night, lightning struck the house of Robert Houston, of Elizabeth. The chimney was totally destroyed, and some of the shingles torn off. The whole upper part of the house was considerably damaged. The family escaped unhurt, with the exception of a slight scratch on the face of one of the children.

—The large cupola for melting iron is being put in position at the Scott Press Works Foundry. It is of new design arranged to give perfect combustion and prevent flame issuing from the top of the furnace. Mr. Scott has selected this improved cupola at extra cost in order to prevent nuisance. The Oil Cloth Manufacturing Co., his neighbors, it is thought might follow this example with advantage to the residents of the vicinity.

—In the Reform Club meeting at the Methodist Church of this city Sunday evening, presided over by Mr. Isaac Brokaw, of the club, the Rev Dr. Yerkes of the Baptist Church participating, Councilman Frank Marsh made an address that so pleased the large audience present that he was at its conclusion warmly applauded. Applause also was given to the next speaker ex-Judge Harper, and the Rev. Dr. Williams, who followed him and made an address which was not wanting in length, to say the least.

—About three weeks ago, a pet alligator belonging to Linn Edsall, a son of Mr. Sesly Edsall, the Plainfield dry goods merchant, was taken to the Mountain View Farm, for its health of course. It was about six inches in length. About ten days ago it knawed its way out of the box in which it had been kept, and while surveying its surroundings fell into the unkindly hands of a neighbor by whom it was killed, and the story has since spread that the mountain was in labor and brought a whole crop of alligators. The pet was highly prized by young master Edsall, as a present from his grandmother, who had secured it in Florida for him.

FIRE DEPARTMENT BY-LAWS.

Officers and Members Working Under Rules They Have Never Seen.

A News reporter being desirous of securing a copy of the Fire Department by-laws in order that he might fully acquaint himself of the rules under which the department is working, made a tour last evening of the various engine, hose and truck houses in pursuit of that object.

At Gamble Engine Co., No. 1, he met Mr. J. A. Moore, the foreman of the company. The reporter asked him if he had a copy of the department by-laws.

Mr. Moore said: I have been a member of the department seven years, and have never had a copy. I do not think any member of the company has.

The next office whom the reporter met was First Assistant Chief Charles A. Smith. In answer to the same question, he said: I have been a member of the department for seventeen years, and have never had a copy.

At Plainfield Engine Co., No. 2, Assistant Foreman T. J. Lyness was seen. He said: I have not a copy of the by-laws, and I do not think any member of the company has.

Tom Jones, ex-foreman of Engine Co., No 2, was seen. He also said that he did not have a copy, and that he did not think any member of the company had.

At Warren Engine Co., No. 3, several of the members were seen. They said they did not have a copy, and that none of the company had.

Chief Andrew Carney was next seen. He said: Whenever I want to see a copy of the by-laws, I have to go to President Van Winkle of the Board.

At Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co. several members were seen. They said they knew the foreman did not have a copy of the by-laws, and that none of the members had.

At Alert Hose Co. the place was deserted, neither officers nor members being about.

In the course of his investigations the reporter found that there were only about three copies in existence, and that these were supposed to be possessed by members of the Fire Board. A number of members of the department thought it rather rough that they should be held accountable to rules, of which neither they nor their foreman had a copy, and with whose provisions they could not fully become acquainted. There seemed to be a general desire among all the members that the Fire Board should have the by-laws printed, and that a copy be given each member of the department.

A North Plainfield Row.

Lewis Sprague and Walter Reim live in North Plainfield. Some time since one of them told another person that the other one had said something or other. The other one went over to the third party's house on Dean street last evening to deny that he had said anything. While there the first party came along, and immediately prepared for business by rolling up his sleeves. In a few minutes the peaceful inhabitants of Dean street were treated to a free exhibition of the hit-as-you-please style of fight. At the conclusion of the last round, although blood had flowed freely, the principal damage was found to have been done to the flowers and flower-beds. Later in the evening Reim went before Squire McLaughlin, and swore out a warrant against Sprague for assault and battery.

A Mean Act.

On Saturday morning a poor woman residing in the southern part of this city, and her two young sons, set out to pick blackberries. A favorite place for blackberry pickers is just outside the city limits near the old race track. Here the ground runs to waste, and the low-vines, as they are called, are quite plentiful. Having picked about nineteen quarts they turned to go home. On nearing the woods at the end of Union avenue, a man came up to them, and exhibiting a badge declared he was a New Market constable, and that if they did not give him the berries they had he would chase them all the way to town and have them arrested. There were two other men in the woods. The poor woman was so frightened that she gave up her berries, and with her sons returned home empty-handed.

The Lincoln Club Meeting.

The regular weekly meeting of the Lincoln Campaign Club was held in Association Hall on Park avenue last evening. G. M. Stiles presided. The preliminary steps towards organizing the Lincoln Guards was taken, and the formation of a glee club put under way. About twenty new members were admitted. Speeches were made by President Coriell, of the Common Council, Freeholder Vanderbeek, C. M. Goddard, G. M. Stiles and others.

The German This Evening.

The German at the Park House this evening is to be strictly private so far as the dancing is concerned, as only those with invitations will be allowed upon the floor. Mr. George Curtis is the moving spirit in the affair, and under his efficient leadership a fine time may be expected by those having invitations.

Laying the Corner Stone.

Last Friday, Mr. Walter Scott and a number of friends, proceeded without ceremonies to lay the corner stone for the Scott Press Works, which had been postponed from time to time, on account of Mr. Scott's time being so much occupied. The work has progressed until at present the roof is being put on the building, and the stone is laid more as a matter of record. In a tin box was deposited the following articles.

1. Three copies of the first number of THE EVENING NEWS, dated June 2, 1884, containing a historical sketch of Plainfield.

2. One copy of the Central New Jersey Times of recent date.

3. One copy of the Constitutionalist of recent date.

4. A copy of each of the following papers: —American Machinist, Chicago Inter-Ocean Chicago Herald, New York Star, Brooklyn Times, Albany Press and Knickerbocker, Rochester Herald, Philadelphia Star, Philadelphia Call, Louisville Courier-Journal, Cleveland Herald, Detroit News, Detroit Journal, Detroit Tribune, Kansas City Journal, Kansas City Times, Milwaukee Sentinel, San Francisco Examiner, Toronto Mail, Montreal Star, Toledo Blade, and other papers containing a description of the Scott Perfecting Press.

5. A description of the buildings with the names of the contractors and those interested in the construction of the establishment.

6. Cards and mill articles of interest.

The box being covered and sealed was placed in the stone and formally covered over by Mr. Walter Scott assisted by Mr. Scott. The top being securely laid and built up by Mr. Gray, Superintendent of Masonry.

State Matters.

The project of the new railroad between Morristown and New York is taking shape. The rights of way for nearly the whole route has been secured.

A gang of juvenile burglars has been discovered in Freehold. One of the lads was captured and is expected to reveal the names of his companions.

The Freehold Land and Loan Branch has notified the gambling houses that they must close. There are five such establishments now running there.

Two horses fell into the Market street sewer in Newark Saturday night by the earth caving in. After valuable property underneath the city, they were found and brought to the surface.

The First National Bank of Jamesburg is in a very flourishing condition. At a recent meeting the Directors declared a dividend of five per cent. out of the earnings of the last six months.

A watch which was lost thirteen years ago on a farm near New Lisbon was recently found in the field where it was dropped. With the exception of the hands the timepiece is in good running order.

The Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association will erect a handsome tabernacle, to be known as the Simpson Memorial Tabernacle, in the center of which will be placed a monument to the deceased Bishop.

The Belvidere Jet Company's works have been seized by the sheriff, and 125 hands are thrown out of employment. The company is said to have made a half million dollars in the iron mines in Oxford township, Warren county.

On the Darner farm, at Darlington, a rattlesnake was seen by the two little daughters of John Lewis, while picking blackberries. Their screams brought a laborer to the spot, who killed the snake. It had thirteen rattles, and was 4 feet 5 inches long.

John Murphy, of Willow-street, Hoboken, who was engaged on the North Hudson County's Elevated Railroad, which is now in process of construction, missed his footing while at work yesterday, and falling a distance of 118 feet was probably fatally injured.

A young man in charge of a babe of Mrs. W. A. Wyer, of Asbury Park, ran the baby coach in which it was placed upon the balcony of the Shore Press office the other day and then stepped himself with a bang. The infant climbed out of the coach and over the railing, and fell to the ground, receiving injuries from which it died.

Robert L. Embley settled in Chester, Morris county, some time ago, and, claiming to be a local Methodist preacher, was invited to establish a church in Fotterall. He also claimed to be an agent for a Philadelphia publishing house. After he was discovered leaving numerous bills for goods he was "rated out of meeting," but before he left the town he ran up bills with various tradesmen.

While asleep on his sloop at Fourth street and Park avenue, Hoboken, William Hoose, a baker, was robbed of his gold watch and chain valued at $200, by one of his employment, who then disappeared. Yesterday Mr. Hoose received a letter from the thief inclosing a pawn ticket for the watch. The man said he took the watch because he wanted to raise a few dollars. He pledged it for $30.

Assemblyman Isaac Wilbrink, of Warren county, met with a serious accident one day last week. He was in the harvest of his hay and stepped on a hoist which was being lifted and lowered from one story to another, a distance of about eight feet causing internal injuries although at least were not thought fatal. He was confined to his bed until Tuesday, when unfortunately he overexerted himself. His family are entertaining grave fears, owing to his peculiar state of health.

A BUSINESS MEDLEY.

There was a man in our town,
And he was wonderous wise,
For when he marked the prices down
He then did advertise.

And when he saw his trade increase,
With all his might and main
He marked still lower every price
And advertised again.
—New York Morning Journal.

And when he advertised again
His rivals loudly swore
To see folks rush with might and main
To patronize his store.

And while they sat in solitude
And saw him custom win,
That man behind the counter stood
And raked the shekels in.
—Charlestown News.

And when he raked the shekels in,
And saw his fortune rising,
He took a goodly lot of tin
And kept on advertising.

Each day a generous sum he'd sink,
And demonstrate full plain
The more one pays for printer's ink
The greater is his gain.
—Boston Star.

And when he had grown rich,
And everybody knew him,
His ads were multiplied,
That no one should outdo him.

For the secret of success,
The life of every enterprise,
Is not in the beginning,
But continuing to advertise.
—The Hat, Cap and Fur Trade Review.

And when came knocking at the door
That monster, Death, so grim,
It found him "pulling for the shore"
While singing loud this hymn.

Now "I can read my title clear
To mansions in the skies,
And bid farewell to every fear,"
For I did advertise.
—Butler Bros.' Drummer.

A MATTER OF OPINION.

The lover leaned on the instrument
While the lovely maiden sang,
And his face was full of a sweet content
As the room with the music rang.
He thought, as she sang in the twilight dim
In tones pure, sweet and strong,
The sweetest thing on earth to him
Was a maiden's voice in song.

The editor sat and he wrote and wrote
By the lamp light pale and dim,
While the maiden sang, till she strained her throat.
Who lived next door to him.
Then the editor rose with a visage grim,
Add said, as he smote his breast,
The sweetest thing on the earth to him
Was a maiden's voice—at rest.
—Somerville Journal.

THE CONGRESSIONAL ORATOR.

How doth the busy orator
Improve each shining hour,
And win applause with all his strength
Of seventeen-lung power.

He wanders on from point to point,
His mouth he stretches wide,
While from his throat the split-edged words
Seraphically glide.
—Washington Hatchet.

A WIFE WHO IS BOSS.

Her movements have a queenly grace,
Her eyes with languid fire burn;
She calls me pet names by the score
And spends the money which I earn.

My every wish to her is law,
She sighs not that "it might have been;"
She smiles on me her sweetest smiles
And pets me with the rolling-pin.
—Philadelphia Call.

OUT OF TOWN—IN THEIR MIND.

Now close the front blinds and the curtains pull down;
We'll live in the kitchen awhile,
And the neighbors will think we have gone out of town,
And thus we'll be fooled in the style.
—Somerville Journal.

A CARELESS ENGINEER.

Smash-Up on One of the Coney Island Roads.

Several Persons Severely Injured and Many Badly Shaken Up—The Engineer and Fireman Under Arrest—Narrow Escapes.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Two collisions, which narrowly escaped being of the most disastrous character, occurred this afternoon on Gunther's railroad, which runs from the city line, Brooklyn, to Coney Island, through Bath and New Utrecht. The first almost occurred within a few minutes of each other, and both were caused by a coal train, which seems to have been stationed in the worst possible manner to do the greatest amount of damage. Not more than a dozen persons were killed outright, nor is it certain that any received wounds sufficiently serious to cause death. From what could be learned by a reporter at the scene of the accident it would appear that a coal train, made up of an engine and one car, left the Gravesend track at Gravesend cemetery upon the double track, with Charles Merwin as engineer, at a few minutes past 2 o'clock. Just as the train reached Bath Junction, a passenger train, Merwin's car, a passenger train coming from Coney Island upon the track. The engineer seemed to have lost control of his engine, and when he found it was running at a very high rate of speed and without paying attention to his schedule, as the passenger train was on time, he did not slow down Gravesend station a minute later than the time at which the coal train started.

Engineer Hart of the passenger train, seeing the coal train coming at full speed, gave Merwin the signal to back, but the latter paid no heed to the signal. He reversed the engine simply and then jumped from his cab, leaving it to firemen Edward Wilkins, upon the coal car. Hart tried to stop his train, but found it impossible, and the two locomotives came together with a crash. This gave the engine of the coal train an impetus, and as there is a heavy down grade at the point where the collision took place it started toward Greenwood at high speed. Merwin tried to board the engine again and seized the guards but failed in his purpose. He shouted to Fireman Wilkins to go from the car to the locomotive and shut off the steam, but the wind carried his voice away so that the fireman did not hear it. Finding that the engine was running away at a great speed, Wilkins jumped, leaving the locomotive without control. At this time a locomotive with two cars had started for Coney Island from Gravesend track, and it was expected would pass the Brooklyn-bound train on the double track. As the Coney Island train rounded the curve its engineer saw the unattended coal train coming toward him too late to prevent a second collision, and the engine crashed into the coal car, derailing it and throwing the front portion of it partially off the track. The wheels of the engine plowed into the earth, and the foot was broken off. The coal car tore the top of the front car of the outgoing passenger train for some distance.

From these particulars it will be regarded as a marvelous that many persons were not killed, but singularly enough, not a life was sacrificed.

The following is as perfect a list of the injured as could be obtained at the scene, and most of them were upon the incoming train: Fred Olsen, of No. 483 Third avenue, Brooklyn, was in the second car of the train bound toward Bergen, with his wife, his wife's mother and two sisters-in-law. All were more or less seriously harmed.

Louis Smith, of Forty-third street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues, was seriously injured about the head. Taken home in a coach.

Thomas Johnson, of Third avenue and Twenty-third street, was injured about the legs. He saw the locomotive of the coal train coming toward the passenger train and tried to jump. Injured.

John H. Laird, of No. 192 Sixteenth street, Brooklyn, was thrown over a seat of the train going to Coney Island and was injured about the head and hand.

Frank Myer, 41 years old, of No. 209 Fifth street, this city, injuries about the face. He is a musician engaged in the band at the Atlantic Hotel, Bath.

James Langmore, 7 years old, of No. 212 Wyckoff street, Brooklyn, injuried about the face and head.

Jacob M. Brown, engineer of the passenger train, residence Locust Grove, seriously injured about the body. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

Henry C. Barber, of No. 79 Cranberry street, bruised about the face, arms and body.

Robert Miley, diamond broker, of Willow place, Brooklyn, injured on the legs and body.

Denis Murray and John Murphy, of Newark, N. J., and Daniel O'Malley, of No. 25 East Twenty-second street, New York, were bruised.

The wife of John Smith, residence unknown, was injured about the face.

Mrs. Elma Brown, of No. 304 Twenty-eighth street, Bath, was in the train, crossing for Coney Island, and had with her her three children, aged 10, 8 and 2 years, two girls and a boy. She was in the first car, and in the first collision she was thrown violently upon the floor of the car in front of her. She sustained injuries about the ankle, knee, face and head. The children escaped with slight bruises. After having been attended by an ambulance surgeon she and her little ones were taken to their home.

Daniel Noonan, of No. 1 Brooklyn jury commissioner's office, who was in a front seat of the forward car of the Coney Island train, had a collision with the seat in front of him, striking a woman and two children who sat near him and held them, and thus prevented them from being thrown from their seats. He says the coal train was going at the rate of fifteen miles an hour.

Lewis N. Hart, of Gunthersville, engineer, and Conductor Reitzheimer of the train for Coney Island escaped injury.

Engineer Merwin and Fireman Wilkins were arrested and will be held to await the result of the injuries received by the passengers.

Investigating Erie Affairs.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The Cunard steamship Servia brought Messrs. Powell and Wendell, who have been over in England looking into the affairs of the New York, Lake Erie and Western railroad in behalf of the English shareholders of the company. The latter decline to pay the assessment which has been levied upon the holders of Erie stock until an investigation is made into the affairs of the company by these representatives. It is generally understood that a satisfactory understanding will be reached between the officers of the road and the representatives of the English stockholders, and that the dividend will be paid, will meet the English representatives.

Two Girls Killed.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 15.—Two girls, named Katy McDonald, aged 4, and Mary Flaherty, aged 10, while carrying dinners to school were in the gutter yesterday when they were instantly killed by a falling brick wall on the premises of the Pacific Mill Corporation.

WILSON'S STORY.

An Application for Mercy Commended by the Editor of the Chicago Times.

CHICAGO, July 15.—The News says: "Application has been made for the appointment of a conservator of the affairs of Mr. Wilbur F. Storey, editor and proprietor of The Chicago Times. For a number of years Mr. Storey's health has been failing, and his mental faculties have gradually declined to a condition from which recovery is impossible. There is somebody inexpressibly sad in the contemplation of the pitiful broken condition of this man, who in an inconceivably short time has risen to be one of the leading newspapers of the country, gave Western journalism its first great impulse, quickened the pulse of the eastern press and made its existence necessary. The thousands of newspapering which contemporaneous journals have been hasty to emulate. It is impossible that one so phenomenally brilliant, so versatile, so powerful, so forcible could not have enjoyed to the end of his life the fruits of his industry and talents."

The Times says: "The friends of The Times and Mr. Storey, and those having business relations with it, are entitled to a word of explanation concerning certain legal proceedings which have been taken, and the various statements appearing in the city papers in relation thereto. To all who know Mr. Storey personally it is well known that he has been an invalid, suffering from the effects of a severe accident which occurred a dozen years ago or more. These effects were aggravated by his subsequent illness, from which he was attacked while in Europe in 1877. After the second of these occurrences he gradually relaxed the close attention which he had given to his affairs, and which had established it in the front rank of American journalism, and the assistants he then selected to conduct the paper in accordance with his own spirit at their respective posts. There has been no change in the character or policy of The Times. It is the ambition of all who are employed in its publication to keep as near the high standard established by its proprietor as possible; and the conclusive evidence of the past years of success in this effort is that there has been in a most satisfactory measure fulfilled."

LIABILITIES, $200,000.

A Heavy Failure in Rock Island, Ill. Involving Many Others.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., July 14.—The great manufacturing firm of B. D. Buford & Co. have assigned to J. M. Buford, with liabilities of about $200,000. The firm had been financially embarrassed two or three years, since it was burned out, and the works were rebuilt with a capacity for making plows which formerly had been the specialty. In addition to the burnt times, Buford had invested $60,000 in an irrigating ditch in Colorado or Nevada, and not a dollar of return has been seen. The firm has agencies in all the western states and territories and Manitoba, and their stock on hand will doubtless exceed in value the liabilities. Even a popular and energetic man than B. D. Buford never conducted a manufacturing concern, and much sympathy is expressed for him. Nearly 400 men will be thrown out of work. The banks in Davenport hold $25,000 worth of Buford's paper, which is well secured. W. H. Sheerer, of this iron and steel house of Sheerer, Gray & Co., Pittsburg, has held a trust deed of all Buford's property to cover loans as of $134,162.60.

NEW YORK, July 15.—August Leisse, a cigar box manufacturer, has assigned. Liabilities, $28,000; assets, $25,000.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Ida (Mrs. Frederick) Brenner, dealer in boots and shoes at No. 403 North Third avenue, Mott Haven, and No. 978, North Third avenue, Morrisania, made an assignment to Charles H. Smith, Williamson, giving preferences for $78.

The liabilities of Bliss Brown, comb manufacturer at No. 322 Broadway and at Wappinger's Falls, N. Y., have been made an assignment, are about $100,000.

The schedules of Pearce & Hall, hat manufacturers of 377 Greene street, show liabilities of $170,389; nominal assets, $141,836; actual assets, $81,838.

S. Traub & Co., manufacturers of artificial flowers at 49 Broadway, have become financially embarrassed, and their principal creditors, S. Zelner & Feldstein, have obtained attachments against them for about $16,000.

HELD IN $5,000 BAIL.

Arrest of Bell Mann, charged with Having Forged Vouchers.

CHICAGO, July 15.—A gentlemanly looking prisoner past middle age gave bail amounting to $5,000 yesterday, and United States Commissioner Hoyne has made an order of appearance before the supreme court of the District of Columbia. His name is Bell Mann, and he is one of the principals connected with the investigation in the medical department of the navy which were referred to by ex-Gov. Hendricks in his speech nominating Senator Bayard before the Democratic national convention. Hendricks therein said that fraud aggregating $93,000 had been unearthed in this department during the past year, and from him in this and other branches of the federal service would be the first effort of a Democratic president.

This was on July 9. No arrests had yet been made of employes in the navy department, although two weeks before Secretary Chandler had testified before the senate committee on naval affairs that Surgeon Wales and Clerk Carrigan for cause. But Hendricks' speech caused a stir in Washington, which resulted in the discharge of Carrigan and Bell Mann. The latter is rich and lives in elegant style in Chicago, and anticipated no trouble until the Democratic candidate for president called the attention of the country to his case. Mann is charged with having forged vouchers for freight and supplies alleged to have been furnished the government, amounting to over $30,000.

Burnside's Rendezvous Sued.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The papers in the civil suit against Col. J. O. P. Burnside, late superintendent of the Ford's Theatre property and distributing clerk, have been sent by the solicitor of the treasury to the district attorney's office, and suit will be begun at once for the recovery of $45,000 from his bondsmen. There are two bonds each for $40,000, the first bearing date February 2, 1875, signed by William Wheeler, Wm. A. Wheeler, Samuel Wash B. Williams and John Coghlin as sureties, the second bearing date October 2, 1878, signed by H. M. Hutchinson, M. L. Wilcox and Wm. A. Wheeler. The time for which suit is to be brought at this time does not cover the money in it and to have received from the sale of waste paper and old furniture. There is a doubt whether the bond covers this money.

The Cumming Regatta.

CINCINNATI, Pa., July 15.—The coming regatta here promises to eclipse anything of the kind that has taken place this year. An immense crowd is expected. All the men who have entered have records and the contests are sure to be spirited. Those scullers who have arrived are: Albert Hosmer, New Bedford; Wm. Gaudaur, Toronto; Geo. Lee, Halifax; P. N. Hearn, New Bedford; G. A. Hosmer, Boston; G. W. Lee, Newark; J. Teemer, Philadelphia; H. Dayberger, Boston; J. Gaudaur, St. Louis, and J. Fredericks, Pittsburg. Others are expected.

POLITICAL WHISPERS.

What the Workmen in the Presidential Field are Doing.

Meeting of the Independent Republican Committee—What will Gen. Butler Do?—Tammany Talks.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The Independent Republican committee of New York met yesterday afternoon at their new quarters, No. 39 Nassau street. The number of present was small, and the committee was fully represented. After considerable discussion the committee adopted the following call:

The Independent Republican voters and all Republican voters who disapprove of the nomination of Chester A. Arthur by the Republican Convention of Chicago, and all Democratic voters who think that the interests of good government require the defeat of Grover Cleveland, and all persons in favor of independent action in the presidential election, are requested to meet in their respective assembly districts in the primary caucus. The conference will be held on July 21, 1884, at 8 o'clock p. m., at the Academy of Music, Irving place, corner of Seventeenth street, New York city.

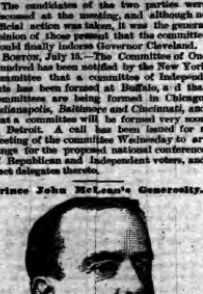
Gentlemen desiring to take part in the conference are respectfully requested to report to the committee of conference at No. 39 Nassau street, New York, as early as possible, in order to facilitate the arrangements for the conference.

Signed: George W. Curtis, chairman; S. W. Gebrge, secretary; Theodore Roosevelt, treasurer; New York: Charles E. Cotheal, president; Darwin R. James, chairman Republican committee, Brooklyn; Hamilton Ward; Simeon E. Baldwin, president; Talcott H. Russell, secretary; Committee of Connecticut; Thomas G. Lemon, Jr.; Lemuel Bannister; Ralph Trowbridge, Jr., Republican Committee, Hudson; Ralph Stone, secretary Independent Republican Committee, Hudson.

The candidates of the two parties were discussed at the meeting, and although no official action was taken, it was the general opinion that Butler will be the only candidate would finally indorse Governor Cleveland.

BOSTON, July 15.—The Committee of One Hundred has been notified by the New York Independent committee of Fifty that delegates will be formed at Buffalo, and that committees are being formed in Chicago, Indianapolis, Baltimore and Cincinnati, and that a committee will be formed very soon in Detroit. A call has been issued for a meeting of the committee Wednesday to arrange for the proposed national conference of Republican and Independent voters, and elect delegates thereto.

Prince John McLean's Generosity.



CINCINNATI, July 13.—John McLean's political fervor and admiration for the ticket nominated at Chicago broke out in a very practical and satisfactory manner; He has subscribed the generous amount of $15,000 to be invested in the counties of Ohio outside of this city. As to Hamilton county, he proposes that The Enquirer shall look after that, and places its majority for Cleveland in October at 5,000.

Gov. Cleveland Photographed.

ALBANY, July 15.—Gov. Cleveland spent another quiet day. In point of national interest it was as quiet as the Sabbath. He was at the executive chamber bright and early, looking over his mail as he does almost as ever. He is one of the most approachable men in the country. On business matters he does not drop a single unnecessary word and yet is courteous and statesmanlike. Away from the affairs of state he is the pink of politeness and manly grace. His nomination has not changed him a jot. People of all degrees drop into the executive chamber with the same freedom as before, and are received with the same characteristic good humor and hearty welcome. Over the mail matter, however, and some ways of national influence.

After scanning the contents of an array of letters, and attending to his visitors, the governor was photographed by Mr. Pruyn's photograph gallery and his picture was taken in two or three attitudes. A local journalist is about to begin a campaign biography which will present Mr. Cleveland's life and political career in attractive form.

Many of the noted Albany phalanx are now absent from the city on their vacations. They claim that Tammany will jump solidly into line, and that the ticket will receive the full vote of a united Democracy. The plaudits that were showered upon the proposition of parading with a brass band on their return from Chicago last Sunday, will serve as food for reflection and debate this evening. The governor is still undecided about going to Buffalo. He may go toward the end of the week.

Closing the Ticket.

BOSTON, July 15.—W. H. Carnill, chairman of the Democratic city committee and delegate to Chicago, was interviewed. He stated that the feeling of the Massachusetts delegation in regard to the nomination is unanimous in the belief that Cleveland will sweep the country.

"He has elements of popularity which none other possess. He has no record. He is the candidate of the young men of the country. He is the candidate of the business men. The outlook in the campaign is going to increase steadily throughout the campaign."

"What do you think of the argument that Cleveland's action on the tariff bill will tend to alienate the workingmen from him?"

"We are going to have the support of all Democratic workingmen in the campaign. We never expected to have the support of Republicans, workingmen or otherwise. Cleveland's action on the matter you speak of will be found to be in accordance with his ideas of the constitutionality of the measure. His record from the first is one that will bear the closest scrutiny."

"But what do you think Gen. Butler will do?"

"That is something nobody can answer but himself—when he gets ready."

What Will Gen. Butler Do?

NEW YORK, July 15.—Ex-Gov. Benjamin F. Butler, of Massachusetts, candidate for president on the Greenback and Anti-Monopoly tickets, was at the Fifth Avenue hotel yesterday. He would not confirm his going to the Democratic convention. He left the hotel at about 5 p. m. to take the train for Jersey City. A number of persons before to left, ex-Senator Kelly of Tammany Hall called and had a short interview with him. Mr. Grady

Patent medicine men are the heads in the operations. As Gen. Butler left the hotel he was met by a reporter and the following conversation occurred:

"The press would like to know what you are going to do in the political campaign, general?"

"The press can't know, for I don't know myself."

"Are you going to vote for Cleveland, general?"

"Yes—no."

"How is that—yes or no?"

"Both."

"Well, if you won't talk, I suppose we cannot make you talk?"

"Not a word." And many of the meeting of the irresistible force and the immovable body. Good-night."

Secretary Teller Denies It.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Secretary Teller, being asked about a report that he had said the Democratic ticket was especially strong, says he has not said or indicated that the nomination of Cleveland and Hendricks was especially strong. He believes the nomination of Bayard, Field or McDonald for president would have been stronger than that of Cleveland, and that McDonald, in his judgment, would have been a stronger candidate than Cleveland, except in Indiana than Hendricks. Mr. Teller said he felt much more confident of the success of the Republican party since the Democratic nomination than before, and that he has no doubt Blaine and Logan will carry both New York and Indiana.

The Democratic Committees.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Star this afternoon says: "It is stated that Mr. Barnum, who was a member of the national democratic committee, will be elected secretary when the committee organizes in New York on the 24th inst. Senator Gorman will be chairman of the congressional committee, is spoken of in connection with the chairmanship of the committee. These two committees have been working in close harmony since the meeting at which the proposed to unite them, and, while preserving the two organizations, make the congressional committee a sub-committee of the national committee.

Republican Campaign Policies.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Mr. Stephen B. Elkins, chairman of the Republican committee, said that he felt confident of the success of Blaine and Logan. An effort will be made to carry some northern states which have been true to intimate which ones, but his opponents learn the committee's plans. In regard to the alleged lukewarmness of the president and cabinet he said: "I have not seen the president, but I have reasons to believe that he and all his cabinet will give the ticket their earnest support. I have a personal assurance from Secretary of the cabinet, which warrants my saying this."

A Lengthy Document.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 15.—Mr. Blaine's letter of acceptance will be before the public the latter part of this week. It is very long. It is said by the Republican leaders here that Tilden's letter of acceptance was worth more for his canvas than all the speeches made, and it is their expectation that the forthcoming document will accomplish the same thing for Blaine that Tilden's did for him. There are some 6,000 or 7,000 words of the letter.

Decapitated by Red Hot Iron.

PITTSBURG, July 15.—A special to The Dispatch from Johnstown says: "Yesterday while Zachariah Taylor, aged 18 years, was putting a rod in a reel at the Cambria iron works, the rod hot rod by some means came over his head and driven eighty around his neck, almost decapitating him and literally roasting his neck and shoulders. Fortunately another workman sprang to his assistance and with his bare hands untwisted the rod. Taylor's injuries will prove fatal. O'Neil was also badly burned."

Glassworkers in Convention.

PITTSBURG, July 15.—The National Convention of American Flint Glassworkers opened here. Eighty delegates were present, representing all parts of the country. President Mr. Fahl read the annual address of welcome, and T. J. Irwin, president of the Glassworkers' Association, responded. The Convention will be in session several days. No action will be given to the public until adjournment.

The Drought in Western Texas.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 15.—Parties in the western part of the state confirm the report that the drought is unbroken. Fully that part of the state are threatened with annihilation by the drought. Sheep men are arriving daily at Eagle pass, seeking ingress within the Mexican states. The streams and the American side of the river are dried up.

Lincoln and Chandler Away.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Secretaries Lincoln and Chandler are absent from Washington, the former for a brief stay in New York and Hingham, Mass., and the latter in Maine and a more extended stay at his home in New Hampshire. During the absence of the two secretaries General Sheridan will act as secretary of war and Admiral Nichols as secretary of the navy.

Fatal Spark from a Cigar.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 15.—Miss Emma Kempf, a pretty young woman, of Kenosha, who was racing in Racine, went buggy riding with Joseph Shirley. A spark from Shirley's cigar set her clothing on fire and she was horribly burned before the flames were extinguished. She lingered in great agony until this noon, when death ended her sufferings.

THE CHOLERA SCOURGE

Alarming Reports from Marseilles and Toulon.

It is Estimated that Over 1,500 Persons Have Fallen Victims to the Disease at Marseilles, Spreading to Russia.

PARIS, July 15.—The reports of the plague from the infected cities of Marseilles and Toulon are truly alarming. The cholera is spreading rapidly, and the extent of the ravages can only be partially ascertained. During the twenty-four hours ending at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon the number of deaths from the malady in Marseilles was seventy-five. Thirty-two deaths occurred during the night, and a majority of the remainder between the hours of noon and 6 p. m. All business is at a standstill in the stricken city. Such persons as were able have left the town, and only the poor, the ill and officials, physicians and nurses remain.

A tour of inspection of the district where the cholera first made its appearance was ordered, and a corps of officers and Dr. Morales went through that neighborhood. They report it depopulated by all except the ill. In one house every person was found dead. It was not previously known that its inmates had been attacked. In another house a man and his wife had succumbed to the disease yesterday. Upon their bed-side child had escaped and was found half starved and unable to get beyond the room where its parents expired. Since the outbreak it is estimated that 1,500 persons, principally, have perished in Marseilles. No further attempt will be made by the authorities to conceal the cholera spread, and the exact number of victims will be reported daily.

The situation at Toulon is distressing. The heat is intense, and the streets are entirely deserted. The steamship Alsace is being launched was sunk by an overweight of refugees who were quitting the city. The deaths reported Sunday were eleven, and up to 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the names of nineteen additional victims had been registered. The Mayor of Toulon has been stricken down, and his demise is hourly expected.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 15.—A plague has broken out in the Government of Pleskoff about 100 miles southwest of this city. Twenty deaths have occurred, mostly in the city of Pleskoff, and the epidemic is increasing in extent and virulence.

BERLIN, July 15.—Dr. Koch has gone to Berne to confer with the Swiss authorities as to the best means of excluding cholera from Switzerland.

To Prevent Its Introduction Here.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Secretary Frelinghuysen has adopted prompt and effective measures to prevent the introduction of cholera into the United States. He has instructed the consular officers at London, Liverpool, Marseilles, Havre, Bordeaux, Rotterdam and Hamburg to at once appoint competent physicians to inspect all vessels and passengers departing for the United States from those ports. The consular officers are referred to are instructed to refuse clean bills of health in all cases except upon the recommendation of the sanitary inspector. The consuls are also instructed to report daily any case of infectious or contagious disease.

Disinfecting New York.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The work of disinfecting the thickly populated tenement districts of the city was begun yesterday. Fifty men were put to work with buckets in different directions and began the work that he relied upon as one of the chief means of keeping the dreaded cholera scourge at a distance.

OLD WORLD NEWS.

Why They Tore Down the German Flag.

PARIS, July 15.—The affray at the Continental hotel, during which the German flag was torn down, had its origin in the insulting behavior of a German who shouted, "Vive La France," and tore down and spat upon the tricolor which was displayed in the angry crowd, he fled, and took refuge in the building of the minister of marine.

A howling mob, largely composed of visiting Alsatians, quickly surrounded the building and demanded the surrender of the fugitive. No attention being paid to their demands, attempts they proceeded to batter down the door, but before they had succeeded in gaining an entrance the offender had escaped in disguise from the rear. The mob then avenged the insult to the French colors by tearing down the German flag, but were speedily dispersed on the arrival of a detachment of police.

LONDON, July 15.—The Standard, remarking upon the scene at the Continental hotel, in Paris, yesterday, holds that Prince Bismarck will be justified in making a demand to the French government, and is entitled to an apology, as ample and public as the offense was gross and conspicuous.

The Franchise Bill.

LONDON, July 15.—The tory leaders are to hold a meeting at the Carlton Club to-morrow to consider the muddle between the government and the house of lords over the Franchise bill. It is generally believed that they will accept the liberal (Gladstonian) menace and accept the alternative of a fight even if it involves a dissolution and an appeal to the country.

Keeping a Sharp Eye on Him.

LONDON, July 15.—The police of Skibbereen, Ireland, are considerably disturbed over the arrival there of a son of O'Donovan Rossa, the York apostle of dynamite. His footsteps are dogged by the police at every hour, but nothing has yet appeared to justify his arrest.

Disastrous Floods in Persia.

TEHERAN, July 15.—Disastrous floods have occurred in the vicinity of Ispahan. The damage to the cotton plantations near Julfa will alone amount to $100,000.

A New German Prince.

BERLIN, July 15.—The wife of Prince William, eldest son of the Crown Prince, has given birth to a son at the Potsdam Palace.

Shot Down and Robbed.

HARRISBURG, July 15.—Richard A. Robertson, of Jackson county, this state, who is here at present on a visit, was induced to take a walk by some alleged friends. While at his lonely point of the friends set upon Robertson, shot him and robbed him of $1,000 and made good their escape. Robertson was found and taken to his home, where his wounds were found to be of a very serious nature. He may recover.

The Supply Exhausted.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The supply of United States one dollar notes having been entirely exhausted on July 1, the treasury department will be unable to supply the public demand for them until the next appropriation for that purpose provided in the sundry civil appropriation bill. The treasurer hopes to be able to meet all demands for this class of notes after that.

LIQUOR DEALER LOWE'S DEATH

Fatally Stricken While Listening to a Temperance Lecture.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 15.—The sudden death of a prominent citizen of Halifax under peculiar circumstances occurred Sunday. On Saturday evening Gen. Richard A. Carey, Sr. P. W. P. of the national division, Sons of Temperance, lectured on temperance in the Park street rink. The audience filled the building. The lecturer delivered a stirring address, pointing out the evils of intemperance and the many causes which lead men and women into the downward path. Before closing he addressed himself particularly to liquor sellers. His language was extremely strong. According to the general, there was no hope for the unfortunate men or women who might be interested in the "devil's business." Such would have to turn from their wickedness at once or be doomed to endless perdition.

Among the audience was William Lowe, a liquor dealer of the city, a prominent Free Mason and esteemed citizen. The speech of Gen. Carey had an effect so great upon Mr. Lowe that immediately upon reaching his home he was taken ill and lived only two hours. He had been trading in Halifax for fifteen years, and although he had always handled liquor in his business he had ever been somewhat averse to the sale of it. His wife was always opposed to his continuing in the liquor business and often urged him to give it up. Conversing with a friend at the close of the meeting, Mr. Lowe seemed greatly agitated, and said he regretted having had anything to do with liquor. His friends think that his excitement on this account caused his death.

HE COULDN'T WORK IT.

A St. Louis Speculator's Little Game Nipped in the Bud.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Circulars inclosing photographs of C. H. Newman, alias Parker, a swindler with long gray whiskers dyed black, who had extensively victimized western storekeepers by pretending to be a large cattle drover, with car loads of live stock on the road, were received by Inspector Byrnes yesterday from the chief of police of St. Louis, where Mr. Newman had been operating. Detectives McCloskey and Goodenough yesterday afternoon saw a man whom they recognized as Newman, alias Parker, from the pictures, go into Messrs. Goodkind & Co.'s dry goods store, at 746 Broadway, and consult half an hour later with a salesman, whom he sent to George V. Clark's hat store, at No. 644 Broadway. When he left the store he was arrested and described himself as Charles Collins, a stock raiser, residing at the Sinclair house.

Mr. Clark said he had arranged to buy $2,000 worth of notes, which he said were for his son who was about to start in business in the west. The salesman who was with him said that the prisoner had bought $4,000 worth of clothing of his firm and was to pay for it with the check. When arrested he was on his way with him to Jaffray & Co.'s to buy dry goods. The salesman for a week past had been taking Parker around town and to the races, expecting to be rewarded for his friendliness by a large order. He was very much disgusted when he learned who his customer was.

Work of a Kentucky Mob.

OWENSBORO, Ky., July 15.—This morning a crowd of masked men approached the jail here determined to hang the negro Diel May who outraged Stella Keller a short time ago. Jailer Lucas, drawing his revolver confronted the mob and refused to give them admittance to the jail. It was not until after he had fallen mortally wounded by a bullet from a gun fired by one of the lynchers that access was gained to the cell of the negro. May was taken to a convenient tree and hanged, after which the crowd quietly dispersed.

Jailer Lucas is dead. It is learned that he fired on the lynchers from the jail balcony while they were hanging May in the court house yard. He killed one of the mob and fatally wounded Dr. Lockhart, a prominent physician. It was in retaliation for this shooting that the crowd fired at and wounded Lucas while he was standing on the balcony.

Charged with Embezzlement.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Postmaster Wm. T. Bailey, of Camden, N. J., was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Bair upon the charge of embezzlement of government funds and the violation of the law in regard to the sale of postage stamps. He was taken before United States Commissioner Morgan and held in $3,000 bail for a hearing to-day. A warrant was also issued for the arrest of John K. Mines, assistant postmaster, on the same charges. He has not yet been captured.

At Louisville—Louisville 6, Allegheny 9.

At Philadelphia.—Philadelphia 2, New York 5.

Three Mexican Tragedies.

MATAMORAS, Mex., July 15.—At Guallahara yesterday the naked body of Felix Ocean was found mutilated. His throat has been cut, and he was hanging from a corner of his house. A man named Aniceto was also found beheaded. At Minchatlan yesterday a patrol of citizens took two outlaws named Isidor Istra and Domingo Jaurez on the plaza and shot them both dead.

A Long Trot.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 15.—William Flanagan's trotter, Sour Mash, in an attempt to trot twenty miles in eighty minutes on a wager at Hampden park, made the distance in seventy-seven minutes, thirty-five seconds. The agent for the "long-named" society was present, but made no attempt to stop the trial, as no horse was not urged in the least. A large amount of money changed hands on the result.

Not Exempt from Taxation.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 15.—Attorney-General O'Brien, on application of John B. Meeker, of Mechanicville, has given an opinion reiterating the opinion of Judge Russell, late attorney-general, that church parsonages built on church grounds and used as dwellings are not exempt from taxation, although the ground on which they were built was exempt.

Flagman Sullivan in Error.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The coroner's jury, after an all-day hearing into the cause of the collision on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad within the city limits Saturday, in which two were killed and a number wounded, returned a verdict holding the flagman, John Sullivan, guilty of culpable negligence. Sullivan was arrested.

A Cloud Burst.

LEWISTON, Me., July 15.—A cloud burst occurred at Canton during a severe thunder storm on Sunday night. From ten to eighteen inches of rain fell. Streams rose eighteen feet, and inflicted damage was done to crops.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE

Traits of Character on Both Sides of the Straits of Dover.

English Military Animals and the Mountebank French Warrior—A People Who Shudder at Water. Making Much Out of Life.

[Special Correspondence.]

PARIS, May 24.—But twenty odd miles of water separate the shores of France and England between Dover and Calais, yet how great is the difference between these two races, and how seldom have remained these distinctive traits of character, custom and temperament for centuries.

At Dover taking passage in a channel steamer for Calais, you leave beef, gin and tea, the national beverages, solid beef and mutton, the national dishes, red coats, the national military attire, gruffness and reserve amounting at times to churlishness, the national manner, and rude and rough games, the national recreations. You leave a land bristling with costumes, monuments and statues to Wellington and Nelson—a people economical in the onward form of politeness to women; a people whose husbands of the lower and larger class are prolific in giving black eyes to their wives when the alcoholic fury rages within them; a people outwardly reserved, but whose hearts once opened know perhaps better the meaning and use of hospitality than any other on earth; a race which takes to the water as naturally as frogs; a boastful, warm-hearted, struggling, generous, domineering race, eager to grasp, eager to contend, eager to conquer, eager to reduce others to subjection, yet self-assertive of individual rights, jealous of encroachment on individual or national privileges, servile to none in contempt, yet if bowing ready enough to knock crowns, and heads too, off royal shoulders.

In 1871, "George, the Crown Ranger" (George is or was the duke or somebody or something) forbade the people of London from holding public meetings on Sunday in Hyde Park, save at a certain specified spot marked by a new post and on the post a notice.

The people of London, or a small part of them, were at that time holding a series of meetings of a communistic or red republican order, and had held one or two such meetings on Sunday in Hyde Park.

On the Sunday succeeding "George's" notice, a handful of these English communists hearing the red flag of the commune at their head, marched to the music of drums and fifes through Oxford street to the Park and held their meeting as far as they could from the point specified. More, they kicked over "George's" post and bespattered with mud his notice. Then they feared that they owned the Park, or at least paid for keeping it in order and that theirs was the right to hold meetings on the grounds when they pleased.

Did "George the Crown Ranger" call out the troops to put upon "mob?" The "Horse Guards," the finest body of men in England, were there in their barracks, less than a mile from the row. No! "George" did nothing. The people took their revenge and disgust "out" on the offending post, held their meeting as near as they could to the spot, and went home and that was the last of it.

In New York such an occurrence would possibly have cost a score of lives. Possibly so in Paris or any other European capital. It illustrated in two characteristic lines the native independence of character when it is once roused; the other, the forbearance of English authority and their hesitancy to shed blood.

Cross that narrow channel, the straits of Dover, and in those hours what a difference! Wine or coffee in place of heavy beer or tea —jauntily dressed maid servants with trim shoes, trim hose and neat ankles, instead of the English slop-soled shoe, ill gartered stocking and ill regulated skirts, bared bosoms and bare arms, glistening luxuriant hair, the more healthful and vigorous in growth from its exposure to the air and sun in place of the common, awkward English bonnet—a manner deferential, full of easy grace, apparently inspired by the most evident desire to serve you—your meat reduced in soup rather than solid, your bread in light rolls, your coffee a delight, your tea an unknown beverage save as medicine, and it made at your order so weak that you will never, never call for a Gallic-made cup of tea again, your dining table near the window or in the open air instead of the dim recesses of the English hotel or coffee-house. The sky is brighter, there is less of fog and smoke, and there seems in the air a certain playfulness and "take life lightly" fashion instead of the English slowness, steadiness, gravity, solemnity and dullness. The everlasting soldier is here also, but his pantaloons are wider at the hips, his mustache is straight, stiff and warlike, and he is not mean, scarce or clean as those splendid English military animals in tight red jackets and foraging caps tipped all on one side, that you see flirting with the London bar-maids or consoling the younger nurses of Hyde or Regents parks. There is more of talk, more of chatter, more of gesticulation than in England, and possibly less said, when it is all said—but no matter; they are enjoying themselves. Your beef-room and parlor have no carpets; the floor is waxed; it is slippery; it looks cold; it feels damp, and there may be more furtive dust and dirt in the corners. You miss the comfortable English grate glowing with its "soft coal" fire; you miss fire altogether; you find eventually you are in a land substantially without fuel—where wood is sold by the pound, and where the coal consumed daily by an American "self feeder" would last the ordinary French family a week. You find among the lower classes no sanitary precautions, save a custom that has yet to come; that water is abundant at and regarded as an unmixed evil whether applied inside or out; that as regards cooking and food there is a condiment effort to develop something nutritious out of nothing by making it palatable; that sage, savory, thyme, pepper and spice are called up in strong force to disguise gristle, skin, fat, if not entrail, in the various combinations put before you. That fresh air is regarded as a luxury in a crowded car or omnibus; that for you to let down a window, is to let out a row or a protest from the other passengers. That warmth from any source is regarded as precious, no matter how badly it smells; that clothes, no matter how badly fitted and how rotten stuffed are worn; property that cannot steal, fly bolts and badly made as physique are in the majority. Hail the Spanish type of beauty in the south of France, and you have it all.

You feel that these people know how to make a great deal out of life and get a great deal out of living, that they are fortunately amused with what you may term trivialities; that a gilded tinsel jacket at a ratio affords as much pleasure to a peasant there as would the gain of a hundred thousand to a Gould or Vanderbilt; that at the grand fetes or fairs yearly held ten thousand grown Frenchmen will buy ten thousand paper striped horns, at a cent each, and not delightedly through them all the night long, and that at some of these fetes on a Sunday, one hundred and fifty thousand people will congregate without a single disturbance from a single drunken lout. You will see also the genius of this country manifest in its many gardens, its museums and galleries. Martial in its spirit as France has always been, you do not see, as in England, that it memorializes chiefly in bronze or stone its men who have lived by the sword. You see everywhere about that reverence and respect paid to art and science in the statues and monuments of poets, philosophers, scholars, scientists, dramatists and actors. In the "courtyard of the Louvre palace at Paris over one hundred statues in stone are ranged above you, dedicated to men distinguished in art and science, many of whose names you never heard before. You find here the real public schools in the various historical museums, in the picture galleries, at the palaces of former kings, in the perpetual exhibitions of a mechanical or scientific character, and all free, all open to the humblest.

You find, also, an order in the public service, and a regard paid for the public comfort in the streets, planted some with double rows of trees, in benches under them at short intervals for the workman's rest; in the frequent and grassy squares, where playing fountains purify and cool the air, and in great parks and forests free for the people to wander in at will, and not kept mainly for show or for the pleasure of the rich, as in other and so-called finer countries.

You will find, also, a slow, stupid, unnecessary blundering system of routine in many things, which will exasperate your time-saving, over-hurried American soul. The French street car will only stop for you at certain stations; you cannot ride in it on a stand-up seat. When the placard reads is hung out no more may enter, though there be plenty of room to stand. The waits are interminably long when they change horses. The harness to be taken off and put on is of the fashion of the last century, and the leisurely carried on gossip between the driver and the antediluvian hostler refers generally to the battle of Waterloo. There are long stops every trip at the barriers, or city gates, where the octroi official looks into your satchel for contraband eggs, butter or milk; and the important dilatoriness and long drawn out importance of the official at the French post office fills you with the loathing, smelling American sweet with a fit of rabies.

PRENTICE MULFORD.

Thieves of the Sea.

[Pall Mall Gazette.]

"Stolen, the lens from the beacon off Hatteras!" exclaimed an official of the lighthouse board last evening. "Please! that is not quite the way to put it. The lens will be lighted home if they could lug it off. We had a case of a similar sort in our home about four years ago. The whole disappeared from the lamp at the Sandy Hook lighthouse, and I was sent down to replace it with a new one. I took with me a kit of tools to drill out the thread in case it had been broken off. I hired a rowboat on the bay, and found it was taken off above. To my surprise the thread was intact. The whistle had been unscrewed and had dropped overboard in six or eight fathoms of water. A government detective was sent down and spent for weeks among the fishermen along the beach, but he did not find out any clue to the perpetrators, and the reward of $400 that was offered for the recovery of the whistle and information leading to the conviction of the thieves was never claimed by any of the co-operative. This lens, which throws the light of the beacon for a distance around, was removed just previous to the last storm, and has now doubtless done its long duty that the beach would be strewn with wrecks. This beacon, you must know, is only a quarter of a mile from the most dangerous portion of Cape Hatteras point, and is used by coasting vessels as a guide through the dire channel—a dangerous bit of navigation, by the way. But the scamps who do this fiendish work are too cunning to be easily caught."

A Pastor's Pointed Annotation.

The London Christian World prints the following guide to the service, lately handed to an English minister in whose pulpit he was to preach. The order was partly printed and partly written—the written part being the annotations of the pastor of the church, who had suffered from the non-written order of service observed by the choir and the congregation:

I—ORDER—EVENING SERVICE.

I.—Reading by the choir.

II—Scriptures read reverently by the clergyman.

III—Hymn. (Congregational).

IV—Prayer. (Minister all alone and congregation asleep with week-gathering.)

V—Gloria. (Further ballooning by the choir all alone among cherubery windows, roof, etc.)

VI—Sermon.

VII—Hymn. (Congregational.)

VIII—Benediction.

IX—Recollection. (Visitors and people walk organ-loft, practicing and tuning bandsprings like a drunken Bacchanal.

X—Silence and darkness, and the restored presence of God!

The Greatest "Whispering Gallery."

[Chicago Times.]

The greatest "whispering gallery" in the world is that of the Grand Canyon, Colorado. Its wonders and its charms have been a source of surprise to prospectors and miners on account of its wonderful transmission of sound, and it has rarely been done since advent of the railroad that any definite knowledge has been obtained of the great distances it travels within its walls. A train of cars crossing the bridge at the Needles can be plainly heard as a guest day at Cottonwood Island, a distance of eighty-four miles. The fife and drum at Fort Mojave is distinctly heard at Bull's Head, a distance of eighty-five miles. In regard of the sunrise gun at Fort Mojave can be heard at Eldorado canyon, a distance of ninety-six miles.

Locals.

—The County Court was in session to-day.

—County Board of Assessors on Monday next.

—Ginger ale is now kept on draught at the druggists.

—Judge VanSyckel will be at court on Tuesday next.

—The streets will soon feel the benefit of crushed stone.

—Elizabeth rejoices over five cent fare on the horse cars.

—No signs of the paymaster on the P. & R. railroad yet.

—The Park House is as popular as ever with its numerous patrons.

—Plainfield's attractions at this season of the year attract many visitors.

—The New Brunswick bicycle club numbers over twenty members.

—Asbury Park pound ladies wheel their pet canaries in baby carriages.

—The cemeteries of the city are being kept in better condition than formerly.

—The number of bicycles to be seen daily on the streets is rapidly increasing.

—The Jewell Bros. will give an exhibition of legerdemain at the Hotel Netherwood this evening.

—The Post of the Grand Army of the Republic at Elizabeth will have a demonstration to-night.

—Prof. Nothhammer, the pianist, appeared last evening for the first time this season at the Hotel Netherwood.

—The Young Men's Christian Association reading room and parlors are open day and evening. All are welcome.

—Feltville is, we understand, open to picnic parties if application is made in advance for the use of the grounds.

—That "new Market to-mutable" referred to in THE NEWS yesterday, is warned against repeating his blundering assertion.

—It is rumored that the temperance men will send Mayor Mazson as a delegate to the National Prohibition Convention to be held at Pittsburg.

—Mr. W. C. Clem, the talented young Plainfield artist, is engaged on a life-sized crayon intended for the Job Male Library and Art Studio.

—The Plainfield Turn Verein drum corps serenaded Messrs. Fred Casper and Adam Fritz last evening. They are now ready to be hired by campaign clubs.

—Mrs. Lizzie Malbim while under the influence of liquor threw a pail of water over one of her neighbors. Judge Good gave her thirty days for the same.

—Yesterday a large frame barn on the estate of the late Stephen Magie, 147 West Jersey street, Elizabeth, was burned. Loss about $800; insurance $300.

—A report from Crescent avenue has travelled about among the people of Plainfield that a former resident, Mr. B. McKeage, now residing in Brooklyn, N. Y. had recently became the happy father of twins—the report is pronounced untrue.

—The Plainfield Reform Club has decided to go to work right at headquarters, and has opened up against vice and rum in Jersey City. They will need Lulu Hurst to help them, and will be liable to be knocked out on the second round even then.—Trenton Times.

—The statement of the financial condition of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company, which is now being prepared by the receivers, will be ready for the public in about ten days. In several car shops of the Reading railroad work is rapidly accumulating. Most of the men who were on half time have been restored.

—The latest reported in the band organ line is the addition to the regular performance of the well-known tunes of a monkey who plays "Home, Sweet Home" on a fiddle. It is said that the tune so affects the monkey himself that tears stand in his eyes, and visions of luxurious and spacious cocoanut groves flit through his mind. The monkey and the fiddle have not visited Plainfield as yet.

—Mr. James Havell, of East Front street, was presented yesterday afternoon with a fine boy. Mother and child are doing well. Mr. Havell is an expert performer on the pianissimo, and has given many evidences of his talent at entertainments to the great enjoyment of the Plainfield public. The infant promises to be a chip of the old block, as he is provided with six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot.

—Several members of the New Brunswick Reform Club have expressed their intention of severing from that body, on account of the inactivity now existing. A meeting will be held to-morrow evening, at which time the subject of effecting a permanent organization—distinct from the Ark of Safety—in order to hold those who have determined to secede will be determined. The Club is now virtually without a head and it is probable the question of appointing a President will also come up.

Addition to the County Clerk's Office.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Freeholders it was resolved to build an extension to the fire-proof record room in the rear of the County Clerk's office. The present room is far too small for the purpose, all the stores being filled with record books. Plans and specifications will be ready shortly and sealed proposals will be solicited by the board from builders.

The Park House Germans.

The Germans given at the Park House last evening was one of the most noted social events of the season. The hotel and grounds were beautifully lighted up with Chinese lanterns, and the parlors were made gay with evergreens and flags, draped in graceful festoons. The piazzas were crowded the entire evening by lookers-on, who seemed to enjoy themselves as much as those dancing. The music was furnished by Dadworth, and the supper by Dixon.

The affair was gotten up by a number of young gentlemen, chief among whom were Mr. Curtiss and Mr. Timpson, aided by the Park House management. Thirteen couples participated. Mr. George W. Curtiss led with Miss Daisy Thorne. The other couples were: Mr. Opdyke and Miss Hagan, Mr. Murray, and Miss Kellum, Mr. Kleinecke, and Miss Depew, Mr. Kirchhoff and Miss Quion, Mr. Depew and Miss Drayton, Mr. King and Miss Ross, Mr. Watson and Miss Hagan, Mr. Glover and Miss Peterson, Mr. Timpson and Miss Waring, Mr. Eidelston and Miss M. Pennton, Mr. Kirk and Miss Drake, Mr. Kellum and Miss VanDoren.

Concerning the Proposed Public Baths.

To the Editor of THE NEWS:

The public bath idea, which has been advocated by you so forcibly in THE NEWS, is one which commands the sympathy of all young men in the city. For a number of years it has been open talk among the young men of the benefits which would accrue from the establishment of public baths, and the wish has been frequently expressed that some one would take the initiative in agitating the matter. Now that the first step has been taken, it ought not be long before the desired end should be reached. If some one of means will but start the subscription, it will not be long before the less wealthier portion of our citizens will come forward with their contributions. ONE INTERESTED.

A Successful Operation.

Dr. E. A. Parsons, a veterinary dentist of New York, performed a difficult operation this afternoon in the removal of an ulcerated tooth from the jaw of a horse belonging to Mr. P. M. Prescott.

The tooth has troubled the horse for some time, causing a copious discharge from the nostrils, and it was feared that he had the disease known as the glanders. Mr. French feels very grateful that the true cause of the trouble has been discovered, and removed through the instrumentality of Dr. Parsons.

Dr. Parsons has operated on Mont S., the horses of the Lorillards, the Dwyer Brothers and those of other well-known stables, and is accounted the leading veterinary dentist of the country.

The Public Library.

The public library, which is at present located on the corner of Front street and Park avenue, and is under the charge of Mr. J. Oakley Nodyne, is open afternoon and evening. Constant additions are being made to the supply of reference books which the library possesses. The reading room is supplied with all the New York dailies, the weekly editions of the most noted dailies of the larger cities of the United States, most of the American magazines, the English and American reviews, the weekly illustrated papers and other interesting reading matter. The library and reading room is gradually increasing in favor among both ladies and gentlemen.

Temperance at Millstone.

The inhabitants of Millstone have been under the impression that all who could be gotten to sign the pledge in that village had done so. But last evening a delegation from the city composed of John H. Sayre, John H. Manning and Henry Southard, convinced them to the contrary. They addressed a large mass meeting there, and by their eloquence and individual effort secured forty-nine signers including one very hard drinker.

The Millstoners were so pleased with Mr. Sayre's speech that they requested him to deliver a lecture to them some evening soon—the liver, presumably, to be the subject.

Camp Meeting.

A grand union camp meeting is to be held by Macedonia African Methodist Protestant Church, of this city, in Hyde's Woods, a place about a mile out near the mountains, commencing Thursday, July 24, and continuing until August 31. Many ministers and missionary workers are to be present and take part. It is the aim of this congregation to obtain money enough to build a church edifice during the coming year. The committee in charge of the present undertaking consists of Prime Voorhees, Thomas Johnson, Sylvester Cuff, Spencer Conover and John Potter, and the pastor is the Rev. Moses Chippey.

Smash Up.

This morning as a buggy belonging to Mr. Clark, of Seventh street, was passing the Netherwood Hotel stage on Park avenue between Front and Second streets, a piece of paper blowing about the road caused the horse to shy suddenly, running the buggy into the stage. Many hands quickly caught and held the horse from running away. A shaft of the buggy was broken by the collision, but the stage still remains whole. Mr. Clark's coachman was driving at the time the accident occurred.

The State Dental Society.

The fourteenth annual session of the State Dental Society convened to-day at the Coleman house, Asbury Park, to-day and will continue in session several days. The annual address was to be delivered by the President, Dr. Dunting of Newark, and among the interesting papers to be read before the meeting will be one on the "Use of the Patient Sapiator" by Drs. S. C. and O. Carlton Brown of Elizabeth.

State Matters.

Assemblyman Martin, of Middlesex, declines a reconsination.

William Hampton, employed as a laborer at Dalogue's shipyard, at Kaigan's Point, dropped dead Monday while at work. He was sixty years old.

Edward Gunn, said to be a Philadelphian, was fatally injured Monday on the outskirts of Camden by a train on the Amboy division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

A boy named Corrigan, while playing with a pistol Sunday near the Landing Bridge, New Brunswick, shot himself in the palm of the hand, tearing the flesh away from it.

The tax rate for 1884 as fixed by the assessors of Paterson yesterday is $2.50 per $ 00, the highest rate in the city's history. In 1883 it was $2.28, and in 1882 $2.20. The valuation of taxable property in the city is $222,400,000.

Captain Otto Mott, of the Salvation Army, was fined $5 at Paterson Monday, on a charge of being disorderly in having through the streets shouting and singing on Sunday last. He refused to pay the fine and he was sent to jail.

Placards were posted on the grounds of the Atlantic Highlands Association on Sunday, to the effect that pleasure riding, boating, bathing and all sports and amusements and employments would hereafter be prohibited at Atlantic Highlands on Sunday.

Mayor Barnett, of Paterson, has offered, individually, a reward of $250 for the arrest of the missing ex-city clerk, Will Hogan. Mr. Barnett was in doubt whether the city charter authorized him to offer a reward as Mayor, and he concluded to do it on his own account.

Adolph Ritzer, a butcher, living at Jefferson and Pitts avenue, Hoboken, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital Monday. He was stung by a hornet a few days ago, and his hand began to swell until it was four times its ordinary size. The surgeons cut out the poisoned part, but the patient is still in a critical condition.

Mrs. Ann P. Carey has sued the city of Paterson for $5,000 for injury done her property in the Garret Mountain riot on May 3, 1881. After William Dalzell had shot and killed Hugh Carey, Mrs. Carey's house was pursued by a mob who intended to hang him as he was taken into Mrs. Carey's house, the officers and Mrs. Carey barricaded and the city would pay for the damage done. The mob broke every window in the house, set fire to it and destroyed the crops and grapevines.

Application has been made to Judge Parker, of the Supreme Court, for writs of certiorari against the liquor sellers of Atlantic City, on the ground that the licenses are illegally obtained. The basis of the application is that the accused men being unable to get twelve freeholders each, to sign their applications for license as required by law, purchased a small piece of land and dividing it into smaller parcels deeded it to several hundred non-residents, who signed the applications for license.

The Rev. Father O'Connor, of East Newark, who is President of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, has opened a war on the violators of the Sunday liquor law. He sent notices to the liquor dealers that they must close their doors or abide the consequences. Last Sunday detachments from the Temperance Union made a tour of the saloons. More than half of them were found open. The names of the offenders were taken, and will be sent to prosecutor Winfield for presentment to the Grand Jury.

The People's Brewing Company, of Newark, of which the defaulting city clerk of Paterson was secretary, has been compelled to suspend, owing to the theft of $16,000 from the company by the secretary. Shortly before Hogan left Paterson he managed to give a chattel mortgage to Henry Lewenberg, of Jersey City, for $40,000 on all the property belonging to the company. Hogan's defalcation has prevented the payment of this mortgage, and on Thursday the mortgagee was foreclosed. The company has not made any assignment.

There was a terrific flash of lightning in Paterson at midnight on Saturday. Yesterday it was discovered that this bolt struck the fire alarm station in the First Baptist church steeple, and threw it to the ground. It also struck the pole in front of the Western Union office in Washington street. Bolts of fire rolled along on the house-top from one end of the street to the other, and the play of lightning on the wires was startling. Police Chief Stevens says he made inquiries, and found that the storm was general in the northern part of the State, and that no serious damage was done. An electrician has been employed to put the fire alarm station in condition. It was discovered that the flash entered at the top of the steeple and passed downward on the outside of the building.

NATURALIZATION.

Relative to the eligibility of an alien citizen's son, born out of the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, to the presidency, remains as that there is but a limited knowledge of the naturalization laws among the masses most interested, and that a little light on the subject, just on the eve of a presidential contest, would be read with interest. There are so many seeming contradictions between the laws of the United States and the states that many are often confounded and mystified by apparent inconsistencies. Probably many think it paradoxical that a man may be a citizen of the United States and not a voter under the laws of certain states, but such is the fact. Then, too, according to our laws and customs, it often happens that men who have only been in the United States six or eight months are voters in the states and possess every state right, though unnaturalized aliens according to the constitution of the United States. The reserved rights of the states account for this state of facts. The United States makes the citizen, but the state alone has the power to make the elector. Though recent amendments to the constitution seem to convey the idea that no man can be proscribed on account of his race, color or previous condition, the right for each state to fix within its power of a law to throw such restrictions around a voter as to practically render the constitution a dead letter in regard to the dearest prerogative of a citizen—the ballot. It is, we believe, within the power of the Legislature of New Jersey to require one year's, two years' or three years' residence, as it may select, to qualify a citizen of the United States to vote. In fact, it can lengthen the time to twenty years and not violate any provision of the constitution of the United States. In the days of rampant Know-nothingism it was publicly advocated that citizenship of foreigners should vote in Massachusetts until he had resided in the state twenty-one years, thus virtually making a mockery of the admission of an alien to the rights of a citizen of the United States, because depriving the foreign-born citizen to the highest privilege pertaining to his citizenship. Of course, at this stage of our existence as a republic, no state would have the temerity to exercise its sovereignty in the cruel mode we allude to, but we merely make the point to show what are the powers of a state, under the constitution. The subject of naturalization, as we observe at the outset, is so imperfectly understood that we present the following facts, collected from the naturalization laws of the United States, for the benefit of those who have not examined naturalization from a legal standpoint:

1. In order to become a citizen the applicant must, on oath, two years before his admission, give notice of his intention and renounce all other allegiances forever.

2. He must swear to support the constitution of the United States.

3. He must reside in the United States five years, and in the state or territory where he applies at least one year.

4. He must renounce any title he held under any other government.

5. Any alien, of legal age, who has served in the armies of the United States, regular or volunteer, or may serve, can become a citizen by giving that he has resided in the country one year before he applies.

6. No alien can become a citizen who has not continuously for five years before his admission been a resident of the United States.

7. Any alien, under 21 years, who has been here three years before he reached legal age, may, after he is of, and after he has been five years here, become a citizen without making a declaration of his intentions.

8. If any alien dies after making his declaration, his widow and children are considered citizens.

9. No alien coming from a country which is at war with the United States can, during the continuance of that war, become a citizen.

10. All children of persons who are or have been citizens shall, though born out of the United States, be esteemed citizens.

11. Any seaman (foreigner) declaring his intentions in court, after having served three years in the merchant service, and producing his certificate of discharge, may become a citizen; for all purposes of protection such seaman is deemed a citizen after filing his declaration of intention to become one.

THE CAMPAIGN BEGUN.

A Blaine and Logan Ratification Meeting in New York City.

Congratulations to Gov. Cleveland. The National Committee—Mr. Blaine Not to Take the Stump. You Take Your Choice.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The first Blaine and Logan ratification meeting was held last evening in the Grand Opera house. Long before the hour appointed for the meeting to open the building, from orchestra to gallery, was filled to its utmost capacity, and hundreds filled the corridors. The natural cheer was so large that an overflow meeting was held outside the building, which was addressed by prominent local Republicans. The stage and the boxes, parquet and parquette were arated for the occasion. A large portrait of Mr. Blaine hung on the right of the house, and another of Mr. Logan on the left. Nearly 800 persons, including many ladies, occupied seats on the stage. Among the prominent persons present were ex-Gov. Cornell, President Van Pelt, of the Board of Aldermen, Robertson. A prominent feature of the meeting was the entrance of 100 men attired as plumed knights. Mr. Charles A. Peabody presided, and after the reading of a list of vice-presidents and secretaries, Gen. Mc-Cook read a long series of resolutions, of which the following is an abstract:

"That the Republican party stands for their continued support we refer them to what the party has done during the twenty-four years it has been responsible for the conduct of national affairs, and the first result of what it will do in the future. Its first president, Abraham Lincoln, in the proclamation of emancipation, and the Republican party is pledged to maintain the civil and political rights of the freemen. It restored the seceding states to their former relations and placed the supremacy of the constitution the enemies of the union it has been as magnanimous in peace as it was unyielding in war.

"In devotion to principles and in prompt response to the demands of the country, the Republican of to-day is the same as the party of other years.

The resolutions, after referring to the military and civil record of John A. Logan, closed as follows:

"That the Republican party comes before the public in its seventh presidential campaign with credentials of approved courage, great experience, tried faithfulness, high ability; and it stands now, as in the past, for just laws, pure administration, a fair ballot, a full wage, profitable industries, peaceful prosperity and the supremacy of the laws of the traditions and position of the Great Republic."

After a glee club had sung several songs the chairman introduced the Hon. Thomas M. Evarts, who was received with great applause. After briefly alluding to the results of the Chicago convention, which was promptly held in Chicago, he compared the mode of electing the prime ministers of England and France to the system adopted of electing the chief executive and vice-president of the United States. He said we had been up head among the nations of the world, had extended our territories, raised up wealth and governed our affairs by the popular will. "Now," said Mr. Evarts, "comes the all-important question, Which party will you select to govern the country? Are you to be the plaintiff or defendant? For the first time in the history of our country we have a new school of politicians who, not satisfied with attacking Cleveland or governor, want to elect him to the presidency of the United States. This new school has want to elect politicians in power, but they don't want Mr. Blaine to be president. They don't want the Democratic party to abolish control of the government, but they do want to govern the country in a new way for

GARROTED IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

A Man Robbed by Three Thieves in New York City.

NEW YORK, July 16.—In broad daylight, and in the heart of the city, a daring highway robbery was committed on Second avenue. Frederick Kaufman is a German, and lives at No. 14 First street. Shortly before 4 o'clock he left his house, and turned into Second avenue. Just as he was nearing Second street, a tough-looking customer came up and asked him the time of day. He made an evasive reply, when he was seized from behind by the man's two confederates, one of whom placed his hands around Kaufman's throat to prevent an outcry. The other held his arms, while the man who first accosted him rifled his pockets, taking $17—all he had on his person. Although there were a number of persons within hailing distance at the time, the daring act attracted no attention, so rapidly was it performed. After giving the victim a parting blow, the robbers ran away. In a bewildered condition Kaufman staggered to the Seventeenth Precinct Station-house and told his story, giving a description of the men. Detective Bisset was detailed. About seven hours after the robbery a young fellow, answering the description given by Kaufman, was arrested on Third avenue. He was taken to the station-house, where Kaufman identified him as one of the men. The prisoner said his name was Eugene Rogers, aged nineteen years, of No. 564 East Eleventh street. He pleaded not guilty, and was held to await the action of the grand jury.

NO ABATEMENT OF THE PLAGUE

The Cholera Slowly Spreading in the Infested Cities of France.

PARIS, July 16.—The heat at Marseilles and Toulon was tempered by a north-easterly breeze, but there was no abatement of the cholera. At Marseilles during the past twenty-four hours the number of deaths slightly exceeded Monday's list of 73. It reached something like 76 or 78, there being two cases wherein the physicians are at variance as to the cause of death. The disease is spreading to the adjacent villages. All southern points are quarantined against Marseilles.

Forty-one deaths from cholera is the report from Toulon to The News. The city is panic-stricken, and the surrounding country is equally alarmed. Scores of small tradesmen have shut up their shops and fled to the northern provinces. The city has been damaged to the extent of millions by the plague, and were it to abate at this period years would be required to repair the damage suffered by trade.

A Farmer's Brutal Assault on Boys.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—Joseph Propert, a farmer on Richmond street on the outskirts of the city, discovered three boys, named Frank, James and Charlie Bressy, crossing his farm in pursuit of a black snake. He caught up a club and gave chase to the boys, and on coming up with them struck James a down blows over the head and face, felling him to the ground. He then turned on Frank and beat him severely. While still engaged beating the boys the gun carried by James was discharged, and Propert fell to the ground. The boys were taken to the station and the farmer to his home. The farmer's injuries are serious, as are also those of the boy James.

Yellow Fever at Guaymas.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 16.—The yellow fever is quite bad at Guaymas, and several cases have appeared at Mazatlan. People are fleeing from the latter place, and the authorities of Hermosillo have put a quarantine on the Sonora railroad line. They examine every train and the cars are obliged to be fumigated before they are allowed to pass. The fever also appears to be confined to the Pacific coast, and none has as yet appeared at any of the Gulf ports.

To Make It a Test Case.

BALTIMORE, July 16.—Capt. W. B. Chew, one of the oldest passenger conductors on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was arrested here, charged with "knocking down" fares. Heretofore when a conductor was found peculating he was merely discharged, but the company intend to make this a test case, in order to determine if a conductor pocketing fares cannot be convicted of embezzlement. This is the first arrest that has ever been made in this state for this offense.

Preferred Death to a Prison.

CINCINNATI, July 16.—The mayor of Glendale sentenced Dennis Donovan to twenty days in the workhouse for disorderly conduct, and Marshal Maher, of that place, started for this city with him on the noon train on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad. As the train approached Chester Park Donovan was allowed to go to the closet, when he threw himself head foremost from the window and was instantly killed.

Two Murderers Sentenced to Hang.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 16.—Charles Spurlock, a member of the Hill boys' gang of desperadoes, has been sentenced to be hanged October 17. At the trial of Spurlock he confessed the crime, but when sentenced said his confession was made in fear of the mob. William Coleman, alias John Coleman, colored, was also sentenced to be hung on the same day.

Due to the Kentucky Lynching.

LOUISVILLE, July 16.—Great excitement prevails in Owensboro over the lynching of Richard May and the murder of Julius Lewis. The negroes are openly making threats against the county judge, who ordered the guard removed from the jail. Trouble is feared, and armed special police patrol the streets. The mayor will ask Gov. Knott to order out the militia.

An Apology Sent.

PARIS, July 16.—M. Jules Ferry, the French premier, has sent an apology to Prince Holenlohe, the German ambassador, for the insult offered the German flag by the Alsatians, who were enraged at the action of a German in tearing down and spitting upon the tri-colors of France during the celebration of the national fete.

Blaine First at Rio Cote.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 16.—The four pigeons entered in the presidential pigeon race from Pittsburg, reached their coops only a few seconds apart, at 11:25 o'clock yesterday forenoon. Blaine, the smallest bird, was the first to arrive. It is impossible to identify the bird finishing second, as all lost their ribbons in their flight.

A Blaze in Paterson.

PATERSON, N. J., July 16.—Fire broke out yesterday morning in the building No. 80 Main street, occupied as a dry goods store and dwelling, and in a short time the flames spread to the buildings on either side, Nos. 221 and 223. Loss, $80,000. Insurance, $60,000.

Millions Are Involved.

PARIS, July 16.—Prime Minister Ferry and Li-Fong-Pao, the Chinese minister, are discussing the question as to who fired the first shot in the engagement between the French and Chinese at Long-Son. The payment of the indemnity demanded by France depends upon the settlement of this question.

DISCOURTESY.

She had slipt the tent of her gathered curse,
For an hour amid a day of toil;
And the hunger of heart for perfect rest
For once unheard its heavy coils.

And rested itself in heavenly silence
Of living apart from labor's throb;
Of living and having where work comes not,
And tranquil peace on the soul might fall.

And she slept at the hour of highest noon
When earth was sweet in the balmy hush
Of its languid warmth and the fragrant scent
Which comes in a wave from a blossom crush.

And such idleness seemed a perfect boon,
The life of which she had never known.
And she thought that a future filled with rest
Was all the treasure she cared to own.

But the years sailed by on the stream of Time.
Her barge had entered a broader sea,
And labor and care and toiling unrest
Slipt down from her shoulders noiselessly.

No work with its soiled hands visits her life,
For ease, luxurious, comes with wealth,
She has leisure to rest and time to sleep,
But she sighs for work and youth and health.

MEDORA CLARK.

MADISON, Wis., July 8.

AN APPLE IN THE GRASS.

A Reminiscence of Rascite Boyhood.

One's thoughts often travel back along the pleasant past to those old days when great luscious blackberries hung ripe and tempting, from the brambles that luxuriated in all the corners of the crooked rail fences, except those that were defended to the old fashioned peach trees (I call such peach trees) they were always laden, at the proper season, with the gracious fruit that displayed its downy, blushing cheeks amid the clustering leaves with a modest grace that might well have been born of its intrinsic worth. A dozen of those old peach trees would furnish a supply of fruit for the household of the owner and a surplus to divide with the neighbors. And our dear old pioneer mothers, with that delicate sense of tenderness and thoughtfulness that no other mothers ever seemed to possess so strongly as they, in such every day practical account, always laid aside the best specimens from the tree that produced the sweetest and most delicious peaches for the sick and those who were in need of delicacies. There were no "thoughts" then to destroy the life of the trees, and the encircling forests protected them from the late spring frosts, so that the annual crop of peaches was almost as much a certainty as the annual crop of corn, or the maple in the surrounding forests.

Given a bright autumn afternoon, when the birds are chirping blithely in the tangled undergrowth, and amid the ripening leaves along the forest edges the golden rods are emitting their sweets of honey, and holding out luxurious temptation to the adventurous bees, that still seek for sweets without fear of the frosts that must soon blight all things that frost can harm; and, to crown the scene, a country boy, with bare feet, unkempt hair and grimy hands. He has just been set free, for a breathing space, from his long summer labors, and given permission to go hickory-nutting, or to dig for ground squirrels until the corn on the sidehill shall be ready to gather in. This is now in the orchard on the sunny hillside.

He lingers in the warm, bright beams of golden sunlight before leaping the crooked fence and darting off into the dark, shady woods, where rare nuts are numerous. At length he moves on slowly, and in so doing passes under the russet tree, the first to bear fruit of any in the orchard—though until now the fact has not been known. Suddenly a golden gleam flashes up to his eyes from the grassy carpet at his feet. He pauses, looks, investigates; when Oh, wonderful glory! a great, round, golden russet; a fully matured, plump, perfect apple, almost the first that he has ever seen, is presented to his eager gaze. Now he seizes the apple, and never lets but one foot touch the ground at the same time until after he has presented the miracle treasure to mother and sisters, I shall not attempt to relate. Only the pencil of an artist whose genius should be equal to the task of depicting the distinct with the best spirit of pioneer life would be equal to the task of reproducing the scene.

Little did the happy country lad or his no less happy mother and sisters, in their home by cabin home, dream of the wealth of fruits and grains ripening into an abundance for the feeding of the nations, of which their golden apple was one of the earliest though surest promises; and yet there was a wonder, a charm, a glory unspeakable about the first apple that a one-unpondered western boy discovered shining in the grass of the "new orchard" that no excellence of art, no dream of romance, shall ever repeat for him.

RENI. S. PARKER.

SHERBROOKE, P. Q., June 30.

AN HOUR.

The day was very dark, but towards its close
The sun shone out; a sudden beauty burned
The western sky, and the dull clouds were turned
To a great flame of purple, gold and rose.

Like one determined upon mastery.
The day had held me in its dreary power;
But this sweet magic of that one glad hour,
Stronger than all the rest, had set me free.

I quite forgot how long the sky had lowered,
I quite forgot the rain, the wind, the gloom;
I only saw how into royal bloom
Like a warm-hearted rose the day had flowered.

Rejoice, O heart! made glad by this great glow
Of grace and glory! Rare and heavenly sweet
Is the great gift that low unto our feet
This hour its blessed brought. And well we know—

That over all the shadows yet to be
It shall be conqueror; it shall compassion
For every sorrow conjured up by fate,
The hour that crowned this day of days to me.

THE RECENT BAD BOY

And His Noted Pa Get an Experience in Politics.

Mistakes of an Assistant Delegate and His Assistants—How Much Depends on Clear-Headed Outsiders.

[Peck's Sun.]

"Hello, where you been," said the groceryman to the bad boy, as he came along with an old fashioned basket, with a cover and one handle gone, and a tired look on the carpet bag and the boy, as though they had just returned from a journey. "Haven't seen you in here for a week or more, and I began to think you had been abducted, or mysteriously disappeared. You look sick."

"O, I am not sick, but tired and sleepy and hungry. I wish you would cut me off a cheese ritad, or give me a herringbin, or anything," said the bad boy, as he dropped the carpet bag on the floor and dropped onto a half bushel of potatoes, and closed his eyes. "We are just on the way from the depot, and pa has left me to carry this old carpet sack, and has gone up the alley to clinch over the back fence, unless he wrote his name on the railroad bus coming up from the Chicago convention."

"What! Had to walk back," said the grocery man, as he handed the boy a generous slice of cheese with a spot of green mould on the under side.

"What was your pa down there for, anyway? Is he an A-delegate, was he?"

"No, pa was only an assistant delegate, and I was pa's assistant," said the boy, as he gathered in groceries and provisions with both hands, and as though he had been starved for several days. "You see, the politicians have been playing it on pa for six months. They got him to work in Blaine's politics, by encouraging him to think he is an important factor in the country's affairs. He wanted to be a delegate, and they encouraged him; but he got beat, and then they told him he better go as an assistant delegate. They told him that delegates did not amount to anything without some smart fellows to tell them how to vote, and that they would have a lot of soldiers to go along and brass up the delegates, and 'whoop-it-up.' There is nothing that pa likes better than to whoop-it-up, and he has been taking to me as an insight into politics, and carry the satchel. I don't want any more insight into politics. I have had insight enough to last me until I get 21. I had more than all the way down to Chicago, when an important position it was to be assistant delegate, and how much depended upon assistant delegates, who really managed the whole business. I expected they would carry pa on their shoulders.

"There was a band at the depot, and pa pulled up his collar, and pulled down his vest, and looked around as much as to say 'watch me now,' and I thought he was going to make a speech, but the band just walked right over him, and his hat came off and rolled under a car and somebody picked it up and left an old dirty hat on the ground. Pa was mad, but when the crowd got away that was all the hat there was, and pa took it and gave it to me, and he took mine. It was too small for pa, but it made him look as though he had a great big head, and so I didn't kick.

"We went to a hotel, and a man grabbed the satchel, and told me to go to room 1,250, and pa followed him, and he thought such a room had been saved for him. Then a fellow came along and said for the delegates to put on badges. Pa took a badge and put it on, and he looked around and saw that he need to know asked him for 85 till he could see the chairman of the delegation. Pa took out his pocket-book and let him have it, and before he got the pocket-book in his pocket another fellow asked him for change for a ten, and pa handed it to him, and the crowd closed in on us right pa could not find the man to get the ten.

"Then we went to find our room, and wandered around till the hotel until we found there were only 50 rooms, and pa's room as 1,250, and a porter told us to get out. Pa kicked because he couldn't get his satchel, and a big fellow took him by the neck and led him out on the sidewalk. Pa said he would make 'em smart for that, and then we tried to hunt up the rest of the delegates, but no delegate would have anything to do with pa, and pa grew wickin'dcaunything and drink with him. They laughed as much at pa's badge that I took a good look at it, and found that it was an advertisement for a cough medicine printed on satin with fringe on it. Pa was mad when he found it out, but he couldn't find the delegate that gave it to him. Well, pa went to a restaurant and tried to get something to eat, and all we could get was bread, and pa had his pocket picked, and we couldn't get a place to sleep, and walked around all night. Pa got a little sleep by spelling a policeman, but I didn't sleep a wink. Half the night there were delegations marching around the streets, and pa would fall in behind, and the delegates at the rear of the procession would drive him away.

"In the morning we went over to the depot and bought 50 cents worth of tobacco and pa knew, who goes to our church, and then we got coffee for breakfast, and started for the convention. We couldn't get within four blocks of the building, and didn't have no tickets, and they drove us out of the line. Pa found one of the men who encouraged him in go to the convention, and tried to get a ticket, but the man told us to go over on the lake front, back of the exposition building, and he would bring him a ticket. We went over there and stayed four hours, and the man never came. Pa got thirsty and followed a crowd into a saloon to take a drink with them, and the bar-tender fired him out. Pa was out another round of pleasure. Pa was discouraged, and said we would go to the hotel and get our satchel and go home, so we went there and asked for the satchel, and the porter threw the old satchel at pa's head. It was one somebody had tried to get board on, and there was nothing in it, but pa took it. He said it would look better to travel with a satchel. So we got enough convenience, and went over and got on a freight train, and the conductor put us off at Evanston, and we walked to the next station and got on another train and got off, and we kept it up, off and on, till we got here. Say, I think politics is a fraud, don't you?"

New Nervous Disease.

[Pittsburg Chronicle.]

He hung his hat on the floor and attempted to go to bed with the hatrack, remarking that "Boosebuck ole from family. Good ole Boosebuck."

"Why, my husband!" indignantly exclaimed his disgusted wife.

"Torsiled? S'no such thing. Don't drink nothin'. Whoop! Horse on you? Yawhoop! Once again for the—"

"Ugh, you brute! If you are not intoxicated, what ails you sir?"

"You're dreamin of corpses, old sister—upstairs. Spoke common to-day for medical students to-morrow. Symptoms of nervousness of disease they're studying. Sent called to me a man who trembled. Said was. That's all. Never drank deep in my life. Whoop!"

—A German Cleveland club has been formed in New Brunswick.

—The frescoers have begun work on the interior of the Opera House.

—The various hotels in town have been well patronized the past month.

—A number of new houses are in process of erection on both sides of the brook.

—Persons leaving town for the season can have THE NEWS sent them at the regular rates.

—The public schools of this city and of North Plainfield are undergoing the annual overhauling.

—The oil works of Borne, Scrimser & Co., of Elizabeth, were partially destroyed by fire yesterday morning.

—The Reform Club business meeting this evening, will be held in the lecture room of the First Baptist Church.

—An excursion to Mauch Chunk over the Reading road will take place on July 23. This is the fifth of the season's excursions.

—A meeting will be held in Somerville this evening for the purpose of organizing a Cleveland and Hendricks campaign club.

—The Sunday School of the First Presbyterian and Trinity Reformed Churches go on an excursion to Ocean Grove to-morrow.

—The limited express struck a man at the union depot, Elizabeth, Tuesday night. He was thrown some distance, but no bones were broken.

—The Republicans of North Plainfield will meet to ratify the nominations in the old school house, on Harmony street, next Tuesday evening.

—The new hose carriage which has long been expected by Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, arrived this morning. It has room for six men besides the driver.

—A Blaine and Logan banner will be raised at Bailey's to-morrow evening. Hon. John Hoffman and other speakers are expected to make addresses.

—The Raritan Agricultural Works are now busily engaged in turning out their improved horse powers, threshers and cleaners. The demand is far greater than they are able to supply.

—"Yes, my dat you put dat in the paper bout dat night on Duer street. I was one of de fellers. You have it dat Sprague he hit first. Dat was right. Wese poth on pail. Put dat in. Dat makes beoples laff." Exit.

—Hon. Benjamin A. Vail, President of the New Jersey Senate, and a member of the same from this county, was out of last week, ex-officio, Governor of New Jersey, Governor Abbett being at the Chicago Convention.

—A Somerville man went to the mountain to pick berries the other day, but he spoil himself to cherries instead. The owner appeared after the trees were all nicely picked, and demanded half the fruit. It is said the Somerville man felt happy.

—Last evening at the fire two perturbed spirits slightly overstepped the bound of ordinary intercourse, and were about to wipe each other out of existence, when the arm of good sense and of the law stepped in and prevented the event from happening.

—The annual sport for the small boy of striking at a swallow on Park avenue has begun. Yesterday afternoon one young lad stood in the middle of the road with a string of fish in one hand and his bat in the other striking frantically at the swift-flying bird.

—The Somerset county Board of Freeholders refuse to agree to the report of the joint freeholders' committee of Union and Somerset counties, relative to placing the iron bridge which did duty for a time at Grove street over the stream at Farragut avenue.

—Peter P. Dumont, of North Plainfield, met with a misfortune Sunday, in the sudden death of a valuable horse which he had driven to Somerville. Prof. Voorhees and Dr. Peter S. VanZant, veterinary surgeons of that place, made a post mortem on Monday and "found the food in the stomach undigested, thereby causing compaction of the food and rupture on the upper part of the stomach, resulting in gastric fever and death."

A Collision.

Last evening in going to the fire the Hook and Ladder was drawn for some distance by hand. When just beyond the Madison avenue bridge Warren Engine, No. 3, came bowling along just behind with horses on the gallop. The Hook and Ladder turned out as much as possible in the street line allowed them, leaving barely room for the engine to pass between the truck and the opposite sidewalk. The horses attached to No. 3 were going at such a rate that it was well nigh impossible to guide them safely through this small space. In attempting to do it, the pole of the engine struck a small maple tree on the corner of Third street, breaking it down in an instant, and causing the apparatus to come to a dead halt. The engine and horses escaped without injury. The tree was valued at $20 by the owner, Mr. Connedy.

The new St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church at Sea Isle City will be dedicated on Sunday next. Rev. Anthony Smith, Vicar General of the Diocese of Trenton, will officiate and Rev. Father Burke, of Mount Holly, will preach the sermon. A large attendance of Catholics from Philadelphia and towns in South Jersey is anticipated.

Prestidigitation Extraordinary.

At the Hotel Netherwood, last evening, a delighted audience were most cleverly entertained by the famous Jewell brothers, of Newark. Although they astonished those present by serving excellent coffee transformed from bran, and other things produced the contents of an ordinary dry goods store from a high hat, together with a score of other mystifying manoeuvers, these masters of the Black Art eclipsed all, in the mysterious Hindoo box.

As generally exhibited, a person is locked inside a heavy chest, which is then bound with many turns of strong rope. The object of the person imprisoned is to emerge in a short time, leaving the ropes and locks in the same position as at first.

But the Jewell Brothers did quite the reverse. A committee was appointed by the audience to examine the chest and do the necessary tying. After being well tied the chest was then wrapped in a canvas cover, and this also was wound about with many turns of ropes.

A pillorium was then produced in which the hands of one of the brothers were securely locked.

After the committee had made sure that he was absolutely alone, a curtain was drawn around him. In a few minutes he emerged free, but the pillorium still remained securely locked. Then retiring behind the curtain he began the task of entering the chest, being obliged to tie all the ropes after him as he proceeded besides replacing the canvas, then after being fairly inside springing two padlocks with which the committee had secured the cover of the chest. The whole operation occupied less than four minutes and when the curtain was withdrawn, the chest, with its canvas cover and ropes remained as when left by the one who bound it, but Mr. Jewell was inside, and after being released emerged amid a storm of applause.

The guests examined the box to their hearts content after the performance, and many opinions were advanced by young and old as to the manner in which the performer had entered it. Mr. Jewell claims that no one excepting himself, not even his own brother possess the secret. Another exhibition will be given later in the season.

The Fire Last Evening.

Yesterday afternoon the family of James G. Jones, who resides on Madison avenue above Ninth street, were engaged in refilling some straw beds. About five o'clock a load of fresh straw arrived and not wishing to have it out over night it was placed in the rear hall. There was also some loose straw in the front hall on the second story.

Mr. Jones is at present absent from home. Several of the members of the family were also absent in the evening. Mrs. Jones and her eldest daughter, who were the only ones at home, had intended to go to town, but before doing so they thought they would sit on the piazza for a short time.

On attempting to re-enter the house to get her parasol Mrs. Jones found that the door had blown to, fastening the night latch and shutting them out. All the other doors and all the windows were closed and fastened. She also observed that there was smoke inside. Finding herself unable to get in, she called to Mr. O. B. Leonard who resides next door. Mr. Leonard and his son and Councilman Frank Marsh immediately went to Mrs. Jones' assistance, and forced an entrance through one of the rear doors. On entering it was found that both heaps of straw were on fire. The entire house was filled with smoke and the plastering and wood-work were very much heated. In a few moments the entire house would have been on fire. Water was promptly thrown on the burning straw and the windows opened to allow the smoke to escape.

In the meantime an alarm had been sent out by telephone, to which the fire department had very promptly responded. Fortunately their services were not needed.

The fire is supposed to have originated from a match on a match on the floor, the fire at first but slight soon extending. The damage to the house through being smoked and through injury to the plastering and wood-work is estimated to be about $200. The place is owned by John Cameron.

Personal.

Mr. S. G. Gutger, of Morristown, is visiting friends in this city.

Mrs. Thomas Hand and son, of Front street, are visiting friends in Atlantic City.

Dr. Fred Wells is visiting among his relatives and friends in Madison county, New York.

Mr. S. A. Potter and family of North Plainfield, will pass the Summer in Tioga county, New York.

Mrs. Kate Vanderveer and Mrs. William Osborn, of Woodbridge, are spending the day with friends in this city.

Mr. Charles McCutchen and family and Mr. Samuel McCutchen and family will spend the season at the Adirondacks.

The Rev. Mr. Beers, the rector of the Church of the Holy Innocents, Dunellen, will spend his vacation in the vicinity of Lake George.

Mr. James T. Bolles and family of New York, are stopping at the Park House. Mr. Bolles has the New Jersey agency for Apple-ton's Cyclopedias.

Councilman Frank E. Marsh, who has been a law partner of Judge Titsworth, of Newark for a number of years, has opened an office of his own in the same building in which the old firm had their office. He will also have an office in this city.

The Sauerkraut Excursion.

Seven coaches and a baggage car made up the excursion train for the Sauerkraut this morning. The excursionists will take a sail around Staten Island, and land at the Highlands of Navesink, where the day will be spent in the enjoyment of the usual comforts incident to such an occasion.

Father North, of Lambertville, who served three years in the First New Jersey Cavalry, and was a prisoner at Andersonville, with scurvy, succeeding to $1,127.67.

Base Ball.

Although base ball, if judged by the number of games played, has been rather quiet for a few weeks past, the future has been well arranged for by the Crescents. A number of games are on hand for early settlement. The first will be played on Saturday with a Paterson club at that place, and on Wednesday next the Rahway club will probably play on the grounds in this city.

One difficulty which has been experienced by the committee of the Crescents in arranging matches is the fact that there are no enclosed grounds in this city, and as the expenses of the visitors have to be met in some manner, they are unwilling to come unless a guarantee is given them. The Crescents hope by another season to be able to secure such grounds.

State Matters.

Patrick Lyons, aged 50, employed on the Erie Railway, was crushed between two cars at the Jersey City tunnel yesterday and injured so badly that he died.

Under a long-forgotten law three borough officers have been appointed by Haddonfield, to rid the town of habitual drunkards who have been infesting it for some time.

Joseph Gallagher, of St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, yesterday, from lockjaw caused by a scratch inflicted upon his hand by a machine upon which he was at work in Lister Carpet Factory.

The Newark Call says that George A. Halsey will not refuse the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixth District and that Congressman Fielder will run again in spite of his letter of declination.

A farmer named Doremus reported to the police of Paterson yesterday that the body of a new born female infant had been found in the river near his property. The body was nude and there were two ugly wounds in the head.

A pet dog, belonging to a farmer at Medford recently developed a mania for sucking eggs, and being kicked out and discarded was a reflection that he "himself into the crow with suicidal intent, but was fished out while making no exertion to drown.

The Democrats of the Seventh Ward, Paterson, who are mostly Irish, and identified with the land league and other Irish political organizations, will raise a Cleveland and Hendricks banner to-night, the first political banner raised in Paterson this season.

Capt. Nayler, at Philadelphia, reports having passed in the eastward of Great Egg Harbor, the wreck of a square rigged vessel, apparently a barkentine. All three masts were standing, and the royal yards hanging on the foremast. Nothing is known of the craft.

R. Gilkyson, an engineer of the Hoboken Fire Department, disappeared on June 30, after drawing his month's salary, and has not since been seen. It is believed his absence is voluntary, as he tried to negotiate his July salary before going away. His family are left in straitened circumstances.

By a decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals the Bross will of the Fifth Street Methodist Episcopal Churches of Camden will receive the bequests contained in a codicil to the will of Mary Ann Bissell of same, secured by bond and mortgage upon valuable Camden properties, and the income of which is directed to be applied to the relief of the poor of the churches named. The matter has been in litigation since 1878, and the legacies, amounting to royal yards hanging on the foremast. Nothing is known of the crew.

The State Reform School at Jamesburg has a board of seven trustees appointed by the Governor. Recently three of the trustees had a meeting and passed a resolution giving a Roman Catholic clergyman the privilege of visiting the institution one hour in each week, and giving the boys whose parents belong to the Roman Catholic Church. There are 314 boys in the school, of whom 139 are Roman Catholics. Upon learning of the action of these trustees, two of the absent trustees called the third to account. The objection to the resolution was the separation of the boys into religious denominations, which has been the rule of the board to show no partiality, and therefore all denominations were permitted to hold religious services on Sunday. Father Donahue, a Catholic priest of Jamesburg, was invited, but he declined, saying that it was useless for him to visit the children of Protestant parents to listen to his teachings, and he preferred to instruct the Roman Catholic boys privately. The Rev. Mr. Hall, a Protestant minister, was then invited, and he accepted. He was from Freehold, of Monmouth county.

THE POLITICAL HORIZON.

With Cleveland and Hendricks as the Democratic Presidential candidates the chances that the next President will be a Democrat may be considered good, notwithstanding the part the Democrats took in the last Congress on the tariff question. That will be the lever of power in the hands of the Republicans. Regardless of the possible opposition of John Kelly, we believe Cleveland has strength enough to carry New York, and that Hendricks has strength enough to carry Indiana. These with the conceded Democratic States are enough to make Cleveland the next President. The Democrats can afford to lose New Jersey, if they can hold all the States conceded to them, as is probable, and can gain New York and Indiana. New Jersey is a very important manufacturing State, and the tariff acure may secure it to the Republicans, although, under other circumstances, it would probably go Democratic. New York State is the battle ground. This is the aspect of affairs at this stage of the campaign.

MR. DANIEL DODD, of the Newark Savings Institution, is again on the "ragged edge." He recently affirmed that the $2,000,000 U. S. securities he had deposited with the firm of Fisk & Hatch, and which that firm exchanged for other securities, was done without his knowledge or approbation. Mr. Fiske now takes the floor and denies in toto all Dodd has asserted. Mr. Fisk swears that he had authority to use such securities if he replaced them with other bonds of equal value. The case is still before the Chancellor, and Dodd's connection with it looks worse than before.

THERE are many honest Greenbackers in Union county and the State of New Jersey. How do they like the idea of being sold like sheep to Blaine by Ben. Butler? That is Benjamin's present programme, and he is in New York arranging with Saints Kelly and Grady all the details of the contemplated sale to Blaine.

THE President of Peru has resigned and a new election has been ordered. Carry the news to Butler.

CARE will kill a cat. The care must be exercised in taking aim. It is extremely difficult, however, to hit one in the dark with a bottle.

A Hoboken grocer received this order from a customer: "Please send in by bearer two pounds of shughar, a blackin' brush, five pounds of coffey, and some little nails, my wife had a baby last night, also padlocks and a monkey wrench.

"What is the price of this axle-greese?" asked a new clerk of a grocery dealer; "there is no mark on it." "It depends on your customer. If he asked for axle-greese charge him fifteen cents a pound, but if he wants butter, make it thirty-eight cents."

A recent advertisement reads as follows: "If the gentleman who keeps the shoe store with a red head will return the umbrella of a young lady with whalebone ribs and an iron handle to the slate-roofed groom's shop he will hear of something to his advantage, as the same is the gift of a deceased mother now no more with the name engraved on it."

THE WORLD OF POLITICS

Gossip and Speculation About the Presidential Campaign.

Ratifying the Democratic Nominations at Louisville—Confident of Success—Bay State Independents—Butler's Chances.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 17.—A mass meeting of 5,000 people assembled at Court place last evening to ratify the nomination of Governors Cleveland and Thomas A. Hendricks. There was great enthusiasm and good humor. Hon. Henry Watterson was the first speaker, and after a glowing account of the political outlook at Chicago discussed the tariff plank of platform and explained how the victory had been won in committee for the phrase, "a tariff for public purposes only." He said that the course pursued by the more representative portion of the committee, notably Mr. Burke, of Louisiana; Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, and ex-Senator Davis, of West Virginia, was frank and manly. Even Mr. Converse, of Ohio, showed a commendable spirit of self-repression for the sake of united action. The result was that the sub-committee of eight, which made the platform, excepting Gen. Bueller, arrived at a final decision which carried, almost unanimously the judgment, but the hearty approval of each of the parties to it. The second sentence, denouncing a protective policy as having failed to relieve the country of crushing war taxes, was, he said, but another way of indorsing the Morrison bill, which was simply a declaration of principle "for reducing taxation to the lowest limit, consistent, with a due regard to the preservation of the faith of the nation to its creditors and contingent reference to the tariff reconstrued a tariff for revenue promised. Having thus demanded a reduction of the war tariff which the country demanded, it proceeded to prescribe the mode and manner of the proposed transition from a protection system to a revenue system. This furnishes a complete answer to the Republican charge that "a tariff for revenue only" mean a violent and reactionary revision of the tariff, which no revenue reformer ever meditated or proposed. Even admitting that such a bad system to a good system should be made with proper deliberation and laid in "a spirit of fairness in all interests." The Republicans assert that the free traders, as they persist in calling us, mean to destroy American industries. The Democratic platform limits the reduction of duties to a point which will cover the increased cost of living created by the higher wages paid in this country. This is a simple matter of detail and in no wise a point of principle or of doctrine. In fact, all through the platform and through the tariff plank the demand for no more revenue than will support the government economically administered, and having replied to the misrepresentations of the Republicans and specified the method and spirit which the Democratic party will, if entrusted with power, apply to the revision of the tariff the fundamental idea and faith of the party are included in the clear, explicit and ringing declaration that all "Federal taxation shall be exclusively for public purposes, and shall not exceed the needs of the economical administration of the government." These words taken in connection with the whole spirit and tenor of the platform entirely sustain the position of the friends of revenue reform. Speech of Mr. Cleveland, Mr. Watterson said: "The governor of New York is a brave and honest man, without fear and without reproach. He has allied himself with all that is clean and sober, upright and steadfast in our public life. He is a plain and solid citizen who has done his duty without flinching any fuss or fustian, and who has the strength and the nerve to handle the new broom which is to sweep the public service clean. He has in the person of Mr. Hendricks, joined to him all that remains to us of the "old ticket," and finally he is a lucky man in a stroke of good fortune. My belief is that the ticket will be elected and for my own part I enter the canvass without one single reserve or regret."

Ex-Gov. L. P. Blackburn, Gen. Simon, B. Buckner and several others made speeches in behalf of the ticket and platform.

Congratulating Cleveland.

ALBANY, July 31.—Congressman Dorsheimer, of New York, called on Gov. Cleveland yesterday afternoon. They greeted one another with great cordiality, and remained in conversation for 15 minutes, and to the United Press correspondent Mr. Dorsheimer said the nomination was satisfactory to the great bulk of the democratic party. There, said he, should be no little sores in different sections, but they would heal in the course of nature. "Tammany is democratic organization," said he, significantly, "it will wheel into line in the rest." Ex-Mayor Cooper, (N. Y.) was another prominent caller. He is satisfied with the ticket and predicts its success. Ex-Mayor Grace sent on his congratulations.

The photographers are at work on the executive chamber. They are taking all kinds of views of it. Some will show Cleveland in the executive chair, and others will merely depict the ornate fixings and the antique portraits of Gen. Washington and the early governors.

Butler's Chances.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Information has been received from close friends of Gen. Butler, by B. F. Shively, Secretary of the Anti-Monopoly committee, stating positively that Butler is a candidate for a presidential vote on an independent ticket. Shively, whose headquarters are in this city, said that Butler's name will be withdrawn by the action of the labor convention to be held in Chicago, July 30. "Butler's candidacy," said Shively, "would introduce an unwelcome element in the campaign. We expect to carry Michigan and Iowa, and perhaps, Massachusetts. The prospects of a close race between the Democrats and Republicans are good. If Butler should join his Greenback and Labor strength, it is possible such a result as a tie in the electoral college may be brought about, when the house of representatives will take up the election wherein the votes by states Michigan has the deciding vote, and a Greenbacker from that state has to turn the deciding vote of that delegation."

A Greenback Call.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 17.—The greenback state committee met yesterday afternoon, at the Delavan hall, and issued the following call:—A state convention of the national greenback labor party in the state of New York will be held at their hall, in the city of New York, at noon on Wednesday, August 27th, 1884, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the presidential electors and two candidates for judges of the Court of Appeals, to appoint a new state committee and to transact such other business as may be necessary. The basis of representation in the state shall be one delegate for each assembly district in the state, and an additional delegate and alternate for every one thousand votes and one hundred votes exceeding 50 cast thereto for our last ticket at the last state election. All organized bodies in this state in sympathy with the principles of our party, or favorable to the election of its candidates, are respectfully invited to send committees." (Signed) Geo. O. Jones, chairman.

Bay State Independents.

BOSTON, July 17.—The delegates of 108 Boston Independents chose thirty-five delegates to attend the Independent's meeting at New York next Tuesday. The following are the delegates: Hon. George F. Hoar, Hon. Julius H. Seelye, of Amherst college; President Franklin Carter, of Williams college; Wm. B. Hale, of Northampton; Samuel Bowles, of Springfield; Lucius M. Walker, of Worcester; George S. Merriam, of Springfield; C. R. Codman, of Barnstable; Spencer Borden, of Fall River; William Everett, of Quincy; Hon. Wm. M. Evarts; E. W. Higginson, of Cambridge; Congressman Theo. Lyman, Moorfield Story, and Moses Williams, of Brooklyn; Winslow Warren, of Dedham.

Candidates for Chairman.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—It is whispered here than an effort is to be made at the meeting of the Democratic executive committee in this city next week to displace Senator Gorman from the chairmanship. Senator Gorman, it is said, is being pushed for the place, and also ex-Senator Wallace. It is stated that Representative Randall will not be in the city during the campaign, but it proceeds to prescribe the mode and manner of the proposed transition from a protection system to a revenue system. This furnishes a complete answer to the Republican charge that "a tariff for revenue only" mean a violent and reactionary revision of the tariff, which no revenue reformer ever meditated or proposed. A CURIOUS COLLECTION

Of Crimes and Casualties in Various Parts of the Country.

Robbed and Murdered for His Valise—A Lady's Frightful Death. Novel Escape of a Prisoner. Duel with Knife.

DETROIT, Mich., July 17.—Several days ago the body of an unknown young man was found at Lake St. Clair, near Mount Elliott. His clothes were lying folded up on the beach and it was supposed at first that he was drowned while swimming. The coroner's inquest, however, has since developed a verdict of murder by parties unknown. The investigation showed a wound on the head and no water in the lungs. Evidence was also elicited that the victim's name was cut out of his garments, and all his money and valuables were gone. His identity is unknown, but it is supposed that he came from Milwaukee.

A Murderer Taking It Easy.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., July 17.—Sheriff Melvin, of Dorchester county, went over to Easton and secured the key of the county jail yesterday for the execution of Bug Cephas, the murderer of old Mrs. Murphy, who is to be hanged August 1. It is the same executioner who hanged Peter Jones hanged last year. Cephas is as happy as if he had a thousand years to live. Several gentlemen called on him yesterday, and he cordially invited them to be present at the hanging. On his call door is a notice asking visitors to pay 5 cents toward removing his body to Williamsburg after he is dead. Instead of being sorry for the crime for which he spends it for ice cream and other delicacies. He is getting fat rapidly, and his appetite is enormous.

Negro and Mule Survive.

CAIRO, Ill., July 17.—During a heavy thunder storm a colored man named Gus Morris, with his mule, sought shelter under a large oak tree four miles above this city. A bolt of lightning struck the tree, splitting it to the ground, killing the mule and the mule sensless, stripping the negro's clothing, shoes and stockings from his body, and tearing up the ground. The mule recovered and started in a fright across the field, dragging the negro who clung to the lines with a deathlike grip, unconscious all the while. The mule finally brought up in a fence corner, and Morris soon afterward regained consciousness. He will recover.

Mrs. Stone's Frightful Death.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 17.—The Abington poorhouse, in this city, was the scene of a most tragic suicide by fire. Mrs. George Stone, aged 70 years, an inmate, saturated her clothing with kerosene oil, pinned her feet to the side of the building, and set fire to the oil. Her cries of agony were heard by persons who extinguished the flames before the house was burned to a crisp. Her insanity was the result of religious enthusiasm, and as her case was always considered a harmless one no blame is attached to the officials of the place and allowed to visit her home when she desired.

Duel with Small Swords.

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—During the celebration of the first national fete on Monday night Evariste Poriche, a brother of the associate justice of the supreme court while promonading with a lady was insulted by Capt. J. J. E. Brun, a steamboat man. From the words there came to blows, and Poriche was badly used up. Yesterday a duel was fought on the river bank opposite this city with small swords. Poriche received a wound in his left arm and Brun one in the left thigh. Neither, declared that their honor was satisfied and the affair ended.

Suicide While Insane.

PITTSBURG, July 17.—Miss Olivia Emrick, 20 years of age, and the daughter of a farmer of Franklin township, killed herself at her home by sending a bullet through her brain. Olivia returned a short time ago from Mount Pleasant college, where, it is said, she became highly deranged over her studies. She was constantly fretting because she did not stand higher in her class. The family physician told her that she would become insane if she did not cease worrying, and this made her so fratic that she ended her life.

Careless Workmen.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 17.—Six huge stringers for the roof of the new skating rink, on the west side, fell 50 feet to the ground yesterday afternoon, burying eight men in the debris. William Sypes, aged 30 years, and Ole Walsh, aged 33, both workmen, were removed in the patrol wagon, and it is believed were pronounced fatally injured internally. The other six wounded men will recover. The accident resulted from carelessness on the part of the workmen themselves.

Novel Escape of a Prisoner.

STILLWATER, Minn., July 17.—The prison officials have been keeping the escape of a prisoner very quiet. His name is Howard, and he was in for three years for robbing a grocery store at Minneapolis. He worked into a smokestack of a thresher, and with the machine was loaded on the cars. After being for two days and nights concealed without food or drink he got out at Minneapolis transfer, midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, and took to the woods.

A Prisoner's Strange Freak.

ESTON, Pa., July 17.—Edward Davis, while in a tramp cell, stripped off all his clothing, placed it in the center of the cell floor, ignited it, and began a war dance around and through the flames. The smoke became so dense that Davis was almost suffocated before the fire department arrived. He claims to have been colonel of the Nineteenth Connecticut regiment during the war and once was wealthy. Rum has ruined him.

Riddled with Bullets.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 17.—A terrible murder occurred in Johnson county. George Patrick, a wealthy farmer, left home to hive a swarm of bees. He did not return, and a party started in search. He was found on the side of the mountain with seventeen bullet-holes through his body. Jesse Shipman, who had a suit against Patrick, has been arrested for murder.

Thirty-two Cars Wrecked.

DAYTON, O., July 17.—A freight train of thirty-two cars was wrecked two miles east of here on the Pan Handle road. The wreck was caused by an open switch. Frank James King was thrown from the engine and dangerously injured. [illegible] was also seriously injured. [illegible] will amount to $4,000.

The Bread Disease.

Several City officials Die of the Cholera in Toulon.

MARSEILLES, July 17.—M. Romana, minister of the interior; Herisson, minister of commerce, and Reynal, minister of public works, have arrived here on a tour of inspection. The greatest excitement exists at the depot, said that over 48,000 persons had died by the railway and 20,000 by other roads leading out of the city. The present number threatened by the terrible scourge than the cholera, namely, unprecedented want and misery. Commerce and industry were at a standstill and great numbers of workingmen were thrown out. Romana opened the official of the sympathy of the government with the people and said the utmost would be done to relieve the distress.

The deaths during the twenty-four hours ending at 9:30 was 53. The total number of deaths from the appearance of the plague here until the present time is 978.

The Disease at Toulon.

TOULON, July 17.—The number of deaths here from cholera continues to increase. Among those who died was the wife of Admiral Pierre Amadeus Lamothe Tenet, who succumbed to the disease and died yesterday morning. The minister of commerce, minister of the interior, and M. Herrison, minister of commerce, have arrived here. They have visited the Maritime hospital.

Eleven deaths from cholera have occurred here since Tuesday night, including the commissary of the police and the chief prison warden.

Relief for the Sufferers.

PARIS, July 17.—The duke of Chartres has started for Toulon, with 10,000 francs (£2,000 as a donation from the Comte de Paris and family for the relief of the sufferers from the cholera.

The Academy of Medicine has referred to a commission the question as to what measures should be taken to promote the public health and prevent the introduction of cholera into Paris.

Vessels to be Examined.

LONDON, July 17.—Geo. Merritt, the American consul-general, has appointed a physician to examine vessels leaving London for the United States, for the purpose of ascertaining their sanitary condition.

Five Days Quarantine.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 17.—The Turkish government has ordered a quarantine of five days against all vessels arriving at Turkish ports from Egypt, in consequence of the report that cholera exists in Alexandria.

A JUDGE RUNS A LOTTERY.

Rivals in the Tea Trade Break Up a Prize Package Business.

NEWARK, N. J., July 17.—A week ago a company styling themselves the Importers' Tea company, of New York, opened a prize package tea and coffee store at No. 841 Broad street, in this city. They had 1,000 packages representing one and three pounds respectively, charging therefor $1. In each package was a prize, ranging in value from 10 cents to $50. Almost the entire population of Newark were patrons, and were rewarded by drawing diamond rings, shirt studs and silver watches.

The store, it is said, finding that business was slipping fast away, entered complaint against the lottery. The place was raided and resulted in the capture of Judge Thomas Phillips, of Pittsburg, the principal owner. Six clerks were also arrested. All gave bail.

Woefully Mismanaged.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 17.—Considerable excitement was caused here that the receiver of the collapsed Manufacturers' bank was ready to make a report, and that the showing was very bad. The report, it is said, will show that the bank was woefully mismanaged, and that the assets are $200,000 or $300,000 short of the liabilities. From the time it commenced, failed some weeks ago for nearly a half million. It is asserted that the mismanagement of the bank's affairs amounted almost to criminal carelessness. It is also the opinion that when the assets will not pay depositors fifty cents on the dollar. The creditors generally believe that President Albert Conro will make good all deficiencies out of his private fortune pay dollar for dollar.

Death of an Accomplished Lady.

MERIDEN, Ct., July 17.—Miss Emily J. Leonard, the authoress, died yesterday, aged about 50. She was a member of the old colonial Leonard race; was a church member; a founder of the Meriden Scientific association; a prominent woman suffragist; a skillful botanist and an accomplished linguist. She was a graduate of Yale university and reading Latin, Italian and other languages. She began in 1880 translating into English Mangoli's History of Political Economy in Florence, and left a valuable book in many colleges and she has for several years translated articles for "Lalor's Encyclopedia of Political Economy" and written for The Index and The Woman's Journal. Her father was a prominent Abolitionist and the inventor of the first brass furnaces.

The Stories all False.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Indian Commissioner Price has received a letter from Mr. George Yoakam, Cheyenne mission, Mont., giving a different account of the story of the troubles of the Cheyennes telegraphed hence several weeks ago. He states that the stories of Indians killing cattle belonging to settlers are all false, and originate with the stockmen themselves, who desire to force the Indians off their lands that they may settle upon and appropriate them. He further says that these Indians are located in large areas of the public domain, preventing through transit and keeping out actual settlers.

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The Treasury department issued warrants for the payment of $9,000,000 on account of pensions.

The president has appointed Gerrit H. Smith, of Geneva, N. Y., to be inspector of public moneys at Bismarck, Dak., vice Frank Sperry, declined.

Among the visitors to President Arthur were Senator Logan, Gen. Butler, Lieut.-Gen. Sheridan, and Senator Wade Hampton.

Frank Leady, an employe in the census office, was arrested for using "pension envelopes" for private correspondence, in violation of law.

Mills to Shut Down.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 17.—The presidents of the largest cotton mills here have agreed to reduce production at least 25 per cent. by shutting down part of the time.

TROY, N. Y., July 17.—On August 1 the Albany and Rensselaer iron and steel mills will shut down for two, and probably three months, because of the dullness of the iron and steel trade.

War on the Mormons.

VIENNA, July 17.—The police here have been ordered to arrest all Mormon missionaries who shall be found endeavoring to secure converts to their faith. The warrant has been issued for the arrest of a missionary named P. [illegible], of Nevada.

BELLIGERENT BROKERS

Members of an Exchange in New York City Come to Blows.

What Some of Critizing the Management of the Electric, Manufacturing and Miscellaneous Exchange—Serious Charges.

NEW YORK, July 17.—In December last the petition was organized at Pine and Nassau streets, in this city. It was known as the Electric Manufacturing and Miscellaneous Stock exchange. The purpose of the exchange was for the purpose of giving the public a medium whereby they could deal in fractional lots of gas, surface railroad engineering patents, motor movements and a hundred other securities which other who could not be brought to the notice of the public.

At the opening ceremonies of the Exchange President Baldwin, of the North National bank, delivered a most eulogistic oration and predicted for the Exchange all manner of success, and introduced Mr. George M. Hard, of the Chatham bank, as its first president. At that time tickets of membership for the Exchange were valued at $250, and all went swimming on the high tide of prosperity for several months.

Trouble, however, has lately been brewing. Mr. Hard resigned, and John A. Balvin was induced to accept the presidency. This position he threw up a few days ago on account, it is said, of his personal antagonism to Superintendent Alexander Lassen, and the exchange at the moment is without a head. Membership has also fallen to $15, and the affairs of the exchange are in a most unhappy muddle.

The trouble culminated yesterday at an adjourned meeting of the stockholders, which was held for the purpose of hearing the report of the special committee appointed to investigate the affairs and working of the exchange. The special committee consisted of Chairman Whitney, William B. Wilson and John B. Brown. They were appointed to look into and investigate the management of the exchange. When this committee was appointed there were ominous reports and many charged that the exchange had been run in the interest of a certain few, and a great deal of dissatisfaction prevailed.

The feeling appeared to be directed against Superintendent Lassen, and it has been said that he had saddled the exchange with an indebtedness of $8,000 through its contract with the Gold and Stock telegraph, and it was further stated that Lassen had been quite a student of nepotism, and that all of his relatives, even down to the sixteenth cousin, had been provided for.

There was a small but stormy meeting in the exchange rooms late yesterday afternoon. Only forty-seven members were present, and the report of the committee was the cause of a great deal of criticism. It was said that through Mr. Jocelyn's close affiliation with Mr. Lassen the members of the exchange had failed to secure the services of a good meeting. All through the discussion the greatest acrimony prevailed. Superintendent Lassen was roundly pitched into, the superintendent Jocelyn failed to receive many bouquets. The meeting finally broke up in a row and adjourned until Monday next.

During the adjournment a most exciting scene was enacted on the floor of the Exchange. Superintendent Lassen was just about leaving when a duy Frenchman of the name of Broker Hochart, who had denounced him as a liar and a fool. Mr. Hochart followed his vituperation with a blow, and Mr. Lassen struck right and left indistinctly in mourning. The two rolled, then broke away and returned to the charge, and they finally succeeded in pummelling each other to their heart's content.

For a time all was pandemonium and excitement, but finally the belligerents were separated. It was only for a moment, however, that Broker Hochart and Mr. Lassen had been shabbily treated, and he, with several others, pitched into Mr. Hochart, and battered and hammered him nicely, tore his clothes, and left the floor with him and left him in so dilapidated a condition as to compel his friends to send him home. Mr. Hochart sustained no injury, but the reputation of the Exchange, through the unseemly riot, will be the greatest sufferer.

In Order to Pay Its Debts.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The Bellemonte Cotton Manufacturing Co., of Sumter, S. C., has called a meeting of its stockholders for July 21st. President Frederick W. Scudder, states that the concern has been running at loss, is unable to pay its floating indebtedness and suggests the advisability of selling the property to pay the debts. The company was organized in July, 1881, with a capital of $32,000.

The Alabama Claims.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The court of Alabama claims is on the point of completing a series of judgments, numbering between two and three thousand, the aggregate of the awards being about $3,000,000. With about $2,700,000. They will be submitted to the secretary of state for his certification within a week.

To Summer at Bar Harbor.

MRS. WARD'S HOTEL.

Fortunate Investment for the Family of the Widow Spencer.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 17.—Mrs. Ferdinand Ward will in a few days arrive at the Champion house, at East Haddam, where she will spend the summer months, while her husband remains in Ludlow street jail. She has already sent her horses and carriages there, and intends, so it is said, to take frequent drives through the picturesque scenery in that neighborhood. She is the owner of the hotel, although it is run in the name of her brother, F. D. Green. About five years ago, when there was some talk of tearing down the historic old Champion house, she urged her husband to buy it, being prompted by sentimental reasons, as the house was named after her grandfather, Gen. Champion. When Ferdinand Ward bought the house he spent $25,000 in refurnishing it and beautifying the grounds surrounding it. The property was at that time placed in her name, and she will be enabled to keep it in her possession, unless it can be shown that her husband was interested at the time the premises were deeded to her. The creditors are making efforts to do so, but it is not believed that the ownership of the hotel will be taken from Mrs. Ward. A parterre of foliage plants is placed on the terraced lawn in front of the hotel, with the words "Champion House" formed in letters large enough to be read three miles away. This costs $700 a season to keep in condition. A steam yacht for the use of guests is one of the many attractions of the hotel, and at the present time it is about half filled with guests from New York and Brooklyn.

THE CUBAN INSURRECTION.

Aguero's Forces Defeat the Spaniards in Two Engagements.

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—Private advices received via Jamaica, from the headquarters of the Cuban insurgents under Aguero, say the insurgents, under the immediate command of Aguero, undertook an expedition against the plantations of certain persons known to be in favor of the government. Although opposed by a strong detachment of regular troops, the insurgents, after a hard-fought skirmish lasting two hours, on June 26, drove back the government forces and burned all the buildings and machinery on the Santa Maria and La Mercedes plantations. At about the same time another band of insurgents in the Sagua district, under command of one of Aguero's lieutenants, was attacked by a strong force of government troops, known as the San Domingo division. The insurgents, being intrenched, repulsed the enemy, with the loss of three killed and several wounded. Among the insurgents only one man was slightly wounded. The captain general of Cuba has called a meeting of officers to concert a plan for successfully encountering the enemy in the field. Large numbers of troops are lost or demoralized by the guerilla style of warfare adopted by the insurgents.

RESCUED BY A BROKER.

A Wall Street Man Saves a Lady from Drowning at Long Branch.

LONG BRANCH, July 17.—A lady and a gentleman, both fashionably dressed, were seen walking on the beach late yesterday afternoon. They went to the bathing-house under the pier and, procuring bathing outfits, entered the water, where the lady attracted much attention by her graceful swimming, but the gentleman seemed a novice in the art. After they had been in the water about twenty minutes the bathers and people on the beach were alarmed to hear the lady shout for help. She was 100 yards outside the limits and it was thought she must drown before help could reach her. Her companion was paralyzed so he was unable to rescue her. At last first cry for help was heard Mr. Wheeler, a Wall street broker and member of the New York Stock Exchange, entered the water, swam to her rescue and brought her to the shore amid the cheers of the crowd. The lady, who was remarkably handsome, and her escort both refused to give their names. The woman was very much exhausted and was taken away in a carriage.

Another Heavy Failure.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The firm of Edmund Yard, Jr., & Co., importers of white goods and laces, at No. 61 Leonard street, failed and made an assignment to Wm. an Friedman and Herman W. Vanderpool, giving preferences amounting to $256,522. The business was started in this city in 1869 with a capital of $100,000, which was contributed by Edmund Yard, sr., although he was not a partner. The firm imported nearly all their goods from Hayman & Alexander, Nottingham, England, who are creditors to the amount of $340,000. In the trade the firm's liabilities are reported all the way from $750,000 to $1,000,000, and assets about $400,000.

Must Pay the Tax.

CLEVELAND, O., July 17.—Judge Blandin gave his decision yesterday in the demurrer of County Treasurer Whitlock to the petition of 2 saloon keepers to enjoin him from collecting the $500 tax. The judge cited the decisions of the supreme court and decided to sustain the demurrer of the treasurer and dismissed the petition of the saloon keepers. The decision gives general satisfaction. Judge Blandin is a Democrat. There are 500 saloon keepers outside the petitioners who were waiting for this decision who will now have the $0 per cent. penalty added.

What the Autopsy Disclosed.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Over twenty well-known physicians assembled at the morgue yesterday afternoon to witness the autopsy upon the body of James Reilly, the showman who died on Monday from the effects of a rattlesnake bite. The body was much discolored and swollen, the left lung was congested, and the brain swollen and inflamed. The immediate cause of death was poisonous gas forced to the heart by the veins of the right arm.

What Caused the Accident.

LONDON, July 17.—It transpires that the accident on the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire railway, at Penistone, was caused by the breaking of an axle under one of the carriages. Nearly the entire train was thrown down a steep embankment to the highway beneath, killing twenty persons and injuring many more. One of the killed has been identified as C. Edlestone, an American lady who was visiting friends in England.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 17.—A special from Glenville, Gilmer county, states that a boiler in Wilson Bros.' saw mill near that place, exploded, killing Buey Wilson, aged 11, and fatally injuring Lorian Wilson, one of the proprietors of the mill. William Ellison, the fireman, was thrown several yards and severely hurt, but will recover. The main portion of the boiler was thrown somewhat over 100 and the building demolished.

Locals.

—Fishing parties are the order of the day.

—Quails are said to be numerous this year.

—The apple crop will be large, so the farmers say.

—The Johnston Drive is a favorite resort for driving parties.

—Warren Engine, No. 3, is off duty, her boiler having been condemned.

—Amount of subscriptions to the public bath fund to date, $0,000,000,000.

—Sheriff Mc Murtry, of Somerset county, is making a trip through Canada.

—The green apple cholera of small boy fame will soon make its appearance.

—The Somerville Public School has but seven weeks for the Summer vacation.

—The usual Saturday evening dance at the Hotel Netherwood to-morrow evening.

—Private racing at the Fair Grounds on Park avenue every Saturday afternoon.

—Laing and Nelson's annual excursion to the seashore will take place on Thursday, August 7.

—The young Democrats of South Plainfield, alias "the Boulevard," have organized a drum corps.

—The law will not uphold bicyclers riding on the sidewalks. Bicycles have only the same right as wagons.

—St. Mary's T. A. B. Society are contemplating holding a moonlight lawn party on the grounds on Fourth street.

—The Public school building in North Plainfield is to be repainted. The contract has been awarded to Weaver Bros.

—According to the Trenton True American, Mr. W. LeJones, of this city, has bought the City Pottery Works of that place.

—The Republicans it is said are negotiating for the erection of a wigwam on the site lately occupied by Cadmus' livery stable.

—The Elizabethtown Water company is repairing and enlarging its works and also overhauling its engine and engine machinery.

—On the Somerville excursion on Thursday a vote was taken which gave 80 for Blaine, 45 for Cleveland and 7 on the fence.

—Ex-Assemblyman Frank E. Sheldon, of Rahway, is spoken of as the Republican candidate for State Senator from this county this fall.

—The Elizabeth Athletic Club played a very poor game on Wednesday with the Orange Club. They will play the Reading Club to-morrow.

—The Saengerbund excursion yesterday was unable to land at the Highlands of Navesink because there was no pier, and so landed at Locust Grove instead.

—The eighth annual excursion of the Lodge of the Castle, No. 32, K. of P., of Somerville, will take place on Tuesday, August 19, to Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

—A meeting of the members of St. Mary's Church will be held this evening in St. Mary's Hall on Fourth street, to take action on the coming excursion.

—A notice posted in the office of the Hotel Netherwood gives the information that no further accommodations can be given excepting cots in the parlor over night.

—Aaron M. Powell of the National Temperance Society will address the meeting at the Grove on Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. Seats are furnished for all.

—The Constitutionalist says the Reform Club netted about $175 from their excursion in June. The Constitutionalist should drop a hundred dollars, and it would be nearer the truth.

—It is said the North Plainfield Democrats will organize a campaign club, raise a banner, hold public meetings and otherwise make it lively for the Republicans during the coming campaign.

—It is reported in Elizabeth that an extensive stove manufacturing firm is negotiating for the purchase of the old mallenble iron works of the Elizabethport Manufacturing company and will probably be successful.

—Warren Engine, No. 3, will give a picnic on Thursday, July 31, in Wooden's Grove, North Plainfield, afternoon and evening. Music will be furnished for dancing, and refreshments of the best will be served. The grove will be illuminated at night.

Mrs. Albert E. Kenyon, nee Miss Rachel Mosher, died suddenly at her home in Little Genesee, New York, a short time ago. She formerly resided here and was married but a year ago. Her many friends in this city will be grieved to hear of her death.

—The scenes of the recent Lawn Party of the Young People's Association of the Park Avenue Church was largely due to the gentlemanly proprietor of the Park House. We are requested to express the gratitude of the Young People for many favors received at his hands.

—The Central Times says:—"Tom bolters from Cleveland among the Irishmen of this city is increasing." This will be news to our Irish fellow citizens, who will be found casting their votes solid for Cleveland and Hendricks next Fall.—The Constitutionalist. Has our sanctimonious contemporary departed from the path of truth, or is poor Jeffersonian friend off?

—The New Jersey division of the League of American Wheelmen met in Red Bank recently and decided to have stencil boards put up at road crossings throughout the State showing wheelmen which were the best roads for bicyclers. A list of the hotels is also to be prepared which will offer a reduced rate to bicyclers. A committee was appointed to prepare a bicycler's map of the State.

—Foreman B. A. Mumford of Zephyr Hook & Ladder Company, No. 1, states that at the Jones' fire on Madison avenue and Ninth street, the company put in three quarters of an hour good solid work. He especially feels that a boy named Thomas Brown, deserves credit for bravely furnishing line water to the second floor in the building while the heat and smoke were so great as to make it extremely difficult to breathe. The windows and doors, he says, were kept closed until the flames were overcome by the firemen.

—The Plainfield Society for the prevention of cruelty to children seems still under way, and, if we may judge from its officers, means business. Hon. Charles Place is the President, Rev. A. V. V. Raymond Vice President, J. B. Cowan, Esq., Secretary and Treasurer. There are ten trustees. We hope the society will succeed in preventing not only inhuman treatment, but discourage begging and educate the offspring of dissolute parents, in this way they will directly aid in building up the civil and religious interests of our commonwealth.—Somerville Unionist Gazette.

Col. Angel's Record.

The following has just been issued from the headquarters of the Second Brigade: "The brigade commander announces with regret the death of Col. A. Angel, lately commanding the Seventh regiment, N. G. N. J., at Panama, Central America. Colonel Angel entered the service in 1861, as a captain, under the first call for troops; afterwards as captain of the Fifth N. J. volunteers, participated in the battles of the peninsula, was promoted lieutenant colonel, and mustered out with his command after three years' service. The urgent call for more troops brought him again to the field as lieutenant colonel of the Thirty-eighth New Jersey volunteers, and he served with distinction to the close of the war.

"The commanding officer having an intimate knowledge of the character of Colonel Angel as a soldier, having served with him all during the war, regrets exceedingly the necessity of announcing to the Second brigade the death of this distinguished officer."

Hesperus Club Notes.

The meeting Sunday evening will be held in the First Baptist Church. A number of speakers have been appointed for the occasion.

The usual Friday evening meeting will be held to-night in the Warren Mission Chapel on Chatham street, North Plainfield. The five minute rule in speaking is here strictly enforced. The meeting will commence at 7:45 o'clock. At the meeting last Friday evening four new signers were secured.

A delegation consisting of Messrs. John A. Sayres, John H. Manning and Frank Dodge will go to New Dover on Friday evening, and enthuse the inhabitants of that part of the country.

Runaway.

Last evening Mr. John Stevens with his wife and child were out riding in a buggy. When nearing the Peace street railroad bridge, the horse although gentle became a little frisky on hearing an approaching train and Mr. Stevens reined him in. In doing so the bit broke, and all control of the animal was lost. He ran but a short distance however when the buggy struck the posts which line the walk on Third street near the bridge. Fortunately none of the occupants of the buggy were seriously injured. The buggy, however, was badly wrecked.

The New Hose Carriage.

As briefly mentioned in yesterday's issue of The News, the new hose carriage which was to be sent to the fire department on trial arrived yesterday. It was quartered at Gazelle Engine Co's. house. The builders are the Ahrens Manufacturing Co. of Manchester, N. H. The carriage is not entirely new, but has been used but little, and is in first class condition. It is of the style known as the crane-neck, and has accommodations for a number of persons to ride besides the driver. A number of members are anxious that the department should purchase it. The probable cost would be $900.

The Latest to Ocean Grove.

The latest excursion to Ocean Grove and Asbury Park left town this morning. Ten coaches and a baggage car were crowded. Several more coaches were to be added at Roselle to accommodate the overflow. The excursion is under the auspices of the Sunday Schools of the Trinity Reformed and the First Presbyterian Churches.

Personal.

Miss Middlebitch, of Brooklyn, is visiting friends on Le Grand avenue.

Mr. F. A. Pope, of the Post Office corps, starts to day for a western trip.

Mr. W. H. Brown and wife will pass the summer in Herkimer county, New York.

Mr. William H. Lowe and family, of Park avenue, are at Chateaugay, New York.

Mr. B. O. Bowers and family are spending the season at Howland's Hotel, Long Branch.

Mr. H. P. Reynolds and wife will start next week on their annual trip to the Massachusetts coast.

Mr. Van Hoose and daughter, of Syracuse, are guests of Mrs. Charles Potter, Jr., of Seventh street.

Mr. M. D. Barnes and Miss Carrie Barnes are enjoying themselves at the Tupper Lake House, Adirondacks.

Mr. J. W. Schermerhorn of Pierce's College, Philadelphia, is spending a few days in this city, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Schermerhorn, of Fifth and Sycamore streets.

Mr. Louis Stover, Mr. Henry Craft and others are at Princess Bay. The number of fish caught by them on the first day is reported to have exceeded all previous records.

A unknown man, about forty years old, dressed like a laborer, fell into the dock at the foot of Newark street, Hoboken, on Wednesday and was drowned. His body was recovered by the morgue.

A Thieving Servant.

Arthur Reilly is a colored man employed as a waiter at the Hotel Netherwood. Yesterday he thought he would leave the establishment, and take with him various articles of clothing belonging to some of the guests. On his departure, Officer Mattox was telephoned for. He took a hack and drove to the Netherwood depot. On his arrival he found that the negro was footing it to the Fanwood depot, preparatory to taking the next train to the city. The officer accordingly drove on, and secured his man when about half way there. The articles of clothing were found in his possession. He was brought before Justice Nash on several complaints filed by the persons whose clothing had been stolen, and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury. The prompt action of the police officer alone prevented his escape.

A 150 Per Centum Chaff.

The Constitutionalist says: "The Constitutionalist was the first in this city to receive the news of the nomination of Cleveland for President, the office being besieged during the day by eager inquirers as to who was nominated. Immediately upon receipt of the news, a large American flag was festooned above the entrance to the office with the name of the next president attached to it.

The Constitutionalist is wrong. THE NEWS' specials from Chicago brought the first news of the nomination to this city. And the full report of the convention proceedings which is given in the Constitutionalist's supplement to this week was published just one week ago by The News. Notwithstanding this re-hash a week later the Constitutionalist, they only advanced 150 per cent on the original price charged by THE NEWS.

False Alarm.

Last evening about half past eight o'clock an alarm was rung to which all the fire department on duty responded, though no one knew for what the alarm was rung. Park avenue seemed to be the objective point. As Engine Co., No. 1, which was pulled by hand was turning into Park avenue from Second street along came Engine, No. 2, with horses on the run. In pulling out to avoid running down No. 1, No. 2 nearly ran down the lamppost on the corner. The horse on that side of the engine just grazed it; and the wheel scraped it considerably. No. 2 ran down Park avenue some distance, but No. 1 and the truck soon returned. It is said that it is known who rang the bell and that a strict watch will be kept to see that the act is not repeated.

State Matters.

The Burlington Opera House is closed this season.

Yesterday was Young Men's Christian Association Day at Ocean Grove.

The Grand Division Sons of Temperance of the State will meet at Camden next week.

Beverly's City Marshall recently got his discharges because he liberated a prisoner from the city's lock-up on his own responsibility.

John Hughes, a member of the Camden City Council, was held to bail last evening to answer for selling liquors to minors and on Sunday.

About $15,000 in money and many valuable prizes, donated by Philadelphia merchants, will be offered as premiums at the Mt. Holly fair this Fall.

A forest fire rages this side of May's Landing. A large territory has been burned over. The woods are very dry. It is said to have been started from a West Jersey engine.

The barns and outbuildings on the farm of James Balliet, near Indian Mills, Burlington county, were destroyed by an incendiary fire recently. The loss is only partially covered by insurance.

John Loubridge, a machinist employed in the Erie railway shops at Jersey City, had his hand caught in a machine on Wednesday, and it was crushed to a pulp. He was taken to St. Francis' hospital, where the hand was amputated.

Matthew Scranton, aged 23 years, committed suicide in his cell at the New Jersey State prison, in Trenton, on Wednesday night, by means of a rope made from a bed sheet. He came from Hudson County and had served two years of his five years' sentences.

Hector C. Hudson, one of the oldest and best known Justices of the Peace in New Jersey, died in Paterson yesterday after a long illness, aged about 65 years. He had been in active practice as a Justice since 1850, and was highly regarded by those having business with him.

Paterson has the champion fat baby in the person of Harry Hill Mannon, aged 11 months and weighing 70 pounds. He measures 36 inches around under the arms, 19 inches around the thigh, and 26 inches about the head, and is handsome and well proportioned in every way.

Postmaster W. T. Bailey, of Camden, was arrested recently upon the charges of embezzlement of $1,100 of Government funds, and of illegally disposing of postage stamps to his own profit. A warrant has also been issued for Assistant Postmaster James E. Alloo upon similar charges.

William Sullivan of Newark, a deck hand on the steamboat Wm. Penn Way, was knocked down and run over by a heavily laden truck as he was disembarking from a Pennsylvania ferryboat Wednesday. His right leg was crushed and he sustained serious internal injuries. He was removed to the Charity hospital.

Dwight Fay, of Hammonton, convicted at the April term of Court for selling liquor, and sentenced to six months in State Prison and a fine of $500, has had the sentence reduced by Judge Alfred Reed to two months imprisonment in the county jail, the fine to remain the same. He has been under bonds since his conviction.

Richard Wilson, employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad as master ship-carpenter, dropped dead Wednesday evening in the company's depot at Camden. Bordentown was his home. Mr. Wilson was 78 years old, and at one time was an extensive ship builder at Bordentown. During the war he constructed a number of sailing vessels for the government.

THE COAL COMBINATION.

Coal operators in the Pennsylvania fields formed a combination some years ago, for reasons no doubt borne of necessity, which has now grown into one of the most powerful and absolute of organizations. Its members are scattered along the sea-board, and their offices in many cases are princely in their appointments. The coal combination not only fixes the prices, at which the fuel, which is generous nature has so fumbished so abundantly from month to month, but also limits the amount that shall be mined in every four weeks. In other words, the coal operators have a compact by which the amount of the product shall be limited and then establish the price of the supply accordingly. The object of the cabal is first to prevent over-production, and second, to prevent low prices. It is to this organization that every consumer of coal is indebted for any infliction of high prices to which he may have been subjected. It is a high-priced combination with little conscience.

There are to round numbers 80,000 toilers in the anthracite and bituminous mines of Pennsylvania and Ohio. They are hard-working men, who live in miserable homes and at best secure but indifferent wages. If the coal combination preys upon the consumers, it imposes upon this army of begrimed toilers. Want and misery have hovered over the little hamlets that sleep on the sides of the carboniferous hills, and suffering has often been the lot of the people in consequence of the decisions of the Operators' Association. In order to avoid an over-supply and thereby prevent a reduction in prices the operators stop work in the mines. Sometimes the mines are employed only one week in the month and sometimes two and three. It is only when the demand is big that they put in a full month's work. Scant wages and irregular work means little pay and idleness. Little pay means want, and idleness means discontent, and with ignorant men worse. The 80,000 miners of Pennsylvania and Ohio have been putting up with these conditions for some years. Now they are hatching a revolt.

An organization is being formed in the coal fields to be known as "The Miners' Amalgamated Association." Its object is to fight the monopolies when the monopolies persist in trampling on them. It is growing in membership, and by the time the busy season begins, when the coal trade booms, this powerful organization as a body will call upon the operators' combination for an understanding. The miners will insist upon some arrangement about their pay and their time of work. If the old system is insisted on by the gentlemen who occupy the princely offices there will be a strike. The effect of such a strike cannot be foreseen. The miners are rough men: they have been long suffering and are vicious.

A Philadelphia lager beer saloon has adopted a plan for canvassing the political sentiments of its customers that is respectfully referred to the train vote taker. Two kegs of beer are called respectively Cleveland and Blaine kegs. Each inquirer for a glass of the fluid is asked his Presidential preferences and a glass drawn from the keg that matches the preference. Each evening the result is made known. One night the Cleveland keg has quenched more thirst, and another evening the Blaine keg is more nearly emptied. The Prohibitionists ought to offer this democratizing canvass by erecting rival water fountains and noting the political partiality of the consumers.

TO JUDGE by the New York Tribune Cleveland is already defeated; while a reader of the New York Times is given to understand that Blaine is defeated by a large majority. These are the two extremes of blind partisan zeal. Things will move about the same which ever side wins, except in the case of the office holders, who will have a general moving out. If Cleveland wins, to make room for a few hundred thousand hungry Democrats.

LIEUTENANT GREELY.

RECEIVING THE NEWS.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—There is great rejoicing here over the news telegraphed from St. John's, N. F., of the rescue of Lieut. Greely and five others of the Greely relief party by the expedition sent to their assistance under the direction of Lieut.-Commander Winfield Scott Schley. The loss of nineteen members of the gallant party naturally excites the deepest sympathy for their relatives and friends. Of the unfortunates and commiseration for their sad fate, but when the terrible privations to which all were subjected are considered great surprise is expressed that any returned alive. The recitals made by Commander Schley and Lieut. Greely are of thrilling interest, telling as they do, in graphic language, of the awful experiences of the intrepid men during their sojourn in the polar regions. The report of Commander Schley's expedition is shown to have been indeed timely, as a delay of twenty-four hours would have been fatal to all, and not a single member of the Greely party would have survived to tell the story of suffering, privation and death.

Both expeditions are regarded, from a scientific standpoint, as the most successful that have ever been made into the frozen regions of the north, and as all of the records of previous explorations and researches of Lieut. Greely have been preserved the importance of his intelligent efforts cannot be overestimated. For the first time in a period of three centuries America can claim the proud distinction of having penetrated to a point nearer to the pole than any other country on the globe.

Capt. Schley's Report.

The following telegram was received yesterday morning from Commander Schley:

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 17—9 a. m.

To Wm. E. Chandler, Secretary of the Navy, Washington:

Thetis, Bear and Loch Garry arrived here to-day from Cape Greenland, all well. Separated from Alert one hundred and fifty miles north during a gale. At 9 p. m. June 21, five miles off Cape Isabella, in Baffin's sound, Thetis and Bear rescued alive Lieut. A. W. Greely, Sergeant Brainard, Sergeant Frederick, Sergeant Long, Hospital Steward Biederbeck, Private Connell and Sergt. Ellison, the only survivors of the Lady Franklin Bay expedition. Sergt. Ellison had lost both hands and feet by frost-bite, and died July 4, at Godhaven, of effects of after amputation which had become imperative. Seventeen of the twenty-five persons composing this expedition died of starvation at Cape Sabine, where found. One was drowned while sealing to procure food. Twelve bodies of the dead were rescued and are now on board Thetis and Bear. The bodies of Lieut. Lockwood and Sergt. Rice were found alive Lieut. A. W. Greely, Sergeant Brainard, Sergeant Frederick, Sergeant Long, Hospital Steward Biederbeck, Private Connell and Sergt. Ellison, the only survivors of the Lady Franklin Bay expedition. Sergt. Ellison had lost both hands and feet by frost-bite, and died July 4, at Godhaven, of effects of after amputation which had become imperative. Seventeen of the twenty-five persons composing this expedition died of starvation at Cape Sabine, where found. One was drowned while sealing to procure food. Twelve bodies of the dead were rescued and are now on board Thetis and Bear. The bodies of Lieut. Lockwood and Sergt. Rice were found alive and were buried at Disco in accordance with the desire of the inspector of Western Greenland. Five bodies buried in the ice-foot near the camp will be sent away to-day for identification by surviving members of the party. The records and effects were found at Cape Sabine in 1883, and a small amount saved from the wreck of the Proteus in 1883 and landed by Lieuts. Garlington and Colwell on the beach where Greely's party had been forced to encamp. When these provisions were consumed the party was forced to live upon boiled seal-skin strips from their sealskin clothing, which soon afterwards gave out, and the men suffered when they were strong enough to make the exertion. As 1,000 shrimps were required to fill a gallon measure the labor was very great indeed. Lieut. Greely has been to Washington for orders.

SCHLEY.

The Rescued Greely.

Lieut. Greely, with the men, has supported me throughout with great skillfulness and unflinching resolution in accomplishing the great duty of relieving Greely. I would ask instruction about the party Greely, on the starboard hand by her master officers in several respects from mine. The Greely party are very much improved since rescue, but were critical in the extreme when found, and for several days after. Forty-eight hours delay in reaching them would have been fatal to all surviving. The season north is late, and the closest for years. Smith's sound was not open when I left Cape Sabine. The winter about Melville bay was the most severe for twenty years.

This great result is entirely due to the prompt action and unwearied energy of yourself and the secretary of war in fitting out this expedition for the work it has had the honor to accomplish.

W. S. SCHLEY, commander.

The three vessels sailed from St. Johns as follows: The Bear, May 5; the Thetis, May 13, and the Alert, May 19.

The Saved.

Lieut. Adolphus Greely, first lieutenant, Fifth cavalry, acting signal officer and assistant; married; wife's present residence San Diego, Cal.

Sergt. David L. Brainard, sergeant, Company I, Second cavalry; enlisted at Fort New York city; born in Orange county, N. Y.

Hospital Steward Henry Biederbeck, private, Company G, Seventeenth infantry; enlisted at Cincinnati, O.; born in Waldeck, Germany.

Maurice Connell, private, Company B, Third cavalry; enlisted at camp on Goose Creek, Wy.; born in Ireland.

Sergt. Joseph Elison, corporal, Company E, Tenth infantry, enlisted at Fort Wayne, Mich.; born in Ireland. Ellison's case was very much prostrated and badly frostbitten when found, and died at Godhaven on July 6, after undergoing a surgical operation.

Sergt. Julius Fredericks, Company I, Second cavalry; enlisted at Cleveland, O.; unmarried; born in Dayton, O.

Sergt. Joseph Long, Company F, Ninth infantry; enlisted at Omaha barracks, Neb.; born in Wurtenburg, Germany.

The Lost.

Jacob Bender, private, Company F, Ninth infantry; enlisted at Omaha barracks, Neb.; born in Friedberg, Germany.

William H. Cross, sergeant, general service, Washington, D. C.; married; born at Philadelphia, Pa.

William A. Ellis, private Company C, second cavalry; enlisted at New York city; born in Sweden, Europe.

Hampden S. Gardiner, sergeant, signal corps, Philadelphia, Pa.; unmarried; born at Philadelphia, Pa.

Charles Henry, private, Company E, Fifth cavalry; enlisted at Cincinnati, O.; born in Hanover, Germany.

Edward Israel, sergeant, Signal corps, Kalamazoo, Mich.; unmarried; born at Kalamazoo, Mich.

Winfield S. Jewell, sergeant, Signal corps; married; born at Lancaster, N. H.

Frederick F. Kislingbury, second lieutenant, acting signal officer, of Rochester, N. Y.; appointed from civil life; previous service as a private in the Fifty-fourth New York State militia in 1864 as a six months' man; he re-entered the service again in 1865; was promoted sergeant in 1873, and was created second lieutenant in October, 1873; he was a widower and had two children.

David Lion, sergeant, Company C, Second cavalry; enlisted at Philadelphia, Pa.; born at Philadelphia, Pa.

James B. Lockwood, first lieutenant, Twenty-third infantry; acting signal officer, Washington, D. C.; unmarried; is a son of Gen. Lockwood (retired), U. S. A.

Nicholas Nalor, corporal, Company H, Second cavalry; enlisted at Cincinnati, O.; unmarried; born at Luxembourg, Germany.

Dr. Octave Pavy, medical officer; married; wife's address, Maryville, Nodaway county, Mo.

Dr. Pavy's career was a remarkable one. He was born in Havre, France, and educated there. He accompanied a French expedition to Lady Franklin Bay two years ago, and joined in the Polar regions several years. He also joined the Howgate expedition. He was married in 1882 to Miss Celina Tribou and did work for other papers in this city. He afterward went west and studied medicine and took out a medical diploma. He then joined the Greely relief party, and on his way to the island of Greenland, where he had remained after the unsuccessful Howgate expedition.

David C. Ralston, sergeant, signal corps; unmarried; born at Bloomfield, Ohio.

George W. Rice, sergeant, Signal corps, Washington, D. C.; unmarried; born at Sidney, Nova Scotia.

R. R. Schneider, private, Company A, first cavalry; enlisted at Fort Columbus, New York harbor; born in Chemnitz, Germany.

William Whistler, private, Company F, Ninth infantry; enlisted at Omaha barracks, Neb.; born in Carroll county, Ind.; father's address is Monon, Ind.

Frederick Salkino, taken on as guide.

John Ellison, taken on as guide.

In addition to the men mentioned above, Jens Edward, an Esquimaux, and Frederick Thorley Christiansen, a half breed, both of Greenland, were engaged as interpreters for the expedition. The colony consisted of twenty-five men, all told.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

The Hardships and Sufferings Endured by the Party.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Gen. Hazen has received two telegrams from Lieut. Greely, containing additional particulars of the hardships and sufferings endured by the party since last August, as well as a summary of the results of their explorations during the past years. The first of these dispatches reads as follows:

"ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 17, 1884.—Chief signal office, Washington: Brainard, Biederbeck, Connell and Ellison, of Lady Franklin bay survivors, arrived to-day, having been rescued at the point of death from starvation by relief ships Thetis and Bear, on June 22, in Smith's Sound, at Cape Sabine. All are now in good health; but weak.

Driven Into Kane Inlet.

Abandoned steamer launch on Sept. 18, driven into northern pack, and forced to winter hundred miles the ships were forced to ram their way from land to land through ice varying in thickness from three to six feet, and when rafted much greater.

The Wasting West.

The Thetis and Bear reached Cape York on June 18, after a passage of twenty-one days in Melville Bay with the two advance ships of the Dundee whaling fleet. Two were also passed on the way down. Two were left behind, and the fate of the remaining one is unknown. Open water was met with at Cape York, and the ships pushed on to Littleton island on March 1st. Unfortunately Smith's sound remained open the entire winter, rendering crossing impossible. Game failed, despite daily hunting from early in February. Before the sun returned only fifty pounds of meat had been obtained. This, together with minute shrimps, sea weed, saxafras, rock-lichens and seal skins, were resorted to for food with results as shown by the number of survivors.

The Last Regular Food.

The last regular food was issued on May 14. As there were only 150 pounds of meat left by Garlington, I was compelled to send, in November, four men to obtain 144 pounds of English meat at Cape Isabella. During the trip Ellison from exhaustion lost hands and feet, and lost them all, surviving, however, through our terrible winter and spring until July 18.

The survivors owe their lives to the indomitable energy of Capt. Schley and Lieut. Emory, who, preceded by three, and accompanied by five whaling ships, with vessels from Upernavik through Melville bay into north water at Cape York with the foremost whalers. They gained a yard whenever possible and days held it. Smith's sound was crossed, and during one of the most violent gales I have ever known. The party travelled only at imminent risks of swamping. Four of us were then unable to walk, and could not have survived excepting twenty-four hours. Every care was bestowed upon us. We have saved and bring back copies of meteorological, tidal, astronomical, magnetic, pendulum and other records. Also positions, Tale and standard thermometers, forty-eight photographic negatives, a collection of plants and photographic prints. Esquimaux relics and other things, once necessarily abandoned. The Thetis remains here five days probably.

GREELY, Commanding.

THE STORY OF THE RESCUE

As Told by Capt. Sehl, Ice-Pilot of the Bear.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 18.—Capt. Sehl, ice-pilot of the Bear, gives the following interesting details of the rescue: "Sailed from St. Johns May 4, reached Upernavik on the 29th, Duck island on June 5, Cape York on the 12th, and Cape Parker on June 22 near 7 p. m. we had both ships fast to a heavy floe in Payer harbor and some of the officers and men left the ships for the shore in different directions. An officer from the Thetis found the record on Brevoort island, stating that Greely and party were all well and that he left Fort Conger on Aug. 9 and landed at Baird inlet on Sept. 29, after driving about on the ice nearly three weeks in the vicinity of Cape Sabine. The record also told where he found his winter camp.

A Sad Sight.

Our steam launch being out and ready we were immediately sent away for the camp, which was about three miles northwest of Cape Sabine. The Thetis blew her whistle to recall some of her men and they heard it at the camp, and as we neared the land we saw men running to and fro, since where he could look down the cape. He saw the boat and came down to where we were going to land. Seeing but one man and the boat's crew on board, the doctor thought it a bad omen. On jumping ashore the first question was how they all were. His answer was:

"There Are Seven of Us Left."

Sad news and a sudden reverse to our spirits of a quarter of an hour ago. But it was no time to reflect. We must try to save the living. Brought food to him and to the once passed some food that we were prepared with, and we at once started for the camp. It was blowing a gale. The camp was about two miles from where we were put under one end. The poor fellows had not strength enough to put it up.

Six Men Day Starving

and unable to help themselves. Pointing to one, they said he was dying; but he rallied and is doing well now. We cut a hole in the canvas to give us room and commenced to feed the starving men, all round gradually and not letting them have as much as they wanted. The launch was sent off to the ships, which was coming. The Thetis was also close by. Capt. Emory, Dr. Ames and a crew came on shore; a fire was made, the officers were attended to by Dr. Ames and given plenty of warm milk. Some of them were soon able to stand and stagger about. Executive Commander Schley and officers had arrived and began to supervise the landing of the stores.

Greatcoats and bear boots brought and the men were carried to the boats. They were only strong enough to be laid down by the side of each other on the deck. Then we started off, arriving on board each ship. It was then near midnight, the sun shining and wind blowing a gale, fortunately off shore. The ships kept like this from coming in upon us. We proceeded with a good crew to unearth the dead bodies and wrap them in blankets; a part were taken from each ship.

Ten were Buried on a Ridge, side by side, facing from the camp, with a very high mountain just back. Two others were lying a little distance below the camp, the survivors not having strength enough to bury them with the rest, making twelve bodies taken on board ship. Four others were buried on the ice from the winter house, but the ice had broken off and taken them with it.

Edwards, an Esquimaux, was drowned while hunting.

Total deaths since the party reached Cape Sabine, 18. J. Ellison, who was trying to get the 250 rations left by Beebe in 1882, got badly frost-bitten. During the winter bitten also, and his fingers dried up, hard. He also lost the top of his nose. For a few days he got along finely, but in a little while he took another change, went wrong in the head, finally going to his long home on the 4th of June.

Both Hips Got Dreadfully Frost-

AMERICA BEATS THE WORLD.

Furthest Point North Ever Reached. Discovery of Arthur Land.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Lieut. Greely's second dispatch is as follows:

FT. JOSEPH, N. F., July 17, 1884.

Chief Signal Officer, Washington, D. C.:

For the first time in three centuries England yields the honors of the farthest north. Lieut. Lockwood and Sergeant Brainard on May 13 reached Lockwood Island, in latitude 83.24, longitude 40.45. They saw from 4,000 feet elevation no land north or northwest, but to northeast of Greenland, 366 excluded, was lost to view in Cape Robert Lincoln, latitude 83.35, longitude 38. Lieut. Lockwood was turned back in 1882 by open water on north channel of shore, party barely escaping drift into polar ocean. Dr. Pavy in 1882, following Markham's route, was ninety miles due on the polar ocean north of Cape Joseph Henry, and escaped to land, abandoning nearly everything. In 1882 I made a spring sled later a summer trip into the interior of Grinnell Land.

Discovering Lake Hazen,

sixty by ten miles in extent, which is fed by ice from cape of North Grinnell Land, and is drained by Hazen river and Weyprecht fiord into Conyham bay and Archer's fiord. From summit of Mount Arthur, 5,000 feet, the contour of land west of Greenville bay convinced me that North Grinnell Land tends directly south from Lieut. Aldrich's furthest observation in 1876. In 1883 Lieut. Lockwood and Sergt. Brainard ascended the mountains skirting Grinnell Land, and ninety miles from Beaufox bay the head of Archer's fiord struck the head of a fiord from the western sea, temporarily checking their progress. Lieut. Lockwood from the center of the fiord in latitude 82.30, longitude 78.30. Lieut. Lockwood

Saw the Northern Shore Termination

of Grinnell Land, and the open polar sea extending some fifty miles, with Cape Lockwood some seventy miles distant, apparently a separate land from Grinnell Land. Have named the new land Arthur Land. Lieut. Lockwood followed—going and returning—an ice cape averaging about 7,250 feet perpendicular, and Sergt. Brainard followed Lieut's interior is ice-capped with a belt of country some sixty miles wide between the northern and southern ice caps. In March, 1882, Beebe, in command of the Proteus, landed from the northwest side of Mount Carey into Hayes sound, seeing on the northern coast Beebe cape and Beebe valley, discovered by Nares in 1876. The sound extends some twenty miles further west than shown by the English chart, but is possibly shut in by low land. Cape Beechey, Parker bay, sound and the two years' station duties observations, all operations, and the retreat to Cape Sabine were accomplished without loss of life; disease, however, prevailing. Scurvy was from bites. No scurvy was experienced at Conger and but one death from it occurred last winter.

GREELY, Commanding.

A VALLEY DISCOVERED.

Vegetation Abundant and the Climate Not Very Severe.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 18.—Lieut. Greely assured the United Press correspondent that no such thing as a polar sea actually existed, one of his party drifting into it but was blown back. He says he agrees in this with Capt. Nares, a valley running from near Lady Franklin bay to Polaris bay, west, about sixty wide was discovered. It is bounded north and south by continuous ranges of low mountains, and in the valley vegetation was abundant and the climate much milder than usual. This he styles

"The Eden of the North."

Greely says that 17,500 pounds of meat had been left by Garlington by party which relieved Greely. Under rations this would have reached in winter, the sound, twenty-five miles wide, being open, and in the spring the party were too weak to go. The survivors are very weak, recovering very slowly. Greely is extremely weak. His expedition, he says, would have been 25 per cent. more successful on record if food had been on Cape Sabine, where it should have been. The ships had been roughly used, as superhuman exertions were made to reach the vicinity of the party left Fort Conger, August 9, in a steam launch, three boats and a dinger. After their thirty days' feast on the ice floe, they decided to abandon the launch and boats, as too heavy to carry. The winter quarters consisted of a hut of stones covered by one boat and a sail. At Lady Franklin Bay, plenty of fresh meat and fish was had every day in spring, and they expected to find plenty at Cape Sabine. They found in the cache made by the Proteus crew of the two, how a damaged cache left by the British and a few rations left by the relief expedition of 1882. In autumn a foriorn hope started for Littleton island, but returned. Lieut. Nesbut Ellison's feet and hands were frozen and they were forced to abandon the meat and return. In the spring a tent was erected, and the party were too weak to fasten it properly.

Only two Barrels of Bread Left

In April Rice and Fredericks volunteered to find the abandoned meat. Rice and Fredericks returned in a terribly exhausted condition. Two men, Lockwood and Jewell, died in camp while Fredericks was away, and one, Israel, on the return sledge. After this little of moment, except constantly recurring deaths, occurred, until the rescue. Greely says he found a steam launch on the beach at Cape Isabella, and got out of their sleeping bags and went to a point, but seeing nothing they started to return. Jewell was unable to do so, and sat down to await their return. Greely says he found a steam launch, to which he shouted, and in a little while the rescuers landed.

Died on the Journey Back,

At Lieut. Greely's Home.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 18.—The news of the finding of the Greely party was received with the horns of the fairest communities in this section. Lieut. Greely's wife and children are living at Fairhaven, on the opposite side of the river from this city. Mrs. Greely, while joyful at her son's safety was deeply affected at the loss of so many of his party.

AT THE NAVY DEPARTMENT.

Highly Gratified at the Success of the Expedition.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The news of the rescue of the survivors of the Greely party was received at the navy department and created a profound sensation. It was the chief topic of conversation at the war and navy departments. The sentiment was universally one of gladness at the rescue of the seven men, mingled, of course, with sadness for the loss of the remaining eighteen of the party. Many well-informed officials had looked forward with dread to a report that all would be found dead, and none had the apprehensive even about the safety of Capt. Schley and the rescuing party. Both army and navy officials feel highly gratified at the success of Capt. Schley's expedition.

A Disposition to Criticise.

Now that Lieut. Greely has been found at Cape Sabine, there is a disposition shown by some to again criticise the efforts of Lieut. Garlington, who sailed with the ill-fated Proteus from St. Johns last June to find and provision Lieut. Greely and his party.

Gen. Hazen and Commander Walker are inclined to think what has been charged as the greatest error of the Proteus expedition —the failure to leave provisions at Littleton Island—would have made no difference in the sad result, as Greely and his men were unable to reach that point. Gen. Hazen thinks Garlington should have left more of the provisions saved from the Proteus at Cape Sabine. Capt. Davis, who was a member of the Proteus board, thinks that the great error of the expedition was in not landing stores at Cape Sabine instead of trying to take them further north. Had this been done the Greely party might all have been saved but, of course, Garlington had no orders to land stores there and could not do it.

Gen. Hazen to Lieut. Greely.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Gen. Hazen yesterday afternoon sent the following dispatch to Lieut. Greely:

"Our hearts are overflowing with gladness and thanks to God for your safety, and in tenderness for your dead, without fault of yours, are dead. Our family are well and in San Diego."

Admiral Nicholls also wired Commodore Schley his hearties congratulations to himself, officers and men, and directed him to use his discretion about the care and transportation of the bodies.

At Israel's Home.

DETROIT, July 18.—Edward Israel, the astronomer of the Greely party, was a native of this city. The news of his death fell friends reside. His mother is prostrated with grief over the sad intelligence, which was communicated to her yesterday afternoon. His family are among the most highly respectable people of that town. His age was 25.

Notified of his Son's Death.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—A telegram was received by General Lockwood, father of Lieut. Lockwood, of the Greely party, announcing the death of his son. He received the news of Lieut. Lockwood's death, and stated that he had immortalized himself by lasting a party to the furthest point north that has ever been reached.

PROGRESS OF THE CHOLERA.

No Perceptible Change for the Better at Marseilles or Toulon.

PARIS, July 18.—There was no marked increase in the number of deaths from cholera at Marseilles and Toulon yesterday. The death list is about the same as Wednesday. The weather has been favorable to cholera patients, but the disease is still confined to and spreading in the districts adjacent to the unfortunate cities above named. The death list records sixty-nine deaths at Marseilles and forty-six at Toulon. The two cities are closely quarantined, and every precaution is exerted against a spread of the fatal malady.

The French Academy of medicine has decided, by a unanimous vote, that a land quarantine in France is impracticable. It also declared that disinfection process is inefficacious and illusory, and urges the establishment of cholera hospitals at all large railroad stations.

Political Gossip from Albany.

ALBANY, July 18.—The feeling is about as usual. Democrats are hilarious, Blaine and Logan are lugubrious, Manning will say nothing as to the probable action of the State Democratic committee in regard to Purcell's successor. Of course, a strong effort will be made to defeat him. There is some talk about the defection of the local colored element, but it amounts to nothing. Cleveland's labor bureau will probably have something to say to-night. Over 600 of the workmen at the Capitol will be laid off. Their retirement is due to the lack of appropriations by the legislature. The governor has nothing to do with it, but as the workmen may want to talk and they may talk interestingly.

Run on a Private Bank.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 18.—A. J. C. S. Harrison, a private banker of this city and the state, suffered a run. Harrison refused to pay over ten per cent., although he said he would have plenty of money to-day. The clearing house protested $4,500 in checks drawn on Harrison's bank. His conduct caused much severe comment, as he was receiver of the Indiana Banking company, now defunct, and is charged to have a large fund belonging to that institution on deposit in his own bank. His creditors claim the fund is preferred unless their claims are adjusted without delay.

Nine Hours a Day's Labor.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Building Trades' Assembly, composed of the bricklayer's union, yesterday visited the members of the craft engaged upon various buildings in course of construction, and requested that they quit work and formally notified the men that unless the demand for a reduction of the hours of labor was acceded to before then they should not remain at work after that time. Several contractors in the city are determined to resist the demand, but as there are less than half a dozen bricklayers in the city, the contractors will be at the mercy of the men and will probably be compelled to surrender.

The Diamond Field.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The following is the result of the baseball games played yesterday:

At Louisville—Louisville, 1; Cincinnati, 2.

At Cleveland—Cleveland, 2; Detroit, 3.

At Baltimore—Baltimore, 12; Brooklyn, 0.

At Pittsburg—Alleghany, 3; Washington, 2.

At Boston—Providence, 5; Boston, 4.

At Buffalo—Buffalo, 1; Chicago, 3.

At New York—Metropolitans, 3; Athletics, 5.

At Washington—Chicago, 1; National, 0.

DID HE COMMIT SUICIDE?

Mystery Surrounding the Disappearance of a Wealthy Man.

Warner D. Hatch Bids His Wife an Affectionate Good-by and Is Seen No More—Suicide Suspected.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Warner D. Hatch, president of the Hatch Engraving and Lithographing company, of No. 34 Nassy street, lived in an elegant villa on the top of a grassy, sloping hill in the village of Dobbs Ferry. The grounds about his house are considered the most beautiful for miles around, rivalling those of Jay Gould and Cyrus Field, which are close by, in romantic surroundings.

Surrounded by all the luxuries a man could wish for, Mr. Hatch, being childless, spent his spare time in the company of his wife, a refined lady, in the old homestead on the hill, where his father before him lived. He loved fine horses, and his turnout was most elegant. No home was more happy, and from the testimony of the villagers there never was a more generous man than Mr. Hatch. Regular in his habits, devoted to his wife and business, he was looked upon as a model man.

Tuesday morning he left his home for New York, bidding his wife a most affectionate good-by, promising to attend to a little shopping and return as early as possible. This was the last heard of him until Wednesday, when a note reached John H. Miller, a lawyer, of No. 81 Pine street, who attends to the legal business of the Hatch Engraving and Lithographing company, signed by Mr. Hatch, saying that he intended to commit suicide by jumping off the steamer St. Johns on one of her trips to Long Branch. He further explicitly said that he would select a spot somewhere off Sandy Hook for the consummation of the act, and that his hat and cane would be found on the boat. Another letter somewhat similar was received by Mrs. Hatch.

The lawyer investigated the matter and to his surprise, upon inquiry of the officers of the St. Johns, was handed the hat worn by Mr. Hatch with his card inside. A deck hand had found at the port side of the main deck behind the ladies' cabin when the boat landed at Long Branch on her 12:15 trip, which is a special one for the accommodation of visitors to the races at Monmouth Park.

Suicide was apparent, but no cause could be divined. Although president of a large business ranking among the first in its line, Mr. Hatch was not at all dependent on the profits of the business, being a man of wealth. His father before him was a very wealthy man, owning more than a quarter of a million dollars' worth of property in Dobbs Ferry, all of which, together with a handsome sum in cash, was inherited by Mr. Hatch, who was an only child. His wife brought him a large dower, which she inherited from her grandmother, estimated at nearly $1,000,000. The greater part of this wealth was deposited in a trust company. Mr. Hatch using only such amounts as he chose to invest in profitable schemes. This, in connection with his affectionate domestic relations, almost precludes the idea that he had committed suicide for any reason of financial or other troubles.

From a very reliable source it was ascertained that lately Mr. Hatch speculated a great deal, especially in the Keely motor, in which he placed great confidence. During the past few years it is said he lost heavily. How far he became involved no one can say. The police are making every effort to find the body or the man.

The Kansas Republicans.

TOPEKA, Kas., July 18.—The Republican state convention assembled again yesterday. Judge J. C. Strang, chairman of the committee on resolutions, presented a report with the remark that it was the unanimous action of the committee and had been arrived at through harmony and in the spirit of concession. The platform declares that the Republicans of Kansas rejoice over the victories of principles that have glorified their career since they first met at Osawatomie, twenty-five years ago; indorses the nomination of James G. Blaine and John A. Logan, the first citizen of the Republic and the brave and gallant Union soldier, and pledges to them the largest majority ever given in that state; approves the national Republican platform and honest enforcement of the state constitutional amendment; that the full effects of prohibition may be realized; demands that the present railroad law be so strengthened and amended as to remove its cumbersome features and to unsuccessfully vest in the board of railroad commissioners all necessary power to accomplish the good sought to be obtained, and to compel compliance with reasonable orders of the board.

An amendment offered by Col. Anthony in favor of a constitutional convention was defeated, and the platform was adopted.

Albert H. Horton was then nominated by acclamation, and W. A. Johnston for associate justice.

Col. John A. Martin, editor of The Atchison Champion, and late secretary of the Republican national committee, was nominated for governor by a rising vote and received three cheers, for which he returned thanks in a most graceful manner.

Telegraph Consolidation.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Baltimore and Ohio and Bankers and Merchants' telegraph companies and the Postal Telegraph and Cable company, have united. Hereafter the three companies will pool their earnings and expenses for a period of twenty-five years, and will be conducted under one management, consisting of a joint committee committee composed of the executive committees of the several companies. Mr. J. H. Bates, president of the Baltimore and Ohio company, will act as executive manager.

The union of the three companies brings under one control over 16,000 miles of pole lines and 220,000 miles of wire lines. The Bennett-Mackay cable will form a part of the system.

Fresh Plots Against the Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 18.—The existence of a plot to blow up the palace at Warsaw during the czar's stay therein has been discovered. A justice of the peace named Barkovil, who is suspected of complicity in the conspiracy, has been arrested. A quantity of arms and dynamite, which were to have been used by the plotters in carrying out their design, were found.

Fifteen Killed—Many Injured.

PARIS, July 18.—A dispatch from Pondicherry, capital of the French possessions in India, states that a rocket exploded during the festivities connected with the anniversary of the fall of the Bastile. The building in which the rocket exploded contained a large quantity of firework, and a fearful explosion resulted, killing fifteen persons and injuring many others.

Their Efforts Nobly Rewarded.

LONDON, July 18.—The Standard says that it is understood in some of the Grecely exports he requires no command. The have both and enough, without any moral being used. The last great effort to find the body has been nobly rewarded.

A. FLAT.

(Lido.)

She: "Why did you come to the seaside so late this year?"

He (recently married): "I have been restocking the city to get a stylish flat for next winter, but I couldn't find one."

She: "You are not as lucky as your wife."

Mr. Vance Wants to Go Fishing.

(Augusta Chronicle.)

I asked Senator Vance if he were not tired of staying in Washington. He drew a mammoth sigh from the depths, and in tones of languor said: "I long for adjournment. I want to go fishing. The campaign is about to burst over my state and the country, but I'll go fishing come if I die for it. I want to get back to old North Carolina. I want to wake up in the morning and see the pine trees, and I want to smell them when I go to bed, as their perfume floats into the window and makes me dream that I am a child again. Yes, verily, I want to go out into our fields once more and see a nigger plowing with a one-eyed mule, with a coffee sack for a plow line. That sight would be more agreeable to me than a vision of Araby the Blest. I am like the servant of the porter in the 'Black Crook'—'I want to go home! I want to go home!'" May the Lord, in his mercy, permit the whole conclave at the capital to go home.

The Science of Phrenology.

(New York Sun.)

"The development at the back of the head, my friends, indicates parental affection" explained the phrenologist. "Now you will observe, by feeling of the back of my head, "that this bump is abnormal in size, thus indicating that he loves and reverses his parents to an unusual degree. Is this not so, my lad?"

"Naw."

"What's that! You do not love your parents?"

"I think well enough of 'em," the boy replied, "but I ain't very fond of de old man. That bump you're feelin' on he giv' me last night wid a base ball club.

A Horse Monthly.

(Texas Siftings.)

The last hay had so nearly failing for the poor old horse.

But the poor old horse felt for the boy, all the same.

Senator Thurman's Fish Story.

(Cincinnati Times.)

Once upon a time, when crowded almost his presidential aspirations, Mr. Thurman replied; "I really have no ambition in that direction." A look of incredulity on every face was the only response. The judge took in these looks and related a little story.

"One summer I was at the Oakland House, Maryland, spending a little vacation up in the cool mountain region. We got talking fishing stories. I related something of my own experience when I was present and was caught a fish weighing forty-two pounds. When I told the weight there was a general laugh, and I was humorously awarded the prize for telling the biggest lie. Finally I remarked to my incredulous friends that I hoped soon to convince them of the correctness of my story that in western waters there were fishes of ninety pounds weight. When I returned to Columbus I went to the leading restaurateur and instructed him to procure me the largest catfish he could possibly secure. He replied in a few days that he had one. I walked over and found an excellent specimen, weighing about seventy pounds. It was blind boned and carefully packed in ice, and shipped him by express to my disbelieving friends at the Oakland. They had a fine feast, and all heartily congratulated myself as president and secretary, and passed the following resolution, which was sent by me:

"Resolved, That the truth of Allen G. Thurman's statements should never be questioned; that the fish stories are always standardly true, especially his certain stories."

The sobriety of eligible gentlemen at the summer resorts is noticeable this season. The ladies are not without escort, however.

Each Founded a Temperance Society.

(Lido.)

Judge William Carter, of Sheboygan, Michigan, and Judge Caswell Marks, of Selma, Alabama, were both natives of Lexington, Kentucky. In boyhood they had jammed the same cat's head into the same milk pitcher, stolen peaches from the same tree, got trounced by the same farmers, and been otherwise envyingly intimate friends, afterward chums at college and then errand boys in the same office. Later in life they started, and rose to sublime honors in their separate places. Last January they met for the first time since their parting, in Lexington, and brewed a convivial bowl in honor of the event. About midnight, full of affection and enthusiasm, they retired in the same bed. It was a huge affair, standing in the middle of the room, and capable of being taken up by ropes to the ceiling while the room was being cleaned. It was a very cold night, and they placed their clothing upon the foot of the bed. Just after they fell asleep four friends silently, softly, drew the bed by the ropes nearly to the ceiling, and left them thus suspended about ten feet from the floor. They then locked the door outside and retired.

At 2 a. m. Judge Carter woke with that species of thirst which usually comes after a Kentucky punch and incidentally known as "hot coppers." Leaping lightly out of bed to get the ice pitcher, he went whirling down ten feet, alighting with a soul-stirring thump on all fours.

There was a long and painful pause. Then he peered upward through the darkness and called:

"Caswell!"

[No reply.]

"O Caswell!"

[Feeble cries.]

"Cus!"

"Zhi—usti—what!" The judge was awakening.

"I've fallen through a trap," yelled the now affrighted judge; "get up and light a candle."

"You here are you!" queried Judge Carter, sleepily, framing his opinion that his honorable brother was drunk.

"Down here. Fell through a trap. Don't get out on my side of the bed."

"All right."

And Judge Marks, sitting out on his own side, turned three somersaults and landed on the seat of his pants. It was then he convinced that they had fallen into a den of thieves, and were possibly to be murdered. The jokers had closed the heavy wooden shutters so no light could enter and removed all the furniture. The judges groped around on hands and knees nearly frozen to death, and only at daybreak discovered the bed, climbed into it and got warm enough to take the thing over.

There were recently two temperance societies started under glorious auspices. The headquarters of one is at Selma, the other at Sheboygan.

An Old Story.

[The Judge.]

His trousers came too long.

His trousers came from the tailor too long. He asked his wife to shorten them a couple of inches. She said she would be too busy. Then he asked his daughter. She also declared her young man would not permit her to do such things. So he asked his mother and the cook, but the cook was going to the theater, and his mother was mortally insulted at the second request. But it happened that his wife retained and took off two inches, and his sister also did the same. Finally his son came home and took off two inches, and the cook heard that a grocer's wife had taken seats in the same row, so didn't go to the theatre for fear of social ban of such, so that—well, his trousers came too long.

The Life of a Watering Place Man.

(Yonkers Statesman.)

"Look here, Smith," said a city boarder, who was stopping for a few days at Coney Island, "this hair is not as good as what I got here last summer."

"Of, don't, now, why," replied the waiter, in some surprise, "it's the same hair, sir."

Citizen-Smith leaves without partaking, and wondering why he didn't think of that before.

Locals.

—Two long side steps have been placed on the Hook and Ladder.

—A Reform Club has been organized at Martinville, Somerset county.

—The Firemen's Relief Association of Amboy have $625.45 in the treasury.

—The Somerville base ball club beat the Westfield club on Thursday by a score of 24 to 12.

—It is said that Green brook is now navigable, so to speak, from Tier's lake to Hyde's pond.

—The presiding elder of the Elizabeth district will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist Episcopal Church to-morrow evening.

—It is reported that a large number of crabs are being caught along the Raritan shore, at Amboy, near the draw bridge.

—The union services of the Trinity Reformed and the First Presbyterian Churches will be held to-morrow the same as last Sunday.

—Owing to a small break in the Delaware and Raritan Canal, west of Bound Brook, the water will be drawn off to-day for repairing it.

—The State Convention of the Firemen's Relief Association, meets in Hoboken during September. Delegates will probably be sent from this city.

—The old "penny orchard," now known as Vail's Spring, and the lookout near by are favorite stopping places for Sunday afternoon walkers.

—John Heath, of Raritan, took from a colony of Italian bees, forty-two boxes of honey, besides two gallons extracted, in all about eighty pounds.

—The meeting at the Warren Mission Chapel last evening was one of the largest yet held. A number of speakers took part. One re-signer was secured.

—THE EVENING NEWS is a daily paper just started in Plainfield, Mr. T. W. Morrison is its editor. We wish him abundant success.—Perth Amboy Republican.

—The entire number of cars used yesterday for the excursion of the Trinity Reformed and First Presbyterian Churches, including the additions made at Roselle, was fourteen.

—The wooden pavement on Park avenue from Front street to the railroad bridge will do duty but a week longer. It is then to be taken up, and good crushed stone is to take its place.

—A series of dime entertainments are to be given once a month in the Reform Club rooms at Bound Brook for the benefit of the club. The first entertainment will be a vocal and instrumental concert on next Saturday evening.

—The Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of this city, will visit the Good Will Lodge of Scotch Plains, next Friday evening. All the members of Perseverance Lodge are requested to be present on that occasion.

—A philosopher says: "The merchant who advertises his business judiciously is a wise man. Look around you and search out those who do the most profitable business and get the big share of trade, and you will find those who use printer's ink."

—Always go from home to get news. The Home News of New Brunswick tells us that "James Clark, of Plainfield, is mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for State Senator, for Union county." A son of ex-Congressman Ross is also mentioned.

—It will cost about $500 to put a new boiler in Warren Engine No. 3. The present boiler has been declared unsafe. It is probable that the committee on repairs and supplies of the Fire Board will have an expert examine the boilers of all the engines in the department.

—Lilienstern the Plainfield clothier is constantly offering inducements to those desiring tasty and well made garments at prices which cannot be beat. If you have much money or little, Lilienstern can suit you in clothing and furnishings of all kinds for men, boys and youths. His custom department is equally abreast of the times. Mr. Lilienstern availed himself of an advertisement in THE NEWS from the outset, and we trust the host of friends of this enterprise will remember our business friends in their purchases. We regard Mr. Lilienstern among the first.

—Messrs. Reynolds, Swyter and Brokaw of Bound Brook, the committee to look after the street lamp matters, met on Monday night and awarded the contract for furnishing the lamps to Thomas Rolfe. R. A. Rose received the contract for supplying the posts. The committee has located the positions for the new lamps as follows: Main street, 13; Second street, 7; High, 7; Somerset, 3; Union avenue, 7; Shuppike, 4; total 41. The lamps are the Auburndale pattern, which extinguish themselves after burning any number of hours desired. They will probably be ready for use by September 1st.

Miller and Wiberly's Donation.

We are requested to state that Miller and Wiberly, the popular druggists of our city, have generously offered to donate the entire receipts of their Soda Water Fountain to-day to the Reform Club.

—At the recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the New York and New Jersey brick manufacturers, it was decided to shut down the yards for the season on the 30th of September. This will reduce the production of brick about 120,000,000.

Some Mysterious Wedding Cake.

Two or three days ago an unknown lady, wearing a mourning veil, passed through a portion of the Fifth ward, Elizabeth, and seeing a child on a corner, asked him to take a package to the house she indicated. It was delivered, and on being opened was found to contain a diamond-shaped box of fruit cake, tied with a white satin ribbon. There were two cards tied with a satin ribbon, and containing the name of a gentleman and lady. The cards were in a white envelope, and this was directed to the lady and gentleman who received them. The cards were not engraved, but written. The names are unknown, and no one seems to have any knowledge of them. There seems to be some mystery connected with the sending of the cake and the cards, and the gentleman and his wife have declined to partake of the cake, because they do not know who it is from, and they are a little suspicious. There are, so far as known, no such names in Elizabeth as those on the cards, and anxious inquiry is being made.

Somerville Firemen's Excursion.

The Bound Brook Chronicle says: The third annual excursion of Somerville Engine Company, No. 1, took place on Wednesday. This year they went to Coney Island and everybody who accompanied the boys seemed to have a good time. The weather was all that could be desired, and in spite of the fact that only three hundred persons availed themselves of the privilege of a cheap trip to the seashore, the fire company will add nearly $100 to their treasury as a result of the affair.

It is greatly to the discredit of a large number of the property holders of Somerville that they fail to support the Fire Department in the way they should. The firemen devote their time and money to the support of their organization, without remuneration, and yet when some of the wealthy citizens are asked to invest a dollar or two in excursion tickets they refuse to lend their assistance, and in this way discourage the Department more than little. When some rich property owners are in danger of loosing their building by fire, they are glad enough to have the services of the boys in extinguishing the flames."

An Insane Wanderer Restored to His Friends.

A tramp, giving his name as Ferdinand Hawthorne, kept a New Providence family up all night recently by prowling about and not leaving the place when told to go. He was arrested by Constable Hand, and brought before Justice Nash, of this city. The Justice gave him ninety days in the county jail.

At the time of the commitment, some doubts existed as to the man's sanity. The city physician was unwilling to decide upon the case, and the Justice requested the authorities at Elizabeth to investigate the matter. They did so, and the man was pronounced insane. His friends have been found in Third avenue, New York. Freeholder Martine came to this city yesterday, and obtained the man's discharge from Justice Nash. He will be taken to his friends to-day.

The City's Cross-Walks.

A greatly needed improvement, which will soon be accomplished, is that of making the various cross-walks about town and the road bed of the streets of the same, or nearly the same, level. Owing to the small amount of money which has been formerly spent upon the streets, the road bed has been gradually washed away, leaving the cross-walks high and dry. Considerable damage has been done to the fire engines and carriages in going over these cross-walks, and complaints arising from the same have been loud and numerous. The street committee of the Council will probably soon have the evil remedied.

An Interesting Relic.

While digging on the old road near Kessbey's factory, at Amboy, some weeks ago, Mr. E. S. Hope unearthed a medal which was given by the English Government to Admiral Boscawen in commemoration of his capture of Cape Breton and Louisburg, July 16, 1758.

The spot on which the medal was found is on the line of retreat taken by the American army after the battle of Long Island and previous to the battle of Freehold, and no doubt was lost by a British officer.

The medal is to be sent to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington.

Meeting of the Board of Appeals.

The Board of Managers of the Fire Department acting as a Board of Appeals in the case of assessments for fire taxes met yesterday afternoon from four to six o'clock. A few cases came before them, which were promptly adjusted. There were present of the Board, Messrs. Van Winkle, Jones, Morris and Cutter.

State Matters.

The illness of Hon. John Hill, it is believed, will be fatal.

The Delaware and Raritan Canal is just fifty years old.

Julia Ewing, of Kinsville, Hunterdon county, broke his arm recently, while in the act of throwing a stone.

The strike of rag-sorters at the Kingsland Mills, Franklin, proves a failure. The places of the strikers have been filled by others.

The bays and sounds along the coast in Cape May and Atlantic are alive with crabs. They are caught by asmall are by the hundred.

Work will be resumed on Monday in the large quarry of J. W. Boyce at Avondale. Sixty men have been idle owing to the stoppage of operations.

Mrs. Stiles, while engaged in picking coal on the meadow side of the track at Centreville yesterday, was struck by drill engine No. 19 and fatally injured.

The crew of the Manasquan life-boat at Atlantic City saved two brothers named Webster, residents of Philadelphia, from the surf on Wednesday.

Isaac Matthews, of Mount Airy, Hunterdon county, exhibits a stalk of timothy which contains sixty-four stalks, all of which have evidently grown from a single seed.

Mayor Haynes, of Newark, has issued a proclamation cautioning the killing of dogs. This is taken advantage of by boys, who drown them and then sell their skins and entrails.

General William J. Sewell yesterday officially announced that the division of the National Guard of this State will go into camp near Sea Girt on August 18th, and will remain one week.

The City Solicitor of Camden has been authorized to sell on August 11th, all properties in that city on which the taxes are unpaid. There are about $60,000 now due from this source.

It is stated that the basis upon which the Camden Coach Company compromised with Loring Sparks is the judgment he obtained for the loss of an eye was that the company pay him $2,500 and costs.

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Thomas Cooper, the oldest resident of the First Congressional District was celebrated yesterday at Willow Grove, Cumberland county, with great eclat.

A party of fishermen caught in the ocean, near Roselle, on Wednesday, the largest sturgeon ever seen on the Jersey Coast. It weighed over 300 pounds, measured five feet across its back, had a six-foot sweep of tail, and was a veritable wonder.

The next fair at Waverly will be held September 15th to 19th inclusive, and, as usual, $15,000 are offered in premiums and purses. The premium lists are already published, and may be had on application at Messrs. Clark's office, No. 5 Park Row, New York.

School Trustee John Patterson, of Weehawken, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with having thrashed School Principal Goldsmith in the house of the school some weeks ago, was fined $250 and costs in the Court of Sessions yesterday.

Two guests of the Park House, Newark, were robbed on Thursday night by a bold thief who registered under the name of Smith and who quitted the hotel at an early hour yesterday morning. The thief obtained a considerable sum of money and some jewelry.

Jacob Guttinger of Atlantic county, was yesterday held in $500 bail by United States Commissioner J. Willard Morgan for his appearance at the next term of the United States District Court, charged with peddling manufactured tobacco without a license.

President Dermott, of the Jersey City Board of Finance, has suggested that the freeholders, to be named by the Mayor, the Board of Finance and Citizens' Association, shall assist the Commissioners of Appeal in equalizing assessments. The Board of Finance adopted the suggestion.

The general committee to make arrangements for the annual Sunday School Convention at Asbury Park has been organized as follows: Chairman, Rev. R. S. Everitt; Secretary, J. D. Conover; Treasurer, L. E. Riddle. The date of the convention has been fixed for Wednesday, Aug. 27.

City Clerk Scott, of Jersey City, has thus far received only 903 applications for liquor licenses, against 1,069 granted last year. This does not indicate that 166 dealers have gone out of the business, but that some of them may be held off without a license this year, the price of a license having been advanced from $25 to $50.

Mr. Lambeck, who has by foreclosure of mort gage come into possession of the People's Bread Company, says that the investigation which is going on shows that the peculations of Treasurer Ely, Jr., and Superintendent Johnson, from the company exceed the amount—about $15,000—recently stated by Henry Schuats, of the company.

The Jemenez Heirs Association held their annual meeting in Camden on Thursday and elected Dr. Alexander Kirkpatrick, President, Joseph L. Wilkins, Secretary, and Dr. Justus Lowry, Treasurer. The report showed a total expenditure of $6,985.76 for the year, and a balance of $18.39 on hand.

Paymaster Hess, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, completed the work of paying the employees on the main line and branches, including the New Jersey Southern Railroad, on Friday, Thursday. Orders have been issued to begin the payment of the June wages this morning. No further trouble is apprehended.

A three-year old son of Edward Odell, of 261 Market street, Paterson, died yesterday from injuries received by being knocked down by a horse in the street. It was alleged that the horse was driven by Thomas McCran, but McCran denies this, although he has paid the funeral expenses and doctor's bills.

It has been found that at the valuation of city property of Paterson as made by the Assessors the tax rate will be $2.20, instead of $2.50, which was decided upon will not suffice to raise the amount of money appropriated by the Board of Chosen Freeholders for expenses of the current year. As the charter forbids a higher tax rate than $2.50, the Aldermen will have to reconsider some of the proposed expenditures.

Workmen who were making an excavation at Ferry street, Hoboken, yesterday for the foundations of a new railroad bridge, unearthed an old canal-boat about ten feet below the surface. On breaking into what resembled the cabin of the boat they found two human skeletons lying side by side. The skeletons were those of a man and woman. The boat was evidently sunk in the days of the canal-way and a resort for canal boats in the winter. The discovery of the skeletons has given rise to considerable mystery. The generally accepted theory is that the boat was swamped by a high tide and that the man and woman were drowned. It is also supposed that the boat was thought to be abandoned and was towed away filled up without anybody knowing that the skeletons were in it. The skeletons were removed to the morgue.

A BLAINE BOOMER.

We publish to-day Mr. Blaine's letter of acceptance. Only a few days ago any intelligent and impartial observer, surveying the political field with a knowledge of the antecedents and present interests of the various states, would be compelled to admit that there was not any likelihood of those set down as sure for either party going contrary to their record. This being admitted gave 174 Republican electors, against 153 Democratic, leaving 27 electors to be gained by the Republicans against 48 by the Democrats. The latter cunningly selected their candidates with special reference to these points, taking Cleveland as the man most likely to carry New York, the most important of the doubtful States, and Hendricks as the man most likely to carry Indiana the only other doubtful State which alone with New York has the necessary number of electors to give a majority. The records of both Cleveland and Hendricks are that they are the strongest in their respective States. Concerning the men, therefore, the Democrats are considered to have displayed much wisdom in their choice, although, regarding New York, Horatio Seymour, Horace Greeley, Samuel Jones Tilden and Winfield Scott Hancock, were all from that State.

The Republicans seem to have recognized this, and, as we stated, a few days ago, are directing their attack on the Democratic position on the tariff question, with the view of forcing a breach in the Democratic column, whereby would require more than New York and Indiana in order to win.

It must be admitted that the Democratic position on the tariff question is exceedingly vulnerable, but, as the protection element of that party, combined with the Republicans, could doubtless protect the country, it was not likely to effect to any material extent the result of the campaign. Now, however, the aspect is changed. Blaine's letter of acceptance shows conclusively that the great prosperity of the entire country, the agricultural and manufacturing interests alike, are due to protection. He has struck the first really effective blow at the campaign and knocked the props out from under the Democrats, so far as the tariff question is concerned. With additional interest excited by the "Plumed Knights'" letter, the American people will watch for Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance.

DOG LAW.

A valuable shepherd dog belonging to a farmer in Northern New York, while crossing over a neighboring farm, got into an altercation with the neighbor's bull dog, and was so roughly handled in the fight which ensued, that he died in consequence. The owner of the shepherd dog wishes to know whether he can recover the value from the owner of the bull dog. He says that his dog had a gentle disposition and was not given to fighting.

It is very doubtful whether, under the circumstances, the value of the dog could be recovered. At the English common law, dogs were not regarded as having intrinsic value, and they could not be the subject of larceny (4 Blackstone, 236). But this is not the present American doctrine, for there are now many cases in which damages have been awarded for the unlawful killing of valuable dogs (109 Mass., 273; 60 Ill., 211). In these cases, however, man has generally had a hand. The reported decisions involving the law of dog fights pure and simple, in which man has not been present as a modifying influence, are not numerous.

Where one keeps a dog which he knows has a dangerous and ugly disposition, it is his duty to so restrain it, that no harm can come from its evil propensities. He will be liable if he fails to perform this important duty. And the rule will apply where other dogs are injured, unless it can be clearly shown that the injured dog was trespassing, or that it was engaged in a common dog fight. —Agriculturist.

THE ACCEPTANCE

By Mr. Blaine of the Republican Nomination.

ARGUMENT FOR PROTECTION

Against Foreign Free Trade and Pauper Labor.

AN ELABORATE DOCUMENT.

The Tariff Question—Our Internal Commerce — Relations with Foreign Powers — The Civil Service — The Mormon Question — Our Currency. The Sacredness of the Ballot.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 15th, 1884.

The Hon. John B. Henderson and others of the committee, Kansas City, Mo.

GENTLEMEN—In accepting the nomination for the presidency tendered me by the Republican national convention, I beg to express a deep sense of the honor which is conferred and of the duty which is imposed. I venture to accompany the acceptance with some observations upon the questions which in the present condition of affairs seem to demand especial attention.

The Hon. John B. Henderson, and others of the committee, Kansas City, Mo.

GENTLEMEN—In accepting the nomination for the presidency tendered me by the Republican national convention, I beg to express a deep sense of the honor which is conferred and of the duty which is imposed. I venture to accompany the acceptance with some observations upon the questions which in the present condition of affairs seem to demand especial attention. The first and the leading position to the industrial interests of the country as affected by the tariff on imports. On that question the two political parties are radically in conflict. Almost the first act of the Republicans, when they came into power in 1861, was the establishment of the principle of protection in American capital. This principle the Republican party has ever since steadily maintained, while on the other hand the Democratic party in congress and out has persistently and outspokenly warred upon it. Twice within that period our opponents have destroyed tariffs arranged for protection, and since the close of the civil war, whenever they have controlled the house of representatives, hostile legislation has been attempted—never more conspicuously than in their principal measure at the late session of congress.

THE TARIFF QUESTION.

Revenue laws are in their very nature subject to frequent revision, in order that they may be adapted to changes and modifications of trade. The Republican party is not contending for the permanency of any particular statute, but for the principle the two parties does not have reference to a specific law. It is far broader and far deeper. It involves a principle of wide application and of manifest influence, namely a theory which we believe to be unsound in connection and inevitably hurtful in practice. The issue which Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Hendricks are to be the principal exponents of is one which cannot be settled by a single act of congress, however sweeping. It is not a question which can be settled by the passage of any one measure, however important. It is a question which involves the time and other conditions of home labor conclusively in the control of the industries of the country. In all parties—not the least so to the unhappy persons who are made the subject of the contract. The institutions of the United States are founded upon the universal freedom of all the people. Suffrage is made universal as a just weapon of self-protection to every citizen. It is not unnatural that a republic that any economic system should be adopted which involves the reduction of wages to the hard standard prevailing elsewhere. The Republican party aims to elevate and dignify labor—not to degrade it.

As a substitute for the industrial system which under Republican administration has developed the resources of the country, our opponents offer a policy which is but a series of experiments upon our system of revenue, the certain result of which is to give our manufactures and greater harm to our labor. Experiment in the industrial and financial system is the country's greatest peril and should be sternly rebuked. Even the uncertainty resulting from the recent tariff agitation in congress has hurtfully affected the business of the entire country. When it becomes known how to-day affects our homes, to our farms and our commerce, if the uncertainty of perpetual tariff agitation be added the paralysis upon the country. We are in the midst of an abundant harvest; we are on the eve of a revival of general prosperity. Nothing stands in our way but the fear on the part of capital that the legislation which has wrought such wonders in the last twenty years, and which, with the power of increased capital, will work still greater marvels of prosperity in the twenty years to come.

OUR FOREIGN POLICY.

Our foreign relations favor our domestic development. We are at peace with the world—at peace upon a sound basis with no unsettled question of sufficient magnitude to endanger or distress us. Happily removed by our geographical position from participation or interest in those questions of dynasty or boundary which so frequently disturb the peace of Europe, we are free to cultivate friendly relations with all, and are free from possible entanglements in the quarrels of any. The United States has no cause to desire change in the conflict with any power on earth, and we may rest in assured confidence that no power desires to attack the United States.

With the nations of the western hemisphere we should cultivate closer relations and for our common prosperity and advancement in the arts of peace. We all for with us in an agreement that, for the future, all international troubles in North or South America shall be adjusted by impartial arbitration and not by arms. This project was part of the final policy of President Garfield's administration and it would be well for judgment with us renewed. Its accomplishment on this continent would favorably affect the nations beyond the sea, and this powerfully contribute to no distant day to the universal acceptance of the philanthropic and Christian principle of arbitration. The effect even of suggesting it for the Spanish-American states has been most happy, and has increased the confidence of those people in our friendly disposition. It fell to my lot as secretary of state in June, 1881, to open diplomatic with the Republic of Mexico, by giving the assurance upon official dispatch that "there is not the faintest desire in the United States for territorial extension southward." His first experiments to West Point and maintained it so long as I had the right by law to nominate the cadets. In the discharge of that duty I found that the present law which arbitrarily limits the term of the commission offered a constant temptation to changes for mere political reasons. The frequent expressions the belief that the essential modification of that law would be in many respects desirable.

My observation in the department of state confirmed the conclusions of my legislative experience, and impressed me with the conviction that the power of impartial appointment might with advantage be given to the proof any existing provision of the civil service law. It should be applied to appointments at the beginning of the term. Congress should be commercial sentinels—encircling the globe with their watchfulness for their country's interests. Their intelligence and their patriotism should be conspicuous in every great public concern. No man should be appointed to an American consulate who is not well instructed in the history and institutions of the country, in the requirements and languages of commerce in the country to which he is sent. The same rule should be applied even more rigidly to secretaries of legation and to ministers of the first class. people have the right to the most efficient agents in the discharge of public business, and the appointing power should regard this as the primary and essential consideration.

THE MORMON QUESTION.

Religious liberty is the right of every citizen of the republic. Congress is forbidden by the constitution to make any law "respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." For a century, under this guarantee, Protestant and Catholic, Jew and Gentile, have worshiped God according to the dictates of conscience. But religious liberty must not be perverted to the justification of crimes against the law. A religious sect, strongly intrenched in one of the territories of the Union, and spreading rapidly into four other territories, claims the right to destroy the great safeguard and monument of social order, and to practice as a religious privilege that which is a crime punished with severe penalty in every state of the Union. The incestuous and unity of the family must be preserved as the foundation of all civil government, as the source of orderly administration, as the surest guarantee of moral purity.

The claims of the Mormons that they are divinely authorized to practice polygamy should no more be admitted than the claim of certain heathen tribes, if they should come among us, to continue the rite of human sacrifice. The law does not interfere with what a man does with it taken originates only of what he does. As citizens, the Mormons are entitled to the same rights as others, and to these they must be confined. Polygamy can never be established by the sanction or toleration by admitting the community that upholds it as a state in the Union. Like others, the Mormons must learn that the liberty of each individual ceases where the rights of society begin.

OUR CURRENCY.

The people of the United States, though often hastily and ill-judged, have never inopportunely contemplated the recognition of any other money than gold and silver—and currency directly convertible into them. They have been done only in times of great danger any necessity less pressing than desperate war. The one special requisite for the completion of our monetary system is the fixing of the relation between gold and silver as the unit of value. Both metals

The Sweet Potato Season.

[Puck.]

I HAVE just returned from a mugwump pleasure and recreation and two-hundred pounder with an old-time friend whose face I had not seen for nearly twenty years. During that time he had been in the penitentiary, and I, having been more discreet, have been somewhat tempered. Thus paths have led us through different walks of life. At least mine has.

We were comparing notes yesterday, and, among other things, the conversation drifted toward the subject of real and apparent wealth. My friend, prior to his retirement, had been engaged in the wholesale burglary trade and general grand larceny business, and his experience had sharpened his judgment and knowledge of human nature. I, on the other hand, had several of his maxims.

Among others, he made it a rule never to follow a man very far who bought strawberries in January. He said that wealthy people were not the ones who bought the high priced seats to hear Patti, or ate green peas for Christmas.

Whom I had not seen in twenty years.

It is the James Gore aristocrat and nickel-plated social favorite with the stuffed back diamond in his only shirt who buys things because they are high, and gets side-tracked at Sing Sing, with ten years for repentance.

I wish that I had a voice like a fog horn, that I might sit on the corner of a cloud and proclaim to the world that the man who stays up nights to knock his neighbors cold with envy is liable to get a chance to recover his lost sleep under the gentle guardianship of the state and the statutes in such case made and provided.

Fewer people are actually fooled by hand-me-down poop than is generally surmised. Those who have served an apprenticeship at fiction, as a general rule, call to mind from twenty-seven to thirty-nine people in their own horizon who have sought to get there, but stopped on something while in transit—and fell with a sickening thud.

Strawberries in January.

This should teach us to be what we seem. Only a few months ago a young man who occupied a $15 seat at the opera fainted, and when they had carried him out and were over him for some time and they were beginning to be alarmed and overhauled him a little, they found that his shirt-bosom was pinned to his vest. His cuffs were pinned to the inside of the sleeves of his spike-tail coat, because there was nothing else to pin to, and he only wore one vest.

Society is too apt to infer that the riff-raff and the common herd are fooled and blinded by the glare and glitter of rented clothes and prize package jewelry.

On behalf of the riff-raff and common herd, I desire to state that we are.

What by wearing blue-glass goggles we can outglare a diamond as big as a gas-glass sidestand. Let us remember that clothes do not make the man. It is the head and heart that make the man, though, of course, he should also see that he has a good, light-running and durable liver. He ought also to have a stomach which will not crave watermelons in January and snow-birds in August or thirty days.

BILL NYE.

The Sea-Serpent Season Opens.

[The Judge.]

The Serpent; "Sure, all the reporters are at the hotel to-day. I am to give them a big scare. The account in the papers will fill the hotel, and I'll draw a week's pay for it, do you mind?"

Knew Henry.

(Chicago Tribune.)

He had been very kind and solicitous for several days, and at breakfast yesterday morning he suddenly remarked:

"My dear, you don't know how bad it makes me feel to see you look so thin and careworn."

"Yes," she softly replied.

"You must have lost at least five pounds this month."

"I presume so."

"And that haggard expression shows overwork and need of rest."

"Yes."

"Dear me! but I could never forgive myself if you should go into a decline."

"See here, Henry," she replied, as she laid down her fork and looked him square in the eye, "you want to drop that if you think you can pack me off to the country for a month and leave you to gallop around here, you have got hold of the wrong end of the string!"

Chicago Sun: What does "Good Friday mean?" school ma'am Schuyler Colfax of another. "You'd better go home and read your Robinson Crusoe," was the withering

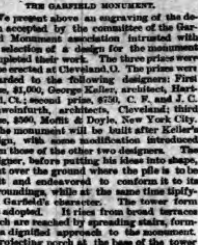
If a hero throws down his gauntlet in a diagram of the proceedings of the bars before being blown down; view of the bars while being blown down; view of the ruins; interview with the hired man, who says he always knowed it was going to blow down; interview with owner, with his and other theories on barns blowing down; interview with Professor Magsump, the distinguished Chicago savant, who has given as to the reason why barns blow down rather than up; comparative table of barn mortality in this and other states for the last forty years, showing percentage of barn blown down compared with the illiterate vote; history of barns from the earliest time to the present; statement of Jess, etc.

A Fitting Tribute.



THE GARFIELD MONUMENT.

We present above an engraving of the design accepted by the committee of the Garfield Monument Association intrusted with the selection of a design for the monument completed their work. The three prizes were to be erected at Cleveland, O. The prizes were awarded to the following designers: First prize, $1,000, George Keller, architect, Hartford, Ct.; second prize, $750, C. F. and J. C. Schweinfurth, architects, Cleveland; third prize, $500, Moffit & Doyle, New York City.

The monument will be built after Keller's design, with some modification introduced from the other two designs. The designer, before putting his ideas into shape, went over the ground where the pile is to be built and endeavored to conform it to its surroundings, while at the same time typifying Garfield's character. The tower form was adopted. It rises from broad terraces which are reached by spreading stairs, forming a dignified approach to the monument. A projecting porch at the base of the tower contains a vestibule, on one side of which is placed the keeper's office, and on the other a room for a visitor's register and for the reception of relics. The vestibule leads into a round, vaulted chamber, the stone dome-like roof of which is carried on eight granite columns, arranged in a circle around the sculptured tomb, which occupies the center of the chamber.

A spiral staircase of stone leads to the top of the tower, so constructed that in ascending the tower it winds around the tomb below. In making one revolution of the tower there are four flights of stairs, and a landing is provided at the foot of each flight, lighted by triple windows, from which a view of the landscape can be had.

From the windows at the top of the monument a magnificent view of the city and its suburbs can be obtained, and the birthplace of Garfield, eight miles away, can almost be seen.

A Leader of the Colored Race.

T. THOMAS FORTUNE.

The subject of this sketch was born in the town of Marianna, Jackson county, Fla., of slave parents, October 3, 1856. His father was quite active in reconstruction politics, and through his influence young Fortune was made a page boy of the Florida senate, which position he held for two years. Owing to the Ku-Klux disturbances at that time, the Hon. E. Fortune left West Florida and settled at Jacksonville in 1869. Young Fortune was placed in the office of The Jacksonville Union as "devil," and soon mastered the rudiments of type setting. On a change of management of The Union, young Fortune attended for two years the Stanton institute, a public school. He then entered the post office as office boy. He soon rose to the position of letter stamper and paper clerk. Having a disagreement with the postmaster he resigned the position and returned to the "case." In 1874 he was appointed a mail route agent through the kindly offices of Hon. William J. Furman, then member of congress for the Second district of Florida.) In the summer of 1875 he quit the mail service and was appointed by Secretary B. H. Bristow, at the instance of Mr. Furman, as a special inspector of customs for the district of Delaware. He resigned his position at the end of a year and entered the Howard University at Washington. He remained at Howard about three years, when he returned to the south and worked again on The Daily Union.

In 1881 he came to New York and went to work on The Weekly Witness as a compositor, his advent into the composing room of that paper causing a strike. He left The Witness in 1883, in conjunction with George Parker and Wm. Walker Thompson, began the publication of The New York Globe, devoted especially to the interests of our colored citizens.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Robert Burns died in 1795.

Locals.

—A Blaine and Logan banner was raised at Railway Friday evening.

—The First Baptist Sunday School will go to Ocean Grove on Friday.

—Various cases of interest before Justice Nash will be tried to-morrow.

—A regular meeting of the Lincoln Campaign Club will be held this evening.

—A lamp exploded Friday evening in Walker's bakery on Park avenue. No damage was done.

—Wm. McMahon has been elected president of the Young Men's Cleveland and Hendricks Club of Railway.

—It is said that the first New Jersey soldier killed during the rebellion is buried at Scotch Plains, in the Baptist burying ground.

—To-day ends the fifth month of the temperance movement in this city, and the various temperance meetings hold their own as to attendance.

—The proceeds of an entertainment given by the "D Club" of Westfield, amounting to $6.35, have been donated to the Tribune fresh-air fund.

—Policeman Mattox, Saturday, arrested Wm. Grattan for ringing the false alarm on Thursday evening. He was discharged for want of proof.

—Policeman Mattox is enjoying a vacation of a few days. Each one of the policemen in turn will take a few days' vacation during the coming month.

—Assessor John A. Van Ortwick, of Railway, was taken in by bunco men in New York recently to the extent of $20 cash and a $125 check. He has allowed the check to go to protest.

—Drs. G. W. Enstcott, J. T. Fritts, Charles H. Hart, H. H. Lowrie, S. S. McNary, E. W. Southworth and T. H. Tomlinson recommend Thirp's Instantaneous Disinfectant and Deodorizer.

—The temperance meeting in the First Baptist Church last evening was presided over by Isaac Brokaw, First Vice-President of the Reform Club. Speeches were made by Mayor MAXSON, Dr. Yerkes and Frank Dodge.

—Circulars of the Plainfield Vocal Society for 1884-5 are out. The officers are W. W. Howland, President; C. H. McCutchen, Vice President; Wm. R. Cock, Secretary; J. K. Myers, Treasurer; Directors, D. E. Davis, H. A. McGee, H. O. Newman.

—Some years ago, Mayor MAXSON, while visiting San Francisco, attended a political meeting. One of the speakers happened to be a noted Californian gambler. Said he, "I ain't a speaker like these fine orators, I only know plain talk—but before election we politicians will bow down and kiss your feet; after election, you can kiss ours. Good night."

—A resident near the end of West Front street has complained to Mayor MAXSON that a large bullet passed through a pane of glass of a window at the complainant's residence a few days ago, discharge by some one engaged in pistol practice. The Mayor has taken steps to have persons arrested, who engage in the use of fire arms within the city limits, as there is an ordinance forbidding it.

—The cholera is spreading. It is but eight days from New York. There is no need for unnecessary alarm, but sanitary precautions should be taken at once. The scourge invaded Paris despite efforts to resist it, and although steps have been taken to prevent its introduction on these shores, it will do no harm to remove all possible means for spreading it should it come. Disinfectants should be freely and liberally used.

No Excursion this Time.

About two weeks ago Father Smith of St. Mary's Church, of this city, was promised by the railroad company, monetary care to Communipaw, for some day in July; and he thereupon made arrangements in behalf of his congregation, for an excursion by engaging a steamer and barge, to go to Alpine Grove, had tickets and posters printed, and nearly 400 tickets were sold. Father Smith had also paid a deposit to secure the steamer and barge, and incurred other expense. On Saturday, word was received that the cars would be required for other purposes on the day set for the excursion, presumably for the Long Branch races, and could not be spared, thus upsetting all arrangements, and greatly disappointing all who contemplated participating, as well as those who had labored to make the excursion a success. In consequence, it has been decided not to have any excursion this season at all. The money is to be refunded to those who purchased tickets. We suppose that they contribute the amount to a public hall fund.

On Raising Hens.

RADO, Ohio, July 17th, 1884.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—Although many months have passed since I left your country I am still interested there and write to tell your readers how to make poultry profitable. There is great demand for early chickens, and in large cities they find a ready market at from 50 to 60 cents per pound, but to get them high prices they must be hatched in February, March and April. As hens are not estingly inclined that early you must use incubators. They hatch a larger per cent of chicks than hens and are healthier, being free from lice. I have two incubators that I made myself, they cost $5 each and hold 480 eggs. Any one can get directions for making an incubator like mine by writing to J. Bialas, New Concord, Ohio, inclosing stamp for postage. My incubators are a complete success and being so cheap are within reach of all. I have 215 hens and from them and my two incubators I have sold since March, $1467 worth of chicks and eggs. Now is the time to make your incubators and prepare for the Winter and Spring trade. I run my incubators the year round and think there is no more profitable business. I will soon write you an article on "which are the most profitable varieties of poultry to raise."

Races at the Fair Grounds.

On Saturday several interesting races took place at the Fair Grounds on Park avenue. These Saturday afternoon races are of an impromptu nature, and are solely for the amusement of the parties interested.

The race between Mr. Waring's Ledger Boy and a brown horse belonging to Mr. Noble, of Metuchen, resulted in a victory for Ledger Boy.

Mr. C. Vail's brown team trotted against a team belonging to Mr. John I. Holly. Mr. Holly's team won.

A colt owned by Mr. Nathan Robins, of Metuchen, came in victor in a race with Mr. Moore's black stallion.

The event of the afternoon was the race between Mr. Zimmerman's Charlotte Cushman and Mr. Wesley Johnson's Selola. In the first heat the trotting was very close, Selola barely coming in ahead in 2:33. The second heat was close also, and was won by Selola in 2:34.

The Potter Press Works' Mutual Aid Society.

A meeting of the members of the Potter Press Work's Mutual Aid Society was held in Association Hall on Saturday evening, Mr. Chamberlain presiding. Reports of various officers were read and approved. A proposed addition of rule 19, making the benefit for first week's sickness one dollar, in place of five was lost. This society started some eight months ago with about one hundred and fifty members, since then some have left the works, and others have dropped out. The membership is now about one hundred and thirty-five. Mr. C. Potter was present, and in the course of a short speech expressed his sympathy with the objects of the society, and stated that it would have his cordial support, as it gave him pleasure to belong to it. Various committees were appointed, and votes of thanks tendered.

Base Ball.

The Crescents, of this city, visited Paterson on Saturday afternoon and played the Olympics of that place. The result was 15 to 8 in favor of the Crescents. The Olympics have applied for admission to the Eastern League. It is not in order for the Crescents to send in their applications.

On Wednesday it is probable that the Railways and the Crescents will play on the Richmond street grounds.

On Saturday the Crescents will cross bats with the Jerseys at Jersey City. Two games have been played with that club this season. The first resulted in a victory for the Jerseys by a score of 9 to 1; the second was won by the Crescents by a score of 6 to 5. The coming game is looked forward to with a great deal of interest by the friends of the two clubs.

Spread of the Temperance Work.

A delegation of the Reform Club of this city by invitation of the pastor of the Methodist church at Dover, visited that place last evening and enlisted the sympathy of the people in the temperance work. John H. Sayers and E. S. Manning spoke with great earnestness, showing that love for the cause was a desire to spread its benefits alone prompted them to this self-sacrificing task. Thirty persons signed the pledge while the whole audience gave evidences that they were thoroughly aroused upon the subject.

Personal.

Mr. Lewis, of Central avenue, who was injured in a runaway accident some weeks ago, is convalescing.

Miss Maude A. Paulston, of Brooklyn, is spending a few weeks with her cousin, Miss Paulston, of La Grande avenue.

Mrs. Henry Wright, of Newark, is spending a few weeks with the family of Mr. William Brown on Third street.

Mr. I. Berry leaves to-morrow on his summer tour. He intends visiting the Catskill Mountains, Niagra Falls and the sea shore.

Mrs. George Terry of Broadway, this city, who has been at the seaside for the past few weeks, returned home Saturday greatly benefited in health.

The Rev. Mr. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregationalist Church, will be given a vacation during the month of August. His pulpit will be supplied during his absence.

Mr. John Walker, the proprietor of Walker's Bakery, 36 Park avenue, who is now at Morristown, is conducting an establishment that bears any comparison of the complete recovery within a few weeks.

—The receipts for the City Directory will close on Saturday, 26. All outstanding subscriptions should be sent to C. Dillon & Co., Publishers, Plainfield P. O.

The Grove Meeting.

There was a large attendance at the grove meeting, which was held in Berry's Grove, yesterday afternoon. Judge Nathan Harper presided. Speeches were made by Messrs. A. M. Powell, Secretary of the National Temperance Union, and Frank Dodge the latter also reciting the "Drunkard's Wife."

A number of speakers were left over until next Sunday on account of the hour being so late.

The Flower Mission.

Contributions of flowers or any delicacy acceptable to the sick are solicited for the use of the flower mission. All such articles are requested to be left at the Young Men's Christian Association Hall on Park avenue before 9.30 a. m. to-morrow.

State Matters.

Christian Fisher, a young compositor living at No. 96 Bloomfield street, Hoboken, was found yesterday in bed suffering from asphyxiation. He was sent to the smallpox hospital at Snake Hill.

James Crown, the contractor who built A. T. Stewart's Fifth avenue palace in New York, and who has since an Ocean cottage and Broadway, died recently at his residence in Rhinebeck. He was 67 years old.

The body of Joseph Andrer, age fifty-two, an employe of Dr. Trask, of the South Jersey Institute at Bridgeton, was found in a field near that city yesterday. Mr. Andrer was free of care by, and it is supposed that he committed suicide.

The Rev. Father Hennessy, Pastor of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, of Elizabeth and Brainbell avenues Jersey City, was seized with a hemorrhage while serving mass yesterday morning and was carried home to leave the altar. The Rev. Father Sheehan took his place and continued the service.

Alfred McGuiness, aged eighteen months, was run over yesterday while playing on the street in front of his home at Henderson and Pavonia avenues, Jersey City, by a light wagon driven by Frank Rabold. The child was seriously injured and Rabold was arrested and locked up on a charge of reckless driving.

The Common Council of the city of Newark has just decided on an annual rental with the gas companies of that city whereby the city pays $20 dollars a year for each street lamp to burn 2,000 hours, $1.75 per thousand feet for public buildings and private consumers $1.60. The contract is for seven years.

James Bellars was appointed organist over seven years ago of Christ Reformed Church, in Woodside, Newark. Instead of salary he was given the use of a home valued, with the lot, at $1,700. He says that the agreement was that his services were to be rated at $600 a year, and at the end of seven years he was to receive a deed of the property. On the other hand, the church contends that he was to pay only the rent of the house so long as he remained organist. The question of ownership is to be decided by the Court of Chancery.

A bearded girl has been discovered in South Trenton. She is not only heavily bearded, but also extraordinarily fat. She is seven years old and stands a half foot high, and weighs 116 pounds. Up to a recent date she was exhibited throughout the country as the fat baby, but she grew too big for that now, and if an accommodating showman can be secured she will be trotted out as the bearded girl. She talks English and German and has a voice like a woman. The girl is owned by her father, Peter Gottlieb Schultz, who keeps her in seclusion during her temporary stay in Trenton.

SENATOR MAHON'S WHISKY.

"Fore God, Mason Mahone, dat's de Bottle Wat I Put de Pysone In."

WASHINGTON, July 21.—An interesting story is told here as a consequence of the recent arrest of a bell-boy at the Arlington hotel on a charge of stealing Mahone's whiskey. It will be remembered that the boy arrested was held over by the police court for action by the grand jury. Seven other articles stolen from guests were found in his room. It seems, however, Mahone's body servant thought there was danger, and without notifying the senator prepared for the worst, with results quite annoying to that gentleman, who a few evenings since invited some political friends to lunch and a game of cards. In his bedair, as the evening would have, after lunch it was suggested that a little whisky might be appropriate to the occasion, whereupon the senator, finding the bar closed, withdrew to his room and produced a bottle which he pronounced Maryland best.

Four friends tasted it and agreed that the senator's judgment was good. When a few minutes had passed, no the story goes, they became deathly sick and indulged in a series of performances which would have done credit to the most able disciple of methods which marked the practice of medicine twenty years ago. Mahone, a good deal alarmed, sent for his body-servant, thinking the latter had already made his appearance, and asked him whether anybody had been doctoring his whisky.

John appeared to be so much disturbed as the inquirer for a moment, but the idea struck him suddenly, and snatching the bottle from the senator's hands, he examined it, and with a knowing grin, which he vainly tried to suppress, blurted out:

"Fore God, Mass Mahone, dat's the bottle wat I put de ippecac in."

John, it appears, dosed one of the bottles of whisky with ipecac, expecting a return of the bell boy. It was this which the senator was fortunate enough to find when the bar was closed.

COWBOYS INVADE CHICAGO.

Ten Frontiersmen Inaugurate a Small Reign of Terror.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Last night a number of the ranchers of the Rocky Mountain show are exhibiting in this city invaded "the levee" and put in practice the tactics with which they sometimes clean out western towns. Pistol shots were fired as the party passed along Fourth avenue and Clark street, and a small-sized reign of terror was inaugurated by the frontier-like action of the drunken scouts.

Their pastime was stopped, however, by Detectives Granger and Jones, who took ten of them to the armory and locked them for disorderly conduct. One of the party gave the name of Slow-Trail Jack. The whole party was dressed in regulation border costumes, and each one had a large revolver and bowie knife slung in his belt, making indeed a desperate appearance.

Four Generations to One Family.

New York, July 21.—Martha Zaranizer, a German, who declared that she was 112 years old, arrived at Castle Garden Saturday. She is a little woman with but very little hair on her head, what there is being snowy white. Her hands and arms are long and very thin and she now very much shrivelled. With her were seventeen people whom she declared were her family. The entire party, the old woman says, represents four generations. Her son, the next oldest in the party, is 58 years of age, while the youngest of all is 7 years of age. The party is destined for Montana, where the oldest lady intends to purchase land and form a colony.

Accused of Wife Murder.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., July 21.—William Turley, who says he was asleep when his wife was shot and killed last Thursday, nine miles southeast of Logansport, was arrested by order of the coroner. The ball entered a crack was found in the ceiling directly over the spot where Mrs. Turley was shot, freshly burned by powder. It was in this room above that Turley claims to have been sleeping at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when the mysterious murder occurred. Turley is in jail at Kokomo, and there is every reason to expect his death by mob violence, so intense is the feeling against him.

Slain by a Falling Bomb.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Mrs. Nicholas Zimmerman, of No. 3,800 Michigan avenue, met a singular death at 10 o'clock Saturday night. She, with some friends, went to the roof of her residence to witness an exhibition of fireworks at the Union Ball park, corner of Thirty-ninth street and Michigan avenue. A bomb was fired into the air, but it did not explode. On its descent it struck Mrs. Zimmerman on the head, crushing her skull and literally scattering her brains over the roof. The bomb was 12 inches in diameter and weighed six pounds.

Accident to an Excursion Steamer.

BOSTON, July 21.—The excursion steamer Empire State, with 700 pleasure seekers on board, struck a rock off Thatcher's island, on the north shore, and sprung a leak. She was made for Gloucester harbor and landed her passengers. The management sent them home by rail. The steamer struck on a obstruction where the chart gave sixteen feet of water. Her keel was crushed in for forty feet. She will be beached at Gloucester and patched sufficiently to be brought here for repairs.

Their Shoes Torn Off by Lightning.

BRATTLEBORO, July 21.—Reports from various parts of this county show that last night's rain and hail storm did great damage to crops and highways. At Wilmington the lightning passed into the houses of L. Childs and H. F. Barber, whose wives were prostrated by the shocks. Their shoes were taken from their feet, while the stockings were burned off. They were also otherwise burned. The lightning entered the houses by a telephone wire.

Butler Still Silent.

LOWELL, July 21.—Gen. Butler has arrived, but having been home since the Chicago Democratic convention. He said that he had not subscribed to be interviewed by a reporter since he left Washington. In response to an interrogatory he said he was unwilling to give his opinion regarding the Democratic convention, its platform or candidates. He said that he had no opinion or statement to give at present.

Gordon Still Holding Out.

CAIRO, July 21.—A passenger has just been received from the Mahdi at Obeigda, by which he states that he is in receipt of a letter from Gen. Gordon, dated at Khartoum, June 23, in which he says that he has held out against the Mahdi, but is in pressing need of reinforcements. The intelligence is regarded with suspicion by the officers here.

She Took Cold—Weeks.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 21.—Caroline Hamilton, a mulatto, died here, aged 110. Five weeks ago she accidentally defined the kitchen, and nothing passed her lips since that time but cold water. Her father died in Pittsburg many years ago, aged 106.

ON THE ILLS OF LIFE.

Dona Platt Preaches on the Old and New Cures.

The Faith that Physicians Understand and Never Use—A Case in Point—The Blood of a Black Cat.

Allow me among us know and appreciate the source of living there is in that which makes life so uncertain, and more than uncertain, so miserable? We have an army of accredited doctors to begin with, and an army of quacks to send with. How the land is dotted over with health resorts, where wrecked humanity gathers to groan, in crowds, and get partial relief from their own ills while contemplating those of others.

That part of the newspaper devoted to patent nuses, affords me the most interesting reading. What a comfort it is to know that some learned son of science has discovered "a sure shot for chills," or that a "soothing syrup," for yelling infants, is within easy reach of afflicted mothers, and so on to afflicted peregrinity on so-called sleepers, or in town houses, where the walls are so slender that a nail driven in to hold a chromo on one side, sends down the broken plaster on the indignant bald head of the entire families on the other. And then that "sovereign remedy for coughs, colds, catarrhs and consumption," that will also cure a headache, in one application.

The certificates that accompany the advertisement are so cheerful. The clergy are much given to signing them, and the signatures of condition persons abound. M. Do., mostly of obscure towns, mainly lager beer saloons of a hundred inhabitants, are not lacking. These M. Do. are conservative in their style, and tabloria the readers that they have used their remedy in their practice, that may have been among horses and afflicted cows. The well-known physician who in reporting a trying case of child-birth said he had had the mother and child but hoped to pull the old woman through this one?

That man went far towards reconciling me with the medical profession and I cherish the widely-circulated story of his indomitable will. What stubborn faith he exhibits in that resolve to save the paternal author of this rule, who, as we all know, is such a perk on these trying occasions. He is driven from the shelter of his home by the combined power of a despotic mother-in-law and a storm-eyed, implacable old nurse; and the few, remaining in the latter's design by the family physician, give the paternal wretch to understand that he is of no account, that he is in the way and ought to be ashamed of himself. Thus cast down and cast out, the guilty creature seeks refuge in beer-saloons, the wretch's haunts on sirs, makes things set up, an t winks mysteriously to his fellows, while intimating that something important is "transpiring" at his house.

What, with the heartless treatment of mother-in-law, the nurse and doctor, what with the malaria he gets in his system from the low places in which it is kept bottled, added to the general sense of brutal selfishness and utter insignificance and worthlessness that he sees in all the doctor who pulls him through and restores his stomach and self-respect, is to be admired and I by no means join in the hilarity that greets the story of his success, in saving "the old man."

These patent medicines are generally harmless compounds. Were they not so their success would be short lived. They are not as Bushnea expressed it,

"Deleterious medicines,
All of whom partook are dead since."

And get their sales and renown from that stringer power of faith that physicians know of and so little use. Dr. John A. Murphy, my brilliant friend, of Cincinnati, told me, in this connection, of a case he had not long since of a business man from the interior, who was president of a bank, had mills, a store and an extensive lumber yard. His business well attended to, was in a prosperous condition; his health, sadly neglected, was in a bad way. He had been bolting a breakfast of hot cakes and fried meats at daylight, worrying through mills and over lumber till noon; bolting a dinner of meats and pie, and spending the afternoon at the bank until he stowed away another mess of indigestion for supper.

Without appetite, unable to sleep, yellow as a Jap and half frozen from aches and depression, he sought my friend. The doctor sounded his chest, pounded his back, worked his legs, and then looked grave. In solemn silence he regarded the poor man with a hopeless-life-if-you-are-not-a-bed-ward expression that made the poor fellow's heart sink to the heel of his boot. Then he subjected the patient to a series of sharp questions as to his manner of life. These were punctuated with grunts of disapproval, indicative of disgust. After a long silence, the poor fellow asked, piteously, if the doctor thought he could save him.

"Yes, I can," responded the doctor, "provided you take the powerful drug I will prescribe and follow my directions. This medicine will hurt, instead of doing you good, if you fail to do what I direct. Get out of bed at 5, send for your hostler, have him provided with a new horse brush. Take a cold bath; when toweled off have your hostler rub you down for ten minutes. After that take two of these pills, shampoo your horse and ride five miles on a trot. Returning home take two of the pills, sit down to breakfast and eat a bowl of sweet, fresh oat meal with milk, not cream milk, and eat slowly. Count between every mouthful and have your wife tell you all the gossip in the neighborhood. Take two pills. Go to your mills and board yards. Remain there two hours. Walk home and take two pills. Eat your breakfast of steak done rare, or mutton chops, with stale bread and fresh butter. Eat slowly, count ten between mouthfuls and don't make them too full. Take one cup of coffee, no more. Ride ten miles and take two pills. Go to your business. Don't fret, any sudden excitement may kill you. Take two pills and eat a dinner of roast beef rare, or mutton, few vegetables, a wineglass of good old whisky in a glass of milk, no more. Rest an hour after dinner; with your wife and children. Go to your business for two hours. Take two pills and a walk of two miles. Eat your supper of bread and milk; eat slowly; count ten between each spoonful. After supper take your family and visit the negro [illegible] Laugh! Why, doctor, when you have finished your prescription I feel really well. Tomorrow the pills will have had their effect. Don't let a day pass without a laugh."

"Laugh! Why, doctor."

"I don't care for the laugh. It is only a sign of returning health. Your nervous elsewhere is partially paralyzed, and your air excitable approaches manifestation."

"Good Lord! doctor."

"You need shaking up."

"I shall have to give up business—for a while, at least"

"Nonsense, you will do more business of a better sort, without harassing you, with this system than you did under that muddle-headed, murderous way you were going. Go to bed at nine o'clock after taking two pills."

"And did he obey?" I asked.

"He did, and at the end of three months wrote for more pills."

"And what were those multitudinous pills, Doctor?"

"Bread," roared the doctor, "nothing but bread," and he laughed till the tears came. "If I had not given him the pills he would not have followed my directions—see?"

"And the prescription worked?"

"To a charm. I saw my patient not long since, and he is in superb health."

If this faith proved so efficacious in the case above given, why may it not work wonders through patent drugs? True, the drugs are not accompanied with such instruction, as to diet and exercise. And talking of laughing, Murphy told me the best symptoms of convalescent was in the patient being able to laugh. That physician, then, is the best who can carry the sunlight of a cheerful disposition into a sick room.

I was saved once by a laugh. I had a fever that refused to use its medicine, and every day the fever grew stronger and I got weaker, until it was regarded only a question of time as to when I should end my useful career on earth and I should climb the golden stair. I did not want to climb. I was prejudiced against golden stairs. I prefer now an elevator, but death was putting a girdle about my poor body in the shape of what is known to the medicating world as the shingles, and in their progressing an inch a day, with the certainty that when the belt met the mate-take could be called in.

My old nurse, Mrs. Donalds, mother of David, had been taught in old Virginia that the blood of a black cat sprinkled upon the eruption was not only a sure cure, but the only sure cure. Somewhat humanity, Mrs. Donalds had oftentimes told me of this remedy while administering to me the awful drugs prescribed by the little country doctor, known to the neighborhood as "Old Real Estate" on account of his sedate condition.

"If we would only git a real black cat, honey, he'd stop them devil shingles sure," she would exclaim sadly.

One day her son David entered my sick room. His approach was heralded by the most unearthly yells, yowls and spits I ever heard. David had the black cat.

It was a huge specimen, of the male gender.

He had it stuffed in a boot—in one of David's boots. It was stuffed in head foremost, with nothing visible but its black tail. The tail in its stiff, writhing expressed the indignation the shrill yowls voiced. Whether this dark-hued child of Satan was infuriated at its confinement or objecting to the atmosphere of David's leather convalescin, I cannot say, but it called for all of David's best hold to keep this animated nocturne in boots from escaping.

Mrs. Donalds, with a lofty expression of a duty to be done, held a fearful pair of sheep-shears in her right hand, while with her left, she turned down the bed-clothes, removed the bandages from my afflicted body, and in spite of my feeble remonstrance, motioned her surgical assistant and son to hold the tail full over me.

There was the sharp click of the shears, followed by a yell that would have pierced a grave, and awakened a corpse. The tail was amputated. I do not know what flew over me. It might have been blood, and then again it might not. I had no time to investigate, for the enraged, tail-tailed Thomas-cat, by a wild effort, broke his bonds, tore over the heading form of Mrs. Donald, tearing a track of scratches on her chin-haired skull, and out at the door, which Old Real Estate, at this important moment, opened to enter. The sudden vision confounding from Mrs. Donald's disarranged head, took the little doctor, full in the countenance. Getting a good purchase, of claw hold on nose and chin, it traveled up over his weather stained, high topped, plug hat, disappeared into the world beyond, never to be heard of again.

Sick as I was I broke into a loud fit of laughter. This continued until I nearly rolled out of bed into Old Real Estate's arms, wiping the blood from his medicated countenance, and some profane words to my old nurse.

That laugh broke my fever and arrested the shingles.

The patent medicines are not only harmless, save in as much as they are indigestible, but they seldom contain the ingredients they claim.

It is fortunate to doubt whether there is any cancer cure to exist in popular belief, that the medicine will hurt, instead of doing you good, if you fail to do what I direct. Get out of bed at 5, send for your hostler, have him provided with a new horse brush. Take a cold bath; when towelled off have your hostler rub you down for ten minutes. —Plainfield boasts as a summer resort—when the weather is cool.

—New Market pond is a favorite resort for afternoon boating parties.

—The corner stone of the Church of the Sacred Heart is to be laid at Elizabeth Sunday afternoon with imposing ceremonies.

—The Reform Club building on the corner of Central avenue and Second street is expected to be ready for occupancy by Aug. 10.

—The young men's meeting on Monday evenings at the Young Men's Christian Association Hall on Park avenue will be continued during the summer.

—Specimens of the Diebold patent iron stone tile are on exhibition on Front street in front of Warner's fancy goods store. It is advertised elsewhere.

—The Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance hold their quarterly session at Canton to-morrow. Mr. and Mrs. B. Ayers and others of this city go as delegates.

—The Railways have notified the Crescents that they will be unable to play with them as announced to-morrow. The Crescents will endeavor to get another club to take their place.

—At a meeting of the Reform Club Choristers held last evening, Mr. George Belcher was elected Vice-president. After the meeting the club partook of refreshments at Dibdin's.

—The Republicans of North Plainfield meet this evening in the old school house on Harmony street for the purpose of organizing a campaign club. The meeting will be called to order at eight o'clock.

—The fifth popular excursion of the season to Mauch Chunk, Glen Onoko and the Switchback via the Reading will take place to-morrow. The train leaves this city at 8.30 a. m., returning leaves Mauch Chunk at 5.30 p. m., fare $2.

—A man giving his name as James Smith was arrested at the depot by Special officer Smith for drunkenness. Judge Good this morning gave him his choice of sawdusting the city treasury by the payment of $5, or of spending the coming thirty days in the county castle. He will probably take the thirty days.

—John H. Kennedy, the collector of the Sunday Morning Post of New Brunswick is missing. The amount due the company is probably less than $100. He was also Secretary of the Knights of Labor, No. 1378, and it is said there will be something missing there. He has lived in New Brunswick for about two years, and of his past life little is known.

Baggage Regulations.

A circular which has been issued from the Pennsylvania Railroad headquarters to the baggage men of that road, admonishing them to be strictly up to the rule, which went into effect on January 1, 1883, will be of interest to Plainfielders who are in the habit of using that road. It says that the rule has not been exactly carried out, and the circular calls attention to it and commands strict adherence to it in every particular.

The regulation provides that all baggage shall be received at least five minutes before the starts, or else it cannot go on that train; and that all baggage so-posted to be over weight shall be weighed and charged for at the regular rate per hundred pounds. The custom has been irregular heretofore but uniformity will now be observed.

The order is signed by R. J. McWade general baggage agent, and George W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent.

Improved Pench Cars.

Some new and improved pench cars are now lying at Bound Brook. They have been built by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company especially for the pench trade. They will be run from the pench district in this State to the New England States, the cars being transferred on floats from Jersey City to the New York Central Road. It is a new undertaking for this road, and one which will be appreciated by all in the business.

The Soda Water Fountains.

The entire receipts from the soda water fountain, at Miller and Wheeler's Pharmacy, under Van Derenter Hall, on last Saturday which were kindly subscribed by them to the Reform Club, amounted to $16.15, representing 323 glasses of soda water.

County Board of Assessors.

The county Board of Assessors convened at ten o'clock yesterday morning in the court room at Elizabeth. Mr. D. Hobart Sayre of Union township was chosen chairman and ex-Surrogate Addison S. Clark of Westfield, secretary. Plainfield was represented by J. A. Hubbard, B. B. Miller, John VanOrnick, F. Compton, T. W. Reynolds and William Jewell. The representation from the other cities and townships was as follows: Elizabeth, Hon. James T. Wiley, Robert Chetwood and Richard Frohwein, the the tax commissioners. The Belleinen acting under their appointment, Messrs. Donnison, Stephan and Stiles, former assessors, were also present. Clark, N. J. Thompson; Cranford, Edward S. Crane; Fanwood, John Robinson; Linden, John A. Heridge; New Providence, John W. Dickinson; Springfield; N. B. Hayles; Summit, David Smythe; Union, D. Hobart Sayre; Westfield, Z. M. C. Marsh.

The committee to examine books was appointed as follows: Messrs. Etheridge Van Ortwick and Hubbard. They reported all the books correct.

County Attorney Fred. C. Marsh, City Attorney Dreyer and Director Martine occupied seats within the enclosure.

County Attorney Fred C. Marsh, representing the old board of assessors of Elizabeth, waived all their rights to attendance, and read the act appointing the tax commissioners.

Chairman Sayre asked at what rate the bank stock of Elizabeth had been assessed.

Commissioner Chetwood replied that the commissioners of Elizabeth had assessed the stock of the banks the same as last year. The State bank at 30 per cent. per share, and the First National at par, 100 per cent. Both banks are paying dividends. The First National had always paid dividends and the State was now.

Chairman Sayre asked if the assessment of the old bank stock would not be at the rate of 60 per cent, the share being $50 each.

Mr. Chetwood replied that it would.

The Rahway assessor said that he had assessed the bank stock in that city at 75 per cent.

The roll of cities and townships is called for valuations, and when the figures had been completed one of the board said that he noticed in some of the townships that there was evident decrease in valuation, and asked why it was.

Chairman Sayre said, speaking for Union Township, the apparent decrease was because of the exemption of 300 of the soldiers and firemen under the new law of last winter. This made the footing show an apparent valuation, but in reality the real estate valuation had increased.

Fanwood township's representative stated he could not account for the decrease.

Mr. Hubbard, of this city, said he had made the exemptions in accordance with the law. There were 75 soldiers, about two-thirds of whom got $300 to $500 deduction. There were also four fire companies, the members of which had cases under the exempt law.

Chairman Sayre said there were 40 veteran soldiers in Union, and John M. C. Marsh reported 35 in Westfield.

Mr. Van Ortwick, of Rahway, said he was in favor of the law, and said he made no deduction in case of soldiers or firemen.

He thought the Second district, which he represented, ought to claim from $15,000 to $30,000 deduction, if there was such a law as had been represented.

The Secretary read the law, and, after some little discussion, the Rahway representative decided to make no alterations in their figures.

A communication from the County Collector Sheridan, stating that there was due the county from Rahway $6,021.11 for taxes was referred to the Rahway members of the board.

Rahway's valuation was read by Mr. Chetwood.

The total valuations of the whole county showed an increase of over $100,000.

The board adjourned at one o'clock to a dinner provided for them at the Sheridan House.

Lincoln Club Meeting.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held last evening by the Lincoln Campaign Club in Association Hall on Park avenue. Mr. David E. Titsworth presided. About twenty-five new members were added to the club roll, and a number of speeches were made.

Personal.

Mrs. Clark of Newark is sojourning with her sister, Mrs. Jas. Pope on Front street.

Mrs. S. P. Craig and daughter started to the Blue Ridge Mountains, Va., to-day for a few weeks absence.

Miss Bertha Voorhees of Millstone, is making a visit to her cousin Miss Mattie Ross of East Seventh street.

Mr. Wm. Haines, formerly of this city but now of Albany, N. Y., is spending a few days with friends in this city.

A cablegram has been received from Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, announcing his safe arrival in England.

Miss Mamie Bradshaw, a graduate of the Newark Public School, is rusticating during vacation at Mr. T. O. Doane's, on West Fifth street.

Dr. E. W. Hodges, recently a resident physician in the Presbyterian Hospital at Philadelphia, has taken an office in Plainfield, and has removed to this city his permanent residence henceforth.

Rev. Mr. Ogdyke, State organizer for the prohibitionists, was in this city yesterday. He is said to be preparing for aggressive work in the coming campaign and arranging for the delegates to attend the convention which meets at Pittsburg to-morrow. Mayor Mason and others started enroute for Pittsburg to-day.

—The Elizabeth Athletic Club were defeated by the Reading nine on Saturday by a score of 16 to 1. To-morrow the Athletics will play the Virginias of the same League.

State Matters.

Bridgeton is to build a $10,000 schoolhouse.

A man frenzied with rum caused a sensation in the streets of Burlington on Sunday night by rushing among pedestrians flourishing a large carving knife.

A party of Camdenites on Thursday caught 161 blackfish at Barnegat. It is the best catch of the season so far.

Stacy W. Newcomb, a cousin of Uniontown, has been arrested at the instance of the West Jersey Game Protective Society for shooting a quail out of season.

The West Jersey Railroad will shortly dispense with the bell-rope and substitute the whistle, for the signaling of trains, after the same fashion as the air brakes.

John Weldon, a convict in the State Prison, who has been starving himself for seven days, in his cell yesterday morning, ate his first meal. He will give no explanation for his not eating.

The State Fair grounds will be much improved before the annual fair in September. A new and large exhibition hall will be built, the present cattle and sheep sheds repaired, and other improvements made.

John Dowdsky and Mary Cohen, of Troy, N. Y., were united in the City Hall, Jersey City, yesterday, by Mayor Collins. It is supposed to have been an elopement, the bride and groom being accompanied only by one friend.

A colored man named David Williams wandered from his home, at Snowhill, near Camden, on Thursday, and has not been heard since. He is described as unusually tall, is five feet seven inches in height and twenty-two years old.

Thomas Phillips, the Newark tea dealer who got prizes in his machinery was arrested for running a lottery, was yesterday fined $200. His clerks were fined $50 each. The defendants have taken an appeal, and also agreed to go out of the business.

Considerable excitement was caused in Cottage Place, Long Branch, yesterday morning, by the presence of a mad dog. Signal fire from one of the Cottages was promptly answered by an officer of the Long Branch District Telegraph Company, who shot the animal.

Mrs. William Cook, wife of the station agent at Wallsenning, near Bloomfield, while passing under a scaffold upon which some carpenters were at work on the house, was struck on the head by a crowbar which fell from the platform. She had a child in her arms, but it was uninjured. The wound inflicted was severe but not fatal.

The Burlington County Dairymen's Association held a meeting at Mount Holly yesterday to take action against the Philadelphia cow makers, who it is alleged, are in league with the milk dealers, and purposely mark the cans to contain a less quantity than they actually do, which is to the advantage of the receiver in Philadelphia.

Charles P. Farner, a large proper ty owner and builder, of Burlington, narrowly escaped death, at the new Rubber Works on Thursday. He was picking up a spool of silk from the floor when his clothing caught in the machinery and was completely torn from him. His body was also badly injured and yesterday he was lying in a critical condition.

B. Bunker, a Burlington Justice of the Peace, committed a man to the County Jail about three months ago on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. It now turns out that the commitment was made without first granting the accused a hearing. Last week the man was released on a writ of habeas corpus. The Squire may lose his commission.

The body of the man found at the Central Railroad Jersey City Depot, July 11th, was yesterday identified as that of James B yr, a brother of ex-Police Captain Boyer, of Newark. He left home on the 8th for fishing in Newark Bay and fell from the boat and was drowned. The remains which were not identified at the time were sent to Potter's field. Yesterday they were exhumed and taken to Newark to be reinterred in the family plot.

A rule, returnable on the first Tuesday in November, has been issued by Joel Parker, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the Eleventh circuit, directed to Chancellor Frank Wood, Decator Abell, J. Frank Swayl, J. Redding Ivins, F. C. Woolston and Garret D. Wall, Chancellor and Secretary of State City Council, to show cause why they hold said office. The rule was issued at the instance of F. P. Randall, a Republican candidate for Council, who was defeated at the last municipal election.

While County Physician Ireland, of Camden, was passing the West Jersey Hotel on Saturday night, he was accosted by a man by an ex-saloon keeper named Patrick Hackett. The physician received a number of blows in the face, but finally succeeded in escaping from his assailant, who was much excited by liquor. Dr. Ireland thinks Hackett is said to have been insulted by an idea that Dr. Ireland did not give proper treatment to his three children, who are suffering with the disease called scarlet fever, recently prevalent. A warrant was issued for Hackett's arrest.

Information has been received at Camden that Postmaster-General Frank will recommend the di-charge of Postmaster William T. Bartly of Camden, and his chief clerk, James K. Moore, who were held a few days ago for a further hearing upon charges of malfeasance in office, the ground taken by the Postmaster-General being that no intentional wrong doing has been shown, though there were certain technical irregularities in the conduct of the office.

The annual meeting of the State Board of Pharmacy was held at Newark last week when the following officers were elected: President, Charles Holzhauer, of Newark; Treasurer, Wm. R. Laird, of Jersey City; Secretary, G. A. Mangold, of Newark. There were nine applicants for registration, and the following passed: J. C. Rash, of Junction; J. S. Meyers, of Newark; W. E. Shuit, of Pennsylvania; Wm. Burkhardt, of Newark; A. B. Kirkpatrick, of Cape May Point; J. Howard Linnitt, of Princeton; C. F. Dietz, of Newark, though not registered pharmacist—R. H. Pley, of Newark.

The liquor dealers of Camden are greatly exercised over the operations of an ordinance lately passed by the City Council, which increases the license fee from $72 to $200 and prohibits any freeholder from signing the application for less as of more than one liquor dealer. There are still some wards enough freeholders to sign for all the liquor sellers, even if all of them were disposed to do so. Accordingly, though the old license year expires only with the calendar year, several applications have already been filed with the City Clerk. The liquor dealers who are freeholders are signing for each other, and yet many have not yet secured enough names.

A WEDDING AT THE MOUNTAIN VIEW FARM HOUSE.

This quiet and pleasant retreat was on Saturday, July 19, all activity; groups of ladies and their happy children explored the roads and fields in search for flowers, taking great care, however, not to disturb the cows in their pasture-field, not so much for the savage animals, as for their own sweet sake. Within the house all was put in order in the best shape and the kitchen produced delicious dishes under the experienced hand of the ever amiable Mrs. Searing. Packages of all shapes imaginable, containing presents from the different boarders, were carefully hidden under so and so many pillows until, the right moment should arrive, the wedding cake progressed handsomely and the happy couple Mr. Seely Edsall and lady so soon to be re-united for the 17th time walked about in sweet ignorance of all the good things in store for them.

Their attention and curiosity were however aroused when a carriage drawn by four goats drove up containing a celebrated Scottish Prof. from the classic city of New York. Modestly the dominie entered the house and in order to escape the public gaze, hid under a bedstead until he was wanted.

The ever-welcome dinner bell had, thanks to the skillful hands of the ladies, been transformed into a wedding bell and hung peacefully from the parlor's ceiling. Everything being ready the expectant and bashful couple appeared and were placed under the bell, the guests formed a circle around them and after the dominie had been shaken out of his slumbers the necessary ceremony was performed and the wedding bell was rung for supper. Everybody having done full justice to the delicacies of the bountiful table provided by Mrs. Searing, Mrs. Edsall commenced the delicate task of cutting the wedding cake, but no knife could be found sharp enough to penetrate the hidden uncertainties of this admirable composition. Even Richard Wagner would have blushed in beholding the many ingredients of the cake. His instrumentations would appear flat in comparison with this monster work. Indian meal baking soda, cobblestones, onions, fried grass, chicken feathers and other delicacies were the component parts of this cake, a beautiful symbol of temperance.

After a wonderful exhibition of gastronomic possibilities the guests repaired to the parlor where scattered around in elegant profusion were the many new and curious designs in wedding presents, which bore striking testimony to the esteem and regard in which the recipients are held by the patrons of this popular resort. So odd and different from the ordinary styles were these donations that the services of the dominie were procured, who explained the mythological and symbolic meaning of the gifts. A potato with four tooth picks for legs, one for a tail and two for ears showed a pig in all its classic forms, a chinese baby, in fact all kinds of baby dolls, interpreted the good wishes the guests had for the future of the happy couple. A tire red cap was handed to Mr. Edsall in recognition of his eminent services rendered in the temperance line, in short nothing had been forgotten to make the festivity a thorough success. Mr. Edsall responded with trembling voice thanking his friends for the magnificent gifts and his emotion was so immense that he lost his balance and fell from the foot rest, on which he was lifted for prominence sake.

After a great deal of enjoyment, the happy pair modified to their room and hardly had they locked their door, when a perfect avalanche descended to them by the festive guests by throwing old boots and shoes against their door. Finally they explored their room and found all their garments sewed together and other mischievous tricks in the bargain which were calculated to supplee them with happiness. Finally everything was quiet, the surplus of guests who could not be accommodated in the house were distributed in neighboring farm houses and the memorable day was at an end.

LOGAN'S ACCEPTANCE.

The Duty of the Government to Maintain a Protective Tariff.

The General Discussion Inter-state Commerce; Foreign Relations, Citizenship, Finances, and a Variety of Other Topics.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The following is Gen. Logan's letter of acceptance of the Republican nomination for the vice-presidency:

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19, 1884.

To the Hon. John R. Henderson:

Dear Sir: Having received from you on the 24th of June the official notification of my nomination by the National Republican convention as the Republican candidate for vice-president of the United States, and considering it to be the duty of every man therefore to yield to the public service to assume any position to which he may be called by the voice of his countrymen, I accept the nomination with a grateful heart and a deep sense of its great responsibilities; and if elected shall endeavor to discharge the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

This honor, as is well understood, was wholly unsought by me. That it was tendered by the representatives of the party, in a manner so flattering, will serve to lighten whatever labors I may be called upon to perform.

Although the variety of subjects covered in the very excellent and vigorous declaration of principles by the National Republican convention prohibits, upon an occasion calling for brevity of expression, that full elaboration of which they are susceptible, I avail myself of your request to signify my full approval of the various resolutions of the platform, and to declare them to be:

PROTECTION AND EXTENSION.

The resolutions of the platform declaring for a levy of such duties "as to afford security to our diversified industries, and protection to the rights and wages of labor; to the end that active and intelligent labor, as well as capital, may have its just award, and the laboring man his full share in the national prosperity," meets my hearty approval.

If there is a nation on the face of the earth which might, if it were a desirable thing, build a wall upon its every boundary line, deny communion to all the world, and proceed to live upon its own resources and productions, it is the United States of America. There is hardly a legitimate necessity of civilized communities which cannot be produced from the extraordinary resources of our own several states and territories. Their manufactories, mines, farms, timber lands, and water ways. This circumstance, taken in connection with the fact that our forms of government is entirely among the nations of the world, makes it utterly absurd to institute comparison between our own economic systems and those of other governments, and especially to attempt to borrow systems from them. We stand alone in our circumstances, our forces, our possibilities, and our aspirations.

In all successful government it is a prime requisite that capital and labor should be upon the best of terms, and that both should enjoy the highest attainable prosperity, and there be a disturbance of the just balance between them one or the other suffers, and dissatisfaction follows, which is harmful to both.

The lesson furnished by the comparatively short history of our own national life has been that prosperity to labor follows the footsteps of capital.

The fundamental article in the old Democratic creed proclaimed almost absolute free trade, and that, too, at a time when a quarter of a century ago. The low condition of the national credit, the financial and business uncertainties and general lack of prosperity under that system are well remembered by every man now in middle life.

TARIFF REFORM.

Although in the great number of reforms instituted by the Republican party sufficient credit has not been publicly awarded to that of tariff reform, its benefits have, nevertheless, been felt by the people at large. The principle underlying this measure has been in process of gradual development by the Republican party during the comparatively brief period of its existence. In the first section of its anticipated Democratic opponents make unwilling concession to the correctness of the doctrine of a carefully modified protective tariff, by following closely in its footsteps, though a long way in the rear.

The principle involved is one of no great obscurity, and can be readily comprehended by an intelligent person calmly reflecting upon it. The political and social system of some of our trade-competing nations have grouped working classes similar to the serf system. They receive the merest stipend for their daily toil, and in the great expense of the necessities of life are deprived of the comforts of clothing, housing, and healthful producing food with which wholesome mental and social recreation can alone make existence desirable.

Now, if the products of those countries are to be placed in our markets, free of duty, American products must either share this degradation, or labor must suffer in the legitimate profits, or he must make the American laborer suffer, in the attempt to compete with the cheap labor above referred to. In the case of a substantial production of pay, there can be compensating advantage for the American laborer, because the articles of manufacture would be had by him—with the exception of articles not produced in the United States, and easy of being specially protected, as coffee and tea—are grown in our own country. And labor would not be affected in price by a lowering in duties. Therefore, while he would receive less for his labor, the cost of living would not be decreased. Being practically placed upon the pay of the European laborer, our own would be deprived of facilities for advancement and comfort which a discriminating tariff would secure to him. Additionally, he would be shorn of the proper opportunities of self improvement, and his value as a citizen, charged with a portion of the obligations of government he would be lessened for the good of the laboring class would suffer, and by turn the interests of capital and the well-being of society at large be imperiled and menaced, while one evil would react upon another until there would be a general distrust once of the whole community. The true problem of a tariff for revenue only must is how to infuse prosperity among all classes of people—the manufacturer, the farmer, the miner, the mechanic, the laborer, the trader—prosperity is a preventive of crime, a security of capital, and the very best guarantee of general peace and happiness.

The following is from the Post-Office Department:

The obvious policy of our government is to protect both capital and labor by a proper imposition of duties. This protection should extend to every industry of American production which goes to build up the general prosperity of our people. The national convention, in view of the special dangers menacing the vital interests of the United States, deemed it wise to adopt a separate resolution on the subject of its proper protection. The injury is a very large and important one. The [illegible] result obtained the Democratic party in [illegible] carry the election. It is [illegible] able to [illegible] to import.

OUR MONETARY SYSTEM.

The Republican party is the indisputable author of a financial and monetary system which it is safe to say has never before been equaled by that of any other nation.

Under the operation of our system of finance the country was safely carried through an extended and expensive war, with a national credit which has risen higher and higher with each succeeding year, until now the credit of the United States is surpassed by that of no other nation, while our securities, for investment, command a premium, are eagerly sought after by investors in all parts of the world.

Our system of currency is most admirable in its character. The issue and withdrawal of a bill circulation attach to it, every dollar of paper represents a dollar of the world's money standards, and as long as the just and liberal principles of the system shall be continued, there can be no impairment of the national credit. Therefore, under present laws restoring the coin, it will be impossible for any combination of money in the hands or bills of the United States or in the bills of the National banks.

The question of having a bank-note in the house which will be as good in the morning as it was the night before should be appreciated by all.

The practicability of the currency should be maintained intact, and the establishment of an international standard among all commercial nations fixing the relative values of gold and silver coinage would be a measure of peculiar advantage.

INTER-STATE, FOREIGN COMMERCE AND FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The subjects embraced under the resolutions respectively looking to the promotion of our inter-state and foreign commerce, and to the matter of our foreign relations are dealt with the greatest importance to our people.

In respect to inter-state commerce there is much to be desired in the way of equitable regulations, to the end that transportation, that commerce may flow freely between the states themselves, diversity of industries and employments be promoted in all sections of our country, and that the great producing and manufacturing establishments of the interior may be enabled to send their products to the seaboard for shipment to foreign countries, relieved of vexatious restrictions and discriminations in matters of which it may emphatically be said, "time is money," and also especially to attempts to borrow systems from them. We stand alone in our circumstances, our forces, our possibilities, and our aspirations.

In all successful government it is a prime requisite that capital and labor should be upon the best of terms, and that both should enjoy the highest attainable prosperity, and there be a disturbance of the just balance between one or the other suffers, and dissatisfaction follows, which is harmful to both.

The lesson furnished by the comparatively short history of our own national life has been that prosperity to labor follows the footsteps of capital.

MOSCOW NIHILISTS.

Terrorists Arrested, with Money, Documents and Dynamite

A State of Siege to be Proclaimed at Warsaw—Monster Labor Demonstration in London—A King's Peril.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—The police at Warsaw have seized 500,000 roubles and numerous revolutionary papers in the Russian and Polish languages, which it was intended to issue throughout the empire in the event of the decision against the czar during his stay there, having been successful. Five terrorists have been arrested at Moscow. In their possession were found large sums of money, dynamite bombs, and documents. The latter showed that since the coronation of the czar Moscow has been the seat of the executive committee of the Nihilists. A state of siege will be proclaimed at Warsaw. The governor-general and the chief police of that place will be removed. The newspapers say that Russia and Germany propose the adoption of an international convention providing measures for the suppression of dynamiters.

A Monster Demonstration.

LONDON, July 22.—The great labor demonstration yesterday proved to be a picnic for the workingmen and fortunately a peaceful one. The crowd that assembled to cheer or gibe the paraders was one of the largest ever seen in London, and its numbers are estimated by the police authorities, who all perhaps the best experts in judging the size of crowds, at about 750,000.

The spectators were as a rule good humored, but there were some bursts of enthusiasm which might have made trouble, as certain banners borne by the trade unions came into view. Those bore strong and unpleasant reflections upon the rights of the people, and especially laboring people, and were recognized with rousing cheers along the sidewalks. Another curious phase of the procession was the attitude of the various parts of the metropolis which it traversed. In the aristocratic sections the windows were closed and the blinds drawn together closely as though the botchment of death were over each door.

The bandmasters recognized these prohibitions and refrained from playing while even by playing the dead march from Saul or some equally lugubrious dirge in passing the doleful mansions. While the procession was passing the Carlton club on Pall Mall, Lord Randolph Churchill displayed the bad taste of standing and grinning in a prominent window.

When the procession, in passing down Piccadilly, reached the head of Arlington street, a portion of the crowd rushed down that street with the intention of making a disturbance at No. 30, which is the town residence of the Marquis of Salisbury. A strong force of police had been posted at this point, and the disturbers were checked without any difficulty, especially in view of the fact that his lordship was quietly ruralizing in Devonshire. A comical incident occurred in Hyde Park, which the immense audience was gathering. Mr. Henry Irving and Mr. John L. Toole came upon the ground arm in arm and proceeded to make their way towards one of the speakers' platforms. They were recognized by people in the crowd, and soon became a target for such a lot of clothing and refuse that they made a careful retreat to the protection of the police.

The jam in Hyde park afforded a most admirable opportunity for the work of pickpockets, and it is reported that about 1,000 watches were stolen. The Liberal leaders say that this demonstration is only the beginning of what they intend to do. They have already announced the same meeting and procession at Manchester, next Saturday, which will be on as big a scale proportionately to the London affair. It is thought that the biggest oratorical guns at Manchester will be Lord Hartington, the war minister, and the Rt. Hon. John Bright.

There is no doubt that the Tories are astonished and enraged at the magnitude of the outpouring. As the Conservative clubs were closed nothing was by way of overt condemnation of the organizers of the demonstration, who were freely charged with having paid five shillings each to thousands of the disreputable workingmen who marched with the procession.

A King's Peril.

LONDON, July 22.—A curious incident, which might have resulted in international complications, occurred at one of W. Irving Bishop's mind reading entertainments, consisting of the Maoris, who is here seeking redress for the land grabbing of white colonists. The Maoris were requested to conceal some object and command Bishop to find it upon it, to see if Mr. Bishop would be able to find it while blindfolded. King Tawhaio, the high priest of the Maoris, left the room in search, and craftily placed it in his mouth. On the return of the king Bishop was blindfolded and the search commenced. It was "cruelly," and Mr. Bishop almost instantly stated that the object which the king had thought of and concealed was a lizard, round articles, which Bishop said he could not name, in his mouth. His majesty was astonished, and began a spluttering expression of his surprise, in the course of which the lizzard slipped into his throat. Bishop immediately began to dislodge the obstruction, but no amount of coughing was sufficient to bring it up to his mouth. Finally some one suggested that some food be brought for the monarch, after eating a pound of bread, was relieved by the troublesome button being forced down his throat.

Anti-Jewish Riots in Galicia.

VIENNA, July 22.—Anti-Jewish riots have broken out in Galicia and serious affrays have taken place between the Christians and Jews, resulting in the killing of several persons. Many houses have been sacked and the wounding of many others. The Christians attacked the synagogue, completely sacking it. They also destroyed the scroll of the law and committed other outrages. The Jews are frenzied by this sacrilege, and threaten dire vengeance upon their persecutors.

Mrs. Schultz's Generous Offer.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Mrs. Schultz has requested by Dr. Nagle of the Bureau of Vital Statistics from Mrs. Matilda A. Schultz, a cousin of Chauncey M. Depew, and the widow of a physician who died recently from Cincinnati, O., in case of an outbreak of cholera here. Mrs. Schultz says that she is a physician, and is acquainted with a method of treatment for cholera successfully used by her husband, and gives as her references Murat Halstead and other prominent citizens of Cincinnati.

At Columbus—Toledo 4, Columbus 3.

At Baltimore—Athletics 2, Baltimore 1.

At Washington — Washington 12, Alleghany 2.

At St. Louis—St. Louis 11, Louisville 3.

At Boston—Boston 4, Philadelphia 2.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

They Expect to Poll 500,000 Vote Throughout the Country.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 22.—The national train from Chicago on the Fort Wayne road last night had five carloads of delegates and alternates to the national Prohibition convention, which opens in Pittsburg on Wednesday. Among these were 55 from Illinois, 55 from Wisconsin, 16 from Minnesota, 4 from California and 2 from Texas. Several were ladies and many accompanied their wives. The Prohibitionists expect to poll 300,000 votes throughout the country this year, against 73,000 cast for Neal Dow four years ago.

States ticket will be nominated in every state north of Mason and Dixon's line except Iowa and Kansas. The Illinois delegation say they expect to elect four members of the legislature under the minority system. Preferences for president show equal advocacy between St. John, of Kansas, and Michael Gregg Gresham. It is reported by Kansas delegates that St. John will positively decline the nomination; also that McDonald has offered to spend $250,000 in campaign literature for the nominee. An effort will be made in convention to promote an alliance with the Native American party. A poll of the occupants of the sleeping cars showed that 11 would fail to support the Pittsburg nominee 42 will work and vote for Blaine, 19 for Cleveland and 8 for Butler.

BUTLER'S GREENBACK BOOM.

The National Party Raises Boss Shoemaker with a Bang.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Cheering reports of the progress of the Butler boom all over the city were made last evening at the meeting of the National Central Greenback club in its rooms, No. 392 Bowery. After the ordinary routine business Mr. Tisdale, the chairman, reported that the state convention of the party, to meet prior to the convention on August 27, probably at Masonic temple. Notwithstanding all reports to the contrary, Gov. Butler would stand on the platform of principles. When, after promulgating the platform of the Chicago convention, which was refused by the Democrats, he left the body, he did so upon the distinct understanding that the entire party had done in the last eight years. The speaker had no doubt that Butler would express himself during this week or before next Monday night. He was now in his home preparing the document in which he would state his position, and it would, without the slightest doubt, be sent to paper so as to put no one in the dark and which would give satisfaction to all his followers.

Not Injurious to Health.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The United States consul at Malta recently transmitted a report circulated at that port that sickness resulted from the handling American produce and inhaling its fumes. This report, he said, had been circulated to the detriment of the American trade, and workmen had refused to handle the goods, fearing that their wages were increased. The report was referred to Surgeon General Hamilton of the Marine hospital service for a confirmation or denial. He has made a careful investigation and reported that medical examinations of the Scandasi, Astral and other ships where large numbers of them are employed show that the handling of fruit is conducive to be as healthy as any other class of workmen, and show positively that there is no clear foundation for the report. The malicious story that handling the oil is attended by injury to health.

An Important Decision.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Judge Blodgett has rendered a decision which is important as settling the liabilities of a branch of a foreign bank to the home bank in case of an allotted capital. The case in point was that of the United States against the Bank of Montreal to recover about $1,000, being one-twenty-fourth of one per cent. of the money which the Chicago branch received monthly from the home institution in Montreal. The Bank of Montreal had failed, in view of the small tax, it said, to lend money cheaper than any other bank in this city. Judge Blodgett decided that the Chicago branch was independent of the home bank of the United States and should be treated as an individual. An appeal will be made to the supreme court.

Denies that He Said It.

ALBANY, July 22.—Walter N. Thayer, chairman of the Workingmen's assembly of New York, has issued a statement denying that he stated at the Chicago convention that he could pledge the vote of the workingmen to Gen. Cleveland. He reviews the governor's record on bills affecting labor, and concludes by saying: "By his record on legitimate labor measures I judge him, and shall support him for president if I can support him. I do not wish it understood that I am voicing the sentiments of any one but myself. I have no authority to speak for the workingmen on political subjects."

Reduction of Rates.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph company announced that their rate from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington to Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville and Columbus to 25 cents for ten words.

The company has also completed its line from St. Louis, Mo., to Texarkana, Ark., and will open the line for business for ten words on day messages and one-half the day rate on night messages to Pine Bluff, Camden, Clarendon, Jonesboro, Texarkana and other points in Arkansas.

Accused of Bigamy.

RICHMOND, Va., July 22.—Jones Edwards, a young negro and local politician of this city, was arrested at Atlanta charged with bigamy and attempting to murder his latest wife. A few weeks ago Edwards married a white woman and left with her for Atlanta. Soon after he married Miss Sallie Sanford, a white Worldridge. After the marriage he endeavored to get all the property. Not succeeding in it, it is alleged he attempted to make away with his wife by poison. He left Atlanta, where he has been discovered that he has another wife.

BUSINESS FAILURES.

The Largest Ore and Steel Company in the West Suspends.

An Elmira Banking House Closes its Doors—Waiting for the Proprietors to Return—Other Business Troubles.

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—The St. Louis Ore and Steel company, which is made up of a number of different enterprises, including the Union Iron furnaces, the Pilot Knob iron and the Grand Tower Mining and Transportation company, suspended yesterday. Mr. Ethan A. Hitchcock, the president of the company, was appointed provisional receiver. The suspension was determined on after a conference between New York and St. Louis holders, and was caused by a great depression in the iron trade. About a year ago the stock sold at 110; a few days ago it was offered at 84 a share. The capital stock is $5,000,000. The bonded indebtedness is $2,000,000; the unsecured between $150,000 and $250,000. The assets are in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. Among the New York owners are Solon Humphreys, David Dows, Henry Marquand and Jay Gould.

Their Creditors Waiting.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 22.—The Grand Union hotel was attached nearly a week ago and the creditors have been anxiously awaiting the return of the proprietors, Charles H. Tuttle and Ezra L. Poe. They have not been heard from, and the creditors generally consider that they have skipped the town. The liabilities are $15,000; assets, $4,000. The creditors will probably close the house.

An Elmira Banking House Closes Its Doors.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 22.—The private banking house of E. G. Hall closed its doors at noon yesterday.

The inability to realize on real estate and securities is given as the cause. The bank carried about $90,000 or $100,000 deposits of business men, labors and farmers. The amount of the liabilities are not yet known.

Other Failures.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 22.—W. B. Dickson & Co., heavy lumber dealers, have assigned. Assets, $65,000; liabilities, $60,000. The defunct Harrison bank is said to hold claims aggregating $25,000. Other large firms are said to be involved in the Harrison failure.

OVID, Mich., July 22.—Schofield & Cooper, one of the largest carriage manufacturers in the state, have made an assignment. Assets and liabilities not stated.

NEW FORM OF BLACKMAIL.

Serious Charges against Thompson's Banknote Reporter.

CINCINNATI, July 22.—The Evening Post says: "A new form of blackmail, in that practiced by the persistent efforts of Thompson's Banknote and Commercial Reporter of New York, to collect money as subscriptions and advertising accounts where it was never due. From time to time bills were sent to numerous Cincinnati banks with urgent pleas for money and in fearing that the urgent claims which the bankers had never contracted to pay would still be unnoticed reports derogatory to the credit of their banks were circulated. The banks who have been most annoyed by these buccaneers of financial circles are the Exchange National, Fourth National, Union National and Queen City. The officers are very indignant over the persistence of these people and will prosecute them if they can ascertain that the Thompson firm is financially responsible."

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The commission of John Jarrett, of Pittsburg, who was nominated and confirmed as commissioner of labor statistics on the day of the final adjournment of congress is still withheld by the president. It is now stated that his chances for securing the office are rapidly growing less.

Mr. John Paxton, a clerk in the registry division, city post-office, was allowed to resign by Assistant Postmaster Sherwood. The cause of the resignation was the discovery that he had been violating the rules of the office in not buying the stamps used by the public in mailing registered letters from the stamp division, but from a friend who received in his business a large number of stamps. In this way the revenue of the office was decreased about six dollars per day.

In the case of Cogswell vs. Nelson Lansbering company, of Minnesota, Secretary Teller decides that the good faith of a preemptor may be inquired into at any time prior to the issue of a patent, and entry cancelled if made upon fraudulent proofs, notwithstanding he may have sold the land to a purchaser having knowledge of fraud, or in other words, that the purchaser cannot obtain a better title than the pre-emptor.

Secretary Teller left last night for Colorado, where he will spend his vacation. He will be absent a week.

Mrs. Schwinn Released.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 22.—The case of Mrs. Schwinn, who fled to Canada with her daughter Bessie, and who was committed for trial on the charge of abduction on Saturday last, was reopened yesterday morning. The defense was that the child was taken by the mother before the will appointing an uncle of the children their guardian had been admitted to probate. After hearing both sides Judge Hammond ordered Mrs. Schwinn's release. It is said the deceased father of the children made three wills, the first two being in favor of his wife, the third being made only three days before his death. A suit will now be brought to revoke this will.

Cholera's Onward Stride.

PARIS, July 22.—Two deaths from Asiatic cholera occurred at Madrid yesterday.

The cholera in Paris is on the increase. Eight deaths reported, four of which were fatal. At Toulon the epidemic is assuming a most virulent character. Nearly all the victims are dying suddenly.

INDIAN PHILOSOPHY.

Black Hawk's Views of a Great Many Things.

Extracts From the Life of the Great Chief—Release of Fifty Years Ago—The Red Man's Eloquence.

It has been fifty-three years since Black Hawk, the great chief of the Sac and Fox tribe of Indians, dwelt in Rock Island, Ill. As a warrior, patriot and state prisoner, he acquired distinction in his day, and is not yet forgotten. It was the desire that a history of his life should be written, that the white people might know the causes that had impelled him to his line of conduct, in accordance with his request he dictated his story to an interpreter, and in 1833 it was published. The book was dedicated to Brig. Gen. H. Atkinson in the following words:

"The changes of fortune and vicissitudes of war made you my conqueror. When my best resources were exhausted, my warriors worn down with long and toilsome marches, we yielded, and I became your prisoner.

"The changes of many summers have brought old age upon me, and I cannot expect to survive many moons. I am now the only obscure member of a nation that formerly boasted and respected my opinions. The path to glory is rough and thorny, and many hours sorrow. May the Great Spirit shed light on yours, and that you may never experience the humility that the power of the American government has reduced me to, is the wish of him who, in his native forests, was once as proud and bold as yourself."

Comparing the "civilized" manner of making war with that of the Indian, Black Hawk, says:

"Instead of stealing upon each other and taking every advantage to kill the enemy and prevent the same from being done to us, (which is considered good policy in a war chief) they (the whites) march out in open daylight and fight regardless of the number of warriors they may have to contend with. After the battle is over they retire to feast and drink wine as if nothing had happened; after which they make a statement in writing of what they have done each party claiming the victory and neither giving an account of half the number that have been killed on their own side. They fight like braves, but would not do to lead a war party with us. Our maxim is to kill the enemy and save our own men. Those chiefs would do to paddle a canoe, but not to steer it."

After describing the Indian manner of courtship and marriage, he remarks:

"During the first year they (the married pair) ascertain whether they can agree with each other and be happy—if not they part and each looks out again. If we were to live together and disagree, we should be as foolish as the whites. No indiscretion can banish a woman from her parental lodge—no difference how many children she may bring home, she is always welcome; the kettle is over the fire to feed them."

Our frequent change of rulers and rotary principle in politics puzzled Black Hawk:

"The whites people never appear to be satisfied. When they get a good father they hold conventions in consequence of some law, or without man, who wants the place himself) and conclude among themselves that this man or some other, equally ambitious, would make a better father than the last, and raise times out of ten, they don't get as good a one again."

On the land question this Indian chief and thinker antedates Henry George by a generation:

"My reasons teaches me that land can not be sold. The Great Spirit gave it to his children to live upon and cultivate as far as is necessary for their subsistence; and so long as they occupy and cultivate it they have the right to the soil; but if they voluntarily leave it, then any other people have a right to settle upon it."

Here are a few extracts giving his religious views:

"We thank the Great Spirit for all the benefits He has conferred upon us. For myself I never take a drink of water from a spring without being mindful of His goodness.

"We can only judge of what is proper and right by our standard of right and wrong, which differs widely from the whites, if I have been correctly informed.

"The whites may do [and all their lives and then if they are sorry for it when about to die, tell the Great Spirit with us it is different. We must confuse through out our lives to do what we conceive to be good. If we have corn and meat, and know of a family that have none, we divide with them. If we have more blankets than sufficient, and others have not enough, we must give to them that want.

"For my part, I am of the opinion that so far as we have reason, we have a right to use it in determining what is right or wrong, and should pursue that path which we believe to be right. If the Great and Good Spirit wished us to believe and do as the whites, He could easily change our opinions so that we would see and think and act as they do. We are nothing compared to His power, and we feel and know it. We have seen among us like the whites, who pretend to know the right path, but will not consent to show it without pay. I have no faith in their paths, but believe that every man must make his own path.

"What! to be driven from our village and hunting grounds and not ever permitted to visit the graves of our forefathers, our relations and friends!

"The hardship is not known to the whites. With us it is a custom to visit the graves of our friends as I keep them in repair for many years. I never could go alone to weep over the grave of her child. The brave with pleasure visits the grave of his father after he has been successful in war, and rejoices the poor man when he visits that of his. There is no place like that where the bones of our forefathers lie to go to when in grief. Here the Great Spirit will take pity on us."

Of the Cumberland mountains he says:

"I could see nothing in the country to induce the people to live in it; and was astonished to find so many living there on the hills. I have often thought of them since my return to my own people; and am happy to think that they prefer living in their own country to coming on the sea and driving us from it, that they might live upon and enjoy it—as many of the whites have already done. I think with them that wherever the Great Spirit placed His people they ought to be satisfied to remain, and thankful for what he has given them; and not drive others from the country he has given them because it happens to be better than theirs! This is contrary to my way of thinking, and from my conversation with the whites, I have learned that one great principle of their religion is to do unto others as you wish them to do unto you. These people in the mountains have not even this principle, but the settlers on our frontiers and on our lands seem never to think of it, if we are to judge by their actions.

"We started to Jefferson barracks in a steamboat, under the charge of a young war chief (Gen. Jefferson Davis), who treated us with much kindness. He is a good man, leaves young chief, with whom nothing I can think pleased. On our way down we called at Galena and remained a short time. The people crowded to the boat to see us; but the war chief would not permit them to enter the apartment where we were, reasoning from what his own feelings would have been if he had been placed in a similar situation, that we did not wish to have a gaping crowd around us."

The slavery question, then in its earlier stages of agitation (1833), was brought to Black Hawk's attention while on this journey to the south:

"The subject of colonizing the negroes was introduced and my opinion was asked as to the best method of getting clear of these people. I was not prepared at the time to answer, as I knew but little about their situation. I have since made many inquiries on the subject, and find that a number of whites admit no slaves, whilst the balance hold those negroes as slaves, and are anxious, but do not know how, to get clear of them. I will now give my plan, which, when understood, I hope will be adopted.

"Let the free states remove all the male negroes who may be desirous to the slave states. Then let our Great Father buy all the female negroes in the slave states between the ages of 12 and 20, and sell them to the people of the free states for a term of years—say those under 18 until they are 21, and those of and over 18, for five years—and continue to buy all the females in the slave states as soon as they arrive at the age of 12 and sell to those in the free states and dispose of them in the same way as the first, and it will not be long before the country is clear of the black skins and whites. I am told the balance is in contention to help our women make corn."

LATHER AND BLADE.

Great Men Under the Tonsorial Artist's Manipulation.

What "One," of the Hoffman House, Has Noticed—Personal Characteristics and Little Vanities of Notables.

[New York Cor. Enquirer.]

The palatial tonsorial department of the Hoffman house, in the city, to-day can boast of being in charge of an expert "wielder of the blade," who has shaved or held the wound of more great men at his disposal than any barber in America. This particular "scraper of rare beards" and "slinger of soft lather," is Otis Bender, formerly of the Windsor hotel, and a prominent figure in the art organized fraternity which is made up exclusively of experienced hands in the trade which he pursues. From "One" description of how some great men study their personal appearance, give especial attention of their toilet, and act during the progress of their improvement under the barber's skilful manipulation, some remarkable peculiarities as well as interesting characteristics were brought out relative to these distinguished worthies.

COL. ROBERT G. INGERSOLL.

The first subject of particular interest to the high-bred tonsorial artist was Col. Bob Ingersoll. Mr. Ingersoll always puts up at the Hoffman house while in the city, and was engaged in the shop when Bender came with Bender. Although the "no half" theorist frequently shaves himself when at home, upon reaching his hotel here, he before stepping into his depots to "die," prepares to allowing himself to be scrutinized or welcomed by his usual run of visitors and admirers. Mr. Ingersoll is careful and particular in the matter of his person. He always goes into the tonsorial department with his glowing countenance, without any importance in his bearing. Entering the shop, he at once hangs it up in sight near his place, and, quietly recognizing the barber, drops into the high, soft chair with an air of satisfaction as he says, "The same as usual." "Col. Bob" is a quiet customer of his grade. He does not display any indications of vanity by taking sly glances of himself in the mirror. He does not order cosmetics, perfumes or tonics for his hair, because—as the "bald-headed" humorously put it—he has no hair upon his head to speak of, except an apology which fringes the frontispiece and back of his well developed "dome of thought."

His always demands a close, close shave, and as soon as the barber has adjusted the strop back into his seat for the operation, instead of closing his eyes and trying to snatch a forty-winker nod, he rivets his focus on a small sized hand glass at his side and appears to go off into a deep reverie.

Not until the barber exclaims "Next" and touches Mr. Ingersoll gently on the shoulder is the orator aware of the fact his toilet is complete, and then with a sudden start the colonel sits erect in the chair, straightens his whole nature up with the head's mouth's gum into the glass, makes his way from the seat to permit another customer to fill his vacant place.

"Lesli" Beaster Mahone drops into the Hoffman when in town, but Bender says he shall never forget the first time Mahone came into his place. The senator, with a small valise in one hand and an umbrella in the other, came unobtrusively down, placed his traveling conveniences to one side and took a seat in "One" chair.

A PERIOUS LITTLE SENATOR.

Mahone had on his chin beard, and wore his hair flowing in tempting, Quaker like tresses carelessly down upon his shoulders. As soon as he had settled himself in the seat, the rest before him, and stretched out his limited pedals, threw himself back contentedly into the seat, the barber modestly clutched the senatorial locks in his firm, unsympathetic grasp, and almost yanking the little man out of the chair backwards, asked: "You want all this long hair cut off, I suppose?"

Jumping round with one start that would have done credit to an ordinary acrobat, and furiously glaring at his attendant, not deigning to, almost bustle himself with rage at the indignity offered by the sacrifice of his superchanlik tresses, abruptly responded:

"You never will, sir, as long as I live, young man, just give me a good shave; that's all I want, and if I desired my hair taken off I would have said so, without waiting for you to state it."

"Don't get excited," calmly interposed Barber Bender, at realizing he had suggested an operation that would have deprived his customer as much as did the shearing of the locks from Samson.

The barber then apologizing, resumed the irritable man's requests and allowed him to depart.

"That's a pretty nervous and excitable fellow," remarked Bender to his next customer, who happened to be Mr. Alex. McClure, editor of The Buffalo (New York) Courier.

"Yes, that little man, though, has worked quite a power on his shoulders, and created

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Gibraltar was taken 1804.

Locals.

—An artillery company is to be formed by North Plainfield Republicans.

—The National Temperance Camp Meeting begins at Ocean Grove to-day.

—Compton, Dixon, Ramonetti or Tier's Ice Cream is very refreshing such weather as this.

—Rev. A. H. Tuttle has accepted an invitation to preach a sermon to the Reform Club next Sunday evening at the Methodist Church.

—The regular business meeting of the Reform Club will be held in the basement of the Trinity Church to-morrow evening at eight o'clock.

—Mr. A. M. Cory, of New Providence, has been granted a patent on a universal clock.

—The Daisy Club is the latest addition to Westfield social clubs.

—A missionary tea party was given by the Ladies Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church of Westfield last week with satisfactory financial results.

—Margaret Bosworth has served out the sentence recently imposed upon her by the City Court, for keeping a disorderly house. She returned to this city yesterday afternoon.

—A large excursion from Yonkers stopped at Boynton beach yesterday. The Steamer Long Branch, the barge Water Sands and another barge were necessary to convey the large crowd.

—The Westfield Fireside says, of the temperance movement in that village: The temperance cotton has at no time been better than at present. Many heretofore indifferent have openly espoused the good cause and greatly encouraged the hard workers. Last week a man left his work and walked two miles in the hot sun to sign the pledge. Another man says he has saved $600 since he has signed, which money would have otherwise been spent for liquor. Many similar encouraging instances could be given.

—At the weekly meeting of the Reform Club remarks are made by reformed men, the singing has improved and the ladies of the Temperance Union greatly assist by their presence and good words.

—A Plainfield cattle dealer secured, a few days ago, a handsome cow and calf. As they were being driven to this city, a farmer saw and admired the cow, and desired that she be sold to him. Monday, he brought the necessary amount to Plainfield and returned with the cow, placing her in an enclosed pasture, about six miles distant, beyond Scotch Plains. Yesterday the animal reappeared in the streets of Plainfield and sought out the stable where she had been separated from her calf which had been meanwhile slaughtered. She was kindly returned to the stable and fed, but continued wearing the melancholy for her missing offspring, throughout last night. She is kept awaiting her owner, who has no doubt had a search for her.

Violation of the Hack Ordinance.

The hack ordinance under which hack drivers receive their licenses limits the amount which may legally be charged by drivers for their services. Within the limits of Farragut avenue, the Randolph Road, Clinton avenue and the city's western boundary the charge is fixed at twenty-five cents for one passenger and fifteen cents for every additional one. Between 11 o'clock p. m. and 5 o'clock a. m. the fares may be doubled. Recently a gentleman living near Broadway had occasion to use a hack at nine o'clock. The driver, Augustus Utzinger, charged him fifty cents. The man protested against the charge at the time. He afterward made a complaint before City Judge Good. On this complaint Utzinger was arrested and fined $5 for violation of the ordinance.

One Way of Going to a Hop.

A News reporter recently overheard the following conversation:

Dude Brother to Companion: Yaws, as I said before my sister went to the hop at the Park House last evening.

Companion: Ah! indeed, did she enjoy herself?

D. B. Awful very much indeed.

As the News reporter was present on the occasion referred to he happened to know that the enjoyable time consisted in looking over the fence.

Absent in Everything.

Plainfield people are very stylish, even the colored gardener rides around there on bicycles, and on a "star" at that.—Exchange.

You're overbearingly right, Plainfield's absent every time.

The County Valuations and Taxes.

At the last session of the County Board of Assessors at Elizabeth, the following resolution by J. M. C. Marsh of Westfield, was adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of three of the attending members of this board, of which the present chairman shall be one, be appointed to assess and levy the quota of the State, State School and County Tax of the city of Elizabeth for the present year, and to perform all duties which by law this board of assessment and revision of taxes in the city of Elizabeth" should, if they were in existence perform, as to the levying and assessing of State, State School and County Taxes within said city, said committee to be named by the chair.

Chairman D. Hobart Sayre named as his associates upon the committee John Robinson of Fanwood and J. M. C. Marsh of Westfield.

The following is the table of valuation real and personal estate, poll taxes and County and State School tax for the cities and townships:

North Plainfield Republicans Reorganize.

Pursuant to a call published by Isaac Brokaw, of the county executive committee, the Republicans of North Plainfield met last evening in the old school building, on Harmony street, for the purpose of forming a campaign club.

The meeting was called to order shortly after eight o'clock by Isaac Brokaw. About sixty-five persons were present. Charles Place was elected temporary chairman, and Isaac Brokaw temporary secretary. Mr. Place on taking the chair made a short speech in endorsement of the candidates.

On motion a committee of three was appointed by the Chair to report a list of officers for the permanent organization. The committee consisted of Messrs. Broadway, Reynell and Horne.

While waiting for the committee on permanent organization to report, Messrs. Stiles and Goddard, of the Lincoln Club, made short speeches.

The committee on permanent organization reported as permanent officers: President, Henry A. McGee; First Vice-President, A. B. Reynell; Second Vice-President, Isaac Brokaw; Third Vice-President, Charles Place; Secretary, George F. Brown; Treasurer, Albert Leland. The report was received, and the officers elected as a whole.

The President was conducted to the Chair by Messrs. Gillette and Anthony. The President thanked the meeting for the honor conferred upon him.

On motion a committee of five was authorized to be appointed to report by-laws, resolutions, etc., to the club at its next meeting. The President announced that he would appoint the committee in a few days.

It was resolved that the organization be known as the North Plainfield Blaine and Logan Campaign Club.

It was moved that the next meeting be held three weeks from date, on Aug. 12; carried.

Geo Frazee then sang a song to the great delight of the audience, and started on a second one, but got mixed considerably, and had to give it up as a bad job.

Mr. Stiles, one of the Vice-Presidents of the Lincoln Club, extended a hearty invitation to all the North Plainfield Club to attend the Lincoln Club meetings.

The Lincoln Club were given three cheers and a tiger, as were also the committees.

The roll of the club was signed by fifty persons.

The meeting then adjourned.

Wedding Bells.

Miss Lizzie Van Winkle, a favorite with the young people of this vicinity was married at her home on Duer street, last evening about 6.30 o'clock by the Rev. Mr. Raymond, to Mr. Charles P. Leggett of Elizabeth, in the presence of many friends, including among them residents of this city, New York, Asbury Park and Elizabeth. After the usual ceremonies and festivities, the couple started on the 8.30 train. They propose visiting Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Lake George and Saratoga. Owing to the recent death of the mother of Mr. Leggett, the bride was attired accordingly. She wore a neat fitting grey travelling suit, in which she, naturally handsome, appeared as pretty as a pearl.

A Free Tongue Case.

Near the southwestern end of the city live LeGrande Fulton and Samuel B Merrill. Recently, owing to some local differences, Fulton used language toward Merrill which Merrill did not like, and several other things occurred which were not to the liking of either party. Accordingly Merrill swore out a complaint before Justice Nash. Thereupon Fulton swore out a counter charge. The two cases have been adjourned several times, but yesterday afternoon came up for settlement before the Justice. In the case of Merrill vs. Fulton, Fulton was held in his own bond for $50 to keep the peace. Owing to the absence of important witnesses, the case of Fulton vs. Merrill was adjourned until Monday next.

Personal.

The wife of Mr. John H. French, President of the Reform Club, is seriously ill at New Rochelle.

Arthur Mulford, of this city, who has been on a visit for a few weeks to some relatives at Morristown, returned home yesterday.

Miss Sallie Wilson and Miss Howell, both of New Brunswick, are making a week's visit in Plainfield among a host of their cousins and aunts

The Rev Charles Dunn, of Park avenue, who recently received a call to the Hempstead, L. I., Presbyterian Church, was ordained and installed as pastor on Monday.

The office of Dr. W. G. Lathbe, at No. 202 Montgomery street, Jersey City, was entered on Monday night by sneak thieves, who cut out a safe and drawer. They secured $3 in money, a gold watch and chain, valued at $50, which was their only plunder, except a gold tooth it is supposed they pumped it in.

State Matters.

George Sutton, a driver in the employ of P. Ballantine & Sons, of Newark, fell from a wagon on Monday night and broke his neck.

A little girl living in the "Boo Hive," an Italian tenement in Bloomfield, fell into Carby's stone quarry yesterday, breaking her leg and receiving other severe injuries.

While raising a hickory pole ninety-two feet long at Columbus for a Cleveland and Hendricks flag, the rope tackle broke and the pole fell, striking Miles Atkinson and injuring him severely.

A movement is on foot in East Orange again at grocers who sell beer and liquors in small quantities under the Bloomfield license. The temperance people intend to carry the case before the Grand Jury.

A railroad laborer was shot by a stray bullet from Brint's rifle range yesterday, as he was going from Newark to Elizabeth on a hand car. The shooting was done by one of two men who were at practice, and is said to have been entirely accidental.

A man named Schweltzer, of Irvington, a painter, while driving across the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad at Waverly, Monday, was struck by a west bound train, and his wagon completely demolished. Schweltzer was thrown some distance and slightly injured in the back of his head. The horses escaped injury. Schweltzer was taken home.

The tax rate of Camden was fixed by the City Assessors yesterday at $2.40. Of this $1.01 is for city use. This is based upon a valuation of $14,170,380, which is conceived to be about two-thirds of the actual value of the property upon which it is assessed. Three years ago the rate was $2.90 and slight reductions were made in the two intervening years.

Jacob M. Mercein, formerly a resident of Jersey City, died at Saratoga on Monday night from consumption. He was 57 years old. Mr. Mercein was an active Republican, and one of the few men of that party ever elected to the office of Sheriff of Hudson County, having been elected in 1868 by a majority of 36. He was quite wealthy at one time, having amassed a fortune as a railroad contractor. He retired from business about 12 years ago, and had recently engaged in speculations which proved disastrous and left him comparatively poor.

In well-informed Catholic circles it is under-stood that the Diocese of Newark, N. J., is to be honored by the establishment of an abbey of the Order of St. Benedict. Its mitred Abbot will be the well-known Very Rev. Gerard Fitz, O. S. B., Prior of the Church and Convent of the Immaculate Conception, Newark. His name was some time since sent to the headquarters of the Congregation of St. Benedict at Munich, Bavaria, and there is little doubt that his nomination as Abbot will be confirmed. In anticipation of this favorable event, the Benedictine Fathers of St. Mary's Priory in Newark, have purchased from the Right Rev. Dr. Wigger, Bishop of the diocese, the valuable property and buildings formerly used by the Catholic Protectory at Dunnin, Morris County.

The Sun.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense and solid sound doctrine, and base wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of study reading night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the truth, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and with therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:—

Terms to Mail Subscribers.

DAILY—50 cents a month, $6 a year, with Sunday edition $7.

SUNDAY—Eight pages. This edition furnishes the current news of the world, special articles of unusual interest, letters from abroad, literary reviews of new books of the highest merit. ONE DOLLAR a year.

WEEKLY—ONE DOLLAR a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled value, special market reports, and literature, tales and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmers household. To clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free.

A NEW PAVEMENT.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diebold Patent Iron Stone,

which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stones, door sills, and curb blocks. Also used to build fire proofs. These Pavement Blocks have many striking peculiarities—They show no perceptible wear; are not conductors; repels heat and cold, as well as all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. These Block are cast from the molten iron blast and are the hardest of substance. DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS FOR FIFTY YEARS.

The nominations made by the Democratic convention within the last fifty years are as follows:

1836, Martin Van Buren, first ballot.
1840, Martin Van Buren, unanimously.
1844, James K. Polk, ninth ballot.
1848, Lewis Cass, fourth ballot.
1852, Franklin Pierce, forty-ninth ballot.
1856, James Buchanan, seventeenth ballot.
1860, John C. Breckenridge, fifty-sixth ballot.
1864, George B. McClellan, first ballot.
1868, Horatio Seymour, twenty-third ballot.
1872, Horace Greeley, indorsed.
1876, Samuel J. Tilden, second ballot.
1880, Winfield S. Hancock, second ballot.
1884, Grover Cleveland, second ballot.

The 1860 convention that nominated Breckenridge balloted fifty-five times at Charleston, S. C., then adjourned to Baltimore June 18, when Breckenridge was unanimously nominated on the first ballot. The "bolters" met the same day and nominated Stephen A. Douglass on the first ballot.

In 1852 Franklin Pierce's name first appeared on the thirty-fifth ballot, when Virginia gave him her fifteen votes. Lewis Cass and James Buchanan were the leading candidates on most of the forty-five ballots, but at no time did either have a majority even of the convention, while a two-thirds vote was required to nominate.

BOTH PARTIES ON THE TARIFF.

A comparison of the tariff planks of the two parties is worth considering:

REPUBLICAN.

We therefore demand that the imposition of duties on foreign imports shall be made not for "revenue only," but that in raising the requisite revenues for the government such duties shall be so levied as to afford security to our diversified industries and protection to the rights and wages of the laborer, to the end that active and intelligent labor as well as capital, may have its just award and the laboring man his full share in the national prosperity.

* * * * * * *

The Republican party pledges itself to correct the inequalities of the tariff and to reduce the surplus, not by the vicious and indiscriminate process of horizontal reduction, but by such methods as will relieve the taxpayer without injuring the laborer or the great productive interests of the country.

DEMOCRATIC.

The Democratic party is pledged to revise the tariff in a spirit of fairness to all interests. But in making reduction in taxes it is not proposed to injure any domestic industries, but rather to promote their healthy growth. From the foundation of this government taxes collected at the Custom House have been the chief source of Federal revenue; such they must continue to be. Moreover, many industries have come to rely upon legislation for successful continuance, so that any change of law must be at every step regarded with the labor and capital thus involved. The process of reform must be subject in the execution to this plain dictate of justice.

* * * * * * *

The necessary reduction in taxation can and must be effected without depriving American labor of the ability to compete successfully with foreign labor and without imposing lower rates of duty than will be ample to cover any increased cost of production which may exist in consequence of the higher rate of wages prevailing in this country.

From these extracts the dullest person can see that both declare for tariff correction, and both for a tariff that will protect the industries and labor of the country. Any other construction than this must be false.

THE REPUBLICAN BOLT.

Four Hundred Delegates from Sixteen States.

Addresses by Prominent Men—Platform, Resolutions, National Committee and Other Matter Features Adopted.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Republican and Independent voters of New York state, New York city, Brooklyn, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and other states, counties and cities who have resolved against Blaine and Logan held a conference yesterday at the University Club theatre, corner Fifth avenue and Madison avenue. The session was remarkable in many respects. It was largely attended, and was representative in the character of the delegates present of as prominent persons who took part in it. There was never in the history of the politics of this city, state or nation such a gathering. The delegates began to assemble at 11 o'clock and when the reception rooms and hallways adjoining the theatre were thronged.

As the delegates were assembling, Mr. Charles F. Miller of this city, requested the delegates from the several states to get together. This resulted in the full representation of each state. Mr. Miller and Mr. Carl Schurz was enthusiastically received, and Mr. Francis C. Barlow received almost an ovation. Other well known men and prominent Republicans were present.

At 11.35 o'clock the tall form of Mr. George William Curtis emerged from the flies and at once the audience recognized and greeted him to the echo. He waited composedly for it to subside, and then coming to the little table in front of the stage, he tapped lightly with a pencil and said:

"Gentlemen, it is my pleasant duty as chairman of the Independent Republican Committee of New York, and on its behalf, to welcome you to this conference, and to call it to order." (Applause.)

He read the call for the conference. When he read that part which referred to the Republicans "who will not vote for Blaine and Logan," he was interrupted by hearty applause. Mr. Curtis nominated Charles H. Denman for chairman. The nomination was well received.

The full list of officers is as follows:

President—Charles R. Codman, of Massachusetts.

Vice Presidents—H. A. Babbitt, C. P. Armstrong and H. W. Putnam, of Connecticut; Wm. Endicott, Richard Frothingham, Robert Blakie, of Massachusetts; Carl Schurz, Francis C. Barlow and Theodore Bacon, of New York; W. Hayes Ward, H. G. Herbert and Wm. J. Bewland, of New Jersey; Henry C. Lea, Francis P. Reeves and Walter Wood, of Pennsylvania; the Hon. Joseph Medill, of Illinois; Amos D. Slafin, of Illinois; C. J. Bonaparte, of Maryland; Benjamin F. Thurston, of Rhode Island; S. Walter Meriwether, of Delaware, and Wm. J. Thompson, of Virginia.

Secretaries—George H. Eirie, of Pennsylvania; George W. Green, of New York, and George L. Miller, of Connecticut.

Enrollment—Henry C. Folsom, of New York; Talcott H. Russell, of Connecticut; Moses Williams, of Massachusetts, and Jos. Nevin, of Pennsylvania.

The names of Carl Schurz, Gen. Barlow, J. J. Bonaparte, of Maryland, and others that were well known, were greeted with applause. The nominees were unanimously elected.

Four hundred and fifty-nine delegates joined in the roll and formed in the following states. They represented sixteen states. California sent 9; Colorado, 1; Connecticut, 8; Delaware, 2; Georgia, 1; Illinois, 2; Maryland, 6; Massachusetts, 24; Michigan, 1; Massachusetts, 84; New Jersey, 33; Pennsylvania, 19, Rhode Island, 6; Vermont, 1; Brooklyn 56, and other points in the state of New York, 246. In all the representatives of New York city numbered 158.

The committee on Permanent Organization then reported, and the following National Committee was announced:

Carl Schurz, Theodore Bacon, John H. Sperling, Charles F. Miller, R. L. Bowker, George W. Folsom, Ethan Allan Allan Doty, George Walton Green, Horace E. Deming, New York; William H. Forbes, Jos. Tucker, Joseph H. Walker, Samuel Hoar, Moorfield Storey, George C. Leverett, Winslow Warren, Massachusetts; Simeon E. Baldwin, C. R. Ainsworth, Connecticut; Robert Goodloe Harper, Daniel Drake Smith, Simeon Huntington, W. S. Peckham, New Jersey; Francis B. Reeves, Stuart Wood, Joseph Parish, Pennsylvania, L. Bartlett Wheeler, Charles D. Cleveland. Illinois delegate, were added to the committee. Then Messrs. Schurz and Curtis at the head of their committee entered the hall.

An address, prepared by George William Curtis and read by him, was presented to the convention and adopted for distribution throughout the country. It said:

"The paramount issue," began Mr. Curtis, "of the presidential election this year is moral rather than political. It concerns the national honor and character and honesty of administration rather than general policies of government upon which the platforms of the two parties do not essentially differ. No party platform is entitled to seriously traversed by the other."

Having observed that the most threatening national peril is indifference to political corruption that has developed so rapidly that it seeks political power not only to gratify ambition, but to promote private gain. Mr. Curtis declared that "no party has a necessary more fatal to the public welfare can be conceived that whereby through public indifference or misunderstanding this corrupt spirit is able to intrench itself in power. It shall approve it by according to it the highest honor in its gift.

The national committee was met after the adjournment of the conference. They decided that the executive committee should be composed of ten members. Then reports were made from the delegates present at the conference, all of which were to the effect that the independent vote throughout the country would be cast for Gov. Cleveland. After some discussion it was decided that the principal work in the campaign should be done in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut. The committee will meet to-day at 35 Nassau street.

Resigned Under Pressure.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 23.—John C. B. Harrison, receiver of the Indiana Banking company, is reported as $50,000 short in his accounts and has resigned under pressure. George C. Day has been agreed upon as his successor. It is presumed that Harrison's wife will make up the shortage if the defalcation is made up Harrison's bondsmen will probably not be liable for his acts.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

A Prospect of Matters Some Below Spoons on the Convention.

PITTSBURG, July 23.—Nearly all the delegates to the national convention of the Prohibition Home Protection party are upon the ground. Every boardinghouse is crowded, and the hotels have exhausted their available supply of cots in the effort to accommodate twelve delegates to a single room. Lafayette hall is the rendezvous of the visitors, and within its walls a thousand or more voices are cheering for the candidates. As soon as the "Hallelujah Chorus" and "Old Hundred," Spaulding's fife concerning the possible outcome of the convention, Gov. St. John's letter declining nomination of the presidential nomination was made known, most of the delegates have been at sea. The son of McDonald of the Bay Prohibition bullion, who has been in the same since Monday, is advocating his father's candidacy with vigor and earnestness, and is reported to have secured the votes of a large number of delegates. Stewart, of Ohio, has many friends, but the western delegates express their opinion that he has not the general recognition that he should be a desirable element in a candidate.

It is understood that there is a prospect of the boom of Benj. Harrison being launched in the conventions, and if this is realized a lively scene will ensue, as several members of the convention have primed themselves with ammunition for the emergency. Should such a nomination would be an impolitic one, and one injurious to the best interests of the party. Concerning the vice-presidency there is a general disposition to nominate one or other of the leaders who have been prominent in the temperance work, the names mentioned be Frances Willard. If the choice does not fall upon a lady, Gen. Clinton B. Fiske, of New Jersey, will probably be the second half of the ticket. All seem to agree that should the delegates decide to resist the nomination of that gentleman on the ground that certain vinegar bitters, in the manufacture of which he is chief, is a beverage and not a medicine more or less alcohol. They also claim that ex-Gov. St. John will accept the nomination if it be forced upon him. His views on this point will be sought this morning and if the reply is encouraging the Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey and Wisconsin delegations to the number of 146 will be solid in his support.

Ambitious Congressman Reed.

PORTLAND, Me., July 23.—It is understood that Congressman Reed said to Clarence Hale; that while under ordinary circumstances he would be happy to support him for state senator, yet, if elected this year he would claim the nomination a second time, and would make it unpleasant for Hale if he opposed. This is thought to mean that Reed has resolved to contest the senatorial nomination with Eugene Hale when Hale's term expires, and knowing this, has asked Hale to have a brother in the state senate at the time. Reed and Eugene Hale were formerly law partners and have for years worked together. Reed's friends might thus secure a solid world seriously affect Republican prospects in this state. That rupture is evidently at hand, as Clarence Hale will probably open a fight for the senatorial nomination from this district in the face of Reed's letter of opposition.

Cleveland at Work on His Message.

ALBANY, July 23.—During his leisure moments Governor Cleveland is busy in the work of materials for his letter of acceptance. The labor question takes up most of his time. It is probable that the message to the state legislature will be laid off on October 1, owing to want of money to proceed. This will cause more growling on the part of the labor interests, but it has also been made quite apparent and recognized that Gov. Cleveland is in no wise responsible for the stoppage. Cleveland men in this city are jubilant over the action of Gov. Butler. They aver that he has not the slightest intention of running.

Representative Wilson Renominated

WHEELING, W. Va., July 23.—The Democrats of the Second district renominated W. L. Wilson for congress by acclamation. Gustice Gibson was renominated in the Fourth district without opposition.

A Call for Ex-Minister Sargent.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., July 23.—Ex-Minister Sargent has received a telegram from California asking him to run for congress in one of the congressional districts.

Grand Army Veterans.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 23.—The influx of Grand Army veterans continues. The adjacent watering place hotels here have been pressed into service to accommodate the crowds. Gen. John A. Logan and Commander-in-Chief Veazey yesterday were greeted with great enthusiasm. The east is strongly represented, and members from the Pacific coast are arriving in large numbers. The largest delegation was with Gen. Logan from Illinois. The formal reception took place in the morning. Gov. Hubbard of this state, Mayor Ames, Citizen Gilfillan and Commander Babb delivered speeches. Gen. Sherman reached the camp at noon. He rested during the night, and after which fraternization was stopped. It to-day is clear the parade will be a fine one.

Attempt to Lynch an Engineer.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., July 23.—A girl named Boyce, aged 14, was run over and killed on the bridge at Saxton by a train on the Huntingdon and Broad Top railroad. Citizens of Saxton became enraged at the engineer, William Green, and a mob collected at the depot to lynch him on their return trip. Grove, however, hearing of his danger, left his engine in charge of another person and escaped at a station below Saxton.

Down an Elevator Shaft to Death.

BALTIMORE, July 23.—George Schleffer, a young man employed at the Oriental brewery, was accidentally killed last night. He fell feet deep, on an elevator, when the pulley rope broke, and he was carried with the platform to the bottom. The elevator was wrecked and Schleffer fatally injured.

FOREIGN NOTES.

A number of Egyptian officers have deserted from their commands at Assouan.

Official returns show that 1,358 families were evicted in Ireland during the quarter which ended April 1.

The Pall Mall Gazette says that it is absurd to suppose that M. de Lesseps will be able to complete the canal of opening the Panama canal in 1888.

A mob wrecked the barracks of the Salvation army at Bienne, Switzerland, and attacked the members of the society. During the affray several of the Salvationists were wounded.

It is generally understood in London official circles that the further adjournment of the Egyptian conference is due to a desire to look caused by the excessive counter demands of France.

A small box of gunpowder exploded in Regent street, London, last night. The adjacent buildings were slightly damaged, but no one was injured. It is thought that those responsible for the explosive intended merely to cause fright and not to destroy lives or property.

THE ARCTIC HEROES.

Greely's Ill-fated Expedition Praised by Gen. Hazen.

Work and Experience of the Party in the Icy Regions—Encouraging Condition of the Rescued Survivors.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Gen. Hazen, chief signal officer, furnishes the following statement regarding the recent work and experience of the Greely party in the Arctic regions: "The story of the relief expedition far surpasses in importance, completeness and scope that done by any other on record. It has shown the fallacy of the old belief that fatal diseases, especially scurvy, were necessarily incident to Arctic life, and that life there was constantly menaced by the extreme cold. It has also shown that with proper supplies, suitable clothing, proper and abundant food and a good, sensibly warmed house men can live there in perfect health and comparative comfort for a considerable period of time. This fact is corroborated by Lieut. Ray's experience at Point Barrow, where, it is two years, he never had a man on sick report, and pronounced service there more safe than in Florida.

"Lieut. Greely literally accomplished everything he was sent to do in the two years he was at Lady Franklin bay, maintaining proper discipline, without more serious frosting or discomforts than is experienced every winter in Dakota, without exposure likely to cause fatal disease, especially scurvy, were necessarily incident to Arctic life, and that life there was constantly menaced by the extreme cold. It has also shown that with proper supplies, suitable clothing, proper and abundant food and a good, sensibly warmed house men can live there in perfect health and comparative comfort for a considerable period of time. This fact is corroborated by Lieut. Ray's experience at Point Barrow, where, in

LOVED HIM SPITE OF HIS YEARS

Little Annie Le Loupe Unconquerable Affection for Peter Echausse.

NEW YORK, July 23.—M. Le Loup, whose participation in the uprising in Paris in 1871 is said to have caused his banishment from France, keeps a bakery at No. 345 West Seventeenth street. He has a little daughter, Annie, who, since the death of his wife, has been helping in the bakery. She is 16 years old, and pretty.

Among the baker's customers was Peter Echausse, a rather good-looking Frenchman, 54 years of age. He made love to Annie, and when Le Loup found it out, asked to marry the girl. Le Loup told Echausse not to visit the house or see the girl again. She, however, managed to meet him secretly, notwithstanding the vigilance of her father. She said she loved Echausse, and would marry him or nobody. The baker then procured the services of Lawyer G. W. Gibbons, and began a suit against Echausse for damages for alienating his daughter's affection and depriving him of her services as assistant in his shop. Judgment against Echausse for $1,750 and costs was procured, and, being unable to pay, he was sent to Ludlow street jail. He was released yesterday on the ground that he had no property, and that a longer confinement in prison would probably result in consumption.

The neighbors of the baker say that when he heard of Echausse's release he became very much excited. He was seen walking up and down his shop with a revolver in his hand. The girl was locked up in her room adjoining the hallway of the house last evening, and was crying. Her sister-in law spoke encouraging words with her through the key-hole. The hallway was crowded with women, who declared that Le Loup had whipped his daughter repeatedly during the day, and had threatened to kill Echausse if he came around. Mr. Gibbons said the girl kept up a correspondence with Echausse while the latter was in jail.

A New Jersey Snake Story.

JERSEY CITY, July 23.—Last Sunday the 4-year-old daughter of Samuel Moore, of this city, who is visiting with his family in Montague township, in the mountains near the Delaware river, went into the yard of the house to play. Suddenly she called out, "Oh, grandmother, come and see what a pretty thing I've found." The old lady was horrified to see that the child was playing with a large rattlesnake, curled ready to spring. She seized a hoe and attacked the reptile, beating it until it was dead. At a short distance another snake was found lying in the path. This she dispatched with one blow of the hoe handle. In a lettuce bed near by the neighbors found a third snake, and in the adjoining yard two more were seen lying quietly. They were quickly killed and the grounds were carefully searched, but no more were found. The snakes were very large, four of them having eleven rattles each. A rattlesnake was never seen in the vicinity before.

At Washington—Allegheny 9, Washington 8.
At Columbus—Toledo 1, Columbus 3.
At Indianapolis—Cincinnati 9, Indianapolis 2.
At Providence—Philadelphia 10, Providence 6.
At Washington—Boston Union 2, National Union 1.

A Burglar, but No Blood.

NEW YORK, July 23.—H. Rosenblatt, proprietor of a second-hand store at 719 Third avenue, reported to Police Captain Mount that he shot a burglar who broke open a window of his store, early yesterday morning, and stole a revolver. Mr. Rosenblatt said that a stream of blood gushed from the burglar's back, and that he fell several times while running away. Detective Cuff ascertained that there was a real burglar, and that Mr. Rosenblatt had shot him, but he found no evidence of blood having gushed from the burglar's back.

A Yellow Fever Epidemic.

PANAMA, July 23.—The number of cases of yellow fever is increasing daily. A canal chief, a priest and two staff officers have died from the disease. There are 176 cases of dysentery in the city. The hospitals are crowded, both here and in Colon. Seven deaths occurred in the canal hospital Monday night. The isthmus is in a filthy condition, and cholera is expected. As yet no precautionary measures have been taken to prevent the introduction of the disease.

A Fatal Fight at Cards.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23.—A special from Turtle Lake, Barron county, Wis., says: Joe Smith, a shoemaker, engaged in a game of cards with William Jones. A quarrel ensued, in which Jones whipped out a knife and with one thrust almost severed Smith's head from his body. The murderer fled, but was captured. A mob sought to take him from the sheriff, but was resisted, and he is now in jail.

Rubber Mills Shut Down.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 23.—All departments of the National Rubber company, of Bristol, are shut down. Great depression of business is given as the reason, the officials say the closing is only temporary. Gov. Bourn is treasurer. The company owes its hundreds of workmen for all of June and for as much of July as has passed. This causes very much distress throughout the town.

Accident to a Convict Train.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 23.—The boiler of the locomotive of a construction train on the West North Carolina railroad exploded near Waynesville, killing Henry Warner, engineer, Edward Barringer, fireman, and one convict. Several other convicts were fatally scalded.

The Fastest Quarter Mile.

NEW YORK, July 23.—C. S. Hopkins drove Mr. T. Smith's brown gelding Dart, a green horse, 8 years old, a quarter of a mile in harness on the New York Driving club's grounds, yesterday afternoon, in the unequalled time of 29½ seconds. The best time for a quarter of a mile before this was 30½ seconds.

Lieut. Hodges Will Lose His Big Toe.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Lieut. Hodges, of the Engineer corps at Willets's Point, while practising at the rifle range yesterday afternoon, lowered a rifle and placed the muzzle on his right foot. The rifle went off and shattered the foot. His big toe will have to be amputated.

Patti's Suit for Divorce.

LONDON, July 23.—Mme. Patti has begun her suit for divorce against the Marquis de Caux. In the preliminary declaration required by law, Marquis de Caux, the divorcee recites a startling list of grievances. Among the charges are desertion, infidelity and constructive cruelty.

DOCTOR MACBRIDE.

[Georg v. Augustine Sala in Bon Ton.]

Dr. Æneas Macbride was strong in comparative anatomy, and described everything that came in his way. His dissecting-room was in the courtyard of the Palazzo Garmitali, Rome. But it was up stairs in his library and alone that "il Reverendo" carried out his opolcest manipulations, and made the more delicate of his "preparations" of human muscles, arteries, veins and nerves, which, when completed, were displayed under glass shades on a large table in the center of the apartment. It was at this table, having just finished the dissection of a very small hand —never mind to what kind of a creature the hand, while it was a living one, had belonged —that he was sitting one evening in July, 1775, when it suddenly occurred to him that he had exhausted his supply of cochineal with which to tinge the melted wax, which he proposed to inject on the morrow morning into the venous system of his "preparation."

Dr. Æneas Macbride proceeded to the well-known druggist's shop kept by Sig. Panzani, at the corner of the Via de Condotti. It was one of the largest and handsomest shops in Rome. He made his purchase and placed the packet of cochineal in a side pocket.

"Stay!" he suddenly exclaimed, pausing on the threshold; "I had forgotten something. You must make me up, if you please, that admirable sleeping draught with the secret of the formula of which only you and I are cognizant, and which has given ease to so many of my patients. Will you prepare it for me at once? I must take it with me."

"With pleasure, illustrissimo ed excellentissimo dottore," said the apothecary, as he bustled from jar to jar and bottle to bottle, pouring various ingredients into a glass vial. "'Tis a wonderful sleeping draught to be sure. I have tried it on my wife, who, poor soul, endures agonies from the toothache, and it never fails in producing slumber. To be sure, had you not positively told me that the golden seal was quite harmless I should have been afraid to use it; for the sleep which it brings about is so deep and so long as to be really like the sleep of death."

He had soon completed his task, and Dr. Macbride, placing the vial in his side-pocket with the cochineal, left the farmacia. He crossed the Piazza de Spagna, in the direction of the college of the Propaganda; when, just as he reached the spot where now is the monument, his path was crossed by a tall man, who was wrapped in a long black cloak, and wore his broad flapped hat slouched over his eyes.

"It's all very well for you to slouch your hat over your eyes, my friend," said Dr. Macbride to himself; "but I know that hat and cloak very well, or I am grievously mistaken. They belong to the harmless man who lodges in one of the garrets of the Palazzo Carminali. I once nursed you through a fever, my friend, and gave you money to get a cloak out of pawn. I don't think that you would do me any harm, although folks say that you are a spadacino —a hired assassin."

Scarcely had he thus mentally expressed himself when he heard, in a low voice behind him, the single word. "Eccolo!" "Here he is!" And immediately he was seized from behind by strong hands, a heavy cloak was thrown over his head, and he was lifted from the ground and carried some yards. Then he was thrust forward on to what seemed to be some kind of bench or seat; the arms which had seized him had relaxed their grasp, a door was slammed and he became aware that he was in a rapidly moving vehicle.

Dr. Æneas Macbride had in verity been kidnapped by two men, forcibly carried by them to a coach, one of the doors of which was standing open, huddled into the vehicle and rapidly driven away. The whole proceeding, indeed, had been watched with interest by an individual who was clad in a long, brown cloak, and who—there is now no indiscretion in saying it—was the nameless man who lived in one of the garrets of the Palazzo Carminali and whose profession was conjectured to be that of an assassin for hire. As he watched the carriage rapidly retreating into the shadows, the nameless man was fingering some golden coins in his pocket and chuckling merrily.

"Ten ducats," he reflected—"ten ducats only for pointing out the Signor Dottore to those who have sworn to take away his life. Of course if they had wanted to harm him they would have come to me; but I would not have stabbed the Signor Dottore; no, not for 100 ducats. Let us go and drink a bottle of Chianti."

While the nameless man was thus congratulating himself on the successful result of his exceptionally bloodless night's work, unseen hands had relieved Dr. Æneas Macbride of the heavy cloak to which he had been muffled, and in which he had been all but suffocated. He set up to find himself indeed in the interior of what was evidently a carriage belonging to some person of rank. The blinds were closely drawn down, but a small lamp hanging from the roof gave sufficient light for him to see that the opposite seat was occupied by two gentlemen very richly dressed, but whose countenances were wholly concealed by masks of black silk, having deep fringes of the same material. One of the gentlemen hastened to inform him that he must submit to have his eyes bandaged, as the person into whose presence they were about to conduct him was a lady of exalted name and place of abode, and it was imperatively necessary to conceal. As he pulled the bandage out of his pocket and proceeded very adroitly to adjust it to the doctor's eyes his companion in a whisper to remark that he and the other gentleman were fully armed, and should the doctor at this or any other stage of the proceedings offer the slightest resistance to any request which was proffered to him, he would be immediately stabbed to death. Upon this admonition, Dr. Æneas Macbride determined, like the canny Scotch he was, to hold his tongue and see—when he was permitted to use his eyesight again—what came of it.

It seemed to him that the carriage was continually turning and was being driven through a great variety of streets, possibly with the view to prevent his forming any accurate idea as to the part of the city to which he was being conducted. The coach at length stopped and the door was opened for him. He was conducted up a high flight of narrow stairs, ushered into a light and commodious room, where, after a moment's pause, the bandage was removed from his eyes. He found himself in a small drawing-room or boudoir, dimly lighted by wax tapers and richly furnished, although sheets and pieces of tapestry had been thrown over some of the chairs or placed in front of the picture-frames, as though for the purpose of preventing a stranger from too closely identifying the contents of the room. There was a flask of wine on the table and one of the gentlemen filled a large hamper of Venetian glass and offered it to Dr. Macbride.

"I want no wine," he said coolly; "it may be poison for aught I know."

The gentleman who had offered him the wine and who was very tall and clad in a suit of dark blue padusoy, richly laced with gold, for a reply put the goblet to his lips and tossed off the contents at a draught. The companion, who was shorter and stouter, followed suit, and then the first speaker, who was a great deal the more courteous of the two, filled another glass and handed it to the doctor, saying, "You had better drink it. Remember what I told you in the carriage. We allow no trifling in this house; and, besides, you have need to reserve yourself for what you have to do!"

"I don't like Dutch courage," replied Dr. Macbride, "and am not used to drink-drinking to excess when I have any work. However, as I have not the slightest wish to have my throat cut, and you appear to be prepared to cut it"—both gentlemen rubbed their hands significantly—at a moment's notice, if things do not go as you wish them to go, I will drink. And now," he resumed, after a very moderate potation, "what is it that you desire me to do?"

"To perform a surgical operation."

"When?"

"This instant."

"Where?"

"You shall see."

As the taller of the two masked men made this reply, he took the doctor by the arm and led him forward. The shorter gentleman lifted a heavy velvet curtain, veiling an open portal, and the three passed into a vast bedchamber. Here everything in the way of furniture, and even the ceiling and the curtains and counterpane of a huge four-post bed in the center of the room, had been shrouded in white sheeting. At the foot of the bed there sat, or rather there was half-reclining in a large chair covered with crimson velvet, a young lady—she could be scarcely more than 18—exceeding beautiful and with golden hair that rippled over her shoulders. Her hands were tightly clasped and she was deathly pale. She was clad in a long, loosely-flowing undress robe of some white, silky material, and Dr. Macbride could see that her little feet were bare.

"You see this woman—this most guilty and unhappy woman!" said in a harsh voice the taller of the two gentlemen. "She has disgraced the noble family to which she belongs, and it is necessary that she should be deprived of life. Here is a case of laudanum and you will instantly proceed to bleed her to death."

"She is guarded to shield her from her fate," added the shorter gentleman in green and silver, "and you will make the greater possible expedition. I need scarcely say that you will be amply recompensed for your pains."

"I will do so much horrible and unmanly thing, signori," said Dr. Macbride. "Do you think that I, a physician, whose bounden duty it is to do everything that he possibly can to save human life—be it that of the new-born babe or of the decrepit old man—would consent to put to a cruel death a poor lady who should be enjoying all the happiness that earth can give? Do your butcherly work yourself; for I have no hand in it."

"It is precisely," replied the latter gentleman, "because we are desirous that this inhuman work should not be done in butcherly manner that we have brought you here. You are known to be the skillfullest surgeon in Rome, and you will perform the operation at once by opening the veins in her ankles. If you refuse, I swear, that I and my bro"—he checked himself before he could wholly pronounce the word "brother"—"my companion will fall on you with our poniards and hack you to death."

"Do their bidding," said in a low, faint voice, the young lady in the armchair.

"Do I must!" said the doctor.

"You do," assumed the lady." Do their bidding, or you will incur a fate as dreadful as my own."

Doctor Æneas Macbride appeared to hesitate for a moment, then he said, "I will do your will; and may heaven forgive me for yielding to force! But I must have a vessel a large vessel of warm water."

"That shall at once be procured," replied the taller of the masked men, leaving the room. You will remember that Dr. Æneas Macbride was also tall of stature. He bent over the reclining lady and whispered something to her.

"I have told her," he said, drawing himself up to his full height, "that I will not hurt her much."

Presently two female attendants, each closely masked, entered the room, carrying between them a large silver tub full of warm water. This vessel they placed before the young lady, who, without a word, immersed her feet in the water. Then Dr. Macbride, once more bending over the victim, smoothing the hair on her forehead, and feeling her pulse, knelt, lancet in hand, by the side of the silver foot-bath. He arose, looked in the victim's face, chose a fresh lancet, and knelt again by the side of the foot-bath. The water was now rapidly discolored. Ere long it was completely crimson.

"Bring another bath—a tub—a bucket—what you will!" said the doctor; "and more warm water!" Then he continued, hastily, holding his wrists around the ankles of the patient while the first foot-bath was taken away and another substituted for it. "This will finish the work."

"How she bleeds!" said the tall man, who, with folded arms, was watching the scene. The young lady and then back in her chair, her arms hanging loosely.

"She is insensible!" said the shorter of the masked men.

"She is dead!" said Dr. Æneas Macbride, solemnly.

"How she bled!" repeated the shorter of the two masked men.

"She will bleed no more," said Dr. Macbride. "And now let me ask you what you intend to do with the evidence of your, and I may almost say my guilt? How do you intend to dispose of the corpse?"

"Put it into a sack full of stones and shut it in the Tiber," muttered the taller gentleman.

"At the risk of the sack rotting, the weights becoming disengaged from the body and of the corpse floating or of being washed on shore and the features recognized."

"Bury it in the garden," suggested the shorter man.

"It is still dangerous," resumed the doctor. "The bodies of buried people that have been murdered have been disinterred over and over again. One was, you know, last year in that vineyard close to the Appian Way, and the assassin was brought to justice."

"Burn it in the furnace!"

"When you planned your little scheme, gentlemen," the doctor went on almost bantcringly, "you should have planned the last act of your tragedy as well as the preceding ones. Let me tell you that a murdered dead body is, in a civilized city, one of the most difficult of imaginable things to get rid of. But since I have gone with you so far in this abominable business, I will go yet further and help you to conceal this corpse. Bring it back with me to my surgery in the Piazza di Spagna; I am accustomed to have such Desdemonas brought to me at dead of night—and I'll dissect her. By which I mean that in less than twelve hours not a human trace will remain of your deceased relative—if relative she is."

The victim was evidently stone dead. After a long consultation the masked men acceded to the proposition of the doctor, who appeared to have become so completely their accomplice, and who accepted, with many protestations of thanks, a large purse of gold sequins. Again he submitted to have his eyes bandaged, and again he was conducted to the coach in waiting below; but assuming also accompanied the party, and was placed on the seat inside the coach. That same night he was summoned to the bedside of the lady who had been lured to death. The carriage made a round as circuitous as before to the Piazza de Spagna, but it was then, at Dr. Macbride's request, driven round to the entrance of the narrow lane behind the Palazzo Carmi nali. Then the burden, wrapped in white linen, was carried by the doctor and the taller of the masked men by the back door into the dissecting-room, and laid like a stone on the table. The doctor noticed that his fellow-bearer was trembling violently, and he had evidently had enough of horrors for that night.

Three months afterward Dr. Æneas Macbride returned to Edinburg, bringing with him his wife, a young and very handsome Italian lady of a noble Roman family. Pope Benedict XIV. the enlightened and humane Lambretini, had had much to do with bringing about the union of the handsome young lady with "il Dottore Æneas Macbride Scozzese." He had informed the young lady's brothers, Don Rafaello and Don Antonio Cordicoglio, both of that ilk, that if they did not consent to the match and pay over a large fine to the Apostolic chamber they would be prosecuted with the utmost rigor of the law for having vainly attempted to murder their sister by causing her, as they thought, to have the veins of her ankles opened. Dr. Macbride, while pretending to execute the dreadful behests of Don Rafaello and Don Antonio Cordicoglio, had first administered her a potion which speedily reduced her to the appearance of lifelessness, and had next skillfully mingled with the warm water in which the feet of the patient were immersed the contents of the packet of cochineal which he had purchased at the farmacia Panchrystto. The poor girl's only offense had been that she had improdently, and in mere girlish folly, encouraged for a short time the addresses of a young man much her inferior in rank; but by her haughty and vindictive brothers this trifling affair was construed into a crime which her death alone could expiate. How fortunate it was that Dr. Æneas Macbride was so much addicted to making anatomical "preparations," and was so fond of cochineal for their perfection. I fancy, however, that after his marriage he ceased to dissect small dead hands, and resolved himself with covering small live ones with kisses.

The Bet Still Undecided.

[Chicago News.]

Two well-meaning men, one from St. Louis and the other from St. Paul, had an argument in the Sherman house on the pronunciation of the word deep.

"I say it is 'dee-po!'" said the St. Paul man.

"And I say it's 'day-po,'" answered the St. Louisian.

In the course of time they put up $5 apiece and agreed to leave it to a tall, fine-looking man on the other side of the rotunda.

Going up to him, the St. Paul disputant said: "My friend and I have a small bet on the pronunciation of the word 'deep.' I say it is 'dee-po,' and he says it is 'day-po. Now who is right?"

"Pardon me," replied the stranger, "but I never heard the word before. How do you spell it, and what does it mean?"

The betting men looked at each other dubiously, and one said—"D-e-p-o-t, a railway station."

"Oh, yes, yes; excuse me. You mean 'dep-po,' of course. Ye-, yes, deppo. It is pronounced 'depo.'"

"Look here," yelled the St. Paul man, "where do you come from?"

"Boston, sir."

"Well, then there can't no Boston man settle a bet for me on the English language. Come on; let's interview Carter Harrison."

Rochefort's Absent-Mindedness.

[Tinsley's Magazine.]

Personally he was amiable, generous to prodigality to his companions, and absent-minded. He was one of those who see brains are winging in the clouds, while their boots may be gathering slush in the gutters. They say that he was so forgetful that he went to Brebant's one evening in response to an invitation to dinner. On arriving, the name of his host had quite escaped him. He explained his dilemma to the landlord.

"There is but one way out of it," said the good-natured Brebant, "we must pass in review all the diners in the house; but as our wish might appear instructive, put a napkin over your face and come with me as my head waiter."

The notion suited Rochefort down to the ground, and they took a hasty inspection of all the cabinets and all the tables in the dining-room, but in vain. Rochefort did not find his Amphitryon. Suddenly he slapped his forehead and exclaimed: "What an ass I am! The appointment was for Saturday last."

An Original Character.

[Philadelphia Call.]

Young Authoress—My dear, I want a heroine for my new novel. She must be very talented and somewhat unconventional; in fact very original. Can't you give me an idea?

Her Husband—Certainly, love. You want her to possess a combination of traits never before dreamed of, I suppose?

"That's it, that's it. But it must be a combination calculated to make a man love her to distraction."

"Well, in the first place she should be literary."

"Of course."

"The author of a book?"

"Just the thing; but how shall I make her entirely different from other literary ladies?"

"Have her look over her husband's wardrobe and sew on the buttons before starting any new novels."

They Grow Large in Boston.

[Boston Globe.]

The office boy of a Milk street lawyer came in Saturday night and said he had just seen a fight in the back office between a rat and a cockroach.

"Which licked?"

"Oh, the cockroach beat him all holler, and drove him into his hole."

"Did he look like a rat?"

"Yes, he tried to, but the hole was just big enough to let the rat through, and when the cockroach came to try it he got stuck and had to give it up."

He Took a Cool Car.

[New York Sun.]

A gentleman who got off a Third avenue open car at Fifty-seventh street yesterday was stopped on the corner by a countryman with a wedge-shaped grip-sack in his hand.

"Say, mister," he said, "does it cost more to ride in them cool cars than them shut up ones?"

"No, sir," was the reply.

"Hold them hosses!" cried the countryman, shaking his hat at the driver.

How to Remove Spots.

[Texas Siftings.]

An Austin youth who becomes is not quite as extensive as that of Vanderbilt's got a large ink spot on his coat. He asked a friend how the stain could be removed.

"You can get a chemical preparation for 25 cents. Just soak the spot with it and it will come out."

"I guess I had better soak the whole coat. I can get $4 by washing the coat."

Signal Office Predictions—Local showers and partly cloudy weather, southwesterly winds, stationary temperature.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

The Battle of Niagara was fought in 1814.

Locals.

—The Democrats of Rahway held a ratification meeting last evening.

—The Blaine and Logan banner at Somerville has blown down twice.

—The First Baptist Sunday School go on an excursion to Ocean Grove to morrow.

—The colored camp meeting in Hyde's woods commences to-day. The Rev. Mr. Chippey has charge.

—Peter S. Bergen will address the temperance meeting in the Warren Mission Chapel to-morrow evening.

—The rumor that was current on the street this morning that the trackmen on the railroad had struck is unfounded.

—Among those prominent in the meeting of Independent Republicans in New York Tuesday night was Lawyer W. G. Peckham, of Westfield.

—Numerous complaints are being made of the late hours the various drum corps of the city keep. It would be well to let up on the noise a little earlier.

—Mr. Lewis Wykoff and Mr. Harry Campbell shot fifteen woodchucks near what is known as the "dead river", several miles over the mountain yesterday.

—In naming the list of officers of the North Plainfield Republican campaign club in yesterday's issue, we unintentionally made the treasurer's name to read Albert Leland. It should have been Albert Lawler.

—The old members of the F. A. Potts Mounted Guard and all others desirous of uniting in a company of mounted guards for the coming Republican campaign are invited to attend a meeting at Association Hall, No. 7 Park avenue, one week from this evening.

—Equestrianism could no doubt be more largely indulged in in Plainfield. This the more noticeable because of the numerous stylish turnouts to be seen daily on the beautiful streets and drives. A fine lady rider on horseback presents a most dashing appearance.

—A Baldwin locomotive, No. 168, on the Reading Road, running between New York and Round Brook, has the remarkable record of having run 119,200 miles consecutively, without any general repairs, her weight having not once been lifted from her drivers in that period.

—The Elizabeth Herald says: The firm of Messrs. Ford & Stiles, morgue keepers of Union county, will be commended and and an appreciation for good sanitary regulation, had a force at work yesterday morning cleaning out the morgue. Cooling boards, preservers, and the entire paraphernalia were treated to a thorough cleaning and fumigating." This firm has a well equipped establishment in this city.

—Curiosity is expressed by many as to who the figures in our Job Printing Department advertisement represent. The bearded man on the right is a likeness of Faust, the man facing him that of Guttenberg, and the boy that of Schaeffer—the three the discoverers of the art of printing by moveable types. They are represented examining an impression made by means of the hand press before them, from the type.

—The body of Sarah Hall, a colored woman, 66 years of age, was found lying in a field, near Millstone Sunday afternoon. She had been troubled with asthma and heart disease for a long time and it is supposed that while walking through the field on the morning of that day she fell and died immediately. Coroner W. J. Swinton, M.D., was summoned and viewed the body, but deemed an inquest unnecessary and ordered burial.

—A number of bicyclers were wheeling up and down and circling around Main street, Somerville, recently when one of them, a son of Mr. Adolph Mack, collided with a horse and buggy and was thrown clear into the vehicle. He was taken into the house of Hon. A. A. Clark near which the accident occurred, and upon examination from the shock ascertained that he had fortunately escaped with no broken bones, a scratched face and a bruise or two being the extent of his injuries. The bicycle however, is laid up for repairs.

Sabbath School Picnic.

The Sabbath School connected with the Seventh Day Baptist Church went on a picnic yesterday. The scene of the day's festivities was the woods in the vicinity of the look-out, on the mountain back of the Johnson residence on East Front street. A number of carriages and stages were called into requisition to convey the young people. All present are reported to have had a very enjoyable time.

A Case of Assault and Battery.

Christian Moack, a German, is a farm hand working for William A. Baldwin, who resides on the valley road a few miles from Warrenville. On July 21 he put in the barn yard some cows belonging to a neighbor which had been trespassing on Baldwin's property, and which Baldwin had ordered to be shut up should they be found on his place. According to the story of Moack and his friends at the hearing, it appears that shortly after one Joseph Stiles and a colored man named Robert Lee, came for the cows and were refused. They went away but soon returned with David K. Vail, and made another demand for the cows and were again refused. Thereupon one of the party seized two heavy stones and knocked Moack down and trampled upon him, another kicked him, and the third drew a pistol and threatened to shoot him. The parties then took the cows and departed.

Moack made a complaint before Justice Austin, of North Plainfield, and the case came up for trial this morning at ten o'clock when Moack and others testified to the facts as above narrated. As the defence in assault and battery cases are not allowed to call witnesses, their side of the story could not be obtained at the court proceedings, but through their counsel ex-Judge Suydam their side of the story appears to be as follows:

When Stiles and Lee first went for the cows they were driven away by Moack with a pitchfork. On their returning Moack hit Lee with his fist. Thereupon Lee downed him, and Stiles made a motion to kick him but was prevented from doing so because of his foot being sore. The defence also state that Moack, Stiles and Lee had been drinking, and that Moack had a bottle of whiskey in his pocket.

The case seems to be another installment of a neighborly quarrel which has been going on for some time.

The Justice held the defendants, David K. Vail, Joseph Stiles and Robert Lee, in the sum of $100, $200 and $300 respectively to answer before the grand jury at Somerville at the next term of court.

A Hand Organ Case.

Two brothers, Italians, bought a hand organ on installments in Elizabeth, one of the brothers paying $25 down. The other one at the first convenient opportunity hied him off with the organ. This city was his first stopping place, and yesterday afternoon he ground out the latest pansy blossoms, sweet violets and golden rods that the market afforded. He was accompanied in his travels by a woman and child. They soaked only kept the hat moving, and raked in the coins. The other brother who had advanced the $25, on learning of the disappearance of his property, telegraphed the police to look out for his property, and followed the party to this city. The brothers came together on Somerset street, near Front, last evening, and were about to settle their differences then and there with the aid of the woman, the child and the crowd. Officer Mattox, however, thought differently, and escorted them to the station house. Last week they were given a hearing before Justice Nash, and by the testimony of a man from Elizabeth the ownership of the organ was definitely settled and the parties allowed to depart.

The Storm Last Evening.

A small sized cyclone struck the business portion of Front street between seven and eight o'clock last evening. A blinding cloud of dust suddenly filled the air, and sailed up the street at the rate of fifty knots an hour. Pieces of glass from the store doors of Edsall's dry goods establishment soon mingled with the dust. The doors which were standing open had been seized by the wind and violently slammed to, making a noise equal to that of the Democratic campaign cannon. The plate glass in the doors was broken into about a thousand pieces. The noise arising from the crash started a horse down the street. He was suddenly brought to a standstill by a wheel of the wagon becoming locked in that of another. Various other streets about town also felt the effect of the storm, as was evident this morning from the number of branches strewn about the sidewalks and road beds.

The City Court.

A number of cases came up before the City Judge for settlement this morning.

Patrick Toomey, arrested for being drunk was fined $1.

Jane Lee, was picked up by an officer during the storm last night. She said she had no place to go to, and thus her home was at Rahway. She was sent there.

John Tunley, was arrested for being drunk. He said he lived in Connecticut. He was sent there.

William Kenney, an old offender, was arrested for kicking and abusing his wife. He was given sixty days in the county jail and $25 fine.

Personal.

Mrs. Charles Hyde left town for Saratoga this morning.

Mr. S. C. Peck, Jr., is visiting his parents in Connecticut.

Dr. E. W. South has returned from his sojourn at Mt. Desert.

Miss Burrows, of the North Plainfield Seminary, is at Williamsport, Pa.

Dr. Probasco and family, are at home from their outing at Nantasket Beach.

G. E. Hoor, of Somerville, is registered at the Grand Avenue Hotel, Asbury Park.

School Commissioner Kirkner and family occupy their cottage in the Catskills this week.

Rev. T. Logan Murphy and wife have returned from their visit to friends in Connecticut.

Mr. G. F. Brown a sd family of Dover street, who have been Summering by the sea, returned home yesterday.

Mr. A. D. Button and family of LeGrande avenue, have returned from the seashore, where they have been rusticating for several weeks past.

A Narrow Escape.

Henry Southard, a painter, while working on the second story of French's store on East Front street at three o'clock this afternoon was thrown from the scaffold by the breaking of a rope. The paint and scaffold fell to the ground, but Southard caught hold of the rope and slid to the ground uninjured.

State Matters.

The open seasons for woodcock expires on the last day of this month and reopens on Oct. 1, when shooting may be indulged in until Dec. 15.

L. D. Patton, a well known horse trainer of Bridgeton, was seriously injured on Saturday night by a horse rearing and falling up on him.

Five saloon keepers of Jersey City yesterday arrested for selling liquor to children under 16 years of age. Two of them were fined $50 each, and the other three were committed for examination.

Pickpockets are "working" the ferry boats between Philadelphia and Camden. Recently there have been numerous complaints of pocket-picking. The latest victim being Mrs. Samuel Reeves, of Bridgeton, who lost a wallet containing $20.

James Bergen, a driver for Macy & Co., of New York, was yesterday committed for trial at Hoboken on a charge of making a false loan for the firm in that city and appropriating the money to his own use. The accused is the woman and child. They said.

Emily Scott, 78 years old, of No. 58 Harrison avenue, Jersey City, has been missing from home since Monday. She wore a black dress and a white shawl. As she was somewhat simple-minded it is supposed that she became lost, and has been unable to give any account of herself.

A large barn belonging to Henry Stone, on Springfield avenue, Irvington, was destroyed by fire yesterday. Three fine horses, four cows, a bull and a large quantity of hay, grain and farming implements were destroyed. The loss is about $3,000, on which there is some insurance.

Early yesterday two freight trains on the Long Branch road came into collision at Deal Beach, and caused a blockade on both tracks for over an hour. James Carr, a fireman on the locomotive of one train, was so badly that he died, and an Italian laborer was also killed. Carr lived at No. 415 Belleville street, Newark.

August Kleitsch, a seaman on the Gorgona steamship Oder, was arrested several weeks ago for smuggling linen. Yesterday he was convicted in the United States District Court at Trenton, and Judge Nixon sentenced him to pay a fine of $100 and be imprisoned in the Hudson County Penitentiary for 30 days.

Joseph Foster, a silk-loom "fixer" at Paterson, had his alleged wife, Elizabeth, arrested Tuesday and sent to jail for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He tells a curious story. He says he formerly lived in Hamilton, Canada, with his wife and children, and this woman was his housekeeper. When he came to the United States about four years ago, she insisted on coming with him, and keeping house with him, and they lived together as man and wife much against his will. He constrained to stay with her by threats that she would poison or kill him in some odious way. He finally went to the encampment. The woman on the other hand said that she was his lawful wife, but that he had treated her very cruelly of late, and had invented this story to get rid of her.

As a Paterson train on the Erie road was near Belleville, yesterday afternoon it passed east and going at full speed, a man, apparently a drunken tramp, was seen lying across directly in front of the engine. He would undoubtedly have been killed instantly had not the engineer put on full the brakes. The hind wheels of the buggy just missed the pilot of the engine, and the driver seemed to lose his head, for instead of keeping on in a straight course he turned and drove along the road parallel with the train, holding the reins on a level with his head. The horse took fright and, after passing the train threw him over the fence. The buggy dashed off with the forward wheels. The man fell about 200 feet from the track and lay there stunned, but he was not injured by the engine.

The Sun.

NEW YORK, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.

If you were to pause and to end all the columns of THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous and straight interesting narration, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven times at the equator.

If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper is 182 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter what the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with exceptional diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the acquaintance.

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows—

Terms to Mail Subscribers.

DAILY—50 cents a month, $6 a year, with Sunday edition $7.

SUNDAY—Eight pages. This edition furnishes the current news of the world, special articles of exceptional interest to everybody, and literary reviews of new books of the highest merit. ONE DOLLAR a year.

WEEKLY—ONE DOLLAR a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled fullness, special market reports, literary criticisms, and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10 an extra copy free.

PENSIONING THE SOLDIERS.

It seems there is a secret history in the matter of the pension resolution adopted by the Chicago Democratic Convention. The resolution is on its surface extremely ambiguous, and she following, taken from the Chicago Journal, is a correct one. It deserves careful reading:

"It is a fact that the question of pensioning the soldiers of the Rebel army, which fought to destroy the Government and the Union, equally with the soldiers of the Union army which fought for the preservation of the Republic, was seriously entertained by the Committee on Resolutions at the late Democratic National Convention. Here is the form in which it was first presented in the committee,

"Resolved, That internal revenue is a war tax, and that so long as it continues the money so raised shall go toward the relief of the people from the burdens of war, as by paying pensions and providing for disabled soldiers, whether Confederate or Union.

"In order to whip the devil around the stump," the committee finally manipulated this outrageous proposition into the following form, and it was so adopted by the convention.

"The system of direct taxation known as the 'internal revenue' is a war tax, and as long as the same continues the money derived therefrom should be sacredly devoted to the relief of the people from the remaining burdens of the war, and be made a fund to defray the expense of the care and comfort of worthy soldiers disabled in line of duty in the wars of the Republic, and for the payment of such pensions as Congress may from time to time grant to such soldiers.

"The wording of this resolution is a study and nobody will, in the light of the original resolution, fail to discover what it drives at.

"The Republican platforms for the past twenty years have declared in favor of pensioning the disabled soldiers of the Union army and the surviving families of those Union soldiers who lost their lives in the war. The Democratic platform-makers studiously omit the word Union, or any other word indicating Union soldier, and have so framed this plank of their platform as to include rebel as well as Union soldiers."

A TOTAL ABSTINENCE MILITIA.

The following from the New York Tribune we publish by request:

"The temperance people of New York and neighboring cities are making strong efforts to add to the attractiveness of their cause by giving a martial air to which shall appeal to the imaginations of young men. But, unlike the "Salvation Army, they propose to have the real official thing as far as it is possible to obtain it. The Manhattan Temperance Association, which began by enrolling Company "D", 7th regiment as a temperance company, is now extending its operations and has recently induced twenty young men of Company "B," 23d Regiment, the total membership of the company, it is said, to march under the same banner, swearing by the great dipper to carry nothing but cold water or other non-intoxicating beverages in their canteens, and has organized a movement to recruit the company up to its maximum strength, all recruits signing the pledge when they sign enlistment papers. President Gibbs says that a company has been started in one of the Brooklyn regiments, but is not sure in which one, and another in a New Jersey regiment. He hopes in time to have a complete regiment of total abstainers.

THE most common objection in our Democratic exchanges to Blaine's letter of acceptance is that it was too long, and that is the only one. Mr. Cleveland will be fortunate if the Republicans can make no more serious objection against his letter, when it appears.

The River and Harbor Bill, as finally passed by Congress, makes among others the following appropriations for New Jersey: Raritan Bay, $50,000; Staten Island, $10,000; Raritan River, $35,000.

CIRCUS IN A CIRCUS T...

Barnum's Immense Canvas Wrecked by a Wind Storm.

Men, Women and Children Pinioned by the Debris—A Scene of Terror.

List of Casualties—Accident at Richfield Springs.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 24.—Just after the afternoon performance of Barnum's circus had opened in Cortland yesterday a terrific wind and rain storm passed over the town. During the storm 4,000 people were in the canvas. Without the least warning of danger the wind began blowing a regular hurricane, and the entire tent was blown over. The rain began to fall in torrents, accompanied by heavy thunder and vivid lightning. With the screams of the women, crying of the children and the shouts of the men a panic ensued. To add to the confusion the animals began to make unearthly noises. The pandemonium was complete when the band of forty musicians began to bellow and throw the dirt. The attaches of the circus were well drilled, and began to relieve those who were half dead by the poles, ropes and immense weight of wet canvas.

It was first reported that five persons were killed outright. Four were rescued in the storm uncovered, unhurt, save for fright. Two women lost their babies in the excitement. Children were separated from their parents, and the scene was one seldom witnessed. The storm did not last long, except for about half an hour, trees being torn up by the roots, while branches and every movable thing flew through the air. About forty people were rescued with difficulty, all being more or less injured. Among the most severe are:

Cornelius Brown, of Marathon, badly injured about the chest and arm broken.

Mr. Salisbury, of Cortland, head badly cut.

The Rev. George Adams and his daughter, of Cortland, both received painful cuts on their heads.

Eddie Stetson is still unconscious from a bad wound on his head.

Miss Miles, of Homer, was cut on the head and her neck injured, at first thought to be broken.

L. C. Shulz, of Cortland, cut on the temple and chest hurt.

Eddie Rood, of Homer, leg broken and scalp injured.

George Fairbanks back hurt seriously.

Milton Waverly, of East Freetown, scalp torn partly off.

Asa Gates, of Truxton, injury about the head.

A baby, three girls, and two women are badly hurt and the remainder contusion. Their names are not yet known. Four men were taken away on the cars whose names or extent of their injuries were not learned.

Mr. Hutchinson, of the firm of Barnum, Bailey & Hutchinson, has ordered everything done for the injured. The loss to canvas and wardrobes is about $10,000. The storm is the worst experienced since 1872.

Several Persons Hurt at Richfield Springs.

RICHFIELD SPRINGS, N. Y., July 24.—A hurricane passed over Richfield Springs this afternoon, just in the middle of the performance of Wallace & Hamilton's circus. The tent was filled with the fashionable beauties of the springs. Hundreds of children were present. Without warning the tent blew down in a second, and fell to the ground. Most of those present were compelled to crawl out on their hands and knees, only to meet a terrific hailstorm, followed by thunderbolts and blinding flashes of lightning. It was subsequently ascertained that the electric fluid had struck Hall's cottage on the hill and glanced into the door bell, actually ringing it. The wind caught Julian Taylor just as he was taking a load of hay into his barn, and drove the wagon and load into the barn. In his endeavor to stop the wagon it ran over him, breaking his leg and arm and fracturing several ribs. He may recover. Estes' large barn was entirely demolished, and another one near it turned nearly half round on its foundation. Monstrous oaks lie prostrate across the roads in every direction. Reports are coming from the surrounding country to the effect that this storm has been the most disastrous experienced here in many years.

Cyclone in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 24.—A cyclone swept over Jefferson. Many buildings were uprooted, and fences prostrated. Crops are ruined, and it is supposed several others met the same fate. The damage will reach $12,000.

A NOVEL APPLICATION.

Roumanian Immigrants Who do Not Want Citizenship.

NEW YORK, July 24.—An application was made yesterday to Judge Van Brunt, of the supreme court, by Civil Justice Alfred Steckler, for writs of habeas corpus on behalf of fifty Roumanian immigrants, who recently landed at Castle Garden in indigent circumstances, and whom the emigrant commissioners are preparing to return to Europe as paupers. Judge Steckler stated that friends of these new arrivals had offered to give bonds that they would not become a public charge, and would be lovingly enveloped in intelligent and useful voters. The commissioners, however, had refused to accept these bonds, and had declared the immigrants ineligible on Ward's island prior to sending them home. It was to prevent the forcible return of these fifty embryo citizens that the writs were applied for.

Judge Van Brunt said that he did not see the necessity for bringing fifty immigrants into a crowded court when a test case would answer the purpose. The application was granted a writ of habeas corpus for the production before him to-day of Aram Slovitz, who will then be examined as to his ability to support himself.

Stattered by Gas.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 24.—At 6 o'clock yesterday morning a terrific explosion of gas in the German bank. A small gas jet is kept burning in the bank's vault all the time. Yesterday the main which supplies the jet was exhausted for a time and the light was extinguished. When the main was again filled the gas escaped and the vault was filled all night. When Chief Clerk John Hall came on duty he ignited a match and an explosion followed. He was blown to the front of the building and fatally injured. The whole front was blown out, the building was shattered and adjoining property was seriously damaged. The loss will be heavy.

Hustled Out in Their Night Clothes.

MILWAUKEE, July 24.—A report has just reached this city of a head-on collision of two Northwestern freights near Fond du Lac. Two passenger trains collided and both engines and a number of cars were demolished. Whether any one was badly injured or killed cannot be ascertained. The passengers were hustled out of the sleeping cars in their night clothes and amid great confusion and excitement.

CAUGHT IN THE NOOSE.

How Cupid Foiled Harry in Love and Repeat in Earnest.

NEW YORK, July 24.—More foolishness of the kind that on the part of the young people is attractive, the first stories in Story Teller, Miss Lydia Wyse and Miss Mary F. Wyse persons, two young ladies half-sig from Brooklyn, Miss., recently received. Now Rochelle on a visit to Mrs. William H. Bolger, a year and sixteen. Shortly after their arrival there they sent an invitation to F. G. McNally and Henry W. Walling, two cadets, with whom they had become acquainted by the enchantments to visit them at New Rochelle for a few days, which they did, and prolonged their sojourn for as many weeks. During that time they were the recipients of many of their time in pleasant drives and walks, which finally resulted in a call upon William Pinckney, justice of the peace of that place, who united Miss Lydia Wyse to Mr. McNally and Miss Mary Wyse to Walling in the bonds of matrimony.

They now say that the whole affair was a joke; but the bridegrooms having departed, and the young ladies have ascertained that the joke proves to be a serious reality. And so both the young ladies have made application to County Judge Mills, holding court at White Plains, to have Mr. Ducker, their brother-in-law, appointed the guardian, they, in order that they may commence legal proceedings for the annulment of their marriage.

GREETING OLD VETERANS.

The Grand Army Parade in Minneapolis—Streets Thronged.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 24.—Yesterday was the big day of the Grand Army of Minneapolis, and the display has been, perhaps the grandest one of the kind that the country has ever seen. The streets were crowded all day. It was 9 o'clock before the gun, which was the signal for the procession to start, was fired. Then the excitement began, and the national and patriotic airs came down through the streets with their ragged flags and old uniforms. The procession took one hour and a half to pass a given point. Many distinguished visitors participated in the demonstration. Sherman was recognized. The former rode on horseback with the Illinois delegation. Sherman rode with the Missouri and Missouri delegation. It is estimated that 30,000 people viewed the procession. At the reception Gen. Rosser, the ex-confederate, was introduced by the toast "The Blue and the Gray" amid much cheering and applause. The delegates will meet to-day to select the next grand commander. The chances have been Generals Sherman and Kountz, of Ohio, and Carnahan, of Indiana.

CLEANSING THE TOWN.

A House of Ill-Fame Blown Up with Gunpowder.

SABINA, O., July 24.—About 1 o'clock yesterday morning a tremendous explosion startled the sleeping inhabitants of this town, and in less than five minutes the streets were full of people inquiring into the cause. It was soon ascertained that one of the two houses of ill-fame in town had been blown up. A determined band of the law-abiding citizens had emptied the house of its inmates and had blown it up with giant powder.

From what can be learned the name of a notorious woman named Daisy Williams, whom they called out. In spite of her cries, curses and entreaties they tarred and feathered her and kept her until 6 o'clock in the morning to leave town. By daybreak she was gone.

David West, the owner of the demolished house, identified some of the masked regulators, and threatened to prosecute all connected with it. The citizens will not be deterred, however, by his efforts to cleanse the town of disorderly places.

The Executive Civil Service.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The president has made the following special rules for the regulation and improvement of the executive civil service:

First—The names of all persons who shall have successfully passed their examination under the civil service rules previous to July 16, 1884, and who shall have been found persons eligible for appointment two years from the date of their respective registration unless sooner appointed.

Second—Appointments to the 150 places in the pension office, provided to be filled by the act of July 7, 1884, except so far as they may be filled by promotions, must be separately apportioned by the appointing power in as near conformity to the second section of the act of January 16, 1883, as the number of clerks allowed by the act of July confers and the qualifications of the applicants will permit.

Falling Into an 85-Foot Beer Vat.

BALTIMORE, July 24.—George Schaeffer, aged 20, entered the beer vault of his father's large brewery, at Highlandtown, to hold some keys for a workman. The vat is eighty-five feet deep, and is reached by an elevator. Placing three kegs on the elevator platform, young Schaeffer pulled the lever. Within a few inches of the top the elevating rope broke and the elevator fell. Schaeffer managed to grasp with his fingers the bridge of the lever, and hung on for a minute, calling for help. Workmen rushed to the scene, but just as one of them reached to grasp the young man, the latter's fingers slipped, and he fell with the kegs into the immense pit. Workmen swung themselves down on ropes and found the body of young Schaeffer at the bottom. Schaeffer did not recover consciousness for several hours. The doctors say that he has no chance for life. It is considered strange that death did not come instantly.

Illness in London.

LONDON, July 24.—Christine Nilsson sang at a concert in the Albert Hall yesterday evening. She was in brilliant voice, and the perfection of her singing created a furore in the audience. Patti was not present. Scalchi did not recover consciousness for several hours. The doctors say that he has no chance for life. It is considered strange that death did not come instantly.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Orders have been received at the Chatham dockyard to send all available pinnaces to Egypt.

Advices from Queensland state that the assembly of that province has unanimously adopted a resolution in favor of confederation.

Delegates from Austro-Hungary, Germany, and Russia will meet presently at Constantinople for the purpose of settling the Servo-Bulgarian difficulty.

The application of Miss. Patti versus the Marquis de Caux for divorce will be the first suit tried under the new divorce law of France. The case will be tried in Paris.

In the title contests at Wimbledon the Canadians have won the Kolapur Cup by a shot, and the Canadian team defeated the English and Indian teams. The English team scored 666 and the Indian team 626.

COLD WATER PARTY.

Prohibitionists at Work on a Presidential Ticket.

Sounding the Tocsin of a Vigorous Campaign Against Rum—The Convention Singing Hymns—St. John the Favorite.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 24.—The number of visitors to Lafayette hall had grown so large by 9:30 yesterday morning, which hour was finally an hour before the time appointed for calling the Prohibition convention to order, that Maj. Denny, of Pittsburg, chairman of the committee of arrangements, found it necessary to request all the delegates to leave the hall. This request was good naturedly complied with without a second invitation. At 11 o'clock the convention was called to order by Gideon S. Seward and prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. A. A. Miner, of Boston.

The call of the convention was then read by W. R. Nelson, of Chicago. The reading of welcome was delivered by Dr. J. I. Ross, of Pittsburg. Gideon I. Stewart, chairman of the national committee, responded in behalf of the convention.

Gideon I. Stewart, chairman of the national committee, responded on behalf of the convention. He thanked the city of Pittsburg for Lafayette hall. The Prohibition party, he said, was lightning truths and thunder voices to teach and inspire them for the great conflict. When he had finished his response Mrs. Mary Allen Seward, of Stewart preceded to deliver the opening address. He referred to the relation between the liquor crime and the slavery crime. The Republican party had uplifted the ax of civil liberty to cut down one great branch of the Upas tree which with its malign shadow had darkened the republic, and he said it was the duty of the Prohibitionists to uproot the same Upas and to remove the main source of oppression and injustice, to labor and of all crimes, that is, ignorance, poverty, debasement and misery. The Anti-Slavery convention of 1852 and the Prohibition convention of 1864 differed in one important respect. The first was born of political party triumph followed by a civil war. This convention came to proclaim glorious peace. Its mission was reunion of the republic, not to form issues by fact, in truth, and in the hearts of all people. As the first and indispensable step to that reunion there must be total abolition from the land of intemperance. It was in consequence which of them went first. In the grave of their master, the liquor power, they should be buried forever.

The temporary organization was effected by the choice of William Daniel, of Maryland, as chairman, and Mrs. Woodbridge, president of the Ohio Women's Christian Temperance union, and Charles S. Carter, of Washington, D. C., as secretaries. Mr. Daniel, in taking the chair, spoke of the progress which prohibition was making in the state of Maryland.

Neither of the two parties had dared to touch prohibition in their recent conventions. He believed that if the Prohibitionists did in the coming election the best element of that party would come into the Prohibition party, and so with the Democratic party. Everything for the Prohibitionists to do was to get a big vote in the coming election, that would hurt both parties. If the Christian and Temperance people of this country were united to-day he believed that they would put Ahl or some other good man in the White House. [Applause.]

Many of the politicians would have to swim in cold water. They had been swimming in whiskey long enough. [Cheers and laughter.] The politicians were against Blaine because they knew if he were elected it temperance into politics it would get them out. [Laughter.] He wanted the Prohibition party in order to make a clean chasm between North and South. [Applause.]

The secretary made a report of the number of delegates from the various states (300 in all) and the committee on credentials was appointed, the states being called and the several delegations sending up names for members of the committee.

The duties of the secretary in calling the roll of states were performed by Mrs. Woodbridge, and the responses were made in each case as the state was called. The report of the committee on credentials being also in a few cases lacking.

The convention then at 1:20 took a recess until 3 P. M.

The convention reassembled at 3 P. M. Ten minutes were occupied in singing the "Glory of the Coming of the Lord" more in prayer by Rev. Dr. Hayes, of Illinois.

Considerable time was then consumed over a motion (which was finally lost), that in order to expedite the business and avoid confusion of the morning's session, the rules of Cushing's Parliamentary manual should be adopted. The matter was scarcely gotten out of the way when a clerical delegate on the floor rose to protest against the audience applauding with their feet as a remnant of the profane theatre, and a reminiscence due to the feelings of many clergymen present. The proposition was greeted with ironical laughter, in the midst of which Rev. Dr. Richardson, of Illinois, arose and in a few repudiated any desire to stifle expressions of approbation. "Cheer and blow your bugles to your heart's content," said the speaker, and the audience roundly responded.

At this point the chairman announced that Rev. C. W. Blanchard, president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, bearer of greetings from the native American anti-Masonic party. It was unanimously resolved that the reverend gentleman be heard and he was escorted to the platform and took the platform. "There is only one policy in which we do not agree. We of the American party do not believe in people who are members of a secret order holding any public office." This expression was the signal for an uproarious scene. Half of the delegates rose to their feet, and cheers for "Tom" "Bill down!" "No insults!" etc.

Following this outburst came hisses from all parts of the hall. In vain the speaker appealed for order. The audience refused to listen to him. Men stood on their chairs and shook their fists at the platform. Others pulled out pistols for order and questions of privilege, and a bedlam broke out. Then with a few words of thanks, which could not be heard a yard away, the speaker quitted the platform.

Delegate Smith, of Illinois, mounted on his chair and, evidently laboring under great excitement, vociferously declared that the remarks of the previous speaker were an insult to a respectable body of men, and moved that no other representative of a political party be allowed a hearing during the session of the convention. The motion was loudly applauded, but was shelved for the time being by a reference to the committee on platform.

The committee on credentials was called upon for a report, but no response being made "Old Hundred" was sung.

Three boxes of indistinguishable notes, two small and bitterness followed this innocent diversion. It was initiated by the committee on credentials. The body reported that 280 regularly accredited delegates were in attendance, that 281 additional were entitled to vote under the rulings of previous conventions, and that a contested seat from Illinois had failed to send a full complement of delegates be allowed to cast the votes of the absent ones. This resolution was received with mingled cheers and hooting.

Dr. Ransom, of New Jersey, and Rev. Dr. Hopkins, of New York, denounced it as disgracefully unfair, pointing out that the state of Illinois, should it so would, by its adoption, be enabled to cast nineteen votes, and that several other states represented by but two delegates would be given a vote of twenty-four. Dr. Hopkins said that if measures of this kind were to prevail the Democratic gag law must rule might as well be enforced at the outset.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS

Meeting of the State Central Committee at Albany.

Who Will Be Chairman of the Democratic National Committee—Warner Miller Confident of Republican Success in New York.

ALBANY, July 24.—The failure of the Tammany Hall members to respond to Chairman Daniel Manning's call for a meeting of the Democratic state committee created a little ripple among the rural democrats who came here yesterday to organize for the work of the campaign. Robert G. Thompson and Sheriff Davidson and their men were on hand, but John Kelly, who is at Saratoga, an hour's ride, was absent, and his faithful followers, James J. Gray, Sidney P. Nichols, Edward Cahill, and E. T. Wood, all members of the State Committee, were missing. They did not even send proxies. Mr. Edward Cooper, of the County Democracy, was more attentive, and sent Justice Maurice J. Power to represent him. The other proxies were ex-Attorney General Theodore Bacon for Isaac H. Cox, R. Rumbell for Conant Sawyer, A. W. Shepherd for Clinton Beckwith, A. J. Collins for Daniel W. Thurlington, and W. H. Henry for Hudson Assemblyman Gleason for John Kelly. The latter were women. As if in irony six of the most prominent participants in the heated debate of this afternoon, were appointed sergeants-at-arms.

The indications are that ex-Gov. Sam. John, of Kansas, will be the first choice of the convention for presidential nominee. Hugh Ho friends of McDonald are pushing him with great vigor.

NO ABATEMENT.

Cholera Still Continuing its Ravages at Toulon and Marseilles.

PARIS, July 24.—The official report gives the number of deaths from cholera at Marseilles during the past twenty-four hours as 207, and at Toulon as thirty-two. The official reports place the number of deaths in Marseilles at seventy-one. The convent at Marseilles has been occupied by the sisters of charity and the number of eighty have fled. The lady superior has issued an appeal for prayers on their behalf, that they be preserved from the cholera epidemic.

Twenty thousand persons have fled from Arles. There is difficulty in procuring enough coffins in which to promptly inter the dead.

PARIS, July 24.—Sixteen deaths from cholera occurred at Arles during the past twenty-four hours, and several new cases were reported at Aix.

The Bismarck Field.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The following is the result of the baseball games played yesterday:

At Boston—Boston, 1; Philadelphia, 3.
At Providence—New York, 5; Providence 11.
At Buffalo—Buffalo, 2; Detroit, 10.
At Columbus — Columbus, 7; Indianapolis, 6.
At Cleveland—Cleveland, 16; Chicago, 13.
At Toledo—Louisville, 1; Toledo 0.
At St. Louis—St. Louis, 2; Cincinnati, 0.
At Washington — Washington, 7; Baltimore, 6.
At Philadelphia—Metropolitans, 10; Athletics, 7.
At Brooklyn—Brooklyn, 10; Pittsburg, 4.

Liberty in Danger.

RICHMOND, Va., July 24.—Information from Yorktown states that the figure of Liberty, which is to surmount the national statue now nearing completion, came near being blown to pieces by a blast. The scheme in which this portion of the monument was shipped encountered a heavy gale and was in imminent danger of wreck. The cargo shifted, and some of the blocks weighing twenty tons were partially though not seriously injured. The figure, being well packed, was not defaced and was finally safely landed. The monument is constructed of Maine granite, and can already be seen a great distance down the Chesapeake bay. Its height is 150 feet. When finished it will be strikingly emblematic, historic and beautiful.

Yellow Fever in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, July 24.—A child named Palmeira, 2 years old, a native of this city, died of yellow fever at No. 80 Third street. She child was attended to by Drs. Bayley and Malnegra and the president of the Health board. Dr. Ross pronounced the case yellow fever. The case is sporadic. There are no vessels from infected ports at the wharves in the section of the city where the death occurred. The locality is where the flood family succumbed in 1879. Dr. Holt is using every exertion in disinfecting, adopting all that have in no other suspicious case in the city.

BOSTON, July 24.—One case of yellow fever was found on the brig Clara Goodrich, which arrived from Rio Janeiro. The patient was removed to Gallopues Island, and the vessel thoroughly fumigated.

Soliciting Campaign Funds.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The sub-committee appointed by the Republican National committee to attend to collections for campaign purposes from government employes is composed of A. M. Clapp, chairman, Dr. E. A. Adams, Will Sowderaile, R. T. Brown, and Thomas Bahn. None of these gentlemen holding a government office, they are not debarred from soliciting campaign funds. Clerks will not be approached at their desks, but notified by letter to call at headquarters. An appropriate circular will soon be issued.

The Navy Department Frauds.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The naval court of inquiry which is investigating the alleged frauds in the navy department is still holding daily sessions. Paymaster General Hudson, formerly assistant surgeon-general under Dr. Wales and of Mr. Parker, formerly employed in the bureau of medicine and surgery, in regard to the business methods of the bureau, has just been completed. A number of witnesses from New York, Boston and other places will be examined in relation to the receipt of goods described in the fraudulent vouchers.

Thrown Out of a Buggy, but Not Hurt.

LONG BRANCH, July 24.—A horse attached to a buggy driven by Mrs. Leverich ran away in front of the West End cottages yesterday morning. The buggy was upset in turning a corner, and Mrs. Leverich and the child who was with her, were thrown violently to the ground. Both fortunately escaped uninjured.

Condition of the Greely Party.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 24.—The Thetis and Bear will not be ready to leave before Saturday morning. Lieut. Greely was on hand Monday, but improved and yesterday [illegible] the party survivors [illegible] rapidly regaining their normal condition and yesterday they all [illegible] [illegible] They are [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

DESPERATE DOCK PIRATES.

Fighting with River Thieves on the Steamer Bermuda.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Four river thieves crept on board the steamer Bermuda, lying at the foot of Richard street, Brooklyn, on an early hour yesterday, and in company with the watchman of the ship, William Hastings, and James Riley, a fireman, went between decks and began filling sugar bags with sugar. They were discovered by Douglas Harrison, the chief mate, who called for assistance.

Several of the crew responded, and a desperate fight ensued with the thieves, in the course of which the boatswain was stabbed in the thigh and hand. The watchman and thieves made their escape, and the fireman was taken into custody by officer Kane. He declared his innocence, and said he was simply acting under the instructions of the watchman. Justice Bergen discharged him from custody, the evidence not being sufficient to hold him.

Attempt to Poison an Entire Family.

MUSKEGON, Mich., July 23.—Somebody stole into the kitchen of Wm. Fritz's home Monday night and put some "rough on rats" into the teakettle. On drinking the coffee made from the water at breakfast yesterday morning, four persons were poisoned. Wm. Fritz, his two daughters, aged 5 and 17, and John Sprick, a boarder. Sprick lived with Mollie Mulligan some time ago and left her. A woman was seen loitering about the place after one o'clock Monday night, and suspicion strongly points to her as the woman who did the deed. The police went to the hotel where she had been engaged as cook, but learned that she left Monday night, and had not been seen here since. She was arrested in Chicago last night.

Business Failures.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Erie Preserving Company, canned goods, 163 Maiden lane, has suspended. Liabilities about $300,000; assets nominally the same.

H. F. Robinson & Bro., bankers and general store at Ocala, Fla., have made an assignment. Their liabilities are about $200,000.

S. W. Green & Son, publishers at 69 Beekman street, have made an assignment. Their liabilities are estimated at about $100,000.

New Candidates Coming Forward.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—It seems to be definitely settled that the president will not commission Mr. Sarwell, of Pittsburg, chief of the bureau of labor statistics, so new candidates are coming forward, among them Mr. Charles S. Hill, statistician of the state department. Friends of ex-Mayor Pawderly, of Scranton, and M. F. Holderman have again presented their candidates. Mr. Hill has a very strong backing, and his chances for the appointment are considered here better than any other candidate.

Bombs for Striking Miners.

CINCINNATI, July 24.—It is reported that the inventor of the Hanes' dynamite bombs, lately received an order for 3,000 of those deadly weapons for shipment to Nelsonville. The order was refused, and Gov. Hoadly was notified. The governor placed the matter in a detective's hands, and some singular developments are expected. There is a rumor that the mine owners desired so use the bombs to prevent intrusion upon their property by the striking miners, but nothing definite is yet known.

Serious Charge Against a Judge.

QUEBEC, July 24.—Judge Carrow, who tried the Eno case, was made the victim of a slanderous publication in The Nouvelliste yesterday. He was charged with dishonesty and partiality in his recent ruling in the Lonis contested election case. An application was made and granted for the arrest of the editor. The case will come up for a hearing on Friday.

Death of Rear-Admiral G. F. Emmons.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 24.—Rear-Admiral Gerge F. Emmons, United States navy, retired, died yesterday at his residence, aged 75 years. He leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter. One of his sons is a lieutenant in the navy, and his daughter is the wife of Commander White, of the United States navy.

Slight Earthquake.

ROME, July 24.—A shock of earthquake was felt at Ischia. It was not severe, and no person was injured, but the inhabitants of the island were terror stricken and manifested the wildest excitement, fearing a repetition of the horrible scenes of some months ago, when hundreds were buried in the ruins of falling buildings at Casamicciu.

The Bark Rambler Lost at Sea.

BOSTON, July 24.—Private advices received in this city state that the bark Rambler, Capt. King, from Iloilo, for Boston, has been lost at sea. She was owned by Edward Lawrence, of Boston, and was partly insured here. The loss on the vessel and cargo will probably amount to $150,000.

"What are we Here For."

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Webster Flanagan has been appointed collector of internal revenue for the Fourth district of Texas.

This is the gentleman who astonished the Republican convention at Chicago in 1880, by inquiring: "What are we here for, if not to get the offices?"

Treating Cancers Without a Knife.

LONDON, July 24.—Many of the chief physicians of London have given a warm reception to Dr. Durant. The doctor has already given numerous conferences, in which he has explained his method of treating cancers without a knife.

Run Off the Track.

READING, Pa., July 24.—On the Lebanon Valley railroad, above Reading, a freight train ran off the track and a number of cars were piled up and smashed. Victor Zimmerman, a brakeman, was crushed to death.

A Strike of Female Operatives.

HAMILTON, Ont., July 24.—A number of female operatives in the Hamilton cotton mills are on strike against a reduction of wages.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in point will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, quarter stone floor tiling and street blocks. Also used to build fire and burglar proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities—They absorb no perceptible sweat; are non-conductors; are not affected by acids, as well as all kinds of moisture. Worm dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly dry free from it. These blocks are cast from the molten Iron Slag and are the hardest of substance. Specimen on exhibition at Wagner's Fancy Store, opposite Stillman Music Hall. For further particulars call on or address

A PORTRAIT MEDLEY.

A Noted Detective, an Editor and Prominent Politician.

Allen Pinkerton, T. Thomas Fortune, Stephen B. Elkins, John Kelly, Richard B. Oglesby, Isaac P. Gray and S. E. Pingree.

A Republican Campaign Leader.

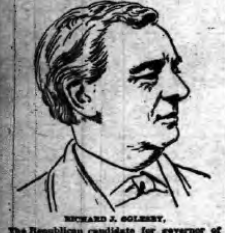
STEPHEN B. ELKINS.

[Photographed by A. Bogardus.]

The Napoleon of the coming campaign, the general who marshalled the forces at the Republican Convention which led to the nomination of Mr. Blaine for the presidency, is Mr. Stephen B. Elkins, and he will remain head and front of the coming canvass, bringing the vast amount of natural tact and extraordinary energy which he possesses to aid in the success of the Republican ticket. Mr. Elkins is a native of Perry county, Ohio, where he was born in 1841. He graduated at Missouri University, at Columbia, Mo., in 1860, and afterward served for a time as captain and provost marshall in the army, being stationed at Independence, Mo., under Gen. Ewing. He was admitted to the bar in 1864, and immediately removed to New Mexico at a time in the history of that territory when many met their fate at the hands of murderous Apaches. In 1866 he was elected to the legislature of the territory and later became its attorney-general, and afterward United States attorney by appointment of President Johnson. In 1873 he was elected to the House of Representatives, and re-elected in 1875 while absent in Europe, and did not know of it until after landing in New York.

Mr. Elkins has been a member of the National Republican committee for the past eight years. In 1881 he removed his family to New York, where he has since resided, spending the summers at Deer Park, Md., the home of ex-Senator H. G. Davis, whose daughter he married in 1873. One of his boys is named after Mr. Blaine. Mr. Elkins is exceedingly wealthy, his estates in New Mexico placing him among the largest landowners in the United States. He is the owner of the National bank at Santa Fe. Of late he has given his attention to railway matters almost entirely. His father-in-law, ex-Senator Davis, and himself are the principal owners of the West Virginia Central and Pittsburg railroad, sometimes called the senatorial railroad, owing to the number of senators having an interest in it. Among the directors of the company are James G. Blaine, Thomas F. Bayard, Samuel J. Randall and William H. Barnum, chairman of the National Democratic committee.

The Republican Candidate for Governor of Illinois.



RICHARD J. OGLESBY.

The Republican candidate for governor of Illinois, has led an active, eventful and exciting career in his life. Born in Oldham county, Kentucky, in 1824, he has lived in his adopted state since his twelfth year, and after obtaining a start as a lawyer, a statesman and a soldier. He entered the rebellion as a major-general of volunteers. Having previously served in the Mexican war he fought with distinction at Fort Henry, Fort Donaldsonand Corinth. At the latter battle he was seriously wounded, which compelled his resignation from the army. He returned to his home in Decatur, Illinois, where he has since resided. He has twice been governor of Illinois, and has represented that state with credit and ability in the United States senate.

Vermont's Republican Candidate for the Gubernatorial Chair.

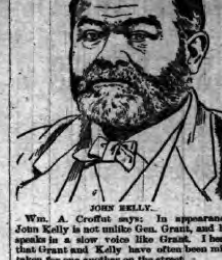
SAMUEL E. PINGREE.

Col. Samuel E. Pingree, Republican candidate for governor of Vermont, was born in Salisbury, New Hampshire, August 2, 1832. His father was a well-to-do business man, and gave his son the usual schooling advantages of the times, principally the district schools.

When the war broke out he recruited a company and went to the front, going into the war as lieutenant, and coming out a lieutenant colonel. After the close of the war he returned to Hartford, resuming his law business with success.

He has little ambition for politics, but was chosen delegate to the Chicago convention in 1868, which first nominated Grant. In 1876 he was unexpectedly to himself and to the convention, nominated for lieutenant-governor of Vermont, to which office he was elected and has now received the nomination as the governorship, to which he will be elected this fall, as a Republican nomination in Vermont is equivalent to an election.

Tammany's Grand Sachem.



JOHN KELLY.

Wm. A. Croffut says: In appearance John Kelly is not unlike Gen. Grant, and he speaks in a slow voice like Grant. I base that Grant and Kelly have often been mistaken for one another on the street.

Kelly's parents were very poor. He went to the public school; was employed for a time as office boy on The New York Herald. He afterwards learned the trade of mason and grate setter, and was in a good deal of money in legitimate business. When Tweed was at the culmination of his career Kelly was traveling in Europe, where he spent a year or two and learned French and German, with his wife as teacher; and he came home to find an honest leader wanted. He completed the rout of the ring and wrested Tammany Hall into line at the head of the reform element. In 1876 he became comptroller of the city of New York and reduced the city's debt for the first time in its history. From 1876 to 1876 the debt of the city increased till it had reached the sum of $112,000,000. Kelly increased revenues and reduced expenses, so as to reduce the debt $12,000,000 during his term of service. As a lecturer for charity he has brought $100,000 to the cause. He is a frank, straightforward, downright speaker, and his earnestness always interests his audience.

The first office Kelly held was aldermanic, being elected as a reformer. He has served one term in congress, after which he served two terms as sheriff. He is worth at least a million and receives more applications for private charity than any other New Yorker. He reads much and deeply, is acquainted with history, and is so fond of Shakespeare that it is with great difficulty he can keep it out of his speeches before Tammany. He is fond of the fathers. "Study the characters and methods of Thomas Jefferson," he once said, while speaking in the Fourth ward, "and pay less attention to Pat Rooney."

Indiana's Democratic Nominee for Governor.

ISAAC P. GRAY.

(Photographed by W. H. Potter.)

Hon. Isaac P. Gray, the Democratic nominee for Governor of Indiana, is a native of Pennsylvania, and nineteen years of his life, before he settled in Indiana, were spent in Ohio. He was born in Chester county, Pennsylvania, October 18, 1828.

During the war he was colonel of the Fourth regiment of Indiana cavalry. In 1868 he was defeated as a Republican candidate for Congress in opposition to George W. Julian. He was elected a member of the Indiana legislature in 1874 on a party ticket in 1876. When Mr. Greeley was nominated, four years later, Mr. Gray became a Democrat, and in 1876 he was elected lieutenant-governor on the ticket with James D. Williams, known as the "Blue Jeans" governor. Governor Williams died three months before the expiration of his term of office, and Mr. Gray became the executive of the state. In 1880 he was again nominated by the Democrats for lieutenant-governor.

A Celebrated Detective.

THE LATE ALLAN PINKERTON.

The founder of Pinkerton's Detective agency, who died at his home in Chicago on July 1, was a native of Scotland where he was born in 1819. He learned the cooper's trade. During the Chartist excitement in England he was compelled to flee to this country for uttering seditious sentiments. Settling in Dundee, Ill., he continued at his trade as a cooper. While gathering hoop poles on an island in a neighboring river he discovered a deserted gang which he believed had been the resort of counterfeiters. By following up clews suggested by him the result was that the gang of counterfeiters were caught and punished. This incident led to his being frequently employed by the sheriff in capturing the desperadoes that infested the sparsely populated section in which he lived. His fame reached Chicago so that on his removal there he was soon after appointed deputy sheriff and afterward appointed the city's first detective. In 1852 he founded the celebrated detective agency which has since ferreted out some of the most daring crimes of the age.

JERSEY BEAUTIES

Whose Owners Are Very Much in Love with Them.

Their Record as Better Makers—Origin of the Stock on the Jersey Island—Kentucky Blue Grass.

[New York Sun.]

"There is nothing like a Jersey cow and a pea fowl for the ornamentation of a lawn," said a gentleman at his country seat in Connecticut last week. As he was describing the points of beauty of a sleek, lithe little cow, with head and eyes like a deer, a tall, white-bearded man drove up and asked permission to look at the cow. The accent of the stranger indicated that his home was in the south, and his dignified courtesy and solemn good nature recalled the manners of the planter before the war. He slowly circled around the fluted little cow, put a few questions as to her registry and history, and then surprised the owner by a plump offer of $500 for the animal, and a bonus of $50 for making the sale.

"Ah, but she is not for sale," said the owner. "I will, however, give you the refusal of her at that price if you will leave me your address."

The stranger produced a card which showed that he lived in a western state, although he appeared to be thankful that he had "got his rasin'" down in the blue grass of Kentucky. He was making his annual trip through New England, picking up Jersey cows and heifers for his herd, and he said that he would "be very happy, ah, if you would do me the honor to sell me that 5-year-old, for I confess, ah, that she is a beautiful animal." Being unable to make a purchase, he did not object to burning a cigar under the shade of a veranda and to revealing his love for Jersey beauties.

"There's no other such sort of cow," he said, "and upon my honah, ah, as a gentleman, I know men who are as much in love with those shy little animals as they are, ah, with their wives. There are no such milkers, and no cow suits like them. There's Mary Ann, up at Sir. Lambert, Canada, that has yielded four pounds of butter in one day. She's worth $20,000. Mr. Ramsay, of the Fifth Avenue hotel, in New York, has a beautiful animal, that produces twenty odd pounds of butter a week. The milk of a good Jersey is about 80 per cent cream, and, ah, I have milked a Jersey and churned the vessel at the same time, and when I finished, ah, I had a small quantity of butter in the vessel merely by agitating the milk as it came from the cow. This shows how rich the milk is.

"The Jersey cows sell from $200 to $2,000 according to their record as butter makers. Their butter sells from 30 cents to $1 a pound, and if it is well made it will stand firm without ice in warm weather. At my herd I sell the cream by the inch. It is collected in registering cans, and sold according to the number of inches of cream registered."

"I suppose the cows are good pets, eh?"

"On the contrary they keep wild nearly always. It seems to run in their blood. It is said that the stock in the beginning of a buck deer that in early times swam over from the coast of France to the Jersey islands. They are like the deer in some points, and the young calves are very like fawns. The cows when they run in blue grass are hard to find. They drop down in the grass, and make themselves as small as possible. I give you my honah, ah, I have watched ten feet of a cow in a blue grass field and have failed to see her. They have a way of hiding themselves like game. We are making the experiment out west of regulating the sex of the progeny from the foundation cows, so as to get as many heifers as possible, and we believe that we will succeed. The bull calves are not so profitable to handle. I think we will be able to increase the capacity of the cows in this country. You know we are exporting shorthorns from Kentucky, and are selling them to the very breeders in England who supplied us some years ago. The breed is improved here, because of the rise in the water and in the food. It gives more bone and adds weight and strength to the beasts. I believe we can so treat the Jerseys as to be able to increase their capacity. They are not fit for beef, because they are of a lean kind, which you cannot fatten, but, ah, lime water and blue grass are wonderful bone and muscle makers."

The Bartholdi Statue.

(Philadelphia Times.)

"Like the Brooklyn bridge novelty," a young Philadelphia lady writes from Paris, "you will soon be going to explore the wonders of the Bartholdi statue. I want you in it the other day, giving my little contribution toward paying the dear girl's (Libby we call her here) passage over to New York. This unique thing which confronts one in the Rue de Vigny, towering above the six-story house, is really fine. The pose is stately and noble, and there are no gaps of the drapery that have the delicacy of work on a statuette. You can hardly realize that the folds of the huge robe are stubborn bronze. The metal is so wrought by the hammer that it gives the effect of mottled silk. Worth might be proud of the sleeve of her mantle.

"The gesture of the outstretched right arm is full of spirit, while the left, holding the tablet, forms with the head, a beautiful balance in the composition. It seems sacrilegious to have an 'interior' to such a superb creature. The entry is by the side of the uplifted foot—they say a Chicago girl was the model—and a tall man can go in easily. Inside we seem to be looking up to the lantern of a gothic cathedral with numerous spires of light from the little holes piercing the gloom. We reached the head by a temporary wooden staircase. At New York there will be an elevator working in the great framework of iron, which is to form the main support for the structure.

"The old cicerone tells us the tale of the dimensions as we ascend. Reckoning from the ceremony to which they belong, the foot, stool the figure measures 101 feet 11½ inches —I want to be accurate—but it is higher to the head. The pedestal of granite is 89 feet 8½ feet. From the surface of Bedloe island to the top of the torch will be 219 feet 11½ inches. Now, the monument at London, the loftiest isolated column in the world, is but 202 feet high; the Vendome column, 144 feet, and the Arc de Triomphe, 160 feet, while as for the Colosseo of Rhodes, he stands but 140 feet in his stockings. Miss Liberty will beat him 70 feet and over. The stairs in the arm have not been completed, so we had to stop at the head, the last story but one, and there through the apertures in the coronet all the glory of Paris bursts upon the view."

Hather He Blind and He Kissed.

(Philadelphia Progress.)

There is a clerk of pretty girls in Boston who have sworn never to wear eye-glasses or spectacles before they are married. It appears that the average Boston girl reads and studies so much that many of these creatures are near-sighted. Glasses have therefore been greatly in vogue, but a girl with glasses is almost unkissable. Therefore the society aforesaid grumps.

THE NEW STATE TAX.

Foreign Life Insurance Companies Adding their Quota.

The Board of State Assessors continue to file with the Comptroller supplemental returns under the new corporation tax law. Among corporations whose reports have recently been filed are the People's Gas Company, of Jersey City, and the New Brunswick Gas Company. The former owns up to gross receipts of $82,600.49 and dividends over four per cent. of $5,063, on which the tax is $656.45; the New Brunswick returns gross receipts of $48,044.83, exempt dividends of $6,675.97 and will pay a tax of $540.05.

The Assessors have also filed the returns of a large number of life-insurance companies incorporated in other States but doing business in this. The total tax from these aggregates about ten thousand dollars. The larger companies report as follows.

	Premiums.	Dividends.	Losses.	Profit.	Tax.
John Hartford Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn.	$1,010,000	$210,000	$610,000	$210,000	$2,100
Travelers' Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn.	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., New York	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
Mutual Life Insurance Co., New York	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
Equitable Life Assurance Society, New York	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
New York Life Insurance Co., New York	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
Manhattan Life Insurance Co., New York	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., Philadelphia	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
Mutual Life Insurance Co., Philadelphia	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
Girard Life Insurance Co., Philadelphia	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
Provident Life and Trust Co., Philadelphia	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100
Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Milwaukee	1,010,000	210,000	610,000	210,000	2,100

The total tax represented by the returns already filed in the Comptroller's office is about $125,000. Of this some $60,000 has already been paid into the State Treasury.

SUNDAY WORK.

Carter Harrison, the Mayor of Chicago, refrains from compelling the Chicago theatres to close on Sunday, fearing the loss thereby of the German vote. The saloons are all open, on the claim that people will drink if they want to, and that to close the saloons only makes the people evade the law by sneaking in the back way. An effort is now being made to have the new race track open on Sunday. It is said to be one of the most successful tracks in the country, having on one day 15,000 paying spectators. General Phil Sheridan is the President of the Association. All the hat and clothing stores in Chicago are open on Sunday morning, and many other business places. A big trade is said to be done in hats on Sunday morning.

Laying all religious questions aside it is clear that one day of rest is absolutely required. But give human greed half a chance and it will crush out the Day of Rest. It is only the religious observance and the religious sentiment that stand in the way. Employers care for considerations of health or of public policy if they could make a little more money by compelling their employees to work on Sundays? Anything which breaks down all distinction between Sunday and every other day of the week is an oppression of the poor man—if all busy men indeed—and entrails their hours of leisure.

"I notice that the ballet girls mostly wear smiles when they come upon the stage," said Mr. Squaggs to his wife, who had insisted on accompanying him to the theatre. "It shows that they think they ought to wear something," she snapped. He said no more.

ST. JOHN NOMINATED.

The Prohibition Party's Candidate for the Presidency.

William Daniel, the "Little Giant of Maryland," Nominated for Vice-President—A Declaration of Temperance Principles.

EX-GOV. ST. JOHN, OF KANSAS.

PITTSBURGH, July 25.—Promptly at 9:10 yesterday the Prohibition convention with prayer by Rev. Dr. Lee, of New York, who briefly invoked divine guidance in the deliberations of the day. The prayer was followed by the singing of "Jesus, I my cross have taken."

At 10:30 a motion was agreed to that the roll of states should be called for the purpose of placing a nomination the various presidential candidates.

Col. Babcock, in a vigorous speech, declared that Dr. McDonald was one of the greatest leaders the Prohibition party has ever possessed. He was a man hated and feared by the whisky interests of California. The speaker reviewed Dr. McDonald's career and concluded by asking in the name of the people of California that Dr. McDonald should receive, at the hands of the convention, that recognition which his services and liberality to the cause justly entitled him. The call of states was then resumed.

When Illinois was reached Hon. George C. Christian, of Chicago, took the stand for the purpose of "nominating a candidate who needed no defence, and who would not have to conduct a defensive campaign." The name which he was to present was that of a man known in every household in the land, whose record is as bright as the sun, who could carry with him a large force of followers; that distinguished patriot, that magnificent leader, that whole-souled patriot, John P. St. John, of Kansas. (Prolonged applause.)

When Kansas was called, Miss Francis Willard supported the nomination of ex-Governor St. John in an eloquent speech. She pictured the early life and public career of the ex-Governor of Kansas, and characterized him as a man of the masses whose name would never be effaced from the roll of the country.

Col. Eustis was introduced when Maine was called, and, in a brief address, in which he paid a glowing tribute to the worth of the old war horses of the party, he placed in nomination the Hon. Gideon T. Stewart, of Ohio.

Chas. M. Nye, of Maryland, responded to the call of that state, and seconded the nomination of Dr. McDonald.

When Massachusetts was reached, Rev. Dr. Minor, of Boston, seconded the nomination of St. John in a powerful speech.

When Dr. Minor concluded a delegate rose in the Massachusetts benches and was understood to say that several members of that delegation differed from the position taken by Dr. Minor. Mr. Gaisy, however, ruled the delegate out of order, and he resumed his seat.

M. J. Fleming, of Michigan, seconded St. John.

W. W. Sparrie, of Minnesota, seconded St. John, and promised liberal contributions to a campaign literature fund.

Missouri, through Mrs. Clara Hoffman, president of the state W. C. T. A., gave its adhesion to St. John.

When New Jersey was called the audience gave a hearty cheer. Stephen P. Ransom, of that state, was introduced, and after stating that the candidate whose name he would mention had always been positive and active against the use of his name, launched into an eulogy of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, whose name was greeted with prolonged cheers.

Toward the close of his address, however, Mr. Ransom announced that the New Jersey delegation had unanimously selected their choice, and would solidly support St. John.

Prof. Hopkins, of New York; John P. Finch, of Nebraska, and Gideon T. Stewart, of Ohio, seconded the nominations of St. John, and J. Newton Pierce, of Pennsylvania, nominated Judge James Black. At this point there was a rush for St. John, and all of the other candidates withdrew in his favor. The motion was about to be carried for a suspension of the rules in order to nominate St. John for president by acclamation, but the motion was temporarily withdrawn, and at 1:30 the convention took a recess until 3 o'clock.

At the opening of the afternoon session a large number of dispatches were read congratulating the convention upon its work and urging success. St. John's nomination. The chair announced that the pending business was the motion to make the nomination of St. John unanimous. Prof. Hopkins, of New York, substituted an amendment that the roll of states be called.

A large number of delegates urged that the nomination be deferred to the last moment, that the prohibition vote on the platform would create bickerings and bad feeling, and a good hurrah at the end over the nominations would be desirable in the interest of harmony and good feeling. The convention, however, refused to postpone the nomination, and the roll call was commenced.

All the delegates voted unanimously for St. John, and when the secretary made the announcement, giving the total vote cast as 761, the audience rose to its feet and cheered vociferously for several moments and then sang "Glory Hallelujah" and the long meter doxology. More cheering followed as a caucus plan for the campaign was carried across the hall. A dispatch containing the announcement was at once sent to Mr. St. John.

When the enthusiasm had spent itself, Judge John Black, of Lancaster, Pa., was called upon to present the platform. The reading of the document was listened to with profound attention.

THE PLATFORM.

The Prohibition Home Protection party, in national convention assembled, acknowledges Almighty God as the rightful sovereign of all men, from whom the true and just powers of government and state proceed, and whose laws demand the conformity of human institutions and acts of alcoholic beverages, created and sanctioned by the laws of the national and state governments during the entire history of such laws in every such shown, to be the prevailing cause of intemperance, with all its evils, and we hereby declare the existing license dominion upon political and personal

NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Beginning of the Presidential Campaign by the Democrats.

William H. Barnum Again Made Chairman, and Frederick O. Prince Secretary—Prospects in the Several States.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Democratic wisdom of the nation was pretty well represented yesterday at the Fifth avenue hotel. Among the prominent Democratic leaders present were Gen. Rosecrans, Congressman S. S. Cox, Gen. Duncan A. Walker, Thomas McCune, of California; Col. John R. Fellows, Enrico Cumminetti, Mitchell, Smith, members of the National Democratic committee.

At half-past eleven o'clock the national committee was called to order, ex-Senator Gorman, of Maryland, in the chair. When 45 was announced that ex-Senator William H. Barnum had left the city, Smith M. Weed was substituted his proxy. The roll was then called, as follows: Alabama, Henry C. Semple; Arkansas, S. R. Cockrill; California, M. F. Farply; Colorado, C. S. Thomas; Connecticut, W. E. Barnum; Delaware, Ignatius C. Grubb; Florida, Sam Pasco; Georgia, Patrick Walsh; Illinois, S. Corning Judd; Indiana, Austin H. Brown; Iowa, M. M. Horn; Kansas, C. W. Blair; Kentucky, Henry B. McHenry; Louisiana, B. F. Jonah; Maine, Edmund Wilson; Maryland, A. P. Gorman; Massachusetts, W. A. Prince; Michigan, Don M. Dickenson; Minnesota, P. H. Kelly; Missouri, John C. Prather; Mississippi, C. A. Johnson; Nebraska, James E. Boyd; Nevada, Thomas P. McCarthy; New Hampshire, A. W. Sullowey; New Jersey, Miles Ross; New York, Hubert O. Thompson; North Carolina, W. Kansas; Ohio, W. W. Armstrong; Rhode Island, J. B. Barnaby; South Carolina, F. W. Dawson; Tennessee, R. F. Looney; Texas, M. Holt; Vermont, H. I. Smalley; Virginia, John S. Barbour; West Virginia, Lewis Baker; Wisconsin, Wm. F. Vilas; Arizona, W. K. Meade; Dakota, M. H. Day; District of Columbia, Arthur Dickinson; Idaho, John Haley; Montana, William J. McCormick; New Mexico, George F. Fox; Utah, J. P. Rossborough; Washington, J. H. Mullen; Wyoming, W. L. Kelly.

Mr. Dickinson, the secretary, then proceeded to read the minutes of the last meeting, which occupied a considerable time.

A SPANISH INSULT.

Firing into a British Vessel off Port Morant, Jamaika.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 23.—The Colonial Standard and Dispatch following has learn that on Saturday afternoon last the captain of the Spanish gunboat Almendares was arrested by lieutenant and two marines of her majesty's steamer Philomel, by order of the commodore, for the recent firing into the British sloop Scud, owned in Kingston, Jamaica. The Almendares was informed that the commander previously wrote for an explanation, but no answer being forthcoming he was sent for on board his ship, and his refusal to go on board was the signal for the marines to be sent, who proceeded to the Spanish consul's house from where he was taken. On arriving at the vessel he was received by a guard of honor present, and the captain asked to be allowed to go on board his ship to put on his uniform, but his request was refused; subsequently it was said that the captain abandoned it on board the launch, amid the hooting and jeering of the assembled crowd. At a late hour in the evening he was released, bonds being given by the consul for his appearance when required." The gunboat has cannot leave port until the affair is settled."

Two Killed—Five Fatally Injured.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., July 23.—J. W. Tompkins' threshing engine exploded on Joseph Hall's farm, near Laurel, Saturday, throwing the engine against the separator and forcing a laborer, D. Henderson, into the cylinder. He was instantly killed. Engineer Russell Swain and Robert Innes, were also killed. Five others were probably fatally wounded. The owner claims that the accident was due to gas being generated from the use of sulphuric water, but a brother of the engineer examined the engine recently and pronounced it safe. Engineer Swain's wife is fatally hurt; Miss Gertrude Perkins, Miss Trew, Adams, Nattie Dickerson, Walter Pennell and Nellie Fetzer, who were standing near the machine at the time.

Trying to Kill His Family.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 25.—John Rayburn, a prominent and highly esteemed citizen of McMinn county, Tenn., went to his house, and, without a word, snatched a butcher knife and struck his wife a fatal assault on his family. He beat his wife over the head, mutilating her in a shocking manner. He then had begun to beat his children when their screams brought assistance. He was overpowered with great difficulty and at last placed in confinement. His wife and two of his children are seriously injured.

The Illinois Wheat Crop.

HILLSBORO, July 25.—The wheat harvest in Central and Southern Illinois is now over and the oat and hay harvest has commenced. The wheat crop is not generally good, the average yield being only from ten to fifteen bushels per acre and the quality poor. The price is also low, seventy-five and eighty cents per bushel being the highest paid for any of the crop. Farmers are generally holding their grain for better prices. The corn crop now promises to be a very large one.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Ireland won the Echo shield at the rifle match at Wimbledon.

The African Society of Berlin will give a grand farewell banquet in Washington in honor to the German exploring expedition on its departure for the Congo.

In the house of commons Mr. Gladstone announced that parliament would probably reassemble next Monday, after which it would state whether parliament would be asked to sanction any financial arrangement owing to the delay in settling Egyptian affairs. Owing to favorable prospects for agriculture and the laborers in America, the Fukes emigrating fund committee will suspend the system of aiding emigration to the United States for the present.

A serious affray has occurred near Invernes, Scotland, between the deer stalkers and laborers employed by the estate of Mr. Wilson, the American millionaire. A gillie named Campbell killed a laborer named Magilvray. Campbell has been arrested.

The British government has withdrawn the Cornwall scandal case from the Dublin Castle executive and intended the prosecution of the vile offenders to the English law officers. Sir Henry James, attorney general, and Sir Farrer Herschell, solicitor general,

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 23.—The Colonial Standard and Dispatch following has learn that on Saturday afternoon last the captain of the Spanish gunboat Almendares was arrested by lieutenant and two marines of her majesty's steamer Philomel, by order of the commodore, for the recent firing into the British sloop Scud, owned in Kingston, Jamaica. The Almendares was informed that the commander previously wrote for an explanation, but no answer being forthcoming he was sent for on board his ship, and his refusal to go on board was the signal for the marines to be sent, who proceeded to the Spanish consul's house from where he was taken. On arriving at the vessel he was received by a guard of honor present, and the captain asked to be allowed to go on board his ship to put on his uniform, but his request was refused; subsequently it was said that the captain abandoned it on board the launch, amid the hooting and jeering of the assembled crowd. At a late hour in the evening he was released, bonds being given by the consul for his appearance when required." The gunboat has cannot leave port until the affair is settled."

Two Killed—Five Fatally Injured.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., July 23.—J. W. Tompkins' threshing engine exploded on Joseph Hall's farm, near Laurel, Saturday, throwing the engine against the separator and forcing a laborer, D. Henderson, into the cylinder. He was instantly killed. Engineer Russell Swain and Robert Innes, were also killed. Five others were probably fatally wounded. The owner claims that the accident was due to gas being generated from the use of sulphuric water, but a brother of the engineer examined the engine recently and pronounced it safe. Engineer Swain's wife is fatally hurt; Miss Gertrude Perkins, Miss Trew, Adams, Nattie Dickerson, Walter Pennell and Nellie Fetzer, who were standing near the machine at the time.

Trying to Kill His Family.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 25.—John Rayburn, a prominent and highly esteemed citizen of McMinn county, Tenn., went to his house, and, without a word, snatched a butcher knife and struck his wife a fatal assault on his family. He beat his wife over the head, mutilating her in a shocking manner. He then had begun to beat his children when their screams brought assistance. He was overpowered with great difficulty and at last placed in confinement. His wife and two of his children are seriously injured.

The Illinois Wheat Crop.

HILLSBORO, July 25.—The wheat harvest in Central and Southern Illinois is now over and the oat and hay harvest has commenced. The wheat crop is not generally good, the average yield being only from ten to fifteen bushels per acre and the quality poor. The price is also low, seventy-five and eighty cents per bushel being the highest paid for any of the crop. Farmers are generally holding their grain for better prices. The corn crop now promises to be a very large one.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Ireland won the Echo shield at the rifle match at Wimbledon.

The African Society of Berlin will give a grand farewell banquet in Washington in honor to the German exploring expedition on its departure for the Congo.

In the house of commons Mr. Gladstone announced that parliament would probably reassemble next Monday, after which it would state whether parliament would be asked to sanction any financial arrangement owing to the delay in settling Egyptian affairs. Owing to favorable prospects for agriculture and laborers in America, the Fukes emigrating fund committee will suspend the system of aiding emigration to the United States for the present.

THE CHOLERA DECREASING.

No Cases Now in Paris and Few Deaths in Toulon and Marseilles.

PARIS, July 25.—There were ten deaths from cholera in Marseilles Thursday, and twenty-two between the hours of 9 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. At the Pharo hospital five have died and five have been discharged since. Eighty patients still remain in the hospital.

In Toulon there were twenty deaths from cholera and four between 10 a. m. and 6 p. m. The condition of Toulon is greatly improved. Two hundred cases were admitted into the hospital there. St. Mandrier hospital in that city contains 120 cases and only a few of them are serious. It is definitely announced that the cholera epidemic at Marseilles and Toulon is decreasing. The health of Paris is good.

The number of deaths from cholera in Arles reached thirty-one in two days. There were seven deaths there yesterday and three in La Valette. The majority of the inhabitants of Arles have fled from their homes.

Dispatches received at Spezia, M. Berlet, questioned the government concerning the law relating to epidemics. He complained that the necessary steps had not been taken to prevent the spread of the cholera. M. Herisson, minister of commerce, in reply, said the government resolved to enforce the necessary measures, but the board of public health declared that such precautions were not yet necessary. M. Clemenceau moved that a commission, composed of eleven members of the Chamber of Deputies, be appointed to examine the bills of electors. The motion was rejected by a vote of 319 to 193. The government demanded the order of the day, which was adopted by a vote of 307 to 63.

There were forty-eight deaths from cholera at Marseilles during the twenty-four hours ending at noon last night.

MARSEILLES, July 25.—The aspect here is becoming more somber at the Mesagerie maritime. Only one steamer arrives regularly in Algeria. The establishment has also suppressed the lines to Syria. South American packets cease to call here. The custom office has been closed and the last infection of any epidemic disease into this country. New Orleans, he thinks, is not in danger this summer, and if any cases are brought there they will be quickly removed, and the seeds of the disease promptly stamped out. The several large cities in the Mississippi valley possessing a fine river is likely to make its first appearance so far as heard from, he says are displaying unusual energy in improving their sanitary conditions, and that the state of Louisiana is maintaining three quarantine stations on the waters, so there is little danger to be apprehended.

Indians Firmly Intrenched.

DURANGO, Col., July 25.—Captain Perrine, commanding the detachment of cavalry sent in pursuit of the Indians that took part in the outbreak in a cattle camp a short time ago, reports that he found the Indians intrenched in their stronghold 100 west of the Blue Mountains. July 15, after a sharp fight, he was compelled to retire with the loss of one scout named Worrington and James Higgins, a cowboy, killed. There were 200 Indians well armed and so well protected by the bluffs that he found it impossible to dislodge them. Captain Perrine will probably await orders from headquarters before making any further attack. It would only be throwing the lives of his men away, as the Indians would have great advantages in a fight.

Fast Mail Service.

LONDON, July 25.—The National line steamer America arrived at Liverpool at noon yesterday and her mail was delivered carried in this city at the forenoon, eight days from the time of its collection in New York. This is unprecedented in the history of the mail service.

CONDENSED NEWS.

T. Lloyd Fahney, miller, at Hartford, Pa., has failed, and judgments for $90,000 have been entered against him.

The Stonetown bank at Stonetown, Pa., has suspended. It was a small concern started in August, 1881, and was run by A. W. Gealy.

The postmaster-general has discontinued the practice of supplying specimen postage stamps to collectors, as it is unprofitable and a source of annoyance.

A burglar giving the name of Robert Murray was captured in the residence of Andrew Jackson on Fifth avenue, New York, yesterday morning. He was taken to new city jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Hand & Ellsworth, paper merchants of Buffalo, have assigned. Mr. Hand failed and made an assignment to John A. Pierce. The total assets are estimated at about $300,000, but the amounts of the assets is not yet known.

George Vedderkill fell from the attic window of a boarding house in Auburn, N. Y., at midnight on Wednesday, and will probably die from concussion of the brain. He is known to have had $30 in his possession, which is missing. Foul play is suspected.

Ex-Senator Wondan, of New York, who had charge of the campaign which elected Jackson in 1828, is dead. Congressman Draper writes Chairman Draper, of the Republican state committee, that he will "speak, pray and fight" as long as voice and physical ability last for the election of Blaine.

United States Commissioner Allen has issued a warrant for the arrest of the assistant postmaster at Brooklyn, N. Y., Col. Charles B. Morton who has been missing for several days. The charge is falsification of pay rolls. The amount involved is not thought to be large.

It has been ascertained that the body of John May, the Conshohocken murderer and suicide, was stolen from the grave by two men from Philadelphia, one of whom a medical student. Both have been under arrest to secure the skeleton. The police are on the track.

The Whitall-Tatle, Pa., glass works recently imposed some Belgian workmen, arranging that a certain sum was to be deducted from their wages each month to pay their passage money to Belgium, which had been advanced by the company. Some money was caused to reach the Belgians before they

ATTACKED BY A NEGRO

Thrilling Adventure of Two Girls in a New Jersey Road.

A Desperate Struggle, During Which One of the Girls Belabored Their Assailant with His Own Club. Cool Men Prevent Lynching.

STEWARTSVILLE, N. J., July 25.—John Donnelly, a brutal negro 17 years old, who lives at Phillipsburg, where he enjoys a very unsavory reputation, waylaid two little girls near this village early yesterday morning, and attempted to assault one of them. Donnelly has been implicated in various before now, but has managed to keep out of prison.

The girls are the children of Robert K. Barber, a well-to-do farmer who lives about two miles to the west of Stewartsville, and of William M. Hulshizer, respectively. They were coming to the village on a visit to Miss Barber's grandmother, and had left the main road to take a short cut through a lane leading from the Morris canal. There are no houses in the immediate neighborhood of this narrow lane, and pedestrians seldom use it. While the little girls were walking through it Donnelly sprang out from behind a clump of shrubbery and stationed himself in the lane ahead of them, apparently to obstruct their passage. The girls became frightened, but still walked on. Miss Barber was seized by the negro as she reached the spot where he stood, and with a fiendish chuckle he dragged her from the lane into a secluded nook beyond a little ridge that was covered with underbrush. He put one hand over her mouth to prevent her from making an outcry, and his threats to kill her companion if she dared to scream so scared her that for a few moments she kept perfectly still. The scoundrel threw Miss Barber on the ground, but she fought him with almost superhuman energy and at length pushed his hand away from her mouth and cried loudly for help.

Miss Hulshizer now gained courage and screamed at the top of her voice. Moreover she picked up a stout stick which the negro had placed on the ground and beat him with all her strength on the head with it. The blows were so effective that he let Miss Barber go and turned his attention to his lively assailant. She ran away screaming. Donnelly ran away and then Miss Hulshizer joined Miss Barber. The latter was very much frightened but was not seriously hurt.

The girls returned home and told the story of their adventure. An alarm was at once given, and soon the sturdy farmers of the district were scouring the country in all directions in search of the negro. He was captured on the canal boat, and but for the coolness and determination of the orderly members of the party he would have been lynched on the spot. Upon being arraigned before Squire Stewart, Donnelly admitted his guilt. He was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

A Public Reception Unadvisable.

NEWBURYPORT, Mo., July 25.—Lieut. Greely telegraphed Mayor Johnson as follows:

"ST. JOHNS, N. F., 24 July.

"Grateful thanks for kindly intentions. The surgeon thinks a public reception unadvisable on account of physical weakness. Shall most gladly meet quietly all fellow citizens during my prolonged sojourn in Newburyport.

"A. W. GREELY."

Great efforts are now being made to have the Bear steam for Newburyport with Greely on the day of the reception.

The third heat was secured by Gandaner, Lee second. Time—22m. 29½s. The final heat will start at 2.00 p. m. to-morrow, Teemer, Ham, Ten Eyck and Gandaner contesting. The former is the favorite, with Gandaner second.

A Nihilist Plot.

WARSAW, July 25.—The inquiry into the conspiracy to blow up the palace during the czar's visit to Warsaw shows that elaborate and far-reaching plans were adopted. Evidence is adduced to show that the conspirators, after murdering the czar, intended to provoke a rebellion in Poland and Western Russia, to plunder Jews and rich citizens of Warsaw, and to seize the arms in the arsenal.

A Dozen People Injured.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—During a severe storm last evening a dozen people were injured, some of it is feared, fatally, on Huffman's picnic ground at Broad Ripple, ten miles north of the city. About 100 persons had taken refuge under the roof of a dancing place, when a large tree was blown down, crashing in the frail roof. The names of the injured are not yet known.

Arkansas Lynchers Foiled.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 25.—A mob attacked the Sevier county jail to lynch Carr and Thompson, the two Howard county rioters under sentence to be hanged. The jailor rang the church bell and aroused the citizens who surrounded the jail. The mob then tried to kill the prisoners by shooting through the bars of the jail, but were finally driven off.

Across the Isthmus.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 25.—The Isthmus Pacific Railroad company, capital $12,000,000, has been incorporated by William Sharon, of Nevada, and others, to construct a railway across the Isthmus of Panama and operate a steamship line in connection therewith.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most handsome pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stones, door sills and street blocks. Also used for bridges and for other proof roofing, and for building purposes generally. They have pavement blocks in many striking patterns.—They show no perceptible wear, are non conductors, repel air and moisture, and will be all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. They Block can be cut from the Iron Slag and are the hardest of substance. BIRD'S PATENT COAL ELEVATOR.

This machine is now in use in my yard, No. 6 Park avenue. It thoroughly cleans the coal that passes over it. The coal comes down square against the screen, so that the dirt goes straight through. I invite the public to call and see it work. I have the Honeybrook and other first-class coals always on hand. Also Kindling Wood, and A. Michell, Jr.'s, Fertilizers and lawn dressing.

IN THE CONSERVATORY.

[Karl Markle.]

"But we must return! What will they say!
Yes, I know it's awful nice,
In the window here, from the others away,
With a taste now and then of the ice,
And now and then of—no. Oh, you wretch!
It wasn't at all required.
That you should illustrate thus with a sketch
The speech that of course you admired.

"No matter how naughty. There you have spoiled
The classical Grecian knot
In which you like my hair to be coiled,
And I really don't know what
Other mischief you haven't done! You're
Real naughty! You squeeze like a vise!
Why can't you recollect something on trust,
And be more dainty and nice!

"There! I'm ready now. What! just one more!
Oh, aren't you a darling tease!
And love me so!—two, three, four!
There! come now, dearest, please.
I'm almost afraid of the parlor gaze,
What they look at my lips there! I see
The kisses upon them." "No, not there;
But, sweet, in your eyes, maybe!"

A STROKE OF LIGHTNING.

It Visited Bill Nye While Listening to a Concert.

[Denver Opinion.]

Last week we went up to the Coliseum at Minneapolis to hear Theodore Thomas' orchestra, the Wagner tenor and Christine Nilsson. The Coliseum is a large rink just out of Minneapolis on the road between that city and St. Paul. It can seat 4,000 people comfortably, but the management like to wedge 4,500 people in there on a warm day, and then watch the perspiration trickle through the cracks in clapboards on the outside. On the closing afternoon, during the matinee performance, the building was struck by lightning and a bolt knocked out of the Corinthian duplex that surmounts the oblique portcullis on the off side. The reader will see at once the location of the bolt. The lightning struck the flagstaff, ran down the leg of a man who was repairing the electric light, took a chew of his tobacco, turned his boot wrong side out and induced him to change his neck, toyed with a chilblain, wrenched out a soft corn and roguishly put it in his ear, then ran down the electric light wire, a part of it filling an engagement in the Clarendon and the balance following the wire to the depot, where it made double-pointed toothpicks of a pole fifty feet high. All this was done very briefly.

Those who have seen lightning toy with a cottonwood tree know just the child makes a specialty of it at once and in a brief manner. The lightning in this case broke the glass in the skylight, and deposited the broken fragments on a half-dozen parquette chairs that were empty because the speculators who owned them couldn't get but $30 apiece, and were waiting for a man to mortgage his residence and sell a team. He couldn't make the transfer in time for a matinee, so the seats were vacant when the lightning struck.

The immediate and previous fluid then shot outward the auditorium in the direction of the platform, where it nearly frightened to death a large chorus of children. Women fainted, ticket speculators fell $2 on desirable seats, and strong men coughed up a chew. The scene beggared description. I intended to have said that before, but forgot it. Theodore Thomas drew a full breath, and Christine Nilsson pulled her whiskers. Two thousand strong men thought of their wasted lives, and 2,000 women felt for their back hair to see if it was still there. I say, therefore, without successful contradiction, that the scene beggared description.

A World in Pawn.

[Federal Australian.]

The idea of the whole globe being hypothecated by countless millions of debtors to a calculably number of creditors is a very startling one, when it is abruptly and nakedly presented. And it is difficult to imagine so vast an estate in liquidation, or to conjecture a bankruptcy court the creditors would prove their debts, or who would be the official assignees to collect and distribute the assets.

Nevertheless, the fact remains that the whole world is in pawn, and that its balance sheet shows us an aggregate of liabilities which is absolutely appalling. They have been summed up in the Fortnightly Review by Mr. A. J. Wilson, an experienced writer on financial subjects, and the total is the stupendous sum of £4,000,000,000 an amount which, if represented in sovereigns, it would take a man 127 years to count, at the rate of a sovereign a minute, without a moment's cessation from beginning to end.

To defray the interest on this enormous debt requires £200,000,000 per annum, which Mr. Wilson represents to be fully equal to the entire earnings of 5,000,000 adults; and "did each individual in those 5,000,000 support a family of three persons only beside himself, his fellow citizens would have to supply the absorption of the entire support of a population equal to that of the United Kingdom."

Of course, a calculation of this kind takes no account of the debts owing by municipalities, counties, cities, railway, canal, gas, water, fisheries and other public companies. But these are all of small account by comparisons, for the capital sunk in railways alone is 4,000,000,000, and this is of course a debt owing by you, and shareholders, while the local debts—state and city—in the United States amount to £775,000,000. The mother country is the greatest pawnbroker in the world, and draws £200,000,000 per annum from the nations and colonies indebted to her.

Mr. Wilson is of opinion that the time has arrived when a stop should be put to this system of mortgage, and the future to meet the requirements of the present, and when England, more particularly, should begin to extinguish her existing liabilities. But his advice is not likely to attract much attention. Nations are just as improvident as individuals, and not one of them has ever been deterred from rushing into a war of ambition or aggrandizement by a consideration of the burdens it was entailing on posterity; and the United States is the only one which has taken prompt measures to extricate itself from a national debt.

His Masterpiece.

[Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.]

A friend of mine who knows Joaquin Miller gave me a funny description of how he used to go rolling with him in Washington. That was before Joaquin cut his hair and then he carried it all carefully fixed up with hairpins. They would reach the house and ring the bell. If the lady went out they would go away. If she were at home Joaquin would take off his hat, carefully take out the hairpins, let the hirsute mane fall over his shoulders, march into the drawing-room with the poetic stride of Walter of Nicaragua.

This Latest Kink Case.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The Hon. Clingstone Piper, of the committee on technicality, submitted a unanimous report, in which it was unanimously decided that the cool weather and high winds during the first half of June were mainly owing to the unstable equilibrium of the earth. The committee would do its best to rest on the globe to its balance, and the suggestion was made that every colored person in the country move his cook stove to the north side of the house.

A Good Time.

[Philadelphia Call.]

Little Jack—Ah, ha! I went to a picnic yesterday, and you didn't.

Little Dick—"I don't care; I went on an excursion."

Little Jack—"I'll bet you didn't have as good a time as I had."

Little Dick—"I'll bet I did. We was way off to the seashore, and had dead loads of fun."

Little Jack—"Pooh! that's no fun. Why, I had so much ice cream and cake that they had to get the doctor three times last night."

It Sweeps the Floor.

A Story Without Words.

[Life.]

A Marvel of Oratory.

[Chicago Rambler.]

Rising in his place, a prominent delegate, who is also a candidate for the presidency, was applauded to the echo.

When the uproar had subsided, he said:

"I would suggest—(cheers).

"I would suggest—(cheers and applause).

"That the—(renewed applause).

"That the wise—(repeated storm of applause).

"That the windows be opened."

A Constitutional Flaw.

[Washington Hatchet.]

A southern statesman, who was trying to push his claim through congress failed because his proposition was unconstitutional. Meeting a friend he said:

"Well, Bill, I failed in that little matter."

"How was that?"

"On account of a blasted flaw in the constitution," was the reply.

WORK OR PLAY.

[Robert Jones.]

The hands are such dear hands
They are so full; they turn at our demands
So often; they reach out,
With trifles merely thoughtful about,
So many times; they do
So many things for me, for you—
If their fine feel will but remain
We may well bear, not break.

They are such fond, frail lips
That speak to us. Pray, if love strips
Them of discreet, many times,
Or if they speak too slow or quick, such crimes
We may pass by; for we may see
Days not far off when these small words may be Held not as slow, or quick, or out of place,
but dear,
Because the lips are no more here.

They are such dear, familiar feet that go
Along the path with ours—fast feet or slow,
And trying to keep pace—if they mistake
Or tread upon some flower that we would take
Upon our breast, or brains some reed,
Or crush poor Hope until it bleed,
We can excuse.
Not turning quickly to impute
Grave fault; but they and we
Have such a little way to go—can be Together such a little while along the way,
We will be patient while we may.

So many little faults we find.
We use them; but if you and I
Perhaps remember them some by-and-by,
They will not be
Faults then—grave faults—to you and me,
But just odd ways—mistakes, or even lies—
Reasonless to them.
Days change so many things—yes, hours.
We see so differently at noon and sunset.
Mistaken words to-night
May be so cherished by to-morrow's light.
We may be patient for we know
There's such a little way to go.

THE STORY OF "OLD FORTY."

The Peculiarities of an Old Captain—Odd Incidents.

[Boston Globe.]

His name was Capt. Ralph Devereux, but everybody called him "Old Forty." The reason for this was that he was always using this numeral in describing any event that occurred. It was cold as "forty" and as hot as "forty;" there were "forty" boys came out of the school-house and fired snowballs at his old horse, the wind blowed like "forty," his cowhide boots pinched like "forty," and he had "forty" pains in his old rheumatic back when he got up in the morning. Nobody around Prospect called him anything else, and at last all his enimeis, from a stubtailed dog to a one-eyed hen in the old man's watch eye received the same title. One day a few young lads hired this horse to go to an evening party. The sum charged was $3, and the boys went around to the country stores and bought up all the old-fashioned coppers they could find. They succeeded in getting 300 at last and sewed them up in bags of forty each and paid the bill to the old man in payment. He took the money, but said he wouldn't let his horse again for "forty" years. His friends tried to break him of his habit and received only an air of derision, but they had no effect. One night he attended the distribution of presents from a Christmas tree. The only book he received was an illustrated copy of "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves."

"I don't see what they wanted to give me that for," he mused. "I've got as many as forty books at home now."

He went to town meeting one rainy day and caught a cold which terminated in pneumonia. After several days he lay delirious, tossing and moaning and calling for water all the time. When his right hand had filled up solid, and but a small space was left in the oaken case, his fever abated a little and he recognized those around the bed.

"Here, father, take this medicine," said his daughter, "the doctor has ordered it and I know it will do you good."

Throwing his hand out on the bed with an impatient gesture, he looked up and said:

"Go away, child, and don't bother me. Forty doctors couldn't help me now."

He died that night and forty carriages followed him to the grave.

Running Over a Little Girl.

[Chicago Herald.]

"Did you ever run over anybody?" asked a young man who was describing a cigarette of the driver of a North Clark street car.

The driver turned round, looked at the youth a minute, hitched up his trousers, and replied:

"Yes, I run'd over a girl once. I was just coming over the bridge, and the street was pretty slick with horses' feet, and I had a big load on, and I was a-holding the brake tight coming down the grade. Pretty soon the policeman on the corner gave me a clear track, and I loosed the brake and let her go a-slide. Just as she got to going a little girl with a big bag on her back, one of them rag-pickers, jumped out from behind a loaded truck just in time to get struck by my horses. It was all done in a second. I couldn't stop 'em any way, and if I could I don't know what I didn't have the strength. I felt the car rise up twice as the two wheels on one side went over her, and it made me sick. I can tell you, 'twas a horrible sight. I thought she was myself. The officer stopped the car by grabbing the horses and everybody in the car began to holler. I never dared look back at that awful sight but just hauling to another car that came running up I says: 'Take me right in. I don't want to stay here.' 'What for?' says he. 'For killing the girl,' says I. 'Look at her,' says he. I turned around slow, and there she was a-picking up her bag of paper and rags. She wasn't hurt a bit. The wheels struck the bag, and it broke and rolled under the trucks somehow—because she was so thin, I guess. That's the only time I ever run'd over any one."

The Bostonian.

[Cor. Philadelphia Times.]

The very tone of a Bostonian's voice has a gentle, dog-eared curve, so to speak, that suggests frequent handling, a mellow turning of tones, a readiness to go on or turn back until the question is made quite clear to us. There is a detailed touch in the voice that answers and questions us, that seems to fold about its words in a kind of patient, loving unfurrowed way, and the accent of the speaker in the listener in a subtle encouragement to the ideal value to be somewhere placed upon himself. The Bostonian listens as well as he talks. His interrogation is perfectly sincere. He means you should bring your facts and theories to the front. If he sounds the "personal note" in things, it is to give his own cut with quite as beneficent impartiality.

An Impromptu Repartee.

[Karl Pretzel's Weekly.]

"Well, my son," said a disgusted old gentleman to a young man, "I understand you are a journalist now. In what department, may I ask?"

"In the literature department."

"Ah, that is good. I suppose," continued the old gentleman, "that you select the literature matter from the different exchanges."

"No sir, there is some one else engaged for that business. My duties are to clip off yours."

"Oh, ah hem. Good day, my son."

Signal Office Predictions—Local showers and partly cloudy weather, variable winds, stationary temperature.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

New York admitted 1788.

Locals.

—The barn of August Frantz of Fanwood was burned recently.

—Mr. Harry Campbell while out gunning a few days ago shot a blue heron measuring five feet, six inches from tip to tip.

—It is said that the Prohibitionists in this county will soon organize, and that a county convention will be held next month.

—The Democrats of Bound Brook are raising funds for a campaign banner. The amount subscribed has reached $75.

—Rev. A. H. Lewis, D.D., of this city, has consented to deliver an address before the Convention of Reform Clubs at Bound Brook, on Tuesday evening.

—The National Democrat of Rahway characterizes Judge Wakworth's speech at a recent ratification meeting there as "brief, earnest and inspiring."

—Mayor Maxson has returned from the Pittsburg Convention. He reports having a fine time, and that the spirit shown by the delegates meant business.

—Lilienstern has fitted up his handsome show windows, showing suits for men and boys of all the latest styles and at prices that make the articles very tempting.

—The next excursion to Ocean Grove will be that of the Park Avenue Baptists next Wednesday. The Scotch Plains Baptists unite with them on this occasion.

—The Rev. Wm. A. Gay, of Tonawanda, N. Y., has accepted a call to the First Presbyterian Church of Rahway, and will enter upon his duties about September 1.

—The Board of Education have taken advantage of the supply of crushed stone which can now be obtained, to have the boy's yard of the High School filled in with the same.

—Rev. James F. Riggs, of Cranford, has refused the Professorship of Greek in Marriott College, Ohio, and accepted the call recently extended to him to the Bergen Point Reformed Church.

—The shell of a large turtle is on exhibition at the corner of Park and North Avenues. It was found on Mr. Elliott's place in Dunellen on July 10, and the shell measures several feet each way.

—Under a law passed last Winter county Fish Wardens are empowered to enforce the game laws on Sunday, from July 1st to December 1st, and the freeholders are to pay $3 per day for their services.

—A large crowd assembled at the depot last evening to welcome home the excursionists from Ocean Grove. Various reports of the day were given. Some said it rained too much, others that the "mist" was perfectly delightful.

—The Evening News of Plainfield has found its way to our office for a few days past. It is a neat paper of twenty-four columns, well filled with reading matter, with a crisp and spicy local page.—Rahway National Democrat.

—Dr. Parsons yesterday extracted an abscessed tooth from the jaw of a horse belonging to Mr. Andrew Love, the owner. The operation was a very long one, and the tooth was three inches long, an inch wide, and weighed two and a half ounces.

—We have just received from R. Hoe & Co., of New York and London, the great printing press builders, a handsome colored lithograph showing the Representative London Journalists," and inclosures of their respective publications. The picture is on a sheet 22x28. We highly appreciate their kindness.

—The New York Sun this morning devotes half a column to a review of the temperance situation in this city. It contains the usual number of errors which the New York papers make when speaking of New Jersey affairs. Prominent among these errors is the statement that Mr. John H. French is the proprietor of the billiard saloon opposite his place of business.

—Compton, Dixon and Tier have been about a quarter of a century in the ice cream business, and Mr. Compton has been out long enough to win the confidence of his equally numerous patrons. Brooklyn seems to be afflicted with a lot of novices in the line, and the consequence is that their ignorance is getting them into trouble, which will only result in making people more careful to buy only of dealers with established reputations. We understand that one concern in Brooklyn had a clerk named Dixon go into partnership with them that might call their product Dixon's Ice Cream and thereby mislead the public.

Samuel Perch, Jr., of Williamstown a boy 15 years old was killed on Tuesday by the accidental discharge of a gun which he was carrying. Several of the fielding were a few rods. The discharge entered his throat, horribly mutilating his head.

Seaside Poetry and Wit.

As one of our seaside resorts, a number of little girls decided to form a small society all their own, and as they had so much leisure while sitting in the sand, doing naught but gazing out at sea, or at each other, they thought they might employ their time in a novel manner, selecting the pleasant occupation of rhyming. They formed a club of twelve, and bought a prize, to be given to her, who should produce the best line written in twenty minutes from any witty sentence or anecdote which they had in mind. The society succeeded in their lyrical composition, and the prize was awarded to a bright little girl whose nurse had received a telegram from the little girl's big brother that very morning, and she embodied it in her verse as follows:

A modest young husband sent over the wires,
The following message from Misses McMires
(Who was, for years, his nurse)
"Son child's charming. Looks dark as Othello."
The bible was handled with trembling doubt.
The chapter and verse were soon hunted out,
(The verse that frightened her nerves
Is the stirring verse that follows.)
"Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given,"
(The good old nurse, on bended knee, gave thanks to Heaven).

The club of twelve is composed of very intelligent and talented little women. After the prize, a new rhyming dictionary, was presented the blushing recipient, her very sage reasonings quite awed her companions but one of them replied—"Well I do not think I care to become a poetess, I would much rather cultivate sweet and obliging manners and acquire an entertaining conversation, that will make me welcome in all companies. If I were to become very wise, wises I enter society I should be interesting only to the wise. I heard papa say, "There are times when it is folly to be wise, and times when a little nonsense is very enjoyable and times when wise people ought to be kicked down stairs, and any one who cannot talk and make herself agreeable has not business in society." At this point in the conversation one of the girls asked, "When may a man be said to belong to the vegetable kingdom?" No one could answer this question and she answered, when he has become sage. At this they all shouted, and ran after their sage questioner and the club's meeting was over.

CRESCENT AVE.

False Reports.

The Republicans of North Plainfield are indignant at what they regard as a deliberate perversion of the truth in the report of their meeting set forth in the Plainfield Democratic weekling, which puts the number of signers to a club organized there 25 per cent. less than the fact, and otherwise disparagingly refers to the meeting in the style of rabid partisan generally, one party paper going to the extreme one way as much as the other goes to the contrary. But the Constitutionalists seems to prefer falsehood to truth generally, as, for instance, its report of the High School Commencement, published and among the audience before the event occurred, a pure fabrication; also its report of the receipts of the Reform Club excursion, about $200 more than the truth, correctly published in THE NEWS a week or so previously. We would suggest that our weekly neighbor, when in want of correct information, stick more closely to the scissors and its clippings from THE NEWS. We go to the fountain head where possible, and endeavor to be reliable and fair to all. If the wrekling sticks to the truth then people will be less likely to object to paying 150 per cent. advance for the NEWS second hand and a week old at that.

The Warren Mission Meeting.

The usual Friday evening temperance meeting was held last evening in the Warren Mission Chapel, on Chatham street, Rev. Horace Powell, President John H. French, of the Reform Club, presided, and the Reform Club Choristers, under the leadership of Mr. Marvin Dunham, led the singing.

The meeting was opened with singing and prayer. The first speaker of the evening was Mr. S. F. Bodwell, who was followed by Street Commissioner George M. Angleman. Peter S. Bergen, the "silver-tongued orator of Somerset," was then introduced, and in a few words made some commendatory remarks concerning the club's president, and spoke earnestly of the temperance cause. Messrs. John H. Bayne, Patrick Flanagan, Horace Martin, Julian Scott, T. W. Burger, E. A. Cole, of the Somerville Club, R. S. Manning, Judge F. P. Good, the Rev. Mr. Honeyman, Judge Wadsworth, and the chairman were the other speakers of the evening. Mr. Marvin Dunham, who had spent the day with Mr. English, brought words of congratulation from that gentlemen to the officers of the club and the people present. Mr. Cole, of the Somerville Club, sang the Drunkard's Dream with good effect. A number of signers to the pledge were secured.

Yesterday's Arrests.

Ellen Sweeney, who was arrested on July 19 for being disorderly and whose sentence was suspended, was this morning given sixty days in the county jail.

Emile Reast was arrested for being drunk and disorderly and was given thirty days in the county jail. He is not a resident of this city.

Luke Malloy, also a non-resident, was given thirty days for being drunk.

James Tracy arrested for drunkenness, was severely reprimanded by Judge Good. It being his first offense he was discharged.

John Sullivan arrested for drunkenness, was reprimanded and discharged. He said he would immediately sign the pledge.

Fire Matters.

Gamble Engine Co., No. 1, have postponed their hook and ladder race Wednesday evening.

Engine Co. No. 2, will give the next water excursion.

The next picnic will be that of Warren Engine Co., No. 3, which is to take place at Woodruff's Grove on Thursday afternoon and evening, July 31st. Good music will be in attendance.

Religious and Temperance Services To-morrow.

The temperance meeting in Berry's Grove will be held as usual at 4:15 p. m. It is under the charge of the Howell Division, Sons of Temperance. Seats are provided.

The Rev. A. H. Tuttle, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will deliver a sermon before the Reform Club in the evening.

The Trinity Reformed and First Presbyterian Churches will worship together, in the morning at the Trinity and in the evening at the First Presbyterian. The Rev. A. V. V. Raymond will have charge of the services for the last time before going on his vacation. After to-morrow, the Rev. Dr. Ketchum will have charge of the union services.

Mr. Robert Graham, Secretary of the Church Temperance Society, will address the congregation of Grace Church in the evening on the work of the Society. The public is cordially invited to attend. Service commences at 7:45.

The Rev. Dr. W. Y. Brown, of New York, will preach in the Netherwood Union Chapel in the morning at eleven o'clock.

Services will be held at the colored camp meeting in Hyde's woods throughout the day. A number of speakers are expected to be present, and the services will be of an interesting character. The camp meeting is held under the auspices of the Macedonia Mission of the African Methodist Protestant Church

Personal.

Mr. E. Melville Evans left for Baltimore on Wednesday.

Mrs. James McGee is at the Ocean Hotel, Asbury Park.

Mr. C. M. Haviland is stopping at the Chalfonte, Ocean Grove.

Miss Baker, of Duer street, North Plainfield, returns to-day from a sojourn at Asbury Park.

Mrs. E. M. Daniels, Miss Grace Daniels, Mr. Edwin M. Daniels and Mr. William Bloodgood and wife are registered at the Coleman House, Asbury Park.

Mr. Clark Evans, one of Plainfield's popular composers, has gone to Warsaw, N. Y., to look after his interest in the salt mines there. He will make a trip West before returning.

Mr. Chas. W. White, son of Mr. J. B. White of this city, and who has been absent since last March on the U. S. School Ship, Saratoga, returned home Thursday. During his absence he visited Lisbon, Madeira Islands and Teneriffe. He has served three years, and secured an honorable discharge. He returns home full of honors and ragged health.

Fraternal Festivities.

Last evening about 40 members of Persevorance Lodge made a fraternal visit to Good Will, No. 103, of Fanwood. They were welcomed by Mr. Gibbs, one of the first Past Chancellors of Perseverance Lodge, and now a shining light of Good Will. After remarks by C. C. Wakefield, Mon-ps. Jones, Lilleuston, Patterson, Chamberlain and others of Perseverance, the members of Perseverance Lodge of Good Will, the duet by Messrs. Martin and Gee accompanied by a guitar and the recitation in Dutch dialect of the "Batter of the Shingle," by Mr. John H. Carney, was well rendered. "Mygel Snyder's Party," by Bro. Duckworth was considered humorous. The reception committee of Good Will escorted the brothers to Mr. Finney's large hall, where refreshments were served. Perseverance returned home in the small hours of the morning with the earnest wish that the day is not far distant when they will have the pleasure of receiving Good Will Lodge as their guests.

State Matters.

The sale of 2,200 acres of land for delinquent taxes advertised to take place at Malga on August 23.

The Reading Railroad Company will pay the New Jersey General Relief promptly and the fine assessed will only be September.

Judge Alfred Reed, at Mays Landing the other day, admitted Constable Glenn of the Pine's Peak Railroad cacatrophie notoriety, to bail in the sum of $6,000.

It is claimed that the Camden water supply is being polluted by the dumping of mud dredged from the Smith's Island bar upon the Jersey shore, near the Pavonia Water Works.

James Devlin, of Philadelphia, was drowned last evening in the Delaware River at Camden, while bathing. He said to have been an excellent swimmer, and to have drowned in shallow water with several others near him.

At Atlantic City a serious row occurred recently in which Councilman George S. Jones was seriously and probably fatally injured. Some parties from Millville engaged in a row and Jones endeavored to quell the disturbance, when he was jumped on by Hicked and cut. Other reports was also some what injured. Mayor Maxwell summoned a posse of men and arrested eleven of the participants.

"Ma," said a Somerville girl, with a weary air, as she listlessly moved her needle, "don't think I will knit any more on this stocking, as pearl; I am sick."

"Yes, just knit away, Kate," replied the mother, with a groan, "you will as lief as lead the stocking. There is the whole household, I want you to understand, and the yarn and coin required to complete it."—Journal.

The Expenses of Counties.

There has been published in a number of papers in this State a comparison of the expenses of a few of the counties.

From the last report of the Comptroller of the treasury, dated Nov. 1, 1883, the following facts are found respecting Union county's rank:

The current expenses of Union county require one dollar and fifty-nine cents per capita.

Eight counties require less, and in the order named: Ocean, Salem, Gloucester, Middlesex, Hunterdon, Passaic, Atlantic and Cape May.

Six counties require more in the order named: Hudson, Somerset, Essex, Mercer, Bergen and Morris.

Thirty-six cents (.36) on the hundred dollars valuation in Union County pays the current expenses.

Eight counties require a less percentage and in order named: Salem, Gloucester, Ocean, Hunterdon, Somerset, Essex, Passaic and Hudson.

Six counties require more, as follows: Mercer, Cape May, Middlesex, Bergen, Atlantic and Morris.

Six counties have made no statement to the comptroller, upon which calculation can be based.

The above only applies to the year named: Salem the lowest and Morris the highest. No doubt the location of the various counties, the requirements, habits and methods of the people have much to do with the cost of governing them, and it would require one pretty well versed in county affairs to explain why this or that county should justly and fairly cost more or less than another, but unquestionably such is a fact.

A bottle made in the year 1794 was plowed up one day last week on the farm of Joseph Busby, at Rancocas. It bore the King's stamp.

TO ASTONISH THE IRISH.

A Novel Theory Regarding the Presidential Campaign.

LONDON, July 25.—A novel theory regarding the Presidential campaign in the United States is announced in the current number of The Whitehall Review. The impeccable authority states that it has been intimated by an American gentleman, who is a veteran in Republican politics, and an intimate friend of Mr. Blaine, that the latter's apparent antipathy to England is purely an election dodge to attract Irish-American votes. The Review's informant added that Mr. Blaine intends, if elected, to astonish the Irish by proving to be the most determined and formidable opponent of the tyrannic plotters who have ever occupied the Presidential chair. The Review admits that this may look like an effort on the part of Blaine to "run with the hare and hunt with the hounds" by inspiring his henchmen at home with sentiments to catch the Irish vote while prompting his friends abroad to give such hints as will allay Irish apprehensions. Still The Review thinks much allowance must be made for the tortuous methods of American political celebrity, and the fact remains that all of Mr. Blaine's political actions, while he was secretary of state, were such as to betoken a very complaisant friendship for England even while there was ringing in his ears an Irish howl that he should bestir himself for the release of naturalized Irishmen arrested on suspicion of murder and other crimes.

To-day's number of The Saturday Review will contain a long article discussing the tariff planks in the Republican and Democratic platforms. It is profoundly dissatisfied with both, but for widely diverse reasons. It says that the Republican tariff platform is bad in logic and in tendencies it is at least bold and uncompromising, so that the Republicans may claim the questionable merit of being consistent in their wrong. The Democratic platform, on the contrary, has an uncertain sound, and its framers seem to have shrank from the proclamation of principles which they evidently believe to be unpopular.

Transportation of American Cattle.

LONDON, July 26.—Lord Carlingford, Lord Privy Seal, in answer to a deputation who waited on him yesterday for the purpose of urging that the government allow the importation of healthy American cattle from Wyoming Territory through Canada, said that the privy council could not recede from the position they had taken in regard to the matter without compelling the withdrawal of the Canadian government in the premises, as they had no reason to believe that Canada was willing to allow American cattle to pass through her territory en route to England.

The deputation then produced a letter from the Marquis of Lorne, in which he said he had positive information to the effect that the Canadian officials were willing to grant shipping facilities to American cattle, and favored the scheme advanced by the deputation. Lord Carlingford thereupon took the matter under consideration.

It is believed that the government will accede to the wishes of the deputation, who strongly urged the necessity for such a measure, stating that the farmers of England wanted American cattle and that the laws of America were sufficiently strict to prevent the introduction of cattle disease into England.

A Running Fight Between Medicine and Cattle Men in Colorado.

DENVER, Col., July 26.—Durango is greatly excited over the arrival of Red Jacket with forty warriors, highly painted and heavily armed. The city marshal arrested one Indian for creating a disturbance and carrying firearms, when he was knocked down by other Indians. The Indians then mounted their horses and started to leave the town. Several citizens and cattle men gave chase, and a running fight was kept up for two miles, when the Indians succeeded in getting out of range. Some twenty shots were fired by both sides. No one was injured so far as known. Citizens have asked for troops to keep the Indians on the reservation and away from town. The cattle men of Southern California are very indignant over late losses of cattle and horses and the burning of their camping outfits. There will be a general war between them and the Indians unless something is speedily done to protect their interests from thieving bands of Utes.

War Among Coal Men.

BUFFALO, July 26.—The Western Anthracite Coal Association is now engaged in waging war on the local anthracite jobbers to compel them to stop cutting rates. Thomas Loomis & Co. secured the contract to supply the schools at a price far below the circular rates. J. Langdon & Co., who had a supply contract with Loomis & Co. for 50,000 tons, have been served by the association not to supply that firm with coal. Loomis & Co. have now brought suit against Langdon & Co. for breaking their contract, and have also asked to bring action for conspiracy against individual miners and shippers of the association.

Seeing His Way Out.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Julius Holweis, a native of Germany, 45 years of age, committed suicide at No. 118 Norfolk street, by shooting himself in the head. The deceased had arranged a number of wires and strings in his room which he attached to a revolver and standing before a mirror he pulled one of the strings and the charge from the revolver entered his brain, causing almost instant death.

The Wooden Nutmeg in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 26.—The transactions between commercial houses here and others in the United States have been increasing very rapidly of late, but complaints begin to be heard from the merchants here that they are constantly victimized by American commercial drummers, goods received from the United States being very inferior to the samples from which they ordered.

Tremor Second in the Race.

CALLAO, Me., July 26.—Conley won the decisive heat in the regatta yesterday; Tremor second, Gautchay third, Hammer fourth. Time, 2.25¾; which is slower than that of anyheat of Thursday. Ten Eyck won the consolation race; Lee second, Hamm third.

Prayer and Suicide.

ERIE, Pa., July 26.—A rowboat was hired yesterday by a well-dressed man, a stranger, who immediately rowed out to the middle of the harbor. He then took off his coat, knelt down in the attitude of prayer for a short time and then rose and plunged into the lake. His body has not been found.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, July 25.—There were 235 failures reported to Bradstreet's during the week, against 211 in the preceding week, and 168, 122 and 78 in the corresponding weeks of 1885, 1883 and 1881, respectively.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, being of stone, fine tiling and street blocks. Also used to build fences and for gutter paving, and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities—They have no perishable parts—are non conductors; repel ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. When dampness communicates to the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. These Blocks are cast from the molten iron ore, and are the latest of substances for pavements on exhibition at Warner's Fancy Store, opposite Stillman Music Hall. WOMAN AND HOME.

Devotion for Housewives, Fair Maidens and Sober Matrons.

Spirit Health—Bismarck's Wife—On the Veranda—Clara Belle's Letter—The Boston Cooking School.

[Boston Courier.]

Mrs. Lincoln, of the Boston cooking school, has just issued a volume of her recipes, in the preface to which she remarks that the reader may consider her unnecessarily minute in her directions, but that her experience has taught her that no detail is small enough to be left unmentioned, and we might well add, that it is not safe to take even the possession of common sense for granted. This may sound a trifle severe, yet it would probably be agreed to by anybody who should take the trouble to visit the cooking school and sit for an hour listening to Mrs. Lincoln lecture and to the stupid and inane questions asked by well-dressed and apparently intelligent women.

It chanced that one afternoon some wooden spoons, such as Mrs. Lincoln uses, had been ordered by her for various ladies who had wished to buy them. The spoons were distributed to their various purchasers, and a moment of silent examination followed. Then a lady inquired in a distrustful and pleading voice:

"Mrs. Lincoln, could-er-I use my spoon to-er stir frosting?"

Mrs. Lincoln kindly gave her the required permission, and she relapsed into contented silence.

Another pupil was much excited by the fact that when it was desirable to increase the heat in the gas range the jets in the chandelier were lowered.

"Why," demanded the bewildered female in an awestruck tone, "why does she have to fry her croquettes in the dark?"

She evidently thought the frying of croquettes to be a religious rite which demanded a dim and mystic light for its proper pursuance.

Yet another intelligent question—but this was in the old days of Miss Parloa—propounded this conundrum with all the gravity which befitted its weight.

"Miss Parloa, my family is so large that one loaf of angel cake is not enough; now, if I want to make two loaves, must I double the quantity of materials?"

These examples are not given as examples of ignorance of cookery, because that, of course, is entirely excusable in anybody who is not obliged to cook, but it is the lack of ordinary common sense which is so remarkable in women of at least ordinary intelligence and good education.

Bismarck's Wife.

[Berlin Cor. London News.]

It is a pleasant change to turn from the turbulent public life of the chancellor and see him in his own home, surrounded by friends to whom he is nailed by ties of sympathy and love. There, before all, is the companion of his life—the woman who has stood by his side for more than thirty years, and who has ever proved a loving wife. The princess has been brought up religiously, her taste is a bright, lively nature, gifted with a goodly portion of natural wit, with fine taste and feelings. Very musical and a splendid player of it the same time a careful, sensible housewife, and after the manner of noble ladies of former days, she is said to have some knowledge of medicine.

With grandchildren she has now united for her husband a home full of comfort and genial warmth, and intelligently shared for years his griefs and hopes, sometimes, even, as is evident from some passages in Bismarck's letters to her (reprinted by Hesekiel), to a certain measure in political questions, although, as a rule, she does not belong to the class of women who take part in politics. Her correspondence with him when official duties or pleasure trips separated them geographically, was very lively and affectionate. He calls her "My heart," "My dearest heart," in his letters. He sends her jasmine from Pierhof, blooming heather from Dorbrunn and presents to many of the princess from Gastein, where, on the sixteenth anniversary of their wedding-day, he remembers that this day "had brought her into his bachelor life." On a political mission, he writes to her from Olmsburg castle: "Good night from the far distance."

Spirit Health.

[Mrs. M. F. Butts in Physiological Journal.]

"The salvation of the world is by loving in the health of the spiritual nature.'" Mr. Walsh read the sentence again. "I know that is true," she said, "though I never saw it put in just that way."

"That is just what I meant when I said I could not afford to be 'cross.' It makes me sick," said Mrs. Grosbeak.

"Well, that is going a little too far," said Mrs. Walsh. "I can not say that it makes me sick to lose my temper."

"Ultimately it does, as all sick who stand in the center of a network of delicate relations. For instance, I am vexed beyond endurance at a servant's carelessness. I speak to her kindly, but the emotion in spite of me is vexed. An antagonism is created which isolates us each from the other. The currents of kindness are forced back, and for us we two are concerned. Under the unnatural pressure I am hard and cold to a degree. The children meet my look and shrink from it. I have no sweet word for baby, who comes to me shy, laughing and rosy from her play, for a moment's sympathy, a gay word and a kiss. In such an atmosphere the children begin to quarrel with each other. There are reprimands, and perhaps a shake of some child's naughty shoulders or a light slap on a little cheek. Work is dreary, and every thing goes wrong. A garment I am making or mending seems to get wrong. Life is so hard at once! I go on getting more and more tired, and by night I am sick, and my husband comes home to a disorganized household."

On the Veranda.

[N. Y. Cor. New Orleans Times-Democrat.]

"She was gauzy as to gown, picturesque as to pose and probably fair as to face. I do not commit myself fully on the latter point; for the reason that I pay small heed to any man's dislike or being fooled by 'other sex.' The couch on which this girl lay was swinging between two posts of a veranda, and distant from the water's edge not more than a dozen row lengths. Mosquitoes are abundant in that part of the world, and are of the famous Jersey breed, from across the Hudson. Wooden and slaves are ordinarily netted against these insects. But this veranda was the first one that I had seen inclosed on its three exposed sides with wire gauze.

You may have noticed that on the theatrical stage, when the manager desires to make a tableau of women spiritual, angelic, superhuman in loveliness, correspondingly when the material with which he has to deal is of the earthly, dowdy, 50-cents-and-find-your-own-tights quality, he hangs a sheet between you and them, so that they may be veiled, so to express it, before they get in your eyes. Now this belle of the veranda, refined by the same process of liberation, became a highly bewitching picture. Amongst, it was outlined by the sheen, and the rays from a red-shaded gas-jet shone from a window right on her face. All that many ladies have accomplished and by chance, but we live in an age of deception, and I expect to see a great deal of such happy environments for the fashionable summer girls, now that it has come into vogue.

How Girls May Please.

[Philadelphia Call.]

How can the plain be charming? Well, true self-forgetfulness and kind thoughtfulness for the happiness of others is always winning. The vain, selfish beauty can not compete with the homely maiden who is popular because she is so very lovable. Her father confides in her. Her mother leans on her. Her friends go to her for help and advice. The little girls bring her their broken toys and the boys come for aid when the lessons are hard. She is spoken of everywhere as "the interesting Miss Parker," or "the agreeable Miss Dumont," or "the captivating Miss Mark." She has grown interesting, agreeable, and captivating, and each quality is far more valuable to a woman than the possession of mere beauty without other winning personal characteristics.

The power to converse well is a very great charm. You think anybody can talk? How mistaken you are! Anybody can chatter. Anybody can exchange idle gossip. Anybody can recapitulate the troubles of the kitchen, the cost of the last new dress, and the probable doings of the neighbors. But to talk wisely, wittily, instructively, freshly, is an immense accomplishment. It implies exertion, observation, study of books and of people, and creativity of impression. No young girl can hope to shine in conversation as her mother does, but every girl can begin to acquire that graceful art which will draw intelligent men and women to her side and enable her to retain them, because they are pleasantly entertained.

At Our Honest Meet.

[Clara Belle's Letter.]

Take my expert or concoctions word for it, you man or two have unwarrantably slipped in among the women, for whom these fashion letters are exclusively written; believe me, I repeat, that you are just now getting the fashionable girl in as nearly a normal aspect as she is ever likely to show herself in. What I mean to say is that she is less distorted and falsified than at any time within my memory, and there's no good reason to presume that she is permanently reformed. Scan her from head to foot. Don't you see that where nearly bald, there is no other hair than her own on her head? Don't you see that her chest has lines which do not greatly tax your credulity, for some years to come, the services of equestre or bulgation? Don't you appreciate the skirts that neither hide her possession of limbs entirely nor obtrude them immodestly upon your vision? Don't you note on her hands, which are gloved so easily that they can clasp your own with seductive, sympathetic grip; and her feet, which are not much bigger than her shoes, and therefore do not excite your pity? Oh, you are getting us at our honest best this season. Those girls who are away where there is no medium standard in bustle are not at this time doing much to themselves in the way of deceptive appliances, and it happens that the fashions are reasonable and simple, so far as dresses are concerned. Midsummer madness may lead us into absurdities, but we start out for the resorts in a condition of admirable sanity.

Worldly Wisdom.

[New York Cor. Inter Ocean.]

A worldly woman whose name is known in the cause of woman suffrage, said to me on this phase of the servant girl question: "You asked me why I discharged my cook. I should think you'd have had to find you how far above her work she was in intelligence. She was precisely what I wanted, with one vital exception. She was pretty. You must have noticed that. I am sure my son did. I would gladly have kept her as a servant, but I didn't want her for a daughter-in-law. See the trouble we have to find a kind of thing in the Rhinelander family. They thought their waitress was a jewel. So did the son. Caste is very un-American, but it will survive the sensible domestic test."

The fact is, that waitresses and housemaids are thrown so constantly into close relationship with their employers that, if apt at acquisitive politeness, they are able to turn into ladies when occasion offers. I don't see how this difficulty is going to be obviated.

Rustic Ornament.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

Go into the woods and cut three straight branches exactly the same length, about three feet and a half long and three-fourths of an inch in diameter. Cut off the branches to within an inch of the body of each. Let them get perfectly dry, and then if the bark is not smooth, scrape it off. Fasten them together about a foot from the top. Then gild them all over, or if you prefer it, paint them green or mahogany. Then you have a rustic and pretty basket, and inside that a bowl that will just fit it. This may be kept full of cut flowers and vines, or instead of the bowl, a saucer and pot of growing ferns and vines may be put into the basket. If necessary, the basket may be steadied by putting a bright ribbon through and tying them to the three standards. A gilt chain may be wound around where these are fastened together. The result is a pretty ornament with but little expense.

An English Girl's Ambition.

[London Letter.]

But there is one thing which the English girl keeps incessantly in view—a good marriage. She is educated to that end. She views with unscrupulous apostacy, and she hunts down her quarry with relentless persistence. To propitiate the owner of a coronet or millions, she abjures what she has deified, condemns herself to pursuits she abhors, changes her political opinions, if she had any, or adopts those which she has not had before, and spontaneity; wears nothing but primitive roses or scoffs at them, adores the country or worships the town, extols the army & exalts the law, dotes on the boys or loves the girls—none but middle-aged men. Disappointments do not rebuke her; failures spur her on to fresh efforts, and when at last the goal is reached she is unconsciously despicable into the British matron.

For Young Working Women.

[Inter Ocean.]

A "Girls' Union" has been organized in San Francisco for the benefit of young working women away from their families, and for those who, through sickness or enforced idleness, may need some timely assistance. A building is soon to be secured in which rooms will be sub-let to lady girls, and the dining-room and parlor opened to members who wish to obtain meals at a moderate cost or spend their evenings in reading or music.

Rankin Was Mistaken.

"For more than twenty-five years of my life," said John Rankin, "I would not believe but women could paint pictures. But I was wrong in that established conviction. Women can paint. I am quite enlightened, convinced, by ideas entirely overthrown by Mrs. Butler's 'Waterloo.' I have found her to be a great artist and have the profound admiration for her that I have for many others. I have had several women artists, all distinguished in their different ways—Miss Alexander, Miss Greenaway, Miss Alexander and Miss Tyndale."

A Young Chicken Out of an Old One.

Parboil the chicken, and when the wing—the toughest part of any fowl—can be pierced with a broom-splint without effort take it out of the kettle, drain it well and cut in pieces as for a fricassee. Put one pint of cream into a large frying-pan; let it become heated, then lay the chicken into the pan. Let it cook in the cream until it is all of a rich brown; then pour the cream out into a small sauce-pan, put a lump of butter in with the chicken; after it melts, turn the chicken over, so that it will be browned alike on both sides. Thicken the cream with a little flour, and serve as gravy in a boat; or, after putting the chicken on a platter, pour the cream over it.

Grind Your Own Pepper.

[Tinsley's Magazine.]

Use the cheap Swiss or French table-mills for grinding pepper as you require it, and so get it fresh. I have used nothing else at home for a quarter of a century, all pepper-casters in my house being shelved. But then, indeed, we consume but little pepper, employing it chiefly as a zest for mackerel, strawberries and cream, and exchanging the pretty, screw, to make the grains large and coarse; pepper is an aromatic spice, suitable, as in Arabia, to cream tarts. The high-bred abomination of the consistency of Welsh snuff, which the cold Briton shakes copiously into his soup—thinking, but not being by any means sure, that he likes it—should be discountenanced.

To Make Tea.

[Dr. J. B. Rich.]

Nothing is more abused in this world than Heaven's gift of tea. To make tea, you need two tea-pots. Fill one with boiling water; place the proper quantity of tea in the empty pot, pour boiling water into it; let it stand three, four or five minutes, till the palatable elements of the tea leaves are extracted, and not long enough to absorb the tannin and offensive oils; then empty the first tea-pot and pour the tea from the second into the first. Never let the tea, after it is made, remain on the leaves.

At the Dinner-Table.

The attempts to introduce too much color in dinner-table decorations are declining. The finest white damask still holds the preference, and the center piece of plush or velvet under lace is little used now. Fewer flowers, too, are seen, and those in low forms. The latest fashion in ice cream plates is the Bohemian glass, in dark colors, with gold medallions. Menu cards, hand painted, hold the preference, but many are seen on tinted cardboard, with engraved vignette in one corner and the date in the other.

A Puzzle to Artists.

[Boston Advertiser.]

Artists are this summer puzzling over the reasons for the introduction of the fashionable shade of red known as cupidon, or poppy color. It is becoming to no human complexion, harmonizes with nothing, "screams" in every combination into which fashion has introduced it, and sets every canon of taste at defiance. Still it is the fashionable favorite, and everybody wears it, from the darkest brunette to the most golden of blondes.

Making a Convert.

[Rev. Mr. Quayle in Epworth.]

When reasons of hygiene do not absolutely forbid, I like to see the man next the door, coming home from a day's work, rise promptly to the occasion, and offer a seat to a lady, and then I like to see her as promptly and sweetly refuse to take it. She who does this has covered a multitude of sins, and made a convert to the doctrine of woman suffrage.

Looking Development.

[Ida Harper in Terre Haute Mail.]

The woman who has always been carefully protected, whose life has always been bright and free from care, may be very sweet and lovable, but she lacks character. Gold in its primitive state may be pure and precious, but its real value and beauty are developed by the crucible, the hammer, and the sharpness of the graver's tools.

A House of Refuge.

[Chicago Journal.]

When a Mormon wife renounces the authority of her husband, she is at once deprived of all means of earning a livelihood. To counteract the effect of such a ruling it is now seriously proposed to establish in Salt Lake City a house of refuge for all the women who may be brave enough to defy polygamic doctrines.

The Terrible Strain.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Closeness and constancy of intercourse is so severe a test that complete sympathy is a white blackbird. This it is which rends in twain many a fair bond of couple who might love passionately for six months would hate one another at the end of six years.

Novel Flower Baskets.

Pretty little baskets for sending flowers by post are the latest novelty in the shape of fashionable circles. They fasten with a padlock, and the sender and receiver can keep a key.

Dinner Decorations.

Dinner cards decorated with verses of poetry, maxims, conundrums, etc., are very interesting, and furnish the guests something to talk about.

Christian Union: Women love to transfigure themselves with millinery, and men love to have them do so. It is the silliest man's part to convert women to aesthetic uses.

Philadelphia Ledger: In the domain of affection, if not of reason, there must be absolute liberty. The slightest tyranny even that of expectation, is fatal to the life of love.

Coffee-cups become smaller and smaller for "after-dinner service." The newest size is a trifle larger than the fat woman's thimble.

Plush lamp-mats with brass corners are among the novelties of the season. They are especially pretty for brass lamps.

Stemless pansies strewn regularly over the cloth at the dinner table are attractive and look pretty.

Everybody who is anybody uses but the palest note paper and envelopes now.

Matting makes a handsome dado for a dining or sitting room.

Pale blue is a pleasing color for bed-rooms.

One of the Very "Stars" Man.

[Merchant Traveler.]

"The smartest man I have seen in all my practice," said a druggist, "is a traveling man in the west and. I called on him for ten years, furnishing medicine and everything, and never could collect a cent, and the other day he sent a great big basketful of bottles to my office and wanted me to buy them."

"Well, what harm was there in that?" asked his companion.

"Oh, none to speak of; only the bottles were the same ones I had been furnishing him with for the ten years I attended him."

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Robespierre was beheaded in 1794.

Locals.

—Mayor Maxson and Judge Good made addresses last evening at a temperance meeting in Cranford. Mr. C. De La Montanye was also present with them.

—A dog was shot on North avenue Saturday evening. He was seen rolling over in the dirt, and it was thought he was mad. There are some who say he was not.

—The Crescents were defeated in the game with the Jerseys at Jersey City on Saturday afternoon by a score of 8 to 4. The Jerseys have applied for membership in the Eastern League.

—William Lowden was arrested recently on the charge of deserting his family, on a complaint made under the act concerning disorderly persons. Saturday he had a hearing before Justice Nash. The charge was made by J. Oakley Nodyne, overseer of the poor. Wm. B. Maxson appeared in behalf of the city and J. W. Jackson for the defendant. Mr. Jackson moved to dismiss the complaint and discharge the prisoner on the ground that the complainant showed on its face that the defendant was not a resident of Plainfield. The motion was granted and the prisoner discharged.

Saturday's Races.

A farm hand working for Mr. Peck of Metuchen appeared at the race track on the Pair Grounds in Metuchen yesterday to try three miles inside of twenty minutes. The man had been working in the field all day, and seemed incapable of performing the task. A bet of $30 had been made the week before in Metuchen. Other bets were made on the track. The man threw himself six times around the half mile track in 19:40 1-2, pocketed the $30, and footed it across the fields home. To say that the spectators were astonished would convey but a faint idea of their feelings.

Previous to the regular races there was a brush between Mr. H. Brooks' horse and a catch team. Brooks' horse won.

In a race between the same team and Mr. Nathan Robins' colt, the colt came in ahead.

Mr. Robins' colt was in turn defeated by Mr. Waring's Ledger Boy.

In the race between Mr. L. French's gray horse, Mr. C. Vail's sorrel mare and Mr. Waring's Ledger Boy, the sorrel came in first, the grey second and Ledger Boy last. Time 2:45. The second heat was also won by the sorrel in 2:60.

There were entered for the road wagon race Mr. McMoore's black stallion, Mr. Moore's sorrel horse and Mr. N. Honeyman's bay mare. The bay won with the sorrel second and the black last. Time 2:38 1-2.

Mr. Wesley Johnson's Scioia was to have trotted with Mr. Hunnemann's Charlotte Cushman, but the latter had a sore mouth, Scioia trotted alone. Time 2:32.

Sermon Before the Reform Club.

A very fair audience considering the rain gathered at the Methodist Episcopal church last evening to listen to the sermon announced to be delivered before the Reform Club by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Tuttle. The discourse was based on the text from Isaiah 28, 1: "Woe to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, whose glorious beauty is a fading flower, which are on the head of the fat valleys of them that are overcome with wine.

The sermon opened with a review of the events to which allusion is made in the text. To explain them he proceeded to gather several eternal principles from the text as thus explained, as follows: 1. The strength of a nation and the consequent safety of a people is in the morals of the people; 2. One of the most fruitful causes of immorality is the use of strong drink; 3. Intemperance has become with us a national sin, (1) in its wide extent, and (2) because our government sanctions and licenses it and gets a revenue from it; 4. In a government like ours where the sovereignty is vested with the people wrong lies with us.

The City Courts.

Charles Strong, of Brooklyn, L. I., came to this city Saturday night, and imbibed too freely of the beverage dispensed at the saloons here. At Smith's saloon on Front street he and a Plainfielder disagreed on certain matters, and Strong knocked the host down. Both were arrested for the fracas, and were each fined $10 this morning by Judge Good.

James Higgins, of Westfield, was arrested for drunkenness, and was given twenty days in the county jail.

Mrs. Martha Smedsker was arrested for disorderly conduct, and was given thirty days in the county jail.

A CLEAR CASE OF INCENDIARISM.

An Attempt to Destroy by Fire the Residence of the Editor of the News. White Ho and His Family are Thereby Asleep.

At two o'clock Sunday morning the editor of this paper was aroused from a deep slumber, at his residence, 99 West Front street, by a scream of fire, uttered by his wife leaning over him and looking out of a bedroom window, next to which he slept. A crackling sound aroused her, and, looking out of the window for the cause, she saw the bright reflection which had so appalled her.

The writer believes he did not occupy one minute to don pants, vest and coat, unlock his bed room door, and barefooted and bareheaded, bound down a flight of stairs, unlock a back door, and discover a bright sheet of flame about two feet in breadth and extending upward at least eight feet from the floor back of Patterson's cigar store, and along the sheathing near the back stairs of the building, a frame structure, which he occupies. The flames were immediately under his sleeping apartment, which was on the second story, Patterson's cigar store intervening.

With Providential forethought he had not in his haste forgotten to pick up from the accustomed place (Decker's) the store to Dixon's Ice Cream Saloon in which he is also interested, and believed at first the fire to be there. Instantly unlocking the store door he secured a pail of water happening to be strongly impregnated with coarse salt, which, by the way, is the only thing he has first aroused he had the water on the flames. Three pails of salt water he succeeded in getting on the fire in quick succession, by the time the rest of the family, including three children and a servant, had been awakened and down stairs in their night dresses.

While the writer was throwing on the third pail of water, plenty of which, through the kindness of his next door neighbor, Mr. Wallace W. Corbell, of the Republican Executive Committee, was fortunately at hand, Mr. Joseph Patterson, who occupied as apartment in the building and the store, came down stairs fully attired, and attacked the flames with water at the inside of his store, into which they were working, and which was well filled with smoke.

Mr. W. H. Warner, a next door neighbor who has a flouring mill store, arrived and promptly set to work with a hatchet cutting away the sheathing, to get at the fire between the walls.

Policemen Grant and McCune, who were but a block away and heard the tumult, as did also night watchman Peter Wright, hurried to the scene ready to assist.

Within fifteen minutes the fire was thoroughly extinguished. By this time persons in Gazelle Co.'s Engine house, which was about two hundred feet away, called in from the alarm, and Assistant Engineer Smith promptly responded, but happily by this time was not the case.

An investigation was then made by those present, including Messrs. Corbell, Patterson and Warner, the policemen, the night watchman and the writer, to discover the origin of the fire.

Wood shavings and cut fire wood were found rolled in a coarse cloth and set on the foundation ledge in the cellar, under the flooring of Patterson's cigar store, carefully arranged that they could not fall and thereby fall of the object. They had been partly burned, the dry wood of the building furnishing ready fuel. Further investigation showed that a board had been torn away from the side of the rear stoop, as though it was intended at first to start the fire there. It was under the stoop where the shavings first ignited. The splitting of the board was closely heard by the writer's wife, but she supposed that it was early morning and one of her neighbors getting fire wood. She had been aroused about half an hour before the fire, by hearing some one stealthily, as if in stocking feet, ascending the front yard on the plank road, so heavily could sounds be heard. After listening awhile, however, and the sounds ceasing, she fell into a slumber, concluding that she was needlessly alarmed. She emphatically declares that after she discovered the fire, she heard a heavy footstep of some one moving and then stopping as if lingering to be sure the fiendish work was well under way.

Mr. W. W. Corbell's residence occupies the front of the next lot, and he has his stable in the rear. Sunday morning she lay in the loft was found all disarranged, empty feed sacks and a half eaten dried beef sandwich were discovered. The harness, which Saturday night had been hung up as usual, was found lying in confusion on the floor.

Other evidence was discovered of the incendiary's tracks, which a good detective would probably find sufficient clues to trace the murderous villain out.

The writer was at first disposed to treat this as simply an ordinary incendiary fire, which is bad enough, however slight. But investigation has shown his clearly not to be such. Patterson's horse in the stable was left untouched, as was also a large tent, in the fiend's path, and a spot was selected where the flames would be screened on all sides until they had gotted the building. The flames had reached within five feet of the writer's sleeping apartment before he first perceived being so providentially discovered.

We hope to live until at least we can, with the aid of the respectable people of this community, rid it of these devils in human form.

The matter has been brought to our hands alone. No one known to whom it may be brought next. Every father and mother and every one else is interested, and the authorities owe it to us all to leave no stone unturned in unearthing this monster and others like him. Our mutual protection demands it.

—A social will be given by the Young People's Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church this evening in the church lecture room. All members of the church and all others interested are cordially invited to attend.

—The canny manning had a rest and unprofitable time of it yesterday. The regular crowds from this city did not attend.

LEGEND OF CHIMNEY ROCK.

Romance of this Beautiful Glen and its Surroundings.

Prof. C. A. Leveridge of Cranford, accompanied by his wife, and neice Miss Albert Leveridge of Elizabeth, and also by Mr. T. J. Gillies of this city, Messrs Gorie and Ayres and Alvan Dunman, and Misses Jennie and Fannie Dunman, Mr. Clarence Seward and master George Seward, of Cranford, made an excursion last Wednesday to Chimney Rock, and furnishes the following:

There is somewhere in the past a legend of the early Indian life connected with the wild and romantic region about Chimney Rock. There is a romance that one "Bowasco," and "Inez," the latter a daughter of the chief of a tribe of Indians, who inhabited Round Brook, on the mountain road, and the tribe were designated the Raritans, at war with the tribe of the Minisink on the Delaware River.

This romantic spot with its natural scenery long known as the "Chimney Rock" and the cascade of foaming water over the rocky boulders known as the "Buttermilk Falls," is situated about two miles from the depot at Round Brook, on the mountain road, about half way to the picturesque village of Bardonville. The descent of the ravine, the caves and rocks, the beauty of the rocky stream, leaping down a ledge and hurling with force and fury its waters in its bed, the long and darkening shadows of the pines that climb the mountain sides, impart unitedly an appearance of wildness and grandeur that the student of nature would gaze upon with wonder and delight. To the lover of Scottish romance the scenery would probably suggest a strong ideal of the wonder fraught Inverclaugh, where Meg Merrilies moved, a being personifying the spirit of a mountain wilderness.

The "chimney" stands out boldly and grim a view for miles. The rich verdure of the mountains, the green fields, the distant range of hills and the valley below this spot are picturesque. And a drive over the road from towards the falls, the waters can clearly be heard a little hundred yards away, when you come into a liquid basin surrounded by trees. Some have supposed that the basin had been formed by the action of water, when the copper mines were being operated, as the debris scattered around of broken crushers and the dug out furnaces seem to indicate, but it existed in its present form long before the place was resorted to by visitors.

"Upon the first white settlers coming, they found the tribes from distant and remote places here to welcome them, the newcomers and the red people for miles along the shore, until their landing. The Indians brought them fruits and they had pipes made from copper."

The scanty details of the two Indian lovers, Inez and Bowasco, has been written as a legend, and as a fact.

THE LEGEND OF INEZ AND BOWASCO.

The Indian maiden is represented as the daughter of one Caspino, a chief of very short stature, but remarkable with his prowess in bow and brought the game from the hill where he now lay sighing, waiting for the great spirit of his fathers.

Inez's modesty, refinement and ilg (the) deportment were such that she was named the "Indian Princess." Bowasco had heard her fame and beauty highly praised and make his appearance upon the scene. Other rivals tried with courage in the pursuit of the girls which they presented. Yet with heart that was true and brave he pleased all. A stately friend and the possessor of the princess her heart, this was the young chieftain Bowasco, and he, too, a fine looking Indian, and his attentions and scorned his kindness, but by gentle, persevering he gained the pleasure of his desires, and the affections were reciprocated and mutually confessed. Many a moon saw them sitting by the cascade which bears their name, and in the evening twining of themselves and talking of the happiness when the great spirit her to store for them. Bowasco must part. Inez, to bid farewell the young braves to the conflict. Inez and Bowasco must part. Inez, a young friend of Bowasco, was asked to tenderly watch over Inez in his absence. The evening of his absence comes, Inez when the sun had gone down, and the moon had set forth unattended to sit upon the rock and muse over the absence of her lover, while their cares had been cast. As she sat there upon the rock looking down into the basin of the cascade, the fancies that presented themselves to her mind, were many and ambitious scheme. She sees him in the fight a victor perhaps, or in the hour of pursuing sitting as was her custom upon the favorite seat, Inez, who had promised to be faithful to her lover, and with tiger's agility he leaped to her side telling her that Bowasco was slain in battle and that he had come for her to marry him. Bowasco could have been.

But in the excess of grief for her supposed loss and indignation of one who would insult her fidelity, she leaped from his presence and disappeared. Foiled in his attempt at dishonor, Inez moved perhaps. Deeply chagrined, and one evening, at nightfall, a canoe was paddled over, fastened to an arm of the Raritan, about two miles from the Chimney Rock. With a dark and wicked intent, Inez, who had been the cause of so much grief to find his love, at length succeeded in reaching the cascade, and the rock upon which she was accustomed

POLITICAL MATTERS.

The Committee to Wait Upon Gov. Cleveland.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 22.—Gov. Cleveland will receive the national committee on notifying at the Executive mansion on Tuesday next, probably about 10:30. Besides the committee many other eminent Democrats from various parts of the country are expected to be present. The Democratic campaign will be formally opened on that day, and efforts are being made to secure a notable public demonstration. Campaign clubs from the surrounding country have been invited to participate in the parade which the Albany organizations have arranged for the evening. The Democratic escort, of Syracuse, has already sent notice of its intention to be present. The list of speakers announced for the mass meetings is a brilliant one. It includes Col. William F. Vilas, of Wisconsin; Gov. T. M. Waller, of Connecticut; Congressman Patrick F. Collins, of Boston; Col. W. E. Hooker, of Mississippi; ex-Senator Francis Kernan, of Utica; Congressman William Dorsheimer, of New York, and Joseph Pulitzer, editor of The New York World.

The Governor finds that the work of receiving visitors and answering campaign letters encroaches upon his time to such an extent that it is often long after midnight before he finishes the regular routine work of his office. His mail continues large, averaging from 100 to 150 letters a day. He receives many suggestions about his letter of acceptance, and innumerable requests for autographs and pictures. Every communication requiring a reply is answered either by the Governor personally or by his private secretary. Although little information can be obtained about Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance, it will doubtless be made public after the 1st of August.

Why Butler Will Not Retire.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—It is generally accepted here that Gen. Butler will remain in the presidential field as a candidate. "Yes, Butler will run," said one of his intimate friends to The United Press reporter "It is the ambition of his life to become president. Of course, he doesn't expect to be elected this year; but if it results he will lose the confidence of his present supporters. He recently said in the course of conversation on this subject: 'Some people wish to be president in order to have a name in history. I don't. I fancy even now that my name will be remembered even long after that of Rutherford B. Hayes, for instance, and he was president. I would like to be president because I have a work to accomplish and need the power of the position to carry it out.' No, Butler will not retire from the race as long as he has a vestige of a chance left."

The Committee to Notify St. John.

DETROIT, July 23.—At the recent national Prohibition convention in Pittsburg, Prof. Samuel Dickie, of Michigan, president of the convention, was made chairman of the committee to notify Mr. St. John of his nomination, and authorized to appoint the other members of the committee. Prof. Dickie has appointed as such committee the Hon. James Black, of Pennsylvania; the Hon. John B. Finch, of Nebraska; D. Gleason, of Kansas; the Rev. John Russell, of Michigan; Miss Frances E. Willard, of Illinois; the Hon. S. J. Hastings, of Wisconsin; George R. Scott, of New York; Mrs. Mary Woolridge, of Ohio, and the Hon. J. T. Turner, of Alabama. The committee will meet Mr. St. John at some point in Western New York about the middle of August.

A Horribly Afflicted Woman.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The surgeons at the county hospital have under treatment a Mrs. Murphy, 27 years of age, who is suffering from a horrible disease, which afflicts cattle, known as "lumpy jaw." It is in the form of an abscess on her jaw, and was at first supposed to be an ordinary abscess, but microscopical examination proves the contrary. The abscess was found to contain vegetable parasites identical with those found in abscesses on cattle. It is supposed to have been caused by eating the meat of cattle having the disease. An operation will be performed to-morrow. The case is the first one reported in the United States, though similar cases have occurred in Germany.

An Unexpected Wedding.

NORWICH, Ct., July 23.—A few days ago Miss Lulu West, a beautiful girl of 17, with dark hair and black eyes, the only child of True West, the manager of the Norwich Street Railroad company, left the city ostensibly to visit some friends in Boston. Her father gave her $500. To the consternation of her friends the next morning they heard of her, was that she had eloped and was married in Providence to George Boynton, a butcher's apprentice here. Boynton is the son of the Rev. George D. Boynton, of the Methodist church. He was known to have been acquainted with the young lady. The West family did not favor him.

John Roache's Fast Yacht.

PORTSMOUTH, July 23.—The Yosemite trial trip developed extraordinary speed. She made six miles in seventeen minutes, and one of them in two and one-quarter minutes. John Roach tendered her to the naval authorities for trial, that the much-disputed question of speed in craft of her size might be tested. The prevailing idea in the naval department has been that she could not build vessels of less than 2,000 tons to attain a speed of sixteen to eighteen miles an hour.

Lovely Lily Langtry Leaves.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Mrs. Langtry sailed for Europe Saturday morning on the Arizona, of the Guion line. She says perhaps she will come back in February. Freddie was at the wharf looking blue. He bade the distinguished amateur good-by in her cabin, and got off just before the gang plank rose.

Railroad Items.

BOSTON, July 23.—It is generally reported along the line of the Massachusetts Central railroad that the Fitchburg road will lease the Central and complete it to Holyoke and Springfield. Also, that the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad has sent an engineer over the line for purposes of inspection.

Bennett-Mackay Wires.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 23.—The New England Telegraph Company has placed poles from High Bridge to Boston, on which they are placing three hard-drawn copper wires, similar to the American Bell Telephone wires. The new line is supposed to belong to the Bennett-Mackay Cable Company.

A Complimentary Dinner.

BOSTON, July 23.—At the meetings of the Massachusetts, Maine, Middlesex and Norfolk clubs arrangements were made to give a complimentary dinner to Blaine and Logan at an early day, at which Gov. Robinson will preside.

Hailing Chunks of Ice.

MILWAUKEE, July 23.—A storm yesterday in Eau Claire County damaged crops and buildings to the extent of $50,000. Hailstones fell which are alleged to have been ten to eight inches in diameter.

FACES NEW AND OLD.

The 16-Year-Old "Georgia Wonder" and Mrs. Partington at 70 Years.

Also Pen-sketches of B. F. Jones, G. W. Curtis, John A. Kasson, Chas. A. Dana, Whitelaw Reid and Carl Schurz.

B. F. JONES.

Mr. B. F. Jones, the chairman of the Republican national committee is a member of the firm of Jones & Laughlins, Pittsburg, Pa., owners of probably the most extensive rolling mills in the country. Mr. Jones owes his fortune to an accident. About thirty years ago one of the workmen in his mill got his hand caught while weighing about fifty pounds, fast to a bar of hot iron. The bar was already in the jaws of the rapidly whirling rolls. There was no time to release the tongs and they went through the rolls under pendulum pressure. Instead of being crushed into useless, they came out at the other side flattened out of shape, no more use as tongs, but a bar of iron of high polish and changed texture.

The firm held a quiet consultation among themselves. They set to work analyzing and experimenting. The result was that instead of a discharge the workman who let the tongs go a bonus of $20,000, and Jones & Laughlin's little one-horse rolling mill the present immense plant was constructed. It is valued at $7,000,000. It makes cold rolled iron under an exclusive patent at an immense profit, and the long head of the lucky Scot, who is now chairman of the Republican national committee, is a millionaire about ten times over. At the time the tongs got fast he kept the books and his partner looked after the mill. Mr. Laughlin retired from the firm some years ago, and when the patent on the cold-rolled process was renewed, received $100,000 from the new firm for his share of it.

Mr. Jones is a native of Washington county, Pa.; is 58 years old; began life as a clerk on the Pennsylvania canal and railroad; went into his business in 1857; in 1861 he built the American Iron and Steel works, which now employs 3,500 men.

The Famous "Mrs. Partington."

B. P. SHILLABER.

Mr. Shillaber recently celebrated his 70th birthday, being born in 1814 at Portsmouth, N. H. He was a printer in 1830 at Dover, in that state. In 1841, while editorially connected with The Boston Post, he first wrote over the signature of Mrs. Partington. Since then her sayings have become known wherever the English language is spoken. Mr. Shillaber has compiled and published many volumes of his humor. Of late he has written but little for the press while living in retirement in Boston.

The Editor of The New York Sun.

CHARLES A. DANA.

Charles Anderson Dana is a native of Hinsdale, N. H., and 61 years old. He studied at Harvard, afterwards associating with Stephen Pearl Andrews and others in the Brook Farm socialist community near Boston. While earning five dollars a week by his contributions to a Boston paper, he married Miss Eunice MacDaniel. In 1847 he succeeded in getting a position on Horace Greeley's Tribune where he remained in various capacities, being for many years managing editor until 1861. In 1863-4 he was assistant secretary of war, and after the war, editor of The Chicago Republican. In 1868 he bought a controlling interest in The New York Sun. In 1856 he published a bulky volume of lyric poetry, and for eight years labored with George Ripley in editing Appleton's American cyclopedia.

Amateur House Painting.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

An amateur painter writes to an amateur here: "I read herewith a copy of a book from which I gained many valuable points, and beg you will accept it with my kindest regards and gratitude. I bought it several years ago, impressed with the idea that I could make a 'Queen Benoit.' Oh! that would throw Clarence Cook in the shade. I did, but—huddle of the mantle, I wasn't a single inch of the sixteen rooms that did not show traces of my skill, and each member of the family avoided like a beautiful factory girl was splattered with as many tints of fresh paint as a circus maid. But the house looked well—in fact, more than well—when I had got a painter to come and touch up a few hundred spots that I failed to cover, and the paint-hardened carpets had been replaced with new ones. I also worked on the roof, but as two weeks had elapsed when I got to it, and my enthusiasm had worn off a bride, I worked them by proxy. This, by the way, is the best way to paint a tin roof. I got the best material, and, after applying the usual approval methods, hired a negro to lay on the color. It took him just a day, and he charged 75 cents for his labor. I housed the job, and it was a flattering success. It was only last week that a practical painter, who is soon to commence operations, looked at that roof and said that to touch it with a brush would be worse than painting the lily or gilding the fine gold. His advice was to send for the tinner and have a new roof put on the house."

The Editor of Harper's Weekly.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

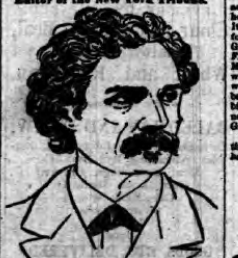
Mr. Curtis has for nearly thirty years edited the "Easy Chair" in Harper's Monthly, besides writing continuously for the other publications of the same firm. Just 1863 he became the political editor of Harper's Weekly, the publishers of him unreservedly the control of its policy during his lifetime. By his mental training and previous political experience he was admirably fitted for such a responsibility. He had been a successful political speaker in the interest of the Republican party during the campaign of 1860, and was a delegate to the second national convention of that party. He was born at Providence, R. I., in 1824. He traveled for several years prior to 1850 in Europe, Egypt and Syria, and was for a time editor of The New York Tribune.

The New Minister to Germany.

JOHN A. KASSON.

Who has been appointed to the Berlin mission, is every way a diplomatist. He talks and looks like it. There is history about him. He dresses plainly. He is a ready debater, and when he does talk, talks to a purpose. He is 63 years old, and is a graduate of the University of Vermont. Like Sargent, his predecessor at Berlin, he was a poor boy. When Sargent was a young man he was a government employe in the printing office. In 1849 he went to California. From the Pacific coast state he was sent to Congress, serving as a member of the house and afterwards of the senate.

Editor of the New York Tribune.



WHITELAW REID.

One of the leading political controversialists in the present presidential canvass is Mr. Whitelaw Reid, who is now editor in chief of The New York Tribune. He entered the editorial staff of that paper by invitation of Horace Greeley in 1868. A native of Xenia, O., and a graduate of Miami university in 1856, his editorial experience was in The Xenia News. At the outbreak of the war he joined the staff of Gen. Morris and was subsequently the Washington writer of The Cincinnati Gazette and of The Commercial. He started as cotton planting on a farm in Louisiana of 2,500 acres. Not succeeding he returned to journalism. He is described particularly in matters of dress and etiquette. He married a daughter of Mr. D. O. Mills, the millionaire.

The Funster's Punishment.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

William Smith, a puny, skinny colored man, was before Judge Fitzgerald yesterday for stealing a quantity of wood from a private family. The kind-hearted judge, who is always the friend of the laboring man, asked the prisoner if he had a trade.

"Yes, judge, I work hard."

"Ah," smiled the humane judge, "that's a good thing. It will be in your favor. But what do you do?"

"I'm a black Smith."

"Nine years!" yelled his honor, "and I'm sorry the penalty is not death."

Cost With Him.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

There is likely to be a big rise in coal. Geologists say that if we have only three thousand years more of coal, the coal beds of the earth will be exhausted in exactly 36,524 years.

CARL SCHURZ.

An educated gentleman, distinguished as a journalist and orator, is Gen. Carl Schurz. He was born in Prussia in 1830, and educated at Cologne and Bonn universities. In 1849 he was compelled to flee from his native country. In 1852 he came to America, living the first three years in Philadelphia. He then moved to Milwaukee, Wis., where he practiced law. President Lincoln appointed him minister to Spain, which position he resigned to enter the Union army, in 1862, as brigadier general of volunteers. He was made a general in 1865. In 1866 he was Washington correspondent for The New York Tribune. In 1869 he founded The Detroit Post, and in 1869 he was United States senator from Missouri. He presided over the convention which nominated Horace Greeley for the presidency; was secretary of the interior in the cabinet of President Hayes, and for a time editor of The New York Evening Post.

The Georgia Wonder.

MISS LILLY HURST,

Who has set all New York discussing whether she is possessed of any remarkable power or not, has really the power of drawing remarkably large audiences. It is certainly a wonder to see a fifty or-odd girl, as she claims to be, filling a theater to witness her exhibitions with an ordinary kitchen chair, an umbrella or a billiard cue. She has in a short time paid off a mortgage of $2,000 on her father's home, in Polk county, Ga., and if she continues as she has begun, will in a few years be able to liquidate the national debt.

Gov. Cleveland's Birthplace.

THE PRESBYTERIAN PARSONAGE IN CALDWELL.

The Rev. C. T. Berry, the pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Caldwell, N. J., lives in the old parsonage.

He recently gave the following interesting account of the place. "This," he says, is the house in which Gov. Cleveland was born. It was first rented by Stephen Grover, a former pastor of the church. In 1856 Mr. Grover resigned the pastorate and Richard F. Cleveland was called the same year. Mr. Richard Cleveland had many children, one of whom, William N., became a minister and went to Long Island. In the old church baptismal record are found the names of the birth and baptism of the Democratic nominee which reads as follows: 'Stephen Grover Cleveland, baptized July 1, 1837.'

"During his six years' pastorate," continued Mr. Berry, "Mr. Cleveland's father had a child baptized every year."

An American Trophy Returned.

THE ASCOT CUP.

The Ascot Ascot race cup, which was won by Foxhall in 1881, was shipped back to England, owing to the unexpectedness of the duty, which was $6,000. The cup is of solid gold, there being about $2,000 worth of that metal in it. It will be kept on exhibition in England as an American trophy.

A Little Too Talkative.

On Saturday night last two or three men who had been all day in this city trying to dispose of a wagon load of lemons, drove to Elizabeth with what they had left, and began bawling their wares in a most ear-splitting way. Chief Jenkins of that city, objected to such yelling in those streets, and told the boys so. He also found out that the parties had no license. One of them went to get a license, and the boss kept quiet, but another man who had some tongue to spare began to take a lively interest in affairs and was very saucy. The Chief arrested him forthwith and locked him up for a time. He was then discharged, a wiser and a more silent man.

Another Kind of Ribbon.

At the Crossroads, Elizabeth, an organization has been formed to be known as the "Blue Ribbon Club." About fifteen names have been enrolled as members. The qualification necessary for a man to have before he can become a member are that he be able to drink at once or one sitting twenty schooners of lager, the same to be furnished free. Those who are now on the roll have accomplished the remarkable feat, and are considered members of the highest order.

Rules Governing the Fire Patrol.

At a recent meeting of the Fire Board on motion of Mr. Morris, it was resolved that a fire patrol consisting of five members from each company be established, to keep all but firemen, reporters and the occupants of the building outside the fire lines. The rules governing the fire patrol of New Brunswick have been sent to Chief Carney by ex-Chief Milton Ross. We publish them by request. They are as follows:

A supplement to an ordinance to establish and regulate the Fire Department and for the preservation and extinguishment of fires in the city of New Brunswick.

Be it ordained, by the Common Council of the city of New Brunswick as follows:

1. Be it ordained, That each of the fire engine companies, the Hook and Ladder Company and Liberty Hose Company of this city be and the same are hereby empowered at any time to select from the active members of each of said companies, by a vote of the majority of the respective members of each of said companies, two members from each of said companies respectively, who together shall constitute and be known as the fire patrol of the city of New Brunswick, which said persons so selected shall, before entering upon their office, be subject to confirmation by the Common Council of the city of New Brunswick, in the same way and manner as the election of Chief Engineer and the Assistant Engineers of the said Fire Department are now or may hereafter be confirmed by said Common Council, and when so confirmed by said Common Council shall severally take oaths or perform any of the duties prescribed by this ordinance, under the penalty of fifty dollars for each and every offence.

2. And be it ordained, That it shall be the duty of the said fire patrol, and they are hereby authorized and empowered at the time of any fire in the said city (in connection with the police force of said city or otherwise) to surround and cause to be surrounded any building or buildings that may be on fire, or that may be likely or may be in danger to catch fire from the building or buildings then burning, and to form a line on either side of said building or buildings and to remove therefrom as they may deem proper for the purpose, and not to permit any person or persons to enter such line of the several buildings, nor permit any person or persons to remain within such lines, except the police officers, the engineers of the several companies and those having lawful rights to enter the same, and to prevent any person or persons from stealing or unlawfully taking and removing from any of the said buildings or buildings any property, chattels, goods, wares and merchandise, and to compel, with power to prevent by force any person or persons unlawfully violating the provisions of this section of this ordinance, and with power also forcibly to arrest any person or persons, except those persons mentioned aforesaid, from entering within any fire secured building during the time of said fire by the said fire patrol; any person or persons so arrested by any of the said members of the said fire patrol or police officers may detect in stealing and unlawfully taking from any of the said buildings at the time aforesaid, any property, chattels, goods, wares and merchandise, the said members of the said fire patrol, or either or any of them, or any police officer, are hereby authorized to arrest, detain and forthwith take before any justice of the Peace or other committing magistrate, there to be dealt with in accordance with law.

3. And be it ordained, That any person who shall violate any of the provisions of the first preceding sections of this ordinance shall be subject to a penalty of fifty dollars.

4. And be it ordained, That all ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent with this ordinance, be and the same are hereby repealed.

5. And be it ordained, That this ordinance shall take effect immediately.

Passed in Common Council April 4, 1881.

Personal.

Mr. Thomas Bennett and wife, of Newark, are visiting friends in this city.

Mr. J. B. Dumont and family are at the Windsor Hotel, Elizabethtown, N. Y., for the Summer.

Felix Parsons, a druggist of Savannah, Ga., is in town, the guest of Miss Carrie Pike, of Front street.

Mr. J. J. Fowlkes, of North Plainfield, started to-day on a trip to Michigan, to visit his aged mother, who is about ninety years old. He expects, before returning, to go to Iowa and Dakota.

Mr. Mark Clawson and his sister, Miss Lulu Clawson, of Madison avenue, who have been summering for several weeks at a Rhode Island watering place arrived home to-day properly browned.

Social of the Young People's Union.

The Young People's Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church gave a social last evening in the church lecture room. Miss Daisy Wright, soon to remove to Boston, favored the company with several recitations. Miss Anthony, of Bryan, gave an instrumental solo. Several of the city clergy, the Rev. Mr. Tuttle and others assisted in entertaining those present. At the close of the program refreshments were served, and the remainder of the evening was passed in social intercourse.

A Vigilance Committee.

EDITOR OF EVENING NEWS—What more evidence do the citizens of this city want to rouse them to some radical measures that will detect the fiends that are firing dwellings. I send herewith my name as volunteer for patrol duty, and hope that others will follow. One thing they will accomplish sure—draw the police to their duty.

Yours,
PROTECTOR.

The Lincoln Club Meeting.

A regular meeting of the Lincoln Campaign Club was held last evening in Lincoln Hall on Park avenue. Capt. Dillmont was instructed to call a meeting of all the old members of the Lincoln Guard, preparatory to organizing companies for the year. A number of speeches were made, and twenty-five new members were added to the roll.

A Suggestion.

EDITOR OF THE NEWS.—Why does not some one get up a moonlight excursion to leave here at 11 a. m. and go to Ocean Grove, and returning leave at 9.30 or 10 p. m. A great many would go.

TUESDAY, JULY 29, 1884.

"THE NEWSPAPER that substitutes virtuperation," says the Newark Evening Nator, "and presents unsubstantiated rumors for facts to its readers in its work of assisting them to make a choice of candidates for a high office, does a double wrong. It offers a direct insult to the intelligence of its reader, and with studied malice misinforms them. The thing to do is to give the people the whole truth so far as it is possible, particularly concerning men who are suppliants for the suffrage of freemen, so that the freemen may weigh and balance and decide as to the deserts of the candidate."

THE Burlington Enterprise deserves credit for the most remarkable and unique snake story of the season. Two laborers who were unloading a car of peat at that place the other day slew the ophidian in question with their shovels after a desperate contest. Then they laid him out upon the freight platform. The remarkable and startling feature of the story is that the snake was but "one foot in length." This is the first snake of that size on the newspaper record, nearly all snekianimals previously slain having been from one to three yards long. He must have belonged to a new species.

THE STATEMENT is made in a Perth Amboy paper "that there is more intoxicating liquor landed in South Amboy then at any five stations on the Long Branch Railroad. There are 123 houses where you can buy intoxicating drinks, although only 18 of these pay a license." South Amboy should at once be incorporated and elect a Mayor and Common Council. A place that can stand 123 rum shops ought to blossom into a full fledged city, with all the modern improvements in the shape of a colossal debt, a defaulting collector, several missing cashiers, etc.

A GOOD piece of advice to travelers is to mark baggage with the name and address of the owner. Many trunks have been lost from lack of this simple precaution. A tag on a trunk is very apt to be lost, but painted letters must be rubbed off intentionally, if at all. The enormous amount of baggage carried causes numerous mistakes despite the utmost vigilance.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT is made, probably prematurely, that the West End Hotel, at Long Branch, is to close at once for the season. There appears to be no doubt, however, that the season has been, on the whole, a very poor one at that resort. It has become too common for the aristocrats and too costly for other people.

THE Boston Woman's Journal is satisfied that Blaine, Cleveland, Butler and St. John are all friendly to female suffrage. Susan B. Anthony and Frederick Douglass have therefore abandoned the project of running for President and Vice President this year.

IT IS said that the first request of St. John, the Prohibitionist candidate, received after his nomination, was for his photograph from a saloon keeper, who wanted to stick it up behind his bar.

A YOUNG man in Philadelphia froze his feet last week by holding them on a lump of ice when over-heated. He can now be used as an iceberg candidate for the campaign.

IF THIS next Legislature will pass a law compelling mosquitoes to wear muzzles New Jersey may be admitted to fellowship with the other States.

ENGLAND will have a bigger job than ever fall to its lot in making Egypt pay back taxes.

TO NOTIFY CLEVELAND

Preparing to Give Formal Notice to the Democratic Candidate.

The Irish Republican Meeting in New York City—Maine Prohibitionists—Greenbacker Easton.

Philadelphia Independents.

ALBANY, July 29.—The hotels are filled with politicians. Most of the members of the national committee have arrived. A meeting of the committee was held at 10 A. M. this morning to receive the reports of the committee on the late campaign and the selection of headquarters in New York.

The notification committee has arrived from New York. The Albany visitors escorted them to the executive mansion, where the ceremony is to take place. Nothing is talked of around the hotels but the demonstration of to-night. The Cleveland men declare that they will open the campaign in a manner that will astonish the Blaine men. The report that Cleveland will letter of acceptance is ready for the press is incorrect.

"According to some newspapers," said the governor this morning to a friend, "but I say it is not. It will be time enough to write it after I have been officially notified of my nomination. No, I have not committed my thoughts to paper, even."

Nevertheless, it is said that a draft of the letter, subject to revision, probably, is in existence and has been committed to memory of the "rising statesman" within a week. The members of the notification and national committee have arrived. The formal notification to Governor Cleveland will take place at the executive mansion at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. The proceedings will be brief. The chairman of the committee will make a short address, to which Mr. Cleveland will reply. On account of the limited accommodations at the executive mansion, none will be present but the members of the committee and a few personal friends of the governor.

Irish Republicans to Mass Meeting.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The mass meeting at Chickering Hall last evening under the auspices of the Irish-American Republicans who are in favor of Blaine and Logan was attended by about 2000 persons, among whom were many prominent Irish Nationalists. Austin E. Ford presided and declared as the first speaker the Rev. George W. Pepper, of Ohio. The speaker commenced by saying that the Republican party was the party of the people and of freedom, which was shown by the liberation of 4,000,000 slaves. He claimed that the English policy of free trade had caused the famine in India and Ireland. It was the duty, he said, of Irishmen to support and work for Blaine-and-Logan, and if they would give their hearty assistance of American citizens, would bury Cleveland in November as deep as the Garfield's trumpet would be heard around him again. Henry Cary Baird, of Philadelphia, said that he had labored for twenty-five years to see the Irish and Americans fight England on the same line with the Germans that they possess. He promised them that the state of Pennsylvania would give Blaine and 100,000 majority. Judge Brennan, of Sioux city, Iowa, was the next speaker. He said that he had come 1,400 miles to be with them. They were here as American citizens and it was their duty to guard and protect themselves from the designs of Tom, more especially against the English government. For twenty years they had voted the Democratic ticket, but now they had changed their minds and would vote the Republican ticket.

Resolutions were adopted pledging the support according to Blaine and Logan. The meeting was addressed by Counsellor James N. Cooksey, of Trenton; Capt. E. O. Meagher and Patrick T. Barry.

A Talk With John Kelly.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 29.—John Kelly, when asked to-day what was the probable action of Tammany, said that nothing would be done until the next regular meeting of the organization during the first week in September. He did not think that the leaders were now widely scattered, and it would be impossible to get them together before that time. He said, however, that his opinion, to come to any decision without a meeting and a deliberate discussion. He repudiated the idea that there was any significance in the absence of Tammany's representatives from the recent meeting of the state committee at Albany. This was of course part and parcel of a non-committal policy. Finally, when Mr. Kelly was pressed to make any statement for publication of what Tammany's position is at the present juncture. The rumor of a conference to be held here to-day by Democratic politicians here. Ex-Senator Grady, who has been here for a few days, returned to New York yesterday.

The Philadelphia Independents.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—At a meeting of Independents held on Saturday night a permanent organization was effected under the name of "The Association of Republicans and Independents of the City of Philadelphia." The following officers were elected: President, Henry C. Lea; first vice-president, Stuart Wood; second vice-president, Joseph Parrish; secretary, Lemuel B. Eyre; treasurer, Samuel Wagner, Jr. The president was authorized to appoint the executive committee of ten. The following resolutions were adopted: That a call to be printed for distribution and signatures:

"We, the undersigned Independent Republicans and Independents of Philadelphia, believing that a crisis in the affairs of the nation is at hand, and that the conference held in New York July 26, that the pernicious issue of the presidential election of this year is moral rather than political, do recommend the use of all honorable means to accomplish the defeat of Blaine and Logan."

Maine Prohibitionists for Blaine.

BOSTON, July 29.—A dispatch from Augusta, Me., to the Herald says: "The organization of St. John by the Prohibitionists causes no rejoicing in Maine. Even Neal Dow, the presidential candidate of four years ago, goes for Blaine. Nearly all the 50,000 avowed Prohibitionists of Maine will not only vote for Blaine, but will labor for him energetically. This may seem anomalous, but it is a fact. The Prohibitionists have always worked in and accomplished their purpose through the Republican party. Even the Republican party was originated temporarily for the sole of cardinal planks in the platform. The Maine law was on trial. Mr. Blaine labored for it. The paper, the leading organ of the party, and prohibition became the law of the state. For the Prohibitionists to desert Blaine could hardly be expected."

Greenbacker Easton will Run.

PORTLAND, Me., July 29.—In an interview, W. F. Eaton, straight Greenback candidate for governor, declares that Blaine will be by almost no withdraw. He thinks there will be an attempt to vot another national Greenback ticket in the field, but it is improbable. To tell by old then. Butler will do, as he is outside the rules and regulations of the old parties, he prefers Cleveland. He thinks it would be the best men of the Republican party will combine with the Greenbackers and a new name, a new party will be formed and Greenback ideas will go to the front.

Ohio's Greenback Ticket Named.

DAYTON, O., July 29.—The Greenback party held a convention here at City hall last night and nominated the state ticket; Secretary of state, Dr. Thomas Q. Carroll county; judge of the supreme court, James J. Grogan, of Hocking; electors-at-large, John Gatz, of Seneca, and David Willis, of Tuscarawas.

Connecticut Republicans.

HARTFORD, Ct., July 29.—The Republican state committee decided last night to call the state convention at New Haven on August 20 to nominate a state and electoral ticket.

DROPPING SIX STORIES.

An Elevator Boy Tries an Experiment and Meets Quick Retribution.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Residents in the tall flat Tacoma, 1,187 Lexington avenue, were startled at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the noise of a body falling with great force down the elevator shaft. The body of the elevator boy, John Kane, was found at the bottom of the shaft, in the cellar. His neck and arms were broken, and his left hip was crushed. He was torn to rags by catching on projections from the side walls.

The elevator was at the top floor, and on being called to the twenty-first story by Engineer of the janitor, Edward Dawson, was found inside. The elevator generally waited at the first story, and the boy sat in the hall ready to open the door when called by the elevator. The little girl entered the elevator and closed the door behind her. It had a safety lock, which prevented it from being opened on the outside when in motion. The boy said the child was too small to open it on the inside. The boy went to the janitor's room after the key, but the janitor was out.

He then tried a dangerous experiment. There is an iron crossbar on the bottom of the elevator which was within easy reach of persons in the hall. By this he pulled the rope, evidently intending to rise slowly, and, as he reached the next floor, to open the door and step out. He was observed by the engineer to pull, as the elevator ascended rapidly and carried him, hanging to the bar, in the sixth floor, where the safety apparatus broke his hold, and he dropped to the cellar.

He was 13 years old and lived in Thirty-fourth street with his parents, who could not be notified at once, as their address was not known.

Results of a Boiler Explosion.

CLEVELAND, O., July 29.—At 7 o'clock yesterday a freight engine attached to a train of cars that was just about to be pulled out blew up with tremendous force. Engineer Thomas Farrell was instantly killed and just climbed into the cab. Both men were blown from the cab. When the smoke cleared away Engineer Wood was discovered about fifty feet away, badly scalded about the neck and breast. The fireman escaped with but few bruises. Ward was brought to the hospital, but with the chances in his favor he is in a critical condition. The engine was completely wrecked. The middle section of the boiler was wrenched from the machinery and the ends were torn and twisted into fifty different shapes. A large piece of the boiler was blown about 500 feet. Another piece was blown half a mile away. The force of the explosion was so great that the engine was blown to splinters, only the running gear remaining. A little girl standing beside the engine was struck by a piece of iron, strange to say, escaped without injury. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Four Men Fall 11h a Scaffold.

PATERSON, July 29.—The Franciscan fathers are building a monastery at Stony Road, near this city. Workmen were engaged on a scaffold forty-five feet from the ground, repairing the gutter, when the scaffolding gave way, hurling them to the ground. The men were Bernard Smith, John Hyland, Michael Bauman and John Gough, carpenters. Gough and Hamil were fatally injured. The others will live. All have injuries sustained. The scaffolding was nailed to the window casing, which gave with their weight. The boss told them at noon to make the repairs safe, but they neglected it. Smith, it is said, will die.

An Officer Mysteriously Wounded.

NEW YORK, July 29.—A gang of young ruffians in a stable yard at the foot of East Ninety-sixth street yesterday were ordered away by Officer Ryan, of the police force, but when the officer drew his club they ran away. In chasing them Ryan fell. Five minutes later he noticed that his left hand was covered with blood from a shot. He reported sick at the station-house and was sent to the Presbyterian Hospital. House Surgeon Wigger found that a bullet had entered the left forearm and lodged in the abdomen. The policemen denies that he was assaulted by the gang, but thinks that he struck a sharp instrument on the ground as he fell.

A Destructive Storm.

NORFOLK, Va., July 29.—News has reached this city that a severe storm struck the little town of Hinton, N. C., on Saturday night. The path of the storm was only 300 yards wide, but they leveled all before it. Several warehouses and store-houses were either blown down or unroofed, and a church was unroofed while the congregation was worshiping. Many people were wounded, the walls of the church falling, killing two little children. The damage to property is estimated at $40,000.

Chicago Labor Convention.

CHICAGO, July 29.—A number of delegates to the Chicago Labor convention, called to meet here next Wednesday, have already arrived in this city. The delegates represent nearly all trades. The object of the convention is called for the better organization of labor, in order to compel favorable legislation. The delegates declare that no action of a political character will be taken.

The Crime of Two Tramps.

DENBURY, July 29.—The 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Baldwin, a lady who formerly resided near Lyons, while strolling near her father's home, was seized and outraged by two tramps. Mrs. Baldwin has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of the villains. A hundred men are in pursuit of them.

Thousands at a Sent Race.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 29.—A single-scull race between Emsly S. Chase and George Clifford was rowed over a one mile course on the Susquehanna river yesterday afternoon. The race was won by Chase in 10m. 20s. Three thousand persons witnessed the race.

Coming to Meet Her Husband.

KANSAS CITY, July 29.—The wife of Lieut. A. W. Greely passed through this city last evening, en route from San Diego, Cal., to Portsmouth, N. H., where the party will meet her husband on August 3. She is accompanied by her brother, L. G. Rosseau, and her two children.

A THRILLING SCENE.

Details of the Gijon-Lanham Collision Near Corunna.

Threatened Famine in Egypt—Island Denounced—Surrendering Soudan—Left Destitute in Home—Spain and Cuba.

LONDON, July 29.—The survivors of the British steamer Lanham, which collided last Monday night with the Spanish steamer Gijon, not far from Corunna, report that at the evening of the collision there was a thick fog. The Lanham was going slowly and both vessels were sounding their whistles. The Gijon struck the Lanham amidships, and the latter was nearly cut asunder. The former did not stop her engine. The chief engineer, in reversing the engine, was horribly scalded. Most of the Lanham's crew boarded the Gijon. Capt. Lethan tied his wife and child to himself, and all three were then hauled aboard the Gijon by a rope. The Lanham sank twenty minutes after the Gijon separated. It was not long before the Gijon began to settle, and terrible confusion prevailed on board. The captain stood with a revolver in his hand, but he was unable to keep order. The passengers and crew were fighting for their lives. The boats were lowered and filled to the gunwales, but they could not accommodate half the people. Those who were so fortunate as to secure places in them were obliged to keep off others with their knives. The Gijon sank bow first. The deck was literally covered with men and women, the captain and officers standing on the bridge. It is estimated that 130 persons perished.

The Egyptian Conference.

LONDON, July 29.—The Egyptian conference met yesterday, remaining in session three hours and a half. The meeting failed to reassemble for a short meeting to-day. Mr. Gladstone stated last evening in the house of commons that an important point arose in the conference which the latter thought it necessary to refer to their home governments. They would ask for an immediate reply, which they expected to receive to-day, when a communication would be specially arrived at. All the delegates were anxious to press matters to a settlement. Some of the representatives of the delegates intimated their approval of the leading points of the French proposals in relation to the government of Egypt. The British ambassador offered to the consequence of the conference a year's provisional arrangement, based upon a tax on foreigners in Egypt, the suspension of the sinking fund and the commission administration. He also abandoned his proposal to reduce the interest on those canal shares held in England. Earl Granville asked for an extension of the provisional arrangement to two years.

Threatened Famine in Egypt.

CAIRO, July 29.—In reference to the circular issued by the minister of finance, under orders from England instituting an immediate payment of arrears of taxes now amounting to 1,000,000 pounds, the fellahs have unable to obtain cash advances on their crops. The fellahs are anxious for the arrival of the harvest, when they can raise the money. The cotton crop is ravaged and the cotton crop in Lower Egypt. The prospect is very poor. Besides the above there is a small famine in Upper Egypt. In the year 1878, when 40,000 persons perished from famine.

The Fifty-sixth regiment has been ordered to proceed to Assouan.

Left Destitute in Rome.

ROME, July 29.—A burglar disguised as a woman forced his way into the residence of an American lady in this city last evening, and secured a quantity of valuable articles, with which he was escaping when an alarm was given. The burglar was arrested by the police and populace in the street, the burglar turned at bay and presented a revolver, which he caused to explode, wounding a citizen in the thigh, but the thief was finally arrested by the crowd. The property was not recovered, however, and the unfortunate owner is left nearly destitute.

Surrounding Suakim.

CAIRO, July 29.—The number of rebels surrounding Suakim has been swelled to 17,000, and accessions are constantly being made. War dances are kept up continually among the hostile tribes and all signs of religious frenzy. Another attack upon the town is expected hourly. The newly arrived British marines and artillerymen were landed yesterday under a broiling sun, the heat reaching 100 degrees in the shade.

England Denounced.

PARIS, July 29.—The Figaro has a bitter article against England. It declares that England has never helped but to tempt and to forsake. It upbraids the Khedive and all those who have followed her. Figaro advises France to abandon relations with England and give up her prejudices and to defend itself made an alliance with Germany. "Germany is an honest enemy; she would be an honest ally."

A Turkish City in Ashes.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 29.—The city of Marash, in Asiatic Turkey, ninety miles from Aleppo, has been almost wholly destroyed by fire. The fire burned for days, three mosques, 300 dwellings and 1,000 shops were swept away. The inhabitants are in great distress.

Cuba and the Spanish Treaty.

MADRID, July 29.—Mr. John W. Foster, the American minister, had another important interview on Saturday with Senor Canovas del Castillo, the Spanish premier. It is a difficult task for the Spanish government to reconcile the conflicting commercial interests of the peninsula of Cuba.

THE SPECTRE RECEDING.

A Marked Improvement in Cholera Statistics—Deaths and Casualties.

PARIS, July 29.—There were thirteen deaths from cholera at Marseilles Sunday night, and ten yesterday. At Toulon there were fourteen and at La Valentine, a village near Toulon, the number is seventy. The mistral, a strong wind from the northwest, is prevailing in the Mediterranean provinces, and the weather is cooler. There is a panic and delay in decreasing in the cities, but increasing in the country, among the peasants. There were six deaths to-day at Aries.

Three deaths from cholera occured at Toulon yesterday. In that city there are thirty-one cases at the Recontre hospital and 115 at the St. Maudrier hospital. Three of the deaths occurred at 7, 15 and 9 o'clock. All cases is also declining. At Toulon the average fell from 40 to 15. Isolated cases are reported from various parts of the district. The epidemic is declared over at Arles and Aix.

HE WANTED REVENGE.

An Insane Ex-Convict Threatens to Kill the Man He Robbed.

NEW YORK, July 29.—"Be prepared when we meet," said Col. Davis, as he read the concluding sentence in the letter that Augustus Floyd, a commission merchant, doing business at 192 Front street, received from Col. Davis, of Davis, Hubbard & Spring's store a few weeks ago. Mr. Floyd paid no attention to the matter, but receiving three more letters of a similar character Detective Sergeant Mahan, of the Leonard street police station, was consulted. Floyd said: "I admit writing the letters, and if I had been let alone my threat would have been carried out."

"What was your purpose—blackmail?"

"No, sir; revenge."

"What has Mr. Floyd done to you?"

"He has been the means of my being sent to prison for five years," answered Davis, sullenly, "and I want my revenge."

"On what charge?" inquired Justice Smith.

"There was no charge. The whole thing was a scheme to get me out of the way."

"The charge was burglary," said Mr. Floyd. "I lived in Englewood, N. J., in 1877 there was a burglary committed in Mary Davis, a cousin of the prisoner. They robbed my house. The inmate was shot, but Davis was convicted. After he had been confined two years he was removed to the Bloomingdale insane asylum. He was released a year ago. I'm afraid that if he is at large he will carry out his threat to my family, whom he has also threatened."

Justice Smith committed him to the care of the city physicians to ascertain his mental condition. They were unable to carry the case from Officer Silleck he broke away and aimed a blow at the complainant. He was seized and placed in a padded cell.

A Moonshiner Assassinated.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 29.—The assassination of Jim Armstrong, a noted desperado of North Arkansas, near Fairview, Carroll county, is reported. As Armstrong was on Friday Armstrong and a boy were traveling along the road, when they were fired upon from the woods. The boy was not injured by fall, and at the same time saw two men coming toward him, shooting. He was told to run for his life. They continued firing at Armstrong after he fell. Armstrong died on Saturday there were fourteen bullet holes in his body. The murdered man was a bad character and a fugitive from Missouri, having killed a Mr. Yates in that state. He was a moonshiner, and it is alleged, among other things, was secretly dealing in illicit whisky. His murderers are unknown.

The Tax on Whisky.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Some time ago the commissioner of internal revenue issued an order that on and after the first day after the first of September, 1884, the collection of the tax on whisky by assessments shall be discontinued. Strong efforts have since been made to have the order revoked, but without avail, and yesterday he notified the petitioners that the original order will be enforced. Under this ruling the tax will be collected on the whisky distilled, and if not paid the property will be distrained.

No Glove Contests in Trenton.

TRENTON, N. J., July 29.—Mayor Donnally directed Chief McChesney to inform the proprietors of halls and similar places that they will be prosecuted in case they permit any fights or glove contests in the building. City Solicitor Smith says that the statute in this state is so broad that it prevents the production of prize fights of every kind, however nature. The effect of the mayor's order will be to prevent the coming fight between Caffey and Morrissy in this city.

Traveling Swindlers.

SCHENECTADY, July 29.—Recently the people of Chenango county have been victimized by two men selling stoves and stove fixtures goods. In every case the swindlers got a promissory note in part payment for the goods, and the victims all claim that they were somewhat surprised to see the notes for which they signed. On Thursday last they visited Rotterdam, swindled an old German out of $100 and left with most of what they had sold here as well.

Dissatisfied Farmers.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 29.—News from Aylmer to-day indicates serious trouble. A spreadeagle six miles northwest of that place where the farmers have turned out on a farm owned by one Pagan to stop the construction of the Pembroke and Pacific railroad railways. The farmers are not satisfied with the arbitrators' award of the right of way. The company of Ottawa and the Pembroke rifles have been ordered to the place of disturbance.

Eighty-Seven Miles an Hour.

DODGE CITY, Kan., July 29.—A cyclone visited Cimarron station, eighteen miles west of here, demolishing about about a dozen houses. Mrs. Barton and her child were killed. Mrs. Barton's husband also received painful injuries. The wind here reached a velocity of eighty-seven miles an hour.

CINCINNATI, O., July 29.—John Raymond, a carpenter, and family reside at College Hill, was crushed to death in the Adams hotel elevator yesterday afternoon. He was allowed to go up unassisted, and tried to jump out of the fifth floor while the elevator was in motion.

FORGERY BY A LAWYER

A Young Brokerage Firm Victim of Nearly $80,000.

The Legal Gentleman Speculates and Gives as Margins Securities to Which He Attached Fraudulent Powers-of-Attorney.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The firm of De Witt & Swan, stock brokers at No. 20 Broad street, announced their inability to meet their engagements yesterday just before the close of business. The firm is composed of B. D. De Witt and Mr. Swan. Mr. De Witt is a member of the exchange. Both are young men who have not been very long in business, but they have stood well on the street and since May 1 have occupied the old offices of McGinnis Brothers & Fearing, who suspended several months ago. The firm has been trading on the bear side for a long time and with success until a week or so ago, when their customers were caught short. This has been the only "bear" failure in months.

It was learned late in the day, however, that the advance in stocks was not the sole cause of the suspension. A customer had dealings with them to a large amount of forged securities for margins, and when the firm tried to close out the account it found the securities worthless. At the office very little information could be obtained. Mr. Swan admitted that a customer had forged the power of attorney attached to securities deposited by him as margins. They then thought it best to close their business.

"What is the name of your customer?"

"We do not wish to disclose his name at present."

"What were the forged securities?"

"Really I do not know. We are investigating to find if it was forged. The forged paper will amount to $100,000. We will to the chief issue."

"Do you intend to prosecute the forger?"

"Certainly, if we are sure that the man did it deliberately. I think our customer has left town."

Further than this Mr. Swan would not say. From other sources it was learned that the customer was a young Corlyln attorney-at-law of some prominence. This attorney stands in a confidential relation to an estate. About a year ago he began to speculate and deposited as margins for his operations securities worth about $130,000. None of these securities were listed, but they were of high standing. Among them were the Metropolitan Company stock, the Third Avenue Railroad stock and United States Trust Company stock. The securities did not stand in his name, but attached to the power of attorney to sell given to the lawyer. The firm afterwards hypothecated them, obtaining several large loans. The firm has since taken up all these loans with the exception of one for $80,000. Nothing is about $80,000. On Saturday when the customer failed to put up additional margins the firm decided to let it first began to close his account. Taking some of the stocks to the companies issuing the securities in order to have them transferred to their names they discovered that the power of attorney were forged. After that the firm closed out many of its contracts on the Exchange privately. Yesterday, however, they failed to open. They were unable to carry the load and publicly announced their suspension.

The following stocks were bought to-day under the rule for their account: 300 shares Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, 100 shares Western Union, 100 shares Burlington and Quincy, and 100 shares Lake Shore. Several small lots of miscellaneous on the Exchange are sold to amount to $80,000. This amount is secured by Mr. De Wolf's seat in the Exchange, worth about $25,000. The firm has placed the case of the forgeries in the hands of three detectives.

The Search for the Greely Party.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—A brief preliminary report by Lieut. Schley of his search last yesterday to Admiral Nichols, acting secretary of the navy. The report is dated St. Johns, July 21, and merely states that in proceeding to Cape York for the Greely party it was often found necessary to take greater risks in navigating than are ordinarily justifiable, as the waters navigated were in the main unknown imperfectly surveyed and their dangers unlearned. The course was to a great extent covered with ice, and although great prudence was constantly exercised, both the Thetis and Bear grounded several times, but without sustaining serious injury. Capt. Schley purposely avoided reference to the question in his first telegraph report for fear of causing uneasiness, but in his final report will furnish a minute account covering the circumstances attending each incident.

Dr. O'Donnell and His Report.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Dr. C. C. O'Donnell, of San Francisco, who has made a special study of leprosy, and makes it the basis of an argument for the expulsion of the Chinese from that country, arrived in this city to-day and announced that he had two lepers on the way here and would exhibit them on the take from their yesterday afternoon. The health authorities notified him that this would not be permitted, and they were not shown. The doctor, announcing that they had not arrived, gave a lecture and exhibited photographs of persons afflicted with leprosy. He says he proposes to exhibit his lepers in the principal eastern cities. Doubts are expressed in some quarters about his having any living lepers.

THE GOSPEL OF PEACE.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Preaches to a Large Audience.

Subject: "Christ Our Peace"—Text: "He Is Our Peace."

BROOKLYN, July 29.—The Rev. Dr. Talmage preached to a large audience in the Academy of Music this morning. His subject was "Christ Our Peace." Text: "He is our peace." Ephesians ii, 14. He said:

Peace is the absence of war. Peace is the cessation of hostilities. Peace is the treaty that ends the battle. Peace is the white flag that floats from the fortress. Peace is the sheathing of the sword. Peace is the dismantling of the war ship. Peace is the turning of the cannon toward the foundry to be melted into church bells. Peace is the drum head that has become a table for the writing of a proclamation. Peace is the soldier's knapsack filled with the implements of husbandry. Peace is the trumpet that has become a dinner horn. Peace is the cavalry horse that has become a plough horse. Peace is the war chariot that has become a harvest wagon. Peace is the general's tent that has become a nursery for the sick. Peace is the commander's sword that has become a pruning hook. Peace is the fleet that has become a commercial navy. Peace is the armed heel that has become the foot of the dancer. Peace is the cannon ball that has become a sphere for the children to play with. Peace is the bayonet that has become a lightning rod. Peace is the war horse that has become a family steed. Peace is the shield that has become a tea tray. Peace is the helmet that has become a scuttle for coal. Peace is the war flag that has become a curtain for the window. Peace is the arsenal that has become a granary. Peace is the military encampment that has become a village. Peace is the battle field that has become a meadow. Peace is the soldier's tomb that has become a grave of a Christian. Peace is the victory that has become a jubilee. Peace is the nation that has become a family. Peace is the world that has become a Christian. Peace is the Lord Jesus Christ.

ESTIMATING THE EXPENSE.

What It Cost the Government to Rescue the Greely Survivors.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The total expense of the Greely relief expedition is estimated by officials of the Navy Department at about $700,000. The original estimate was $500,000. Of the amount appropriated $127,500 was for the purchase and repair of the steamer Bear, $171,165 for the purchase and repair of the steamer Thetis, $250,000 for supplies, $27,500 for bringing the vessel to New York, $25,000 for instruments to be used in making observations, $16,165 for the repairs made to the Alert, $31,000 for the transport Loch Garry, and $150 for coal.

It is believed that in disposing of the vessels the Government will secure an amount about equal to the sum paid for them. A large quantity of provisions is suitable for navy use, and will be turned over to the service. The contract for the Loch Garry, now in port in New York, which was obtained from English parties expires August 3. Captain Schley has informed the Department that a Board of Survey examined her at St. Johns and found her comparatively uninjured. There was no representative of the owners of the vessel on the Board, however, and a new Board will make an examination at the New York dock.

SHOT DEAD IN HIS HOUSE.

A Connecticut Man Killed by a Trespassing Neighbor.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., July 29.—Andrew Gorman, of Falls Village, was shot and instantly killed at his house in that town by Edward Halstead. The latter went to Gorman's house and asked to be admitted. Gorman and his wife and the children were in bed. Halstead forced admittance, when a scuffle ensued and Halstead drew a revolver and fired three shots, which took effect, one through the heart, one in the arm, breaking the bone, and the third through the body. During the scuffle another shot was fired by Halstead, which wounded himself in the leg.

Halstead then went to the house of Hon. David Brewster, a selectman of the town, and gave himself up. He said: "I have killed Gorman three times and killed him." His face and hands were covered with blood, and he presented a frightful sight. The parties bear a hard reputation in town, and the quarrels are said to have been about women. The town is considerably excited over the affair.

Death on the Rail.

SWITZ CITY, Ind., July 29.—The Narrow Gauge train from Bedford to Switz City met with an accident at 5 o'clock last evening, while crossing White river, four miles east of this place. The west span of the bridge broke in the centre, letting the entire train fall a distance of thirty-five feet to the water, which is four to ten feet deep. William Hibbetts, a passenger, was killed instantly. Dr. W. H. Cole and James East, of this place, were seriously injured. Thomas Anderson, of Bedford, was severely but not dangerously hurt. William Mitchell, of Bradford, conductor of the train, was seriously injured. Lige Roberts and Ben Maynard, were slightly bruised and cut. The engineer and fireman were the only ones not injured. They saved themselves by jumping from the engine.

Muggers at Work.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—A fight took place this evening at the saloon of barber chambers, between William Sheriff, the Prusian, and Bilston Jack, formerly of Pittsburg, which was warmly contested, and both men were badly cut up. The fight was four rounds. Marquis of Queensbury rules, for the gate money. The first two rounds were marked with hard hitting, both men suffering severely. At the end of third round both men were severely punished and were bleeding freely. When time was called in the fourth round both contestants came up groggy and were unable to get in any heavy hitting, and after several attempts Sheriff threw his antagonist against the ropes, he not being able to stand, to fall. Another round was called, but Jack refused to fight longer and the fight was given to Sheriff.

The Diamond Field.

NEW-YORK, July 29.—The following is the result of the baseball games played yesterday:

At New York—New York, 7; Boston, 0.
Metropolitan, 7; Allegheny, 3.
At Chicago—Detroit, 3; Chicago, 5.
At Buffalo—Buffalo, 9; Cleveland, 3.
At Philadelphia—Providence, 11; Philadelphia, 4.
At Baltimore—Baltimore, 18; Washington, 8.
At Washington—Keystones, 7; Nationals, 4.
At Newark—Quicksteps, 6; Domestic, 0.
At Philadelphia—Athletic, 7; Brooklyn, 4.

The Commodore's Cup.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 29.—The regatta of the eastern squadron yesterday for the commodore's cup was delayed an hour by a calm, the yachts not getting to the starting point at 11am. Fifteen minutes were given between the preparatory whistle and the starting whistle and that ten minutes the whistle to start. Ten of the fourteen starting were then handicapped by not crossing the line in time. The Bedouin won the cup leading the sloops time, 4h. 32m. 16s. The Halcyon led the schooners; time, 4h. 51m. 50s.

Celebrating Her 100th Anniversary.

WOLFSBORO, N. H., July 29.—Mrs. Nancy Edgarly, of this town, celebrated the 100th anniversary of her birthday yesterday by a carriage ride, visiting the place of her birth and other places about the neighborhood, also making several calls on friends, and receiving them at her home. She can read the finest print without glasses, her hearing is good, memory almost faultless, and she frequently walks a distance of half a mile without support. She does all her own and other work.

Still Extending.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph Company has obtained control of the lines of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railroad Company extending through the State of Texas.

Mr. David Hall, formerly manager of the Western Union at Galveston, has been appointed superintendent of these lines, and will begin his duties at once.

Estimated Spring Wheat Crop.

MILWAUKEE, July 29.—Sam Tallmadge, the statistician, furnished the following estimate made by the government and state statisticians of the spring wheat in the five spring wheat growing states: Minnesota, 64,000,000 bushels; Iowa, 20,000,000 bushels; Nebraska, 32,000,000; Dakota, 26,000,000 bushels; Wisconsin, 21,000,000. Making a total of 150,000,000 bushels.

Killed by the Recoil of a Gun.

TROY, N. Y., July 29.—In order to frighten off some boys found in his orchard, Benjamin Mooney, the superintendent of St. Joseph's cemetery, discharged a shotgun in the air. The gun recoiled, striking Mooney in the abdomen, from the effects of which he died yesterday morning. Mooney was 40 years of age and leaves a widow and two children.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stones, floor tiling and stable blocks. Also used to build fire and burglar proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have taken the premium at the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. These Blocks are cast from the molten Iron Slag and are the hardest of substance. THE WEATHER.

Signal Office Predictions—Local showers and partly cloudy weather, variable winds, higher barometer, stationary followed by a slight rise in temperature.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Wm. Penn died 1718.

Locals.

—Experts say that a new boiler for Warren Engine No. 3 will cost about $850.

—The Sun this morning says Mayor Mason is a promising candidate for Congress.

—The temperance men of Elizabeth are making things warm for the Excise Commissioners.

—A runaway boy from New York was run over by the cars at Elizabeth yesterday. It is not thought he will recover.

—Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, will take their apparatus out for a wash this evening. The company will appear in fatigue uniform.

—Thorn, the photographer, of this city has been engaged to photograph the Smiths, at their annual reunion at Prospect, Aug. 27.

—Experts examined the boilers of Gazelle Engine No. 1, and Plainfield Engine No. 2, this morning, and pronounced them safe.

—Mr. G. C. Pierson, of Evona, gave a birthday party last evening to about 25 children. Abundant refreshments were served.

—The excursion of the Park Avenue and Scotch Plains Baptists which was announced for to-day, has been indefinitely postponed on account of the weather.

—The Elizabeth Herald contends that the Democratic Congressional nomination belongs to Elizabeth, and proposes for the honor Postmaster-of-the-Press Wilson.

—Weather prophet DeVoe of Hackensack, sees a delegate to the Reform Club Convention held yesterday at Bound Brook. His clerk's prophesy as to the results of the temperance campaign.

—The Convention of the Plymouth Brethren will open in this city to-morrow. Over four hundred delegates are expected to take part. The convention will remain in session about ten days.

—To show "what fools these mortals be," we propose publishing within a few dayaside by side, a Republican and a Democratic column, in which each side will go for the other in red hot style. It will be highly amusing.

—In about two weeks the Reform Club building will be ready for dedication. It is proposed to have a grand time on that occasion. All the clubs of the State will be invited to participate. There will be a grand street parade and demonstration.

—We are not responsible for the sentiments of correspondents. We do not approve of the communication in yesterday's paper reflecting on the police force of this city. The result of our observation and personal experience is that they do as well as can be expected from so small a body of men, and we believe that there is no more orderly city in the State or any other city of similar size. We do not, of course, include Kelly.

A SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Two Brothers Grow in a Quarrel, and Five Bullets Fly Through the Air.

Charles and Reuben Duval, colored, aged respectively twenty-six and nineteen, are brothers. They live on Cottage Place, in the eastern part of the city, and came here from Kentucky. Charles has been here two years and Reuben one.

Reuben is of a wild disposition, and has recently been in the habit of staying out late at night His brother Charles has remonstrated with him frequently concerning his way ward course, but Reuben never took the least notice of it. This morning at the breakfast table, Charles, who has always looked after his brother, again remonstrated with him about keeping late hours. Reuben became quite saggry at him for doing so. After breakfast Charles stopped at Stelle's drug store on Front street, where Reuben works as porter, to get some medicine. On leaving the store he turned up Somerset street. In the meantime his brother in the store opened a draw er in the proprietor's desk and took therefrom a Smith & Wesson twenty-two calibre pistol, and followed his back entrance. Opposite F. M. Frecche's property, he met his brother and shot at him without effect. His brother immediately seized some stones and stood his ground, Reuben continuing the shooting practice. Geo. Demens, at this point, attempted to end the affray, but was coolly driven off by the negro with the pistol. Five shots in all were fired before the affair ended. Very luckily none of the shots took effect. No arrests have been made. Reuben was discharged this morning by the proprietor of the drug store.

The farmers in the vicinity of Hartford, Burlington county are shipping all their potatoes to Boston by rail, as better prices are to be obtained there than in Philadelphia.

THE REFORM CLUB CONVENTION.

Three Clubs Represented—A State League Organized—Mayor William H. Mayers, of this City Elected President—Results of the Meeting.

Bound Brook was alive yesterday. Although the place has three railroads centering there it is only about once in two or three years that it gets awakened. It was awakened yesterday for all it was worth. The occasion of its awakening was the holding of a convention of the Reform Clubs of the State. The call bringing this convention together was issued by the Bound Brook Club last week, and was published in THE NEWS.

The majority of the delegates were as smiling as June roses. If a button-hole bouquet makes a dude, most of them were dudes. There were some from the back woods and some from the big cities. As one present said, the longer they were together the more fraternal they became. But at first some delegations were shy of some others. Particularly was this the case with the Rahway men who were mighty afraid that Plainfield's 2.30 colt clair would get a bigger plum than they did and who greatly delayed business by their obstructionistic tactics.

The Convention was held in the Masonic Hall, the walls of which were decorated with fine pictures. One of them represented the cost of rum as compared with the cost of other articles, as the baking powder method. One placard directly opposite the platform contained a declaration of intention in three short course sentences as follows: "Prayers are heard. Votes are counted. We vote as we pray."

The Convention was called to order by the Rev. John Kershaw, of the Bound Brook Club, who welcomed the delegates in a short earnest speech. Mayor Masson, of this city, was chosen temporary chairman, and took the chair amid great applause. He made the regulation speech thanking the delegates for the honor conferred. He was frequently interrupted by applause. John S. Haynes, of Raritan, and George A. Roberts, of Trenton, were chosen temporary secretaries. "All hail the power of Jesus' name" was then sung, and the Rev. Mr Hurd, of Chester, led in prayer, after which another hymn was sung.

A telegram was read from Mr. Mateer, as follows: "Greatest success for the convention, and kindest regards to all." An answer was ordered sent.

A committee of three was appointed on credentials, as follows: Smylley, of Bound Brook, Edgar, of Rahway, and Wittington, of Chambersburg.

A committee of three was appointed on permanent organization, as follows: Adams, of Metuchen, Kershaw, of Bound Brook, and French, of Plainfield.

A committee of seven to present a plan of action was appointed, as follows: Chairman of the convention, Mayors Gehrle, of Washington, Messing, of Plainfield, Bullock, of Flemington, Moore, of Elizabeth, Osborn, of Rahway, and Jenkyn, of Trenton.

The committee on permanent organization presented the following as permanent officers of the convention: President, William H. Mayors, of Plainfield, Vice-Presidents, James Rougert, of Montclair, A. W. Marshall, of Metuchen, Oscar Jeffries, of Washington; Secretaries, J. S. Haynes, of Raritan, George A. Roberts, of Trenton.

The committee on credentials reported twenty-four clubs represented with ninety-six delegates, as follows: Bloomfield, 5; Chester, 3; Dover, 1; Elizabeth, 8; Flemington, 5; Martinsville 4; Metuchen, 3; Montclair, 5; Millstone, 5; New Brunswick, 5; Newton 2; Oxford, 5; Plainfield, 5; Rahway, 5; Somerville, 5; Trenton, 5; Washington, 4; Westfield 3; Bound Brook, 5; Verona, 4; Junction, 2; Hackensack 1; Raritan, 5; Chambersburg, 4. The total membership of the clubs represented, was 6981.

The roll of clubs was called to allow reports to be made of the progress of the work, each club being allowed three minutes. Some stirring speeches were made.

The committee on plan of union reported a constitution to govern the united clubs. The name is fixed by the constitution as "The Reform Club League of New Jersey," and the object is stated to be "The intercommunion of those ties which bind us together as members of organizations which, by the grace of God, exist, and by the love we bear our fellow men constrain us to continue to exist, so long as the drink habit curses the nation and the home of the land." The discussion of questions relating to the welfare of the clubs; to embrace the experiences of clubs in every department of work and the lessons there form; to give advice when asked and to tender sympathy and help where needed. The annual meeting was fixed for the last Tuesday in July, and the annual dues of a club were fixed at $5. The constitution was adopted unanimously.

The officers of the convention were made the officers of the league. The other officers provided for by the constitution were elected as follows: Corresponding Secretary, Robert S. Manning, of Plainfield; Executive Committee, President Masson ex-officio, Secretary Manning, ex-officio, Samuel Crump, of Montclair, John H. French, of Plainfield, George Lamont, of Bound Brook. Uzal Osborn, of Rahway. James Wildington, of Chambersburg.

The following resolution was introduced by John H. Sayres, and passed:

WHEREAS: In order to facilitate and lend vigor to the local clubs, and utilize the representative talent of temperance workers in advancing the cause throughout the State,

Resolved,—That the Corresponding Secretary be instructed to organize a bureau to be known as the speaker's bureau, and that each club furnish a list of speakers who will be available when called on duty.

Resolved,—That the pay for any of said speakers include such expenses as may be incurred.

A resolution was passed directing the president to invite all the temperance organizations in the State to send delegates to a convention to be held at Asbury Park, Aug. 1.

The Rev. John Kershaw, of Bound Brook, was appointed chaplain by acclamation.

President Gibbs, of the Manhattan Temperance Union, was present, and addressed the convention. Nearness other addresses were also made. The convention adjourned with the best of good feeling prevailing.

In the committee where the constitution first came up for discussion, there was considerable talk of inserting a prohibition party plank, but after a free discussion of the matter it was considered advisable to steer clear of politics. In the convention also it was evident that the majority of the delegates favored endorsing St. John for President, but they were restrained from making a move to that effect by the wishes of the minority. But the enthusiasm for the prohibition candidate passed all bounds when the Rev. Mr. Handley, of Trenton, took the floor, and made the best speech of the day.

A collation for the delegates and their numerous friends was provided by the ladies of Bound Brook in a room adjoining the hall.

In the evening the Rev. Dr. Lewis, of this city, addressed the delegates and the people of Bound Brook in Bound Brook Hall on the subject of temperance.

Personal.

Mr. Frank Cahill, of New York, is registered at the City Hotel in this city.

Mr. Bert Ayers, of Providence, R. I., is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. G. Miller.

Mr. W. Mooney and family, of Plainfield, are stopping at the Gilsey House, Asbury Park.

Misses May and Minnie Tomlinson have gone to Noyes' Beach, R. I., to spend a few weeks.

Mr. D. J. Daly, the proprietor of the City Hotel starts to-morrow for Far Rockaway Beach.

Mr. Thomas Randolph and wife, of Central avenue, are visiting friends and relatives in Rhode Island.

The City Man to Support the Baby.

A few days ago Mrs. Martha Sneider was committed to the county jail by Judge Good. She has a baby, which was left in the city. The alleged father refused to provide for the child's support, and it was taken to her grandmother. She also refused to see that the child was properly cared for, and it was then turned over to the Overseer of the Poor Nodyne, at his residence on Fourth street. He kept the child all night, and in the morning found a boarding-place for it in the city's expense. Proceedings will probably be taken against Sneider on the charge of cruelty to children.

A Horse Thief Arrested.

On Saturday one Charles Smith tried to dispose of a horse about town for what he could get for him. As his movements were suspicious Chief Dodd arrested him. The chief yesterday received a notice from Chief Dell, of Newark, giving a description of a horse stolen a few days before from the farm of Henry Allborn, a resident of Verona, N. J. The horse which Smith had tried to sell corresponded with this description. The prisoner will be held to await the action of the authorities of the other county.

A Circumstance.

Chief Dodd, Saturday night, after midnight directed Policeman Grant to disperse a gang assembled on the sidewalk, near Smith's saloon.

Policeman Grant recognized Kelly among them. Shortly after this, the footsteps of the incendiary was heard prowling around the rear of the premises, 26 Front street.

Of course we don't suspect that Kelly was the incendiary, Perish such a thought.

State Matters.

There were 94 deaths in Newark last week an unusually large death list. Of the total 58 were children.

The Ocean City Camp Meeting commenced on Saturday night and promises to be the largest and most successful yet held.

While workmen were cleaning a cellar at Third and Benson streets, Camden, yesterday, they found a valuable gold watch.

State Senator Albert Magrath, of Camden County, announced in a card that he will not be a candidate for renomination this fall.

The grapes in South Jersey are now out the second stage of rot, caused by the unfavorable weather. Many growers will lose all their crop.

An unknown woman, aged about forty, jumped into the Delaware River from the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Bridge in Jersey City, Monday, and was drowned.

The Paterson police have in their custody a man calling himself Thomas Watson, who on Saturday passed a worthless check upon a grocery store. He is thought to be a professional forger. Watson's real name is said to be Thomas J. Wilson.

A little son of John M. Vendryes, a citizen of Hackensack, was drowned in the Hackensack river from drowning at Bonnet Point Monday by Captain Stephen Townsend, after he had sunk for the third time. The rescue was made under great difficulties.

The drum fish, which have done considerable damage in Princess Bay, have reached Raritan and Keyport Bays. The oysterpmen are much alarmed. In 1883 the fish killed these waters and damaged the beds to the extent of $100,000. It is feared that the same thing will be repeated.

The funeral of ex-Congressman John Hill took place yesterday afternoon. The services were held in the Presbyterian Church, at Boonton, and were attended by representative men from every part of the State. The town was crowded with strangers, nearly 2,000 people being congregated about the church. The procession was so great that only the mourners and others who accompanied the body from the house were admitted. Five clergymen participated in the services. The body was interred in the cemetery in Boonton.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 29 1964.

KELLY WANTS A REPUTATION.

In view of the threats made by Nicholas Kelly against the person and property of the editor of this paper, and in view of the man's confession in this office, before one or more witnesses, to the effect substantially that he was a vicious tramp, and also in view in connection therewith of the evidence brought out in the investigation of said Kelly recently by Common Council, which was too filthy for publication, and which resulted in his suspension from duty on the police force, we presume we would have been justified in concluding that he, or some equally vile scoundrel instigated by him, had maliciously and with intent to murder, set fire to our dwelling, in which we, our wife, and children were peacefully asleep, innocent of malice or harm to any one. Instead of this, we had not thought of Kelly in connection with the act until several who knew him better than we did, indicated that they suspected him. Even then we repudiated the idea, and lest he should be unjustly suspected, we publicly stated that "we did not believe him quite such a murderous villain, whatever might be his past record." We have enough of his record from his own lips to make us consider him unfit to be at large, and above all things unfit to be entrusted in the protection of other people's persons or property.

Actuated solely by a sense of public duty, we exposed this lecherous villain, against whom we had not and have not now the slightest spite, and whom we did not even know until he forced himself into our presence, and by threats attempted to intimidate us, against doing our duty to the people of Plainfield, and have so kindly assisted us and encouraged the enterprise we have inaugurated with such success.

In our desire to be charitable even to the extreme, we went so far as to refuse to testify against this ulcer on society, when he was being tried by Common Council, and when our evidence, as we were informed, was considered very material by the prosecution as suggested in the letter hereunto annexed:

THOS. W. MORRISON, ESQ., CITY.

DEAR SIR:—In a matter pending before the Common Council, your evidence is desired by the Police Board in charges preferred by Chief Smith.

If you will attend you will confer a favor on the city authorities and

Yours respectfully,

DAVID A. MARSH,
Counsel for the Corporation.

In our further desire to be charitable, we in the issue of THE NEWS on the day following Kelly's suspension, stated that, while we did not take any work in his profession of reform, for we believed we understood human nature too well to be thereby gulled, we suggested that he be given a fair chance, and since then he has not been alluded to in these columns. We endeavor at all times to be kindly forbearing, "with malice toward none and charity for all," but we are simply when forbearance ceases to be a virtue.

At the incendiary fire until we completed the act which saved the lives of ourself and family, and probably the lives of our neighbors, and, after retiring, and in the quietness again of our room, reclined thinking of the fearful death contemplated for us, and that any human being could be found so murderously inclined against an unoffending citizen and his family, we, then in joy and gratitude to God, realized how great had been our deliverance.

In 1863, a tall stripling, not yet 15 years of age, we enlisted in Co. D, 9th Reg't, N. Y. Vols., and in the first Brigade, second Division, Fifth Corps, under the beloved Major General Warren, we were in all the engagements with the old regiment from long before the time the army of the Potomac left Culpepper Courthouse, Va., including the fight at Cadet's Station. We were at Cold Arbor, The Wilderness, the charge upon Petersburg on the 15th of June, 1864, in which we were wounded, and after the fifth three days' fight for the possession of the Weldon R. R., the first day of which, during the fiercest of the fight, when all the color guard had been killed or wounded, we went of the detail on the field of battle to fill the places of our fallen comrades and save the colors. Later in the fight, when our beloved regiment was flanked and forced to fly before superior numbers, our fearless Color Sergeant, Riley, was wounded through both thighs, while still holding the colors overhead, we did not think of our own life, but lifted and carried him with the colors between us to a place of safety, from the fire of the shot and shell and musketry. We were wounded, captured, and escaped, to be a month later, September, 1864, recaptured, during an attack upon our picket line, in which we had not heard the order to retreat. We spent six weeks a prisoner in old Libby Prison, at Richmond, three weeks a prisoner on Belle Isle, and the balance of the time until the close of the war, seven months in all) a prisoner in Salisbury, N. C., the youngest of 10,000 prisoners. We were in all the fights of the prisoners in the latter place for freedom, and were paroled and sent to the Soldiers' Home Hospital then at 23d street, New York, with very little hope of recovery. We have before and since happened to be also where danger has been great. Yet while in all these we have never realized, we forgotten to thank the Great Deliverer, this last event reaching to every member of our family, when all were asleep, appalled us. We hate more than ever realized, in our providential awakening, how good God has been to us. We hope He will discover to us the infamous perpetrator of so foul a deed, and enable us to execute for him the punishment he so richly deserves. We will do not suspect Kelly, whatever his record.

DEMOCRACY'S CHOICE.

Gov. Cleveland Officially Notified of His Nomination.

Addresses of Col. Vilas and the Committee of Notification—The Governor's Reply—A Letter from Samuel J. Tilden.

ALBANY, July 30.—Yesterday was a great day for Albany. Never before were there seen at one time so many distinguished Democratic politicians seen in this city all in a bunch. The sensation that had stirred the town and had attracted all the people to the streets, the coming of the national committee of the party.

It was 2:30 o'clock when the Albany Phalanx, headed by a brass band, marched to the front of the hotel to escort the notification committee to the executive mansion. They looked neither wind, rain nor muddy streets. Their white plug hats of the period were kept from impairment by umbrellas. The committee men, however, were not so courageous. They were willing that the Phalanx men should get wet to the skin for them, but they preferred riding behind in carriages. A crowd followed, with umbrellas over head.

When the mansion was reached the committee halted, and the troops did a perfect fix attempt at decoration had been made. All there was beyond the ordinary appointments was a bank of choice flowers on the mantelpiece. The gloomy day demanded it necessary to light the chandelier and sidebrackets. The parlor was comfortably crowded. At each side of the entrance were the ladies of the household, Mrs. Hoyt and Miss Cleveland, the governor's sister, the Misses Hastings, his nieces, Mrs. Folsom and Mrs. Perrin, the former partner and daughter, and Mrs. Lamont, wife of the governor's secretary. All were handsomely attired. Among the gentlemen present were Samuel J. Randall, Gov. Waller, of Connecticut, Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, Hon. Perry Belmont, Senator Gorman, of Maryland, Hon. Wm. Dorsheimer, Fremont, Senator Murphy, of New York, S. Corning Judd, of Illinois, Senator Gorman, of Maryland, Hon. Erastus Corning, Judge Maynard, of Tennessee, Hon. Perry Belmont, cousin, and others. While the committee awaited the governor's appearance, the bands outside played patriotic airs. Gov. Cleveland, with his

CHOLERA IN A MAD-HOUSE.

A Marseilles Lunatic Asylum a Cholera Scene at Midnight.

PARIS, July 20.—In the chamber of deputies last night the deputation under the leadership of M. Clemenceau appointed by the extreme left to visit the places infected with the cholera, reported that the people of Aubagne during the night in its vicinity, where they were huddled together in the streets and squares, were the best off. The sick are entirely neglected. The cases of cholera are reported from the authorities and no surveillance is observed. The deputation inspected a mad-house at Marseilles and found numerous cases of cholera there. The lunatic asylum is a center of infection.

There were 501 cholera cases during the twenty-four hours preceding 7 o'clock last night. Two deaths have occurred at Air since noon yesterday.

During the past 24 hours there were twenty-three deaths at Marseilles.

Seventeen cases of cholera have appeared at Pancalieri, a village of Italy. The patients are mostly sailors from Marseilles and Toulon. Measures have been taken to isolate the district.

Dr. Dutrieux arrived at Toulon two days ago from Alexandria to study the cholera epidemic. A renewal of the epidemic is feared there, owing to the return of a number of fugitives.

The classification of the deaths from cholera at Marseilles according to the nationality of the victims gives the following results: French, 7567; Italians, 1,513; Greek, 9; English, 1; Austrian, 1; German, 1, and American, 1.

MASSACRED BY EL MAHDI.

Arms Taken and Its Inhabitants Slain. Gen. Gordon's Plans.

LONDON, July 20.—A dispatch from Cairo states that a detachment of the Fifty-Fourth's force, under Major Chermside, on the latter part of June, left Kassala, and was met by a company of native troops. They made little or no resistance, and the detachment secured several hundred persons. As the report comes from an Arab trader, who has just arrived from the Kaddarif country, it is generally accredited.

A merchant who left Kassala three days before starting to read a letter from Gen. Gordon to the Mudir of Kassala, dated June 11. According to this Gen. Gordon was safe and had abundant supplies of provisions and ammunition. He was short of money, however, and was raising funds by issuing bonds. He was hemmed in on all sides by rebels. As soon as the Nile rose his intention was to equip steamers. At Kassala, the merchant says, there were supplies of provisions sufficient to last five months.

HOW ITALIAN WORKMEN LIVE

Eating Toads, Turtles and Chickens Which had Died from Disease.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 20.—The filthy habits of a gang of Italian laborers on the Lehigh Valley railroad who are bivouacking here have caused the inhabitants to live in dread of an epidemic of cholera. The Italians and the residents locate and build turtles, which they seem to regard as delicacies. A few days ago a cargo of sheep arrived. Five died en route, and when thrown away were secured by the Italians and served up as a stew. All the chickens dying from cholera are gathered up eagerly and cooked for the evening meal. There is great liking for young mare and frequently steal calves and lambs but a few days old. The citizens have resolved to band together and drive the pest breeders from the place. Contractor McGee, of the Lehigh Valley railroad, has failed to pay his workmen. He completed the work on the Mays mountain, received the money from the company, after which he disappeared. Some of the laborers are leaving the place. Mrs. Mays owns property of the road. Mrs. Mays often works body for lumber and material and his workers are on his track. He is believed to have fled to Bethlehem, Pa.

Given Away.

BOSTON, July 20.—Fifty pairs of kid gloves fell from the ceiling of a millinery room at the South End yesterday afternoon between Ned Craig, of Springfield, and Pete McCoy, of Boston. Four rounds were fought, Craig being severely punished. It was a scientific fight throughout, Craig's blows having the effect of making McCoy's face look like a piece of raw beef, while Mr. Talbot's was disfigured with telling effect. In the middle of the last round Craig lowered his hands and said he had enough, and the fight was awarded to McCoy. Judge Dunn was referee.

Pleads Poverty.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 20.—John C. S Harrison has filed his reports as receiver of the Indiana Banking Company, which failed with liabilities of $1,000,000. He is responsible for $101,817, of which he has a credit of only $6,904, thus leaving a deficit of $95,611. He claims the property mortgaged by persons of $1,000,000, but says he would need $97,000 to pay it, and to be indebted to the sureties as individuals for $62,000. He pleads poverty and inability to make up the shortage.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 20.—Gen. Sherman is here conferring with the local committee relative to the reunion of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee on August 13. All arrangements have been perfected, and the reunion will take place on the banks of Lake Minnetonka, near the Hotel Lafayette. Ladies will be admitted to the banquet, and those intending to attend should communicate with Gen. J. B. Sanborn, chairman of the executive committee.

Decision in a Pension Case.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Acting Secretary Joslyn, in a pension case, has decided that claimant's slip in their original declaration alleging locally general disability, such as impaired health, may subsequently present supplementary declaration specifying the various causing disability, which will be regarded as part of claimant's original declaration.

Asking Cleveland to Withdraw.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., July 20.—The Catholic Journal, edited by Father Wynne, published in the interest of the Catholic school here and having great influence and circulation among the Irish citizens, contains an editorial this morning requesting Cleveland for president, and demanding his withdrawal from the field on account of the charges of immorality and drunkenness.

A Double Case of Death.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., June 20.—The 3-year-old daughter of Frederick Walter Eights took, in addition to a bottle of strychnine, also two tumblers of soap powder, which burned of her mouth and in a portion of the throat of the usual cause.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and is pulled into place deliverably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement for walks and yards, gutter stones, floor tiling and stone blocks. It is used in hotels and for garage proof vaulting, and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities. They show no perceptible wear; are non-corrosive, non-fading, non-sweat, as well as all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this material repulses perfectly free from it. These Blocks are cast from the molten iron Slag and are the hardest of substances. Specimens on exhibition at my Store, opposite Stillman's Music Hall. For further particulars call on or address

SILK WORMS AT WORK.

Hundreds of Thousands of Them Spinning Silk Under One Roof.

What Miss Nellie Rossiter Has Accomplished—Experiments to Obtain New Shades in Cocoons —Interesting Details.

(Philadelphia Times.)

Miss Nellie Lincoln Rossiter, the "young silk culturist," of world-wide fame, is now conducting operations on a more extensive scale than ever. The first of this season's crop of silk worms is at its height. A visit to Miss Rossiter's residence, 6004 Vine street, West Philadelphia, will reveal to the inquirer the complete process of silk culture, from cocoon back to cocoon again. The two parlors on the first floor of the house are occupied by Miss Rossiter's unique and valuable collection. The silk stock farm is spread throughout the second and third stories of the house, which is so crowded with frames, trays and muslin screens that the human occupants of the buildings are pressed for living room. Every one of the family—from the grandfather, aged 84, to the little brother, aged 5—is actively employed in the work, all being devoted assistants to Miss Nellie, the business woman.

SILK WORMS AT WORK.

The worms beneath this can roof number hundreds of thousands, and all are in a perfectly healthy condition. They are about the size of an ordinary caterpillar, but are smooth and have over twenty rings of yellow-white. The first are white, yellow, orange, pink, sage-green or pale brown, and from this that can be told the color of the cocoon that each worm will spin. They are very voracious eaters, eating ravenously over the mulberry branches, eating greedily or preparing to spin. Cocoons of every shade, just begun or just completed, are scattered over the branches among the leaves, in bundles of straw prepared for them or in bunches of cut paper. The frames are kept neat by the outspread sheets of white muslin netting on the floors, which are sprinkled with water, so that everything about the worms is clean.

Besides the worms and scattered cocoons, there are moths to be seen. The silk worm moth is smooth and of a uniform pearly tint. The male moth is smaller than the female and may be known by its making a slight hurring noise, while the female is always silent. The eggs of the silk worm are about the size of a pin's head and vary in color from pale yellow to pink. In thirty days black roots, spread out upon newspapers, are perhaps several bushels of this year's cocoons, all large and beautifully colored, principally snow-white, cream-white, sap-green, honey-yellow and golden-yellow. Seven natural shades have been observed in cocoons, including a pale pink and a fawn-brown.

MINT EXPERIMENTS.

Miss Rossiter has made several interesting experiments this season, which, if successful, will give her fame as an innovator as well as a producer in silk culture. One of these is the rearing of a new variety of silk worms, known as "black Thibets," recently imported from India and which may be distinguished from ordinary silk worms by dark gray gray strings upon the body. Another is the crossing of different color-producing worms, with the view of obtaining new shades in cocoons. A cross of yellow and green has already been produced.

Miss Rossiter also believes that the day is not distant when families can manufacture their own silk from the cocoon to the completed fabric. Accordingly she is experimenting in dying the reeled thread, in spinning it, and in weaving it on a little loom. All ready she has added to her stock of implements a larger reel for unwinding the silk from the cocoons, a spining-wheel and a hand-loom, said to be capable of giving 180 distinct effects to a woven surface. Miss Nellie has secured the co-operation of Mr. John Hall, a silk dyer of Philadelphia, living in Haddington, who has made her the loan of his own invention, and is teaching her how to manage it.

WHAT MISS ROSSITER HAS DONE.

To Miss Nellie Lincoln Rossiter more than to any other person living, the United States owes the revived interest in silk culture. This girl of 17 has by her correspondence and intelligence made Philadelphia the head quarters of the industry; yet, almost as might be expected, her name is known anywhere but in her native city. At present her stock of silk worms is considered the finest in the country and she controls the egg monitor. Her pamphlet on silk culture, which has reached editions of 40,000 copies, and is now in the rate of 8,000 copies a year, is regarded as the one authority on the subject.

Miss Rossiter is the only literary representative, as she has contributed a great number of articles, showing careful historic and scientific research upon a variety of subjects connected with silk culture, to the periodicals. She is editor of several silk departments in western agricultural papers. In short, the name of her achievements is legion; but she is best remembered as introducing silk culture into a subsidiary village in Turkey, and also into the schools of Indian territory, where, it is said, silk culture will prove a valuable means of civilizing the red man.

How Horace Greeley Was Annointed.
(Ben: Perley Poore.)

Horace Greeley, when visiting Washington during the latter part of the Pierce administration, put up at the old Willard's Hotel, the National hotel from the capital, when he was accosted by Albert Rust, a Virginian by birth, who was then a representative from Arkansas, saying: "Is this mister Horace Greeley?" Mr. Greeley replied that it was, whereupon the man hit him in the face with his fist, and was proceeding to strike him with his cane, when other persons present ran and separated the two. Greeley then wanted to know who his assailant was, but the man, saying "you will soon know," walked off. The next day Mr. Greeley left his friends near the National hotel, to again come up and strike him with a cane, which Greeley wrested out of with his own. Greeley did not strike the man, and he never made any complaint against him, save to denounce him in The Tribune. Rust served in the Confederate army as brigadier-general, and died in April, 1870.

Perpetual Business Motion.
(Exposition Universelle.)

I fully believe that the time is coming, in the time it at least when night and day will be much the same, when shops will be open, cars will run and business be done all night just as all day. To keep up with the rapid progress of the age many occupations will ultimately have to be pushed all the time, and the world will run on two watches—a day and night watch. It is not many years since no shops were open or visible after midnight, no shop or house of any kind was open, and really there was no place for a fellow to go to. Now a man can get beverages with perfect assurance all night, and a great deal of work which was in the old days left to take its chance with the morning is done at night.

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE.

What a Family Physician Says About the Headache.

How People May Keep the Plant at Bay—Words of Wisdom for Suffering Men and Women.

["Pipsey Potts" in Arthur's Magazine.]

There are a great many kinds of headaches. There are various causes for them. Perhaps the most common kinds are the sick headache and a headache which comes from an unequal circulation of the blood. The first comes from an overloaded stomach, which is obliged to call a halt and relieve itself. There is generally a tendency to vomit and a pain in some part of the head, frequently the left side. The pain is sometimes almost unendurable. This is caused by there being too much bile in the system; the bile has been manufactured too rapidly or has not been worked out of the system fast enough by active exercise. Women who are subject to spells of the sick headache are those who are confined in-doors too much; their lives are monotonous and they eat too heartily of food not solid and perhaps not digestible, or perhaps they eat between meals, taking a bite off the piece they spread for the children, or they take a handful of nuts or an apple or a drink of cold coffee.

Persons who have sick headache, as a rule, eat too much and exercise too little. They have cold feet and they are constipated. Too often they are people who are low-spirited, morbid, subject to the "blues," sensitive; the kind who "take a good cry;" persons who "feel things terribly," whose fits of apprehensiveness is large; who know nothing of that ease and comfort that goes with "a quiet heart." They are age-makers.

Not to a very up in the clouds, delighted, excited, animated, or away down in the mire, despondent, sorrowing, and gloomy.

Sometimes a bad headache comes from tight boots and shoes, tight lacing, or a garment that binds and embarrasses part of the body. If from any of these causes our verdict would be "nervous in right."

The headache of common among young persons comes from derangement of the digestion, and the subjects of it are often addicted either to secret dyspepsia, or to balls, theaters, evening concerts, and other dissipations, extending far into the hours of the night. The cure is so evident that it would not be necessary.

Rheumatism is a headache that comes from the cold and dampness of the atmosphere, and quickly wrung out and back of the neck. The feet above the ankles should be in moderately hot water at the same time. The pain is greatly lessened by these simple applications.

Ministers are apt to suffer very much from the tired or nervous headache. Up above the congregation the poor must get all the heat and foul air which rises, and they occupy the very top of the atmosphere

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Andrew Johnson died 1875.

Locals.

—The Crescents play at Long Island City on Saturday.

—The Republicans say they will have a wigwam soon.

—The firemen at the Music Hall are nearing the end of their work.

—Miss Carrie Force returns to-day from a six weeks' stay at the White Mountains.

—The Warren Mission temperance meeting will be held as usual to-morrow evening.

—The horse thief was late yesterday afternoon turned over to the authorities of Essex county.

—The regular meeting of the Common Council for August, will be held on Monday evening.

—Rains may come, and rains may go, but the colored camp meeting in Hyde's woods still holds the fort.

—The Washington avenue bridge over Green Brook, has been given some repairs in the shape of new flooring.

—The Somerville and Westfield base ball nines will play this afternoon on the Crescents' grounds in this city.

—North Plainfield board walks are still in a break neck condition. A round sum for damages may be the result.

—The Reform Club business meeting this evening will be held in the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed Church.

—The Democrats of Somerville raised their banner Tuesday evening. A broom occupies a conspicuous position on one of the poles.

—The Republican ward primaries have been called for Monday evening for the election of delegates to the State Convention.

—The Lincoln Guards will meet in Association Hall, Park avenue, on Saturday evening for the purpose of organizing for the campaign.

—The road bed about the cross-walks at Second street and Park avenue have been decorated with crushed stone, making it level with the cross-walks.

—The Fourth Ward Binine and Logan men will meet Wednesday evening at Lalor's Hall, Front street, for the purpose of forming a ward organization.

—Warren Engine Co., No. 3, have employed a quadroon of police to quell any disturbance that may take place at their picnic to-night. A pleasant time is expected.

—Fire taxes are now payable, and will be received any day during the month from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. by the Collector, V. L. Frase, at his office 25 West Front street.

—The pulpit of the Congregational Church will be supplied during the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Goodrich, by the Rev. Dr. Lewis, of the Seventh Day Baptist Church.

—The Republicans of North Plainfield will meet to-morrow evening in George Collins' temperance room, Somerset street, for the purpose of electing two delegates to attend the State Convention.

—The city has contracted for one thousand tons of crushed stone to be used on the streets. The price to be paid is one dollar per ton delivered, and the work is to be furnished by the Rice tinwood works in the North.

—There will be two hundred and eighty-one theatrical and musical "attractions" on the road next season. If they all strike Plainfield before the season ends, the Opera House will be open every night, and more too.

—At a meeting of the Crescent Base Ball Association last evening, the resignation of E. B. Cowperthwait, Secretary, was accepted, and E. G. Pope was elected to fill the vacancy. About twelve new members were elected.

—A man giving his name as Christopher Schroeder was found on Front street the other night by Officer Grant. He was about seventy years of age, and had been working for a farmer at Millington. He became unwell and resolved to go to his brother's in Newark. When he reached this city he became sick, and was unable to proceed. Under the circumstances Overseer-of-the-Poor Nodyne gave a permit for his removal to the Muhlenberg Hospital.

—In the advertisement elsewhere of Mr. Morgan G. Bird, is a cut which represents a new means of screening and loading coal, which will probably find much favor among coal dealers PLAINFIELD as its merits become generally known. The horse attached to the coal cart is driven upon a trend power whereby at will the handy screening series of coal buckets is operated to lift the coal automatically from the bottom of the storage, suitably inclined so that the coal falls into the buckets, and is dumped through a screening sieve into the cart thoroughly cleaned.

Probably a Treacherous Foe.

EDITOR OF THE NEWS.—Early Sunday morning the editor of THE NEWS was aroused from a deep slumber at his residence on Front street, by an alarm of fire. The rear of the building was in flames, and there is conclusive evidence that the originator of this foul piece of work is an incendiary. Had it not been for those timely arrived on the scene of the editor much damage would have been done, and probably there would been loss of human life. Happily the incendiaries design was not consummated. It is the outspoken opinion of every person, n-t of their own stamp, that the perpetrators of this horrid attempt upon innocent lives cannot be too severely punished. Many cases of a somewhat similar nature have come before our notice within the past year. Many barns have been laid in ashes by the destroyer's torch, and hitherto all efforts to detect them have proved futile. Large rewards have been offered and diligent night watchmen have been on the alert; but all to no avail. The case that is mentioned above presents a new theory, and a clue that may bring the rascals to a well deserved punishment. It is not only done this, but it was the means by which a new and startling discovery was made—one upon which scientists may ponder, and that demands the immediate attention of the Plainfield Reform Club. A new enemy has entered its precincts. Upon the morning of the fire Mr. Corbell, entering his hay loft, discovered something which astonished him beyond measure. It was "an empty whiskey bottle," supposed to have been in the possession of the incendiary when forming the horrible plan. What the perfidious author of this cowardly attempt contemplated doing with the novel invention, or whatever it may be remains a mystery, and will probably continue so. Many opinions are advanced as to its use, but none as yet have proved satisfactory. It is admitted that unless some effort be made to solve this hideous problem and crush it while budding, it may prove an evil tree. Gentlemen of the P. R. C.—an awful danger is impending. It behooves every one to put forth every effort. As it is with all possible cunning and bring this fiendish inventor and enemy of life to a timely justice. J. COLES.

Engine House Lodgers.

Foreman J. A. Moore of Gazelle Engine Co., requests us to state that the two men who were within five minutes after the incendiary fire on Front street, peering from a rear window on the second story of a building which at that time we supposed was the engine house, were Charles Cleveland and William Davis and that they were not in the engine house, but in the building adjoining, which we understand Cleveland occupies every night. One of the men referred to called to know if they would ring the fire alarm. Persons have inquired of the foreman to know what business anybody had in the house at that hour of the morning, deeming it a suspicious circumstance, and we avail ourselves of the opportunity to say that no suspicion whatever is attached by us to either of the two men referred to or any one connected with either of the said organizations.

Personal.

Mr. Carman Parse and wife have gone to the Adirondacks.

Mr. Andrew J. Garrett has gone on a trip to Niagara Falls.

Mr. H. P. Reynolds and wife, are spending the season at Block Island.

Dr. Samuel Ayres, of New York, has been visiting his father, W. C. Ayres, of this city.

Mr. C. D. Wadsworth's family are at Princeton, Mass., the guests of the Wachusett House.

The Rev. Dr. C. H. Malcom has been visiting the Rev. T. Logan Murphy, of North Plainfield.

School Commissioner Murray's family are summering at Lazarus. They are stopping at the Rockwell House.

The Rev. Mr. Richards, the new pastor of the Crescent Avenue Church, is camping out in the woods of Maine.

Fire Matters.

Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, took their apparatus out for a wash last evening. They tried the well at the corner of Second and Washington streets. The engine was found to be in good working order, throwing 140 feet of water from an inch and a quarter nozzle. After the wash the company partook of refreshments.

The picnic of Warren Engine Co., No. 3, takes place this afternoon and evening at Wooden's Grove.

Illuminated Wheelmen.

The New Jersey Wheelmen's Association will give a Chinese lantern parade in Newark this evening. The meeting will be at Military park, and the route will probably be through Broad street to Central avenue and then through the Oranges, when the roads are in good condition. The procession will be quite an imposing affair, and over two hundred wheelmen will participate.

Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

The sixth popular excursion to Mauch Chunk, Glen Onoko and the Switchback, via the Reading road, will take place on Aug. 6. The excursion train will leave this city at 9:10 a. m., and the fare will be $1.75. These excursions have been well patronized this season.

—The 28th annual report of Sunday School work in Somerset county shows 26 schools, with 1,326 officers and teachers, 5,627 scholars and 19,205 volumes in the libraries. The amount contributed for benevolence during 1883 was $2,111.19; for county and State work, $205.79.

—The case of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company vs. Louis Kaufmann, for $50,000 damages for injuries received in a collision at the junction of the Broad Brook and Lehigh Valley railroads, has been removed from the Supreme Court to the United States Circuit Court.

Some Elizabeth Queries.

The Elizabeth Herald among other things says:

If there is a town, city, village or borough that is better ornamented with magnificent trees, gardens and shady streets than Elizabeth, trot it out.

If there is a city that has more rotten wooden pavement than Elizabeth can boast of, we would be pleased to hear of it.

If there is a city with as large a population as Elizabeth that can show a better record for health—ness and, a shorter list of mortality, we want to move there at once.

If it's not bad to take the "conceit out of the Herald, but not to the "magnificent lawns, gardens and shady streets," Plainfield can discount Elizabeth fifty per cent and then go on one better. As to wooden pavements, Plainfield hasn't much of that article, but what it has lays all over in rottenness any piece of like pavement in the country. And then as to that health item, we think we will have to welcome our brother to this city with his bright and newsy daily.

Reform Club Inscription.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—I think it would be acceptable to the public if you invite competition for the inscription that is to be placed over the platform in the Reform Club building. I offer—

"Drinking water neither makes a man sick, nor in debt, nor his wife a widow."

Sun Burst.

The Head of a Crank He Was!

At the Reform Club Convention Tuesday, one delegate in speaking of the fact that the temperance cause was on half crutches, shouted, moving his arm in a circle in the air. "Everywhere we've been grinding down the rum traffic for the past half dozen years, (another two seconds sweep in the air) and will continue to grind it down until there is nothing left."

State Matters.

The Trenton City Council has decided to employ Rudolph Hering, of Philadelphia, to prepare plans for a complete system of sewage for that city.

Three cases of small-pox have been reported to the Hoboken authorities in the last few days. All are said to be mild cases. The City is in a deplorable sanitary condition.

Maria Cassidy, an alleged lunatic, who had escaped from Rockwood Asylum, was recaptured yesterday afternoon by Constable Frauks at Third and Federal streets, Camden.

Alexander Miletta, Jr., of Camden, has begun a civil action to recover $4,000 damages from Thomas Dever, a well-known merchant of Philadelphia, in being of the latter's evidence in a trial before the District Court.

The Essex county board of Assessors met recently and fixed the taxable value of the property in the county, exclusive of $2,000,000 of individuals, as follows: Real estate, $115,764,000. The county tax rate was fixed at seventy cents on the $1,000.

A man who registered as "S. H. Lee, Trenton," broke into a boarder's room at a Paterson hotel during supper and stole considerable money and jewelry. He escaped. There is no name such as given by the host in the Trenton city directory. The Trenton police have of no such man.

George Reible, of No. 261 Second street, Jersey City, was held in $500 bail yesterday by Justice Cleveland, charged with having brutally beaten his aged mother. He admitted the offense, but urged in extenuation that he was drunk at the time and did not know what he was doing.

The annual report of Collector Hathorn, of the Fifth Internal Revenue District, shows the receipts for the year to have been $4,-666,109.07. This is about a $1,000,000 falling off, due to the reduction of the tax on tobacco, snuff and cigars, which alone made a decrease of $1,000,000.

Two children at No. 24 Belmont avenue, Camden, were taken suddenly ill with symptoms of poisoning on Monday night. Physicians were summoned, and pronounced they were out of danger. It was learned that they had eaten the seeds of the stramonium plant growing wild in a vacant lot.

Agnes Brennan, a young West Orange woman, appeared in Judge McCarter's court at Newark recently as a complainant against her aged mother, Sarah Brennan, who had left home and her mother immediately after she went back after her clothing. The old lady was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

H. K. Brown, of Jersey City, who was recently appointed Consul to Algiers, sailed yesterday in the Oregon. He will go first to Gibraltar and then to Algiers, via Malta and Alexandria. As an expression of kindly feeling his friends paid all the expenses of his outfit and trip, and presented him also with a purse containing $200.

Mrs. Rebecca Cox, an aged lady residing alone upon an unfrequented by-road on West Creek, was found by a boy the tall autumn morning that she was stricken with paralysis. She was in this helpless condition when the boy appeared at the door, and the rays of the sun and the atmosphere of the material meadows. She may recover.

The Jersey City Board of Finance and Assessors met on Monday last and fixed the annual appropriations for the several municipal bodies as follows: Education, $400,000; police, $288,000; fire, $245,000; water, $80,000; finance and taxation, $200,000; police, $200,000; making a total of $1,413,000. To this must be added $1,000,000 for the tax rate 2.97. Last year's tax rate was 2.36.

There are 164 lodges in the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge F. & A. M., of this State. The membership at the previous session of the Grand Lodge was 11,000. The gains were 1,000 by initiation, 168 by affiliation, 1,000 by restoration, 600 total gains, 621. The losses were: By death, 320; dropped for non-payment of dues, 275; suspended for other causes, 26; by affiliation, 1; deceased, 164. Total, 824. Total gain for the year, 1,777.

A NICE DISTINCTION.

Kelly and Ryan are released by the Republican authorities of this city—The Central New Jersey Times, for the following is this week's issue:

It was intimated in a public print on Monday that Nicholas Kelly was not discovered in the Paterson block fire. Mr. Kelly instituted proceedings for libel against the publisher, Mr. Morehead.

"Public print" is good. The following from THE EVENING NEWS, the "public print" referred to, is the alleged "intimations":

"Public opinion in Nicholas Kelly's case has been most emphatic as that of the possible incendiary who tried to fire the property at 35 West Front Street. We repeat the intimation and call attention to the fact that murderous [illegible] may be a part of his past record."

On or about June 25th last THE NEWS boldly exposed Kelly as a man unfitted for the police force. Just as it would gratify the people of this city to see Kelly and Ryan removed, so also would it gratify the people of Paterson to see Kelly removed from the force. The Press neglected to do its duty, and there's the rub, if our memory serves us right. The Times neglected to do its duty in the matter of the late fire, and there's the rub, if our memory serves us right. St. Hendricks Reads to the Advantage — He Replaces the Duties of the Vice-President — The Two Candidates to Meet To-day.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 31.—The committee appointed by the Chicago convention to notify Gov. Cleveland of his nomination for the vice-presidency arrived here yesterday.

The committee met at noon, and was in session nearly two hours. Messrs. Vilas, Hoskin, Walker and Simmons were appointed a sub-committee to ascertain Gov. Hendricks' pleasure as to the time of notification. They reported that 3 o'clock would suit his convenience, and that time was fixed.

A resolution was passed extending thanks and compliments to William F. Vilas and W. H. Hall for the dignified and courteous manner in which they have performed their respective duties as chairman and secretary of the committee." The committee then adjourned.

The large parlor of the Grand Union, where the notification was to take place, was well filled by o'clock. The lady guests in summer toilets occupied the settees and lounges. A semi-circle of chairs had been placed for the committeemen in the centre of the room facing the west wall. Ample space was left for the speakers and the governor. It was a much more picturesque scene than was witnessed at the executive mansion. Very few members of the national committee were present. Gov. Waller, of Connecticut, was here this morning, but left by the 1 o'clock train.

Conspicuous among the large concourse of spectators was Hon. David Davis and his wife. John Kelly was in the hotel, but did not participate in the ceremony. Mr. Hendricks, accompanied by Mrs. Hendricks, came into the parlor shortly after 3 o'clock. They were greeted with clapping of hands. After a brief pause Hon. William F. Vilas stepped forward and addressed the governor. Mr. Vilas was in his usual eloquent mood and impressed the audience with his grace of oratory. He spoke slowly to the object of the committee's visit, he said:

MR. VILAS' ADDRESS.

"Sir, though Indiana's favored citizens may enjoy with just pride a peculiar honor in the distinguished service you have rendered your party, your state and the nation, and may feel a peculiar attachment for the gallant regiment which, under your command, he assured that the Democracy of the nation participates in that sense of honor and affectionate regard in hardly a less degree. They well know that your long and honorable career, sometimes in the faithful performance of high public trusts, sometimes nobly contending as a soldier in the ranks for the principles of constitutional liberty, but always with firm devotion and unswerving fidelity to the interests and rights of the people and your party, have fully earned for you your patriotism to yield all professional wishes and undertake the labors of their candidate, as on their part the people can fully repose upon this expression of your wisdom to most satisfactorily meet all the responsibilities of the high office to which you will be called. The committee also felt, I am sure, well approve, that it was serving the spirit of the constitution when it designated for the vice-president a citizen [illegible] and competent to execute the highest functions of the chief magistrate. It is an especial desire of the Democracy, sir, to see your party in the full enjoyment of its powers, because they know, as now all the world knows, that once you were given title to it by the people you would promptly decide its possession by the snooze of usurpation, of fraud and conspiracy and the vindication of exact justice will be most complete when your party, the platform we [illegible] you may be triumphantly inaugurated to your rightful chair of office. This sentiment has given discretion to the personal considerations and [illegible] Democracy so abundantly manifested in the recent convention, and will stir a responsive throb in the hearts of [illegible] Fielding the grateful office which the parties favor of [illegible] gentlemen, my distinguished associate, has assigned me, permit us one and all to express the hope that, after a season of rest and a more enduring exertion of its duty the committee have prepared and personally signed a written communication, which the secretary will now read."

Mr. Vilas was frequently interrupted by applause. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. M. Bell read the address of the notification, which, with the exception of some allusions to the "great fraud" of 1876, was in substance the same as that presented to Gov. Cleveland at Buffalo. The address was then handed to Gov. Hendricks encased in a handsome black Russia leather cover. Gov. Hendricks' reply was received with a hearty round of applause. He spoke as follows:

MR. HENDRICKS' REPLY.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Committee: I desire to express to you my appreciation of the honor in the presence of a committee representing a more august body of men than that which you represent. It is the congress of another. The convention was large in numbers, august in culture and pure in sentiments, and may I not add to that, that love of country, and that devotion to the principles of free government which constitute the virtues of the party which it represented, it is hoped to carry into the country and to the people at large. The declaration came from all the states and territories [illegible] and I believe, too, from the city of Chicago, [illegible] of the convention, and I may say that the unanimous judgment and opinion upon all these questions which seemed to be of importance to the law. For the purpose of passing upon these questions and of nominating candidates for the people that convention assembled. They acted upon the principles that were in the platform and upon a choice for the candidates. I was also honored by the presentation to the convention as a candidate for the vice presidency, and that convention's work was theirs. I have not received the platform of principles which they have announced to the country, and I have not received the nomination which they have made. I am not, therefore, prepared, I do not feel prepared, to make remarks upon the platform. It is enough for me to say that I am in accord with the principles declared in that platform, and I am grateful for the honor which has been conferred upon me by the Democratic party. [illegible] I accept the honor from you and from the convention, I feel that the duties and the responsibilities of the office are very great.

I know that [illegible] that this particular office, that of vice-president, does not present to such responsibility, [illegible] but when it comes to representing very great responsibilities and it may be so in the near future, for at this time the wheels of the United States [illegible] almost equally divided [illegible] and the vice-president [illegible] that shall have to decide upon questions of law by the exercise of the casting vote [illegible] (Applause.) So you will see that I feel [illegible] because very [illegible] I feel me they is the responsibility of representing a state of [illegible]

[illegible] Speeches by Gov. Waller, of Connecticut; Col. Hoskins, of Mississippi, and Others—Fusion in West Virginia on the Same Ticket.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Chickering hall was crowded to its utmost capacity last evening, the occasion being the Thomas Jefferson Hendricks ratification meeting, held under the auspices of the County Democracy. The entire rear wall of the stage was occupied by an allegorical painting, with portraits of Cleveland and Hendricks. On either side were paintings representing the "Goddess of Liberty" and "Commerce and Agriculture." Seated on the platform were many well known Democrats of this city and vicinity. Hon. Frank R. Coudert presided, and in a brief sketch said that he felt certain that they would all agree that the meeting had proceeded to ratify. The names of Cleveland and Hendricks were received with great applause and cheering. The Republican party, he claimed, had had its day and for the last twenty-four years of service with power and wealth.

Gov. Waller, of Connecticut, was received with loud applause. He said that he had the pleasure of attending the Democratic convention, and the platform as adopted was consistent with the party that framed it. It recognizes the special claim that people must be given every opportunity to make an honest living, and to enable them to give their children a chance of obtaining a better education than they themselves had. It also declares that it is the true policy of the government to take no more taxes out of the pockets of the people than is absolutely necessary to pay the expenses of running the government. The Republicans, he said, have to-day no hope of winning the contest with the Democratic party, for the reason that the party that is left them is not big enough for a gudgeon. They expect to win by a division of the Democratic party in this city and state. But it is a well-known fact that the person who attempts to upset the affairs of a respectably family generally gets kicked out of the house. The people were anxious for a change of government, because they believe that a change once in twenty-five years in a Republican government is a good thing. It matters not how we come to look at the books. (Applause.) The victory of the coming election depends upon New York.

Gen. Charles K. Hooker, of Mississippi, took the floor and in a brief speech said that the people of the south would stand by the Democracy in the support of the great principles of constitutional laws of right and justice, and they would support the Democratic candidates for the reason that Democrats, notwithstanding their poverty.

Gen. Hooker's remarks were listened to with marked attention, and on retiring he was loudly applauded.

Col. John R. Fellows, in a speech in which he predicted the election of Cleveland and Hendricks, was loudly applauded.

The chairman announced that in September the County Democracy would give a grand parade and mass meeting.

Resolutions were read and adopted approving the platform of the National convention, especially the planks recommending the payment of labor and duties on foreign labor; commending the nomination of Grover Cleveland, his uncompromising honesty and resolute devotion to the rights and interests of the whole people; the wisdom of the Democracy of every voter, of whatever party, who desires purity and efficiency in the public service. Also, the wisdom of the party of Cleveland in accepting the nomination illustrating the sincere and practical character of the man and happily presents the great issue of reform and a thorough solution of that issue in the selection of Thomas A. Hendricks for the vice presidency is presented for support as able statesman and honest Democrat, by whose election the American people will ratify and redress that condemnation of the great fraud of 1876, now universally acknowledged and which stands out as the most unjustifiable disgrace; and that without considering the past record of James G. Blaine, condemning the intimation in his letter of acceptance that if true, the Democratic party favors the admission of Irish and Germans into this country by legislation like that which concerns has adopted in relation to the Chinese.

Fusion in West Virginia.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 31.—Immediately following the adjournment of the Republican convention, which was a large number of prominent Republicans caucused. The question of fusion was discussed for several hours. Every county was represented, and at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, by a decided majority, it was decided to fuse with the majority.

The state convention met at 11 a. m. The Hon. Geo. F. Evans, of Berkeley county, was made chairman.

The governor, Edwin Maxwell, of Hepteon county, was then nominated by acclamation and James L. McLain, of Putnam, were named. The ballot resulted: Maxwell, 250; McLain, 249, scattering, 28. The announcement created great excitement.

The state ticket as completed is as follows: Governor, Edwin Maxwell, Greenbrier; lieutenant-governor, A. B. Fort, Greenbrier; secretary of state, Wm. Lamb, Greenbrier and Labor; treasurer, Samuel Burns, Greenbrier; state superintendent of free schools, W. E. Randall, Greenbrier; attorney-general, Wm. Hall, Greenbrier; judges of the supreme court, W. H. B. Flick and J. H. Brown, both Republicans; the former at large, John H. Frew and W. E. Cooper, Republicans.

The platform deals wholly with state matters. Its arraignment of the supreme court of the state is severe. It denounces the extortions "in denouncing the attempt of the supreme court to muzzle the press and to place a double taxation on the people. The ticket is regarded as strong.

Negro Outlaws Attack on a Town.

A Congressman Attempts Suicide.

Brutal Murder of a Veteran.

A Chief of Police Shot.

BROCKTON, Mass., July 31.—Something over a year ago Frederick A. Cowden, of Cambridge, and Miss Lizzie Reed, of Duxbury, also of Cambridge, became engaged. He was drafted, and one year ago as an engagement of marriage was made. Soon after, to Mr. Cowden's ill health the marriage was from time to time postponed. In the meantime Miss Reed removed to this city and Mr. Cowden subsequently was informed that unless the marriage took place he would be disinherited. Until recently he was confined to his bed with typhoid fever, and strong hopes of recovery.

Monday morning he began to sink and could not rise from his bed. He was seized with an uncontrollable longing to be married and the ceremony was arranged then. Miss Reed arrived at the house with her mother and Mr. Cowden's physician. The ceremony was performed, the response of the dying man being barely audible, as he was unable to speak. He began to sink rapidly, and in three hours, while being conscious only a moment or two after the ceremony, was completed. The bride is completely prostrated.

A battle ensued in which one of the negroes was shot in the leg and captured. Navarre and the other escaped in the darkness. Early at daybreak one of them was captured. Navarre is still at liberty, but he will probably be caught, as the whole force is now in pursuit of him dead or live.

A Congressman's Attempt to Suicide.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—William Wirt Culbertson, Republican member of congress from the Ninth district of Kentucky, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, in the National hotel, attempted to commit suicide by shooting. He fired two shots from a pistol, both of which took effect in the back of the head. Neither ball was extracted and it is feared the wounds will prove fatal. Mr. Culbertson returned to this city last week, since which time his friends have noticed that he acted strangely at times. No motive has assigned for the act. A Shocking Murder.

His Friends on the Plea in Semi-Mute Incomprehensible.

READING, July 31.—A terrible murder took place in the new hospital of the county almshouse yesterday morning. A quarrel arose between two old men named John Flowers, aged 58, an Irishman, an inmate for 7 months; Thomas Smith, aged 70, an Englishman, an inmate for three years, and another old old man. Two of them were considered in their right minds and worked daily on the farm, but Flowers was out of his mind at times. This morning he arose stealthily, seized a small heavy bench from the floor and with fatal blows approached Smith's bed. The peaceable and well-liked old man was asleep and unaware of Flowers then quickly pounded the old man to death, beating his head almost to a jelly. The murder was before the third man in the room, asleep in bed near by, was awakened. The alarm was given and Flowers secured and locked in an iron cell. Then he began raving, and said that the old man had killed some one, and that the Lord Jesus had instructed him (Flowers) to murder the old man in the manner in which he did. A coroner's jury was duly summoned the state board of charities for not authorizing the transfer of feeble-minded persons to the insane department of the county hospital. It appears there are a number of people occupying rooms among the aged poor and sane, who are in daily danger of their lives. Flowers escaped from the poor-house a few days ago, and when found secreted in the woods said he was waiting for a basket to be lowered from heaven to take him up.

Boylan Custody Causes Terrible Suffering and Loss of Life.

CINCINNATI, July 31.—At the entertainment given at the Highland house Tuesday night in the pretext that the murder of the city clerk discharged Boylan, he exploded. Yesterday morning Charley Gumsler, seven years old, the son of a laborer living on Oregon street, while frolicking on Mt. Phillip Hill, 10 years old, found the head of a five pound rocket. They took it to the vacant lots house, where they tried to open it but failed. Finally the boy's sister, Mary daughter 12s, 12 years old, inquired what they were doing, and stepped them. The wounded did not cause Rolland to fall, but seemed so enrage him. He sprang to a heavy billet of wood, which he seized, and after he had Fry around the house he struck him on the back of the head with the wood, felling him to the ground. Fry soon afterward died, and there was no one who saw the [illegible] Rolland. Before they reached him, however, he had been arrested and hurried away.

Death of Royal Phelps.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The well-known citizen and merchant died yesterday at 10:30 A. M., at No. 22 East Eighteenth street, at the age of 75 years. His life was thoroughly identified with the history and growth of New York and made his name a prominent one in the annals of its local affairs. Royal Phelps was born in Litchfield, N. Y., the son of a Presbyterian divine, who became of a New England family. Mr. Royal Phelps' mercantile experience was acquired in the West Indies, principally at Laguayra, Venezuela, where he married. Thence he returned to New York in 1847, and formed a partnership with the firm of Maitland, Coggeshall & Co., which soon after became a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, of which body he was elected vice president in 1856. He was also annually re-elected to that office until 1860. In politics Mr. Phelps was a Democrat.

Escaped Twenty-Six Years.

FORT SMITH, Ark., July 31.—Jim Hughes, an aged negro, who was a slave of Sam Haines, Creek nation, in which Sam Haines and another Indian were killed, escaped. Ty John Tiger, also a Creek Indian, Haines and Bonie McIntosh were endeavoring to settle an old feud, when Tiger came upon the scene with a shotgun loaded with buckshot, and recklessly firing into the crowd, shooting Haines in the head and shooting off his nose. Another shot took effect in the head of Sam Haines, killing it instantly. After the shooting Tiger precipitately fled, leaving his hat and coat behind, and escaped unhurt, although about twenty-five shots were made at him. At last accounts he was still at large.

"Lisschen, child, I regret my action. I know not what I shall say this evening."

"Ach, then, Gustav. A pleasant journey you. If you didn't come back for fifty years 'twould be all the same to me, milking the cows and attending to the household. Life here is much the same year by year."

"And there wouldst not find, Lieschen, if I did come home for fifty years?"

He spoke as though he scarcely knew whether to jest or be in earnest, and stood whistling her with a wistful, doubtful smile. She was busily buttermilk churning at the dresser by the scullery window, and he was leaning in over the window-sill, with a pipe between his teeth in one hand, while the other kept breaking off little twigs and leaves of the roses that clambered all round the window, and made a pretty frame to his sunburnt face and broad shoulders.

Lieschen laughed at his question, as she shaped the little white cheese all speckled over with caraway seeds, and did not look up.

"You would be about 100 years old, then, Gustav, I should think," was the only remark she made.

"No, come Lieschen, that is cruel of you. I am only 38—more than your age, it is true, but not nearly 50. And it is something to have a fine farm and a good, new house and the only carriage on Rugen. And if your husband is old enough to know when from black."

"Yes, I know," said Lieschen indifferently; "but there is plenty of time yet."

Gustav Bahr bit his lip and frowned uneasily as he looked at her.

"Then I am not old, Lieschen, 'tis plain to see," he said bitterly. "I think thou hast no heart at all, for all thine eyes are so sweet and thy ways so gentle. Thou'rt some mischief from the devil, I believe, one day will vanish like the foam. Is it not so?"

"I didn't make myself," retorted the girl pettishly, "and I never said you to were old. And you look well, too. If you'd wash and shave the gold hair off your face from her finger—here's your ring. Give it to somebody that has a heart for you."

"Come, come, we mustn't quarrel," he said pleasantly, replacing the ring and drawing her on to his knee as he sat on the dresser. "I shall not be satisfied till that ring is on the other hand, and you come away home with me. Give us a kiss now and say you love me, Lieschen."

Lieschen hung her head and her big brown eyes filled with tears.

"What, crying?" he remonstrated, taking her chin in his great rough hand, and turning her face upward, "and for me? Why, what's the matter, child? Art not happy, Lieschen?"

"Oh, yes, I'm happy enough," with a gulp, "if you would let me alone, Gustav, I am yours now—what more do you want? You say I have no heart; I can't give you what I haven't got."

"Why, that's true. Give me a kiss instead, then," said he magnanimously—"enough for fifty years, in case I do not see you again."

"Again, Gustav?" cried the girl, laughing and struggling. "There, that will do! Put me down, Gustav."

"Yes, presently," he said at last, putting her down. "Take care of her for me, mamie. I don't think it will be fifty years before I come again," he added, turning to Lieschen as he mounted the cart, "but it will be long enough to me, at least, it will seem twice as long."

Perhaps the wistful look in his eyes, or the sadness that crept into his voice so he said those last words, made the girl relent a little; she loved him after all; anyhow, before he had crossed the threshold, she ran after him and stopped her hand into his.

"I go as far as the gate with you, Gustav," she said; and they walked away down the yard together.

"Look at my young ducks, Gustav; aren't they growing fast? and the chickens, too? And look at those lazy geese; they do nothing but feed and sleep. Do you know, I brought them all up, every one of them."

"Ay, they're a brave housewife, Lieschen; and if thou lovest thy father now, and surrender him so well. I doubt not they'll love me when thou art gone, Lieschen. Be thou happy. Be good and happy, and don't forget me—eh?"

"No, you dear good Gustav! Adieu! Come soon again!" And so they parted.

"Gustav says I have no heart, mamie," said Lieschen, sitting on the old woman's knee and looking up into her face; "and I think he is right. How do we get a heart?"

"Herr Gustav should rejoice that thou hast none," said the old nurse, leaning thoughtfully into the bright, clear depths of her dim eyes; "it comes by suffering and fretting and sorrow and trial, and weeping and loving—loving brings it all. They say a heart is the worst thing in the world to have; you cannot have it till it has gone through the terrible fire and been beaten on the anvil. The good God save thee from the flames; but I don't think 'twould be by death, my little flower."

"Gustav is very good to me," mused Lieschen, slowly turning the ring on her finger. "I think I do love him; he is so tall and broad and strong—he could kill me with one hand, mamie, I do think."

"Dreams of the child does talk!" exclaimed the nurse. "But see," she said, pointing to the window, "is not that Herr Gustav come back again? Run, child, and see what brings him."

Lieschen ran out into the yard, and stopped suddenly short, petrified with fear at the sight that met her eyes.

Facing him, face to face—quietly," Gustav was saying; and two farm-servants followed him, barring between them the apparently lifeless body of a tall man, who, as he fell on the ground the eyes opened, the face turned, the hands hanging limply down, the clothes stained here and there with blood.

"Then his hand is dead," said Gustav, "unless it was darker work. We found him in the wood up yonder, bleeding to death. Where can we lay him down? The nurse the better—no, on the sofa in the parlor."

"O, anywhere—yes!" cried Lieschen, breathing over with pity.

"Then we will lay him down on the sofa in the little sitting-room," said then Gustav, not unkindly, but quite irresistibly, yet Lieschen resists the door.

She stood there with her hands pressed together, every nerve strained to interpret the sounds that came from within, half-mollified by the loud beating of her own heart.

"Ach, Gott! if only he not dead!" she murmured, as the stillness seemed to grow unbearable. Then there came a low groaning moan of pain; and she heard Gustav say:

"He is coming to—we were just in time."

Then the old nurse came out hurriedly, her eye fell on the girl's white face, and she came to her with a touch of old time motherly power in her manner, as quiet as might be, while she herself went for water.

When Lieschen came flying back the nurse had got the wounded man's head upon a cushion and she stood in either her with the door. She could hardly bear the cry of pain and pity that rose to her lips when she saw the dreadful pallor of the face, the deep gash in the head, the staggering weakness; but she felt that she could be very quiet if she would not hear, so she went to the door that she could see Gustav.

The nurse took the Herr Graf her hands
